Rebels Checked by Federals.

Huerta Prepares a Sinister Surprise for the Former Bandit.

Wilson Hears that Alarm Has Seized Troops of the Constitutionalists.

Orozco Engineers a Flank Move to Drive Villa Into Chihuahua.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JUAREZ, Dec. 6.—The feeling spread today among rebel leaders that the Huerta government was preparing some sinister surprises in connection with the projected march of Gen. Francisco Villa's army toward Mexico City.

Some belief was expressed that the Federals had an object in evacuating Chihuahua and other isolated Federal garrisons where it was impossible for them to do much more than defend themselves, and that their purpose in abandoning their posts was to permit a more concerted and energetic defense in the Central and Southern States, where forts are more numerous and communication between them easy.

Gen. Villa's intention to augment his present army of 7000 by the scattered bands about Torreon and Zacatecas and to mass 20,000 or more rebels on the march to Mexico City, would place the rebels in a position new for them. Heretofore they have been scattered, while the strength of Tokio and Washington Each Looks for a New Move.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—It was inferred in official circles here today that the channels of diplomatic correspondence between Japan and the United States over the California alien land law had been exhausted without results and that any action looking to an adjustment of the tangle must come from a new move by one power or the other. The correspondence was exhaustive and the last note presented by Japan many weeks ago remains unanswered at the State Department for the reason, it is said, that despite the numerous changes, the controversy remained exactly where it was at the start. It is understood Japan throughout maintained its treaty rights were invaded by the law, while the United States argued as persistently to the contrary.

RUNS UP BILL IN A TRANCE.

Former State Printer Says He Remembers Nothing About Champagne Bill at Hotel.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Automobiles, women and a $501.25 champagne bill figure prominently in a suit brought by Frank H. Morton and his wife, Margaret, proprietors of the Eureka Hotel, against W. W. Shannon, former State Printer, which came up for hearing in the court of Superior Judge George A. Crothers today.

The trouble had its beginning last April, when, according to the complainant, Shannon took an auto party of friends, said to consist of two men and two women, to Morton's hotel and feasted them for two days.

Shannon, it is said, agreed to stand good for the champagne bill which accumulated, but later refused to make good.

Shannon says he was out of his mind for two weeks at that time and knows nothing of the occurence.

SUMMARY.

THE SKY. Clear. Wind at 5 p.m., [illegible]; velocity, 10 miles. Thermometer, [illegible] deg.; highest, 66 deg.; lowest, 43 deg. Forecast: Fair.

THE CITY. Great cargoes of lumber in several fleets have arrived in the last few days in the harbor.

Only one Councilman was against the lowering of the Broadway tunnel, and orders were issued for the work to be done.

Complaints have reached the Harbor Commission that a city official working on harbor improvements is perniciously active to favor labor unions.

The grand jury has asked that their business be speedily adjusted so that they may have the holidays to themselves.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. Smudge pots from the East have arrived in San Bernardino prepared for use should frosts come.

A plan has been submitted to Imperial Valley authorities for the construction of an All-American system.

Bank bandits talk freely at Riverside yesterday of their lives prior to the killing of the cashier of Blythe.

GENERAL EASTERN. The stock market report yesterday was quite optimistic and the financial review of the week from A. P. sources indicated that the belief is quite general that a loosening up of money rates is due. By the firs tof January a large amount of capital, it is stated, will be thrown into investment channels.

After searching half the recesses of the Apex mine for Lopez, the Mexican gunman, no sign of him has been discovered.

WASHINGTON. The Hetch Hetchy bill was passed last night by the Senate and now goes to the President for his signature.

Two reports from the committee that investigated the lobby in Washington are promised during the course of the week.

MEXICO. A Washington dispatch last night reported that the rebels had been checked by the Federals and that Villa is not so anxious to enter Chihuahua now as he was a few days ago.

Mexican dispatches last night indicated that Orozco is executing a flanking movement to drive Villa into Juarez.

FOREIGN. A Berlin dispatch last night detailed the new view of the origin of life as formulated by Prof. Branca.

BANK STATEMENT STRONG, MONEY TO BE EASIER.

Financial Review of Week One of Best Issued in a Long While.

Contraction at an End, According to the Steel Interests, and Past Limitation of Capital Issues Promises an Accumulation Which Will Stimulate Investment. Wall Street Looks for a Boom January First.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—There were indications today of a steady absorption of the high-grade stocks such as has been apparent for some time past. Offerings at concessions were accepted readily, but no effort was made to force up the list aggressively. It was the same quiet, gradual buying which has held the market steady recently in the face of unfavorable influences.

The only movements of consequence today occurred shortly after the opening. Small declines in some of the favorite shares stimulated buying and the list was quickly placed well above yesterday's close. Then came a recession on which gains were cancelled and the market thereafter barely moved.

Although the prospect of the bank statements has aroused some apprehension, the showing proved exceptionally strong.

The cash loan loss of less than $6,000,000 was smaller than looked for. The most striking change, however, was a contraction in actual loans of $51,314,000, which showed the extent to which the banks had gone to correct the position disclosed last week, and fully explained the lightness of the money market this week. Reserve requirements were reduced so sharply that in spite of the cash loss last week's deficit was converted into a surplus of $7,645,000.

Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $1,090,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call the week.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

Increased strength and activity this week despite unfavorable factors, demonstrated the liquidated condition of the stock market. Tension prevailed in the money market with year-end settlements still to come, but easing of money is expected in January. Strict limitation of capital issues promises an accumulation which may be expected to stimulate investment demand.

Indefinite postponement of the new French loan, owing to the French ministerial crisis, obscures the prospect for unlocking capital.

October railroad earnings show a progressive decline in net and emphasize that factor in credit impairment, but strengthen the railroads argument for higher freights. Steel trade authorities express hopefulness that contraction in business is near an end. Reports of increases in the number of unemployed accompany business contraction.

And trust references in the President's message were less drastic than expected in some quarters. Filing of new government suits weakened the stocks involved, but without general influence.

An important influence in the financial situation is the probable early enactment of currency legislation.

Banks were less disposed to precautionary restrictions pending the coming changes in reserve requirements. November's sharp shrinkage in customs receipts indicated that imports have not been stimulated as yet by tariff reductions. Events in Mexico lessened the market's fear of trouble with that country.

Productive.

RETAIL TRADE BRISK IN SOUTH.

MERCHANTS INCREASE STOCKS WITH CONFIDENCE.

Lumber Mills Operating, With Large Demand for Workmen Which Market Cannot Supply. Sugar Yield Best in Three Years and Cotton Prospects Are Good.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Due to a combination of local circumstances, money continues tight in this section of the South. The principal cause is the lateness of the cotton crop. This has kept money tied up in country banks and with cotton buyers and has delayed the returns from marketing the crop.

Land development projects still in an unproductive state have required immense sums, as have other industries. There is a considerable demand for money from Central American countries that is met by the banks here. Activity on the Cotton Exchange has created an unusual demand for money for speculative purposes. Altogether the demand has exceeded the supply. There will be relief after the year-end settlement.

Prosperity is general. Labor is scarce and some difficulty in finding enough men has been experienced by the sugar planters and sawmill men.

Retail trade is splendid and stocks are being increased with confidence. There is practically no market for mercantile paper locally.

GOOD SUGAR YIELD.

The sugar yield will be the best in three years, which is most fortunate for the banks. Quantities of paper are being carried by the banks due to the failure of the cane crop for two years. Owing to the new tariff this is the last year that the sugar planters will have to realize. The heavy yield this year will permit them to wipe out the greater part of the indebtedness. As practically all danger of damage to the crop has passed, much better feeling has resulted in financial circles.

Most of the lumber mills are operating. The competition of Douglas fir has practically shut yellow pine out of the canal zone, which is one factor which is affecting the industry decidedly. The demand for cypress is better than that for pine, but the business being done is much under last year.

As good prices were obtained for cotton and other crops, the fact that the yield is short has been little felt. Farmers throughout the entire territory tributary to this city are prosperous. Much of this prosperity is due to the co-operation of the banks with the farmers.

LOANS ON GENERAL BASIS.

Loans have been made in the rural districts on a much more general basis than ever before. Bankers have taken an active hand in the marketing of the crops. They have advised the farmers intimately and have made it possible for them to sell their products more advantageously than ever before. Bankers have led in the fight on the boll weevil and much has been accomplished.

One of the greatest contributing factors to the present prosperity of the farmers is the fact that the bankers have made war on the merchants who have been in the habit of carrying farmers until they received the revenue from their crops and incidentally charging 20 per cent. interest on the indebtedness, in addition to the high profit made on the merchandise

RAIL PROJECTS TO DEVELOP ALASKA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Dec. 6.—Significant reference to the possibility of railway development in the north, in connection with President Wilson's recent message, was made by Premier McBride here today in an interview.

Sir Richard stated that he believed the construction of a line of railway north and south through British Columbia, providing access to Yukon, was a national enterprise. He said that closely linked with such a possibility as the establishment of this line was the building of railways in Alaska and the eventual linking up of that district with the United States proper by means of steel running Albanian Crown for Boy Prince.

Second son of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, who is being plumed by his father for the throne of Albania and may direct destinies of that troubled land.

Royalty.

SON OF KING FERDINAND IN LINE FOR A THRONE.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SOFIA, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In spite of the rumors that his own position is insecure, King Ferdinand has not abandoned his carefully laid plans for the advancement and extension of his dynasty. He would wish to put a crown on the head of his second son, Prince Cyril, in addition to securing his own crown for his eldest-born, Prince Boris. The Albanian throne is the one now engaging Prince Ferdinand's attention.

Unlike his brother Boris, who was bred in strict orthodoxy, Cyril is a Catholic and, as such, likely to gain the adherence of the Mirdite and other Catholic tribes of Albania. Moreover, this candidature would be backed by Austria rather than that of the Protestant Prince of Vied. Prince Cyril is a minor it is true, but this again has a good side, because it would allow of the present leaders of Albania directing the destinies of that troubled land for a few years longer and accustoming the people to a new order.

King Ferdinand is wroth at the premature disclosure of his scheme for the election of Prince Cyril as ruler of Albania. The Bulgarian journal "Den," which first mentioned the fact was in consequence suppressed for a time.

While the eldest Bulgarian Prince is a dreamer, Prince Cyril is more after his father's own heart. He is a sportsman for one thing, and he is also keenly interested in all matters of actual moment. He enjoys his popularity and knows how to court flattery, though there is nothing that is not open and frank in his nature. Neither does he make a secret of his ambition. Whether he will know how to master the crude machinery of Albanian politics is another matter.

Negotiations with the Albanian chiefs have been carried on through the secret agency of Bulgarian officers now traveling in the country, and before the powers have quite decided on their own candidate it is quite possible that Albania may have at King Ferdinand's indirect, but for that reason none the less influential, instigation, chosen for herself a sovereign in the person of Prince Cyril of Bulgaria.

Alfonso.

KING WOULD RATHER DIE THAN TAKE A REST CURE.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MADRID, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Deep anxiety prevails in court official circles, owing to the well-authenticated report that a Viennese specialist, consulted by King Alfonso, takes a grave view of the King's health prospects. The affection of the throat from which the King has been suffering for years has spread to the post nasal organs and is progressing upward. Unless it can be checked, consequences of the gravest kind are feared.

Alfonso has been advised that the only possible hope of arresting the disease lies in undergoing a regular course of treatment for a year, living an absolutely quiet life and abandoning all official work and social and other excitements.

The King is reported to have replied: "You don't guarantee a cure and I can tell you, that a year as an invalid would certainly finish me."

The King's courage excites intense admiration, but his restless energy and fatiguing pursuits aggravate his condition.

Faust.

SAYS LIFE REACHED EARTH ON WINGS OF A METEOR.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prof. Branca, the famous paleontologist, has advanced what he terms a new theory of the origin of life. He does not accept the theory of spontaneous generation as a scientific solution, nor the biblical explanation which presupposes a miracle and is therefore unacceptable. His theory is that life is as old as the lifeless matter of which the stars and planets are composed. Life, he holds, has been "vaccinated" into the earth by life germs from other planets through meteorites.

Scientists maintain that this hypothesis is strongly supported by indications of the existence of life in all the planets. He says, "life is as old as the universe in which we live. In seeking any hypothesis which needs to solve the problem of how old it is we run against questions, problems and mysteries about which we may dream, but which we can never solve."

RAKER BILL IS PASSED.

Water Supply for San Francisco.

Measure to Tap the Supply of Hetch Hetchy Valley Is Adopted by Senate.

Utility Precedes Beauty of Nature With American Lawmakers.

Signature or Veto of the President Awaited by the Framers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The Raker bill giving San Francisco water supply and power rights in the Hetch Hetchy Valley, Yosemite National Park, passed the Senate at 11:57 tonight by a vote of 43 to 25. The bill had previously passed the House in the same form and goes at once to the President for signature.

Bitter feeling developed in the Senate tonight when a parliamentary misunderstanding threatened to defeat the final vote upon the bill. Acting under a unanimous consent agreement to vote on the "calendar day of December 6," Senators became confused as to whether the vote would be prevented if the debate continued until midnight. Vice-President Marshall held the calendar would expire then, but refused to rule as to whether a vote could be completed if begun at that time. Several Senators prevented efforts to get a supplementary agreement for a vote at some specified time before midnight.

"I serve notice," declared Senator Myers, in charge of the bill, "that if this vote is defeated [illegible] there never will be another unanimous consent agreement so long as I remain in the Senate."

The situation was relieved when Senators still to speak on the bill announced they would shorten their remarks and bring an early vote.

Senator Pittman, who made the chief speech at the night session in support of the measure, withdrew in the midst of his address in order to smooth the way for a vote. He presented figures to show the Hetch Hetchy water supply was more than ample for the needs of San Francisco and all irrigable lands in the San Joaquin Valley. He declared no other source of water supply would meet the future demands of San Francisco. Much of the opposition to the Raker bill, he declared, was the result of "an endless chain" method of campaigning.

Practically all municipalities of California favored the bill, he said, while "99 per cent. of those people who send these protests have never been inside of the State of California."

Senator Poindexter of Washington opposed the passage of the bill and claimed other sources of supply were open to San Francisco. Senators Colt and Gallinger, in brief statements, also opposed it. Senator Clark of Wyoming declared the bill should be amended so it would simply give San Francisco the right to the water supply without conferring the other rights of ownership and privilege contained in the Raker bill. Unless these amendments were made, he said, he would have to vote against the bill.

THE DEBATE.

Senator Norris, supporting the bill, declared he did not believe the beauties of nature or the rights of irrigationists should be infringed. He outlined the expenditures, he said, San Francisco already had made in connection with the work. Senator Poindexter wanted to know how the city had been forced to spend money.

"I did not want to go into that," replied Senator Norris, "because I have no proof. But I have heard repeatedly that San Francisco, under rulings of former Secretary Ballinger, paid large sums of money to corporations influenced or controlled by John Hays Hammond."

The maximum number of visitors to the valley in any one year to date, Mr. Norris said, was 279, and for the last two years not half a dozen except those going on political business had made the journey.

"No man has ever gone to Hetch Hetchy a second time," said the Senator.

The attitude of Representative Church of California, who supported the bill in the House and now opposes it figured in the debate. Senator Norris said he had no doubt that Representative Church's letter to Senator Works, urging defeat of the bill, "came under duress."

He read Church's speech in the House, in which he had declared the bill would be of benefit to his constituents.

Senators Lippitt, Thomas and Reed supported the bill and Senators Sterling, Smoot and Martine criticised their position.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona ascribed the vigorous opposition which has developed during the consideration of the bill in part to the activities of the Spring Valley Water Company, which now supplies the city of San Francisco with water.

"This is the same Spring Valley Water Company," he said, "which reached out its tentacles and gathered in Councilmen of the city in the dark days of San Francisco's graft regime, when Abe Ruef and his gang worked out the affairs of the city."

Senator Reed argued to show that

Analysis.

MIDDLE WEST ON EASY STREET.

Bank Clearings Are Large and Crops Bountiful.

Conditions Are Readjusting to Political Change.

Railroads Are Seeking Cars to Handle Business.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An analysis of the business situation shows that the majority of complaints about business operations during the last two years have been without real foundation or reason, according to a circular letter just issued by the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis. Totals of earnings in business for the last twenty-four months set a new record.

After calling attention to bank clearings, foreign trade, earnings of railroads and the crop production which exceed any similar period in the history of the country, the letter continues:

"The trouble has not been the lack of business but the lack of money with which to operate and the dullness on the stock exchange is another natural result of scarce money. Banks have been busy handling the absolute needs of their big customers in manufacturing and merchandising lines, aiding importers and exporters to finance their business and assisting through the country banks the moving and marketing of the crops which have been the largest ever known.

"The period has been one of enormous transactions, tight money, uncertainty as to the future, and as a natural result it has been a period of small profits. While readjusting to the operations of a new political administration, repricing to meet the necessities of the new tariff bill, scheduling incomes in accordance with requirements of the income tax, and adjusting to the operations of a new currency system in whatever form it may be finally fixed by Congress, and while going through the tremendous business of readjustment which may become necessary because of the proposed anti-trust legislation and anti-trust action, the volume of business as a whole must necessarily shrink to some extent. The care with which business will be operated during the ensuing two years period will mean much in the increase of actual net profits.

"During October bank clearings totaled $15,696,000,000, while last year they were $17,146,000,000. The shrinkage was not due to lack of stock exchange operation because clearings outside New York totaled only $7,002,000,000, compared with $7,007,000,000 for October last year.

"Railroad gross and net earnings for September, the latest available complete figures, show total gross earnings of $285,000,000, compared with $275,000,000 last year and net earnings of only $93,000,000, compared with $98,000,00 last year. The gain of $10,000,000 in gross earnings and decline of $5,000,000 in net earnings makes a disparagement between the two of $15,000,000, and is another evidence that the greater the volume of business the worse the railroads position. There has been no ruling made by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the proposed freight-rate increase by the principal Eastern lines.

"A number of wage increases are already effective and it appears that nothing will clear the situation except some increase in freight rates and a readjustment of the amount paid railroads by the government for carrying mail which will offset the loss burden which has been laid upon the mail-carrying roads by the parcel post.

"There are still not sufficient cars to handle the loads waiting them. Merchandise exports of September totaled $218,000,000 compared with $200,000,000 last year. Imports amounted to $170,000,000 compared to $145,000,000 a year ago. The total amount of money on deposit in the Missouri State banks and trust companies on November 21, 1913, was $333,936,865.57 according to the report of State Bank Examiner Mitchell.

"This is enough to give every man and woman and child in Missouri $101.39, the per capita wealth in State banks and trust companies has increased $4.39 since November 26, 1912, when the $142,046,175.28 deposited in national banks of Missouri and the postal savings banks are added to the deposits in State institutions, the per capita wealth of the 3,500,000 Missourians will be $144.22."

THE CURRENCY BILL.

Democrats With Republican Votes Force Thirteen-Hour Programme to Hurry the Measure Along.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Democratic Senate leaders, with the aid of ten Republican votes, succeeded today in forcing a programme of thirteen-hour-a-day sessions of the currency bill. Two hours recess, from 6 to 8 o'clock in the evening, will be the only break in the daily work from 10 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night.

Senators Borah, Brady, Brandegee, Cummins, Gronna, Kenyon, La Follette, Norris, Perkins and Smoot, all Republicans, joined the Democrats, voting for the long daily session.

TO CALL OFF STRIKE.

Employees of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company May Soon Return to Work.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—A plan to be submitted to the members of the two warring factions of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, whereby they would be united in one organization under the American Federation of Labor, was signed today by representatives of the two factions. Frank J. McNulty, president of the International Brotherhood, and Eugene Smith, first vice-president and acting head of the so-called Reid-Murphy faction, put their signatures on the agreement, to effect which Gompers and other labor leaders have been in a ten days' conference here.

Gompers, in a statement regarding the strike of employees of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, said he believed the trouble to be now on the way to an early and amicable settlement. The agreement signed today, he said, would serve materially toward that end.

"In a conference with John A. Britton, president of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, an agreement was reached," Gompers said, whereby a meeting of representatives of the unions involved in the strike with the heads of the company will be called, to consider a settlement. Mr. Britton, he said, had expressed to him a sympathy with the principals of organized labor.

WHEAT CROP IN KANSAS PROMISES BIGGEST EVER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOPEKA (Kas.) Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Kansas wheat area shown this fall amounts to 8,580,000 acres, which is 773,000 acres more than the area sown a year ago, an increase of 11 per cent.

The condition of the crop is 97 per cent., making a prospect for the biggest crop ever raised in the State. These figures were reported by Secretary Coburn this morning.

The condition is six points higher than a year ago and the highest on record except in 1900, when it was 99.7 on an area 40 per cent less, and that year the crop was one of the biggest ever raised.

Some reporters mention fields here and there that were sown only for pasture.

Reno county leads with 303,000 acres. Barton has 293,700, Pawnee 282,000, Ford 263,000, Ellis 249,000, Stafford 239,000, Pratt 218,000, Rush 211,000. The greatest increase is in Reno with 37,000 acres.

Correspondents estimate that 16 per cent of this year's crop of 72,000,000 bushels may be fed to live stock owing to the scarcity of corn, which is selling at about the same prices as wheat throughout the State.

Reclamation.

DECLARES THE ARID WEST AT HEIGHT OF PROSPERITY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Because the land owners have quit raising prices and gone to raising crops, the arid West is seeing its greatest year of prosperity, F. H. Newell, chairman of the Reclamation Commission, said here Thursday, after his arrival from Los Angeles, Yuma, Phoenix and the other projects of the arid West.

Chairman Newell is here for a conference with the reclamation officials regarding the work in the West, and will return to Washington to confer with the other members of the newly-created commission this week.

"Despite the fact that there have been few homeseekers in the West this year it is enjoying its most prosperous season," he said. "There is an economic reason for this. The land owners and land speculators have discovered that fictitious prices will not pay bills, and they have been forced to surrender the land to actual producing settlers or cultivate it themselves. In either event the effect has been good.

"I found that all along the line from Alberta, Can., to El Paso, and that the banks are declining to loan money on speculative real estate deals and this is the most healthy thing I have seen. Yuma is a good example of this very thing. In the boom days there was much money, prices were high and few tilled the wonderful valley of the Colorado River. The saloons got most of the money and when the railroads and reclamation projects ceased to dump money into the town the speculators, boomers and get-rich-quick artists were forced to leave town or go to work.

"Now Yuma is a producing community and is free from unhealthy boom elements; has more money in circulation than ever before, and is on the road to substantial growth.

"Phoenix is a good example of what earnest effort will do for it has a productive valley which is making its people wealthy."

IN BETTER SHAPE THAN YEAR AGO.

New York Bank Statement Proves the Rule.

Foreign Trade Reports Best in Our History.

The Movement of Gold to Canada Is Ended.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] New York banks are in better condition today than they were a year ago, according to the November bank report, and the deficit in reserves for the last week of the month was much less than it was for the corresponding period in 1911 and 1912. While call money went up to 10 per cent. in that week, it went 10 per cent. higher, or up to 20 per cent., for the corresponding week one year ago.

The movement of gold to Canada has culminated—the total exports for two weeks being $13,800,000, mainly on account of the requirements of the new Canadian banking law, and the money market in this country promises to be easier. New York could draw gold from London, for the foreign trade balance in favor of this country has now reached very large proportions. The essential soundness of this country's position in the world's money market is revealed by the foreign trade report for October. This is one of the bright features of the business situation, for in October the United States had the largest excess of exports over imports in the country's history. The excess for ten months now amounts to $544,822,000, which surpasses all previous records. The ten months' excess last year was $185,000,000 less.

Just how far banking conditions are responsible for the reaction observed in several important lines of industry cannot be said with any precision. There is little doubt, however, that the chief cause of the slowing up in the iron and steel trade is the cessation of buying by the railroads, which have had great difficulty in raising money and are therefore appealing for an increase in freight rates.

In the pending currency legislation there is an exceptional cause of credit stringency. The assurance of the Secretary of the Treasury that the United States treasury, with all of its resources, would stand behind the banks in the transition period from one system to another was well timed.

One finds facts in various directions to inspire confidence. The Rhode Island textile situation is reported to be very favorable. New factories are projected in the brass industry of the Naugatuck Valley in Connecticut. The Dartmouth cotton mill of New Bedford has just declared what is in effect a 33 1-3 per cent. stock dividend. Bank clearings for the week ended November 22 were in excess of those last year, outside of New York City, while they ran but 4.5 per cent. under last year with New York City. Railroad gross earnings continue to run very closely to last year's level. Many roads report increases for October, the Union Pacific showing an increase of over half a million even in net. The cotton crop will run over 14,000,000 bales. Glowing reports come in as to the winter wheat crop. A leading Chicago dry goods house reports sales and collections are still running better than last year.

Duchess of Roxburgh May Be Appointed Mistress of the Queen's Robes.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is learned upon good authority that the Duchess of Roxburgh, formerly May Goelet, will shortly be offered an appointment in the royal household. During the past few months she has been especially marked out for royal favors and her presence at Windsor during the recent visit of the Archduke Ferdinand coupled with the absence of the Duchess of Devonshire, lends confirmation to the report that the Duchess of Roxburgh will be asked to become mistress of robes to Queen Mary, in place of the present holder, whose health is not good.

THE TAX ON DIVIDENDS.

Solicitor-General Asks for a Review of Decision That It Doesn't Apply to Insurance.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Solicitor-General Davis today asked the Supreme Court to review the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia, which held the government was not authorized to collect the old corporation tax on the dividends ow mutual life insurance companies.

The dividends in question consist of that portion of premiums not needed for the conduct of the business. The companies contend that when such excess is used to reduce succeeding premiums, to increase the amount of insurance or to diminish the time of the insurance, according to the election of the insured, it is not a dividend and should be deducted from the gross income. Should the government not succeed in getting the court to reverse the lower tribunal, it will be compelled to refund about $1,500,000 and to make further collections under the present income tax law.

Every Business Man in the Country Should Have This Directory of South American Firms.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A directory of South American firms who are likely to become purchasers of American goods has been completed by the Department of Commerce and now is being prepared for distribution. The directory contains a list of American and other foreign agents of South American importing firms and the names of the parent firms of branch houses located in various South American cities.

The volume does not contain the names of South American exporters, nor are the names of manufacturers given, except those who are likely to become buyers of American merchandise.

Baker Bill Is Passed.

the appearance of the Hetch Hetchy Valley from a scenic standpoint, instead of being injured, would be improved by the presence of the lake which would be formed by the San Francisco reservoir.

Protests against the San Francisco Hetch Hetchy water supply bill from Chas. W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard; Frederick Law Olmstead of the National Fine Arts Commission, and from individuals and associations in many States, marked the reopening of the fight today.

PASSAGE OF THE BILL.

The passage of the bill three minutes before the hour set for the arbitrary adjournment of the Senate was attended with unusual scenes. Fearful that the final vote would be defeated by lack of time, Vice-President Marshall, the reading clerk and members of the Senate themselves brought a week of debate to an end in sixteen minutes of hurried voting. Party leaders were divided on the final vote of the bill.

The victory for San Francisco ends a fight that has been waged in Congress for several years in which conservationists and nature clubs took a conspicuous part. The bill gives San Francisco authority to erect a dam in the Hetch Hetchy Valley creating a storage reservoir, authority to flood the necessary part of the floor, to create electric power and sell it under the local regulations of California and to construct conduits and canals through public lands where necessary as part of the city's water supply system.

Provision is made to protect the water rights of settlers on irrigated lands in the Turlock and Modesto irrigation districts in the San Joaquin Valley, and the city will be required to construct roads in the park, including a scenic highway, to provide "sightly" buildings and to furnish power at cost to irrigation users.

Opponents of the bill included those who claimed the beauty of the valley would be spoiled and that settlers on irrigated land would be deprived of an adequate supply of water.

BUSINESS MEN VS. POLITICIANS.

NATIONAL MOVEMENT STARTS AGAINST UNJUST LAWS.

Thousands of Stockholders in Corporations Who Have Suffered from Freak Legislation Will Organize to Fight Assaults of Demagogues and Trades Unions.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Eastern business men, under the leadership of H. A. Scheftel, of J. S. Bache & Co., of Boston and New York, and a committee of five from the New York Chamber of Commerce have started a movement to organize stockholders of the corporations of the country, industrial, railroad and others, for the protection of business interests. Mr. Scheftel estimates that there are several millions of share owners in the United States, who, singly and individually, can do nothing to protect their interests and the companies from the attacks of professional politicians and unjust legislation.

In 191 leading companies there are 929,282 individual stockholders. Mr. Scheftel and the committee in charge of the movement believe that these stockholders organized would not only be effective in protecting their properties against assaults, but would act as a corrective for unwise or extravagant conduct of the business of such corporations. They are a great army, hitherto without leaders and they are the ones who have suffered from the attacks of politicians, freak legislators, trades' unions and others many times without cause except self-aggrandizement. The movement is meeting with cordial indorsement from business men throughout the East and is likely to shortly crystallize into a definite form of organization.

DIVORCES NEW YORK BANKER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At the very last moment allowed by the court Mrs. Abigail Hancock Bishop, niece of the late Gen. Hancock, today had her interlocutory decree made final and obtained an absolute divorce from James Cuningham Bishop, the banker.

The decree awards to Mrs. Bishop alimony at the rate of $288.46 a week and provides that the banker must pay for all expenses of maintaining five daughters and pay for their education.

During the trial evidence was adduced showing that the banker had been guilty of improper conduct with Mrs. Lelia Gaines Gwathmey, society leader and wife of J. Temple Gwathmey, formerly president of the New York Cotton Exchange. Hall girls and chambermaids from the Hotel Astor gave evidence concerning Bishop's conduct at the hotel in Mrs. Gwathmey's company.

THE SEMINOLE BEACHED.

Report That the Clyde Liner Is a Total Loss Is Denied by New York Authorities.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The steamship Seminole of the Clyde line has been beached at Puerto Plata, San Domingo, to keep her from sinking after she sprang a leak.

The Marine Exchange posted a notice that the Seminole was a "total loss," but this was denied by the officers of the Clyde line. Two messages were received, it was said, the first to the effect that the steamer had sprung a leak and was entering the Port of Puerta Plata, the second that she had been beached and her cargo was being removed.

The messages said the ship encountered no hurricanes and little rough water and the officers of the line were unable to explain the cause of the leak.

The Seminole carried few passengers.

LARGE CROPS ON SALT RIVER.

Old-Time Desert Yields Big Returns Now.

Four Tons of Alfalfa Is Average Per Acre.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is probable that few agricultural districts in the world have been more carefully considered from an economic standpoint than the Salt River Valley, where the reclamation service has not only made accurate survey of every acre, but has mapped the location of every fence, farmhouse and well and has platted the area and location of all planted ground of whatever crop. The reclamation service has concerned itself also with the tabulation of data concerning crop yields.

For a twelve-month period ending September 30, the government canals and reservoirs of this locality supplied water within this valley to 168,212 acres, divided into 2680 farms. The average of sixty acres to the farm is considered notably low, though decreasing year by year. The total crop yield is valued at $4,552,879, or $28.17 an acre.

CROP DETAILS.

Alfalfa led as the principal crop, returning average yields per acre of $28 on an output of four tons to the acre. The hay crop had a total value of $2,412,380. Among other crops Egyptian cotton on 4544 acres yielded $340,837; deciduous fruits, 486 acres, $129,262; cantaloupes, 980 acres, $58,830; citrus fruits, 706 acres, $84,780. The last item was at the head of the acreage yield, with $120 an acre returned. Wheat averaged $22.40 and corn $17 an acre.

LIVE STOCK.

The cattle found numbered 40,457, valued at $2,262,086. There were 12,184 horses, valued at $1,175,175. Ostriches number 4119, valued at $539,450. Farm equipment was valued at $520,077 and farmers were found to actually own ninety-eight automobiles, with value of $120,300. Within the project are 185,603 acres, cultivated or ready for cultivation, valued at nearly $30,000,000, with improvements worth $6,838,017. Tenant farmers numbered 735, or about 35 per cent.

BUILDING AT PHOENIX.

Building permits issued in Phoenix the first eleven months in 1913 embrace 297 residences, with gross valuation of $553,888 and with a total valuation, business houses and alterations added, of $1,439,269. These figures are only the estimates. It is well known that practically no building is built within the estimate, hence it is probable that at least $2,000,000 may be considered represented by the permits thus issued. Still further to be added have been nearly $1,000,000 improvements represented in the Southern Pacific shops, an alfalfa mill and cement works completed this year outside the city limits, as well as at least 200 residences built in suburban additions and not included in the city building inspector's figures. The suburban residences as a rule are much more costly than those within the city.

BANKING INTERESTS.

The latest report of the State Bank Examiner shows the Valley Bank of Phoenix to lead all State banks, with total resources of $3,140,123, the Gila Valley Bank and Trust Company at Morenci second with $2,542,331. At the head of national banks the Phoenix National Bank with $2,478,945. The gross total of the resources of the forty-four State banks is $23,238,782 and of the thirteen national banks, $13,556,522.

DRYDOCKS ARE OUTGROWN.

Need of New Ones in Country's Navy Yards Pointed Out by Admiral Stanford.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Abnormal development in battleship design in the last fifteen years has impaired the usefulness of drydocks constructed during the same period at Boston, Portsmouth, N. H., Philadelphia, Mare Island, California and Charleston, S. C. They were virtually outgrown upon completion and now are inadequate to receive the largest ships.

Rear-Admiral H. R. Stanford, chief of the Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks, in pointing out this fact in his annual report, made public today, adds there are but three drydocks available to receive the largest battleships. These are at New York, Norfolk and Puget Sound.

"The necessity of having at least two docks of maximum dimensions in each of the principal yards," Admiral Stanford continues, "is an urgent military requirement to meet the possibility that a single dock may have to be withdrawn from routine service by the unexpected arrival of a vessel in distress. The desirability of having several drydocks at one yard cannot be questioned from a military point of view."

QUIET IN ZABERN.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

ZABERN (Germany) Dec. 6—Headed by its energetic commander, Col. Von Reuter, the Ninety-Ninth Infantry regiment, whose officers have caused so much strife between the military and civil authorities in Alsace, left Zabern today.

The Viceroy of Alsace-Lorraine, Count Charles Von Wedel, returned today from his conference with the Emperor, and the Alsatian papers gladly interpret the fact that he has not retired from office as an indication that he received from the Emperor the necessary guarantees that the military would not interfere with civil rule in Alsace-Lorraine.

THE CHANCELLOR'S RETURN.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—The imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, returned today to Berlin after conferring with the Emperor on the Zabern incidents. He issued a denial of a published statement explaining his unsuccessful appearance in Parliament on Wednesday. The statement has been attributed to Under Secretary of State Arnold Wahnschaffe, who was quoted as saying that the Chancellor was ill when he spoke in Parliament, and had therefore forgotten to mention the Emperor's interposition against the military authorities.

"This was the reason," according to the alleged Wahnschaffe statement, "for the Chancellor's failure to make clear to the members of Parliament that the Emperor had ordered the army officers to keep within the law and had sent Maj.-Gen. Kuehne to Zabern to take charge of the situation.

GREAT PULP MERGER.

Combination to Control Paper Industry in Western Canada and Pacific Slope Assured.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Plans for the reorganization of the Ocean Falls Pulp and Paper Company of British Columbia, which was closed following suit brought by the Crane Company of Chicago and the Diamond Rubber Company and amalgamation with the Powell River Pulp and Paper Company of British Columbia, whose plant is sixty miles north of Vancouver, B. C., and in successful operation, the Crown Paper Company of Portland, Or., and the Quatsino Sound Pulp Company, the whole to be backed by the Fleischhacker interests of San Francisco have been approved by the English debenture holders of the Ocean Falls Company at a meeting held in London and J. Hamilton Benn, a member of the British House of Commons is now on his way to San Francisco to execute the agreement.

Herbert Fleishhacker is stated to be president and largest shareholder in the Crown Paper Company, and his brother, Mortimer Fleishhacker, and William Pierce Johnson of San Francisco are directors or heavy stockholders in the other concerns. This combination would control the Pacific Coast pulp and paper industry on both sides of the international boundary.

The Ocean Falls concern owns an enormous pulp holding along the northern coast. It is mostly undeveloped, though about $4,000,000 in British shareholders' money has been invested in erecting sawmill, wharves, offices, etc., and equipping them. The promoter was Lester W. David, a well-known capitalist of Seattle. There are 80,000 acres of timber land, valuable water powers, etc.

By the provisional agreement the group of Pacific Coast capitalists have now guaranteed 50 per cent. of the bonds of the Ocean Falls Company and will immediately supply $3,000,000 for a paper plant.

PHILIPPINE CIVILIZATION.

Bureau of Insular Affairs Makes Its Report.

Under Republican Rule Islands Prospered.

Steady Progress Attained in Every Direction.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The march of civilization through the Philippines and Porto Rico—the principal American insular possessions—is pictured in the annual report of Brig.-Gen. Frank H. McIntyre, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

One most interesting feature deals with the effect upon the insular possessions of the new tariff act. For the Philippines the limitation upon the quantity of sugar and tobacco that may be exported to the United States has been removed. Another measure of relief to Philippine business permits exports to the United States by trans-shipment, whereas the exporter had formerly been limited to direct shipments. Export duties upon Philippine products which deprived the American manufacturer of Manila hemp of a differential were abolished. The income tax provisions of the new tariff act were extended to the Philippines, but with the proviso that it should be collected by Philippine officers and belong to the Philippine government.

Gen. McIntyre regrets the failure of Congress to enact a law permitting the use of foreign material to the amount of 50 per cent. in Philippine products entitled to free admission to the United States. He said this would have given a much desired stimulus to the embroidery and lace industry in the islands, which through the schools is being developed.

Exports to the United States last year amounted to $19,846,486, and were 27 per cent. of the total as compared with 43 per cent. in 1911. Sugar shipments, which were the leading factor in this decline, show a falling off approximating $5,000,000 in value.

EDUCATION.

Steady and encouraging progress was made during the year in education; especially in the higher standard of instruction in English; in the better school buildings and grounds; in the sounder basis on which industrial instruction has been organized, in the further and very marked improvement in the American and Filipino personnel of the bureau; in the efficiency of the administrative side of the work and in the physical training of the pupils. Teachers from the United States have been almost without exception, of excellent preparation and with the improvement in the quality of American teachers, that of the Filipino teachers has kept pace. The latter have been assigned to positions of greater responsibility and now 115 are serving as supervising and assistant supervising teachers, which number does not include twenty-one Filipino industrial supervisors.

In view of the complete organization of the Philippine University with all of its colleges, the policy of sending Filipino students to the United States in large numbers for their undergraduate work is being discontinued, and provision has been made for the appointment of a limited number of fellows, who have completed their undergraduate work, to take two to four-year postgraduate courses in Europe and America.

ATHLETICS.

Athletics are being encouraged with favorable results, and in a Far Eastern Olympiad in Manila last February in which teams from China, Japan and the Philippines took part, the latter was victorious in every contest except baseball.

PORTO RICO.

Porto Rican trade fell off last year $6,026,411 in imports and $601,3[illegible] in exports out of a total trade of $11,003,627. Although the sugar shipments were 16,000 tons greater than during the preceding year, reaching a total of 383,000 tons, the average price received—$16 less per ton—reduced the total value by $5,000,000.

Only 30.9 per cent. of the [illegible] persons of school age in Porto Rico attended school, but even at that the total enrollment was 161,785, compared with 44,861 at the close of the Spanish regime. In 1910 over [illegible] per cent. of the total electorate was illiterate.

Great progress was made on the irrigation system during the year, and it is indefinitely established that the total cost of the project will not exceed $4,000,000.

The sixth year of the operation of the American receivership of the Dominican customs shows the largest receipts of its history, the gross receipts being $4,112,735. This is said to be more remarkable because of the political disturbances in the republic during the year, and the volume of foreign trade is continuing to expand. American goods constitute [illegible] per cent. of all the imports.

Pensions to Californians.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The following Californians have been awarded pensions: Sophia Casteel, Rivera, $15; Ida F. [illegible], Lompoc, $12; Emma N. Ever[illegible], Chester Oak, $12.

INCREASE SCOPE OF PARCEL POST.

Weight of Packages Raised and Rates Lowered.

Fifty Pounds the Limit in the First Two Zones.

Gold Bullion from Alaska May Also Be Carried.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Postmaster-General Burleson's policy to increase the weight limits of parcel-post packages in the first and second zones from twenty to fifty pounds, to admit books to the parcel post, and to reduce rates in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth zones was approved today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"It seems obvious," says the commission, "that the service to the public will be promoted by these changes, provided the revenue from the service is not less than the cost thereof. Your experience and statistics seem to show clearly that the revenue will not be less than the cost of the service.

"We can conceive of no opposition to the increased weights and reduced rates proposed except from the carriers that transport the mails.

"We have had some objections from them on the ground that the increased weight should not be permitted until provision for additional compensation to the carriers has been made."

It is provided by the Postmaster-General, with the consent of the commission, "that the rate of postage on parcels containing books weighing eight ounces or less shall be 1 cent for each two ounces or fractional part thereof, and on those weighing in excess of eight ounces, the zone parcel rates shall apply."

Serious objections to the proposed change in the rates on books and catalogues were made chiefly by mailers of heavy catalogues, but the commission says it feels that the changes are in the interest of the public generally.

Consent also was given by the commission to the admission of shipments of gold, gold bullion and gold dust in Alaska and to and from Alaska in packages weighing not more than eleven pounds. The rate of postage fixed is 2 cents an ounce or fraction thereof for all distances.

POSTOFFICE STATEMENT.

"The Postmaster-General issued an order, effective August 15 last, increasing the weight limit in the first and second zones from eleven to twenty pounds and materially reducing the rates of postage for these zones, and stated at that time that this step was in the nature of an experiment," said the statement issued tonight by the Postoffice Department.

"After these changes had been in effect for some time, a record was kept of packages handled in a number of large representative postoffices throughout the United States, and the reports received from these offices show that the changes in the service had been greatly appreciated by the public. The number of parcels handled in the first and second zones since these changes became effective show an increase of approximately 16 per cent. The average weight has also increased from 1.2 to 1.7 pounds per parcel, and, notwithstanding the great reduction in rates in the first and second zones, the average package has increased from 7.7 cents a parcel to [illegible] cents."

The statement says of the change relating to books that it has been strongly urged by circulating libraries, schools, colleges and publishers ever since the establishment of the parcel-post service, as the present restrictive weight limit and rates on books are prohibitive to a great extent, except in the case of catalogues, and that it was not deemed advisable to place the order changing the classification of books in effect on January 1, as it was desired to give at least three months' notice to firms whose catalogues were now being printed."

THE CHANGES.

The approved changes in rates and weights, to be in effect January 1, 1914, follow:

To reduce the rates for the third zone from 7 cents for the first pound and 5 cents for each additional pound to 6 cents for the first pound and 2 cents for each additional pound.

To reduce the rates for the fourth zone from 8 cents for the first pound and 6 cents for each additional pound to 7 cents for the first pound and 4 cents for each additional pound.

To reduce the rates for the fifth zone from 9 cents for the first pound and 7 cents for each additional pound to 8 cents for the first pound and 6 cents for each additional pound.

To reduce the rates for the sixth zone from 10 cents for the first pound and 9 cents for each additional pound to 9 cents for the first pound and 8 cents for each additional pound.

BRYAN SIDESTEPS.

Tells Suffragists He Has Obeyed Dictates of Conscience on the Voting Issue.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Secretary Bryan narrowly escaped a suffrage debate today at a meeting of the National Popular Government League, where he spoke on popular government. A delegation of women suffragists, fresh from their convention here, took places in the hall, in which it had been advertised the Secretary of State was to speak, and at the conclusion of his address, Miss Helen Todd, a California suffragist, arose and called out:

"And how about popular government for women, Mr. Secretary?"

With flashing eyes, the Secretary replied:

"Madam, in your work you doubtless have followed your judgment and conscience. In my work, I have followed mine."

The suffragists made no further effort to secure an expression from Mr. Bryan and the Secretary immediately thereafter left the hall.

During his address, Mr. Bryan asserted his firm conviction in both the right and the capability of the people to rule.

"They might make mistakes," he said, "but would rectify them more quickly than if a few were ruling over them."

Smilingly he added that he could point to several mistakes the people had made during the last twenty

Asthma

No one but an asthmatic can appreciate the terrible distress of this disease. Gasping, smothering, panting for breath — suffocating feeling, sitting up in bed at night, are but a few of the terrible torments of an Asthmatic sufferer. If you are an Asthma victim, let not another day pass until you try our wonderful treatment—which gives almost immediate relief and lasting benefits. Call or write.

Catarrh of Head and Throat

This form of catarrh is most common — usually resulting from neglected colds. Successfully treated with little cost by Drs. Shores' treatment.

Is your nose stopped up?
Does your nose discharge?
Is your nose sore and tender?
Is there pain in front of the head?
Do you hawk and clear the throat?
Is your throat dry in the morning? Do you sleep with your mouth open?
Now is the time to be cured—don't let it run into complications.

OF THE EARS.

Catarrh often extends from the throat, along the Eustachian tubes into the ears, causing partial or complete deafness. Is your hearing failing?
Do your ears discharge? Do they ring?
Is the wax drying in your ears?
Do you hear better on some days?
Does a cold make your hearing worse?

Eczema

This affliction often baffles the skill of the regular doctor—and tries the patience of the specialist—but our methods have proven successful in so many cases that no matter who has failed to cure you it is worth your time to consult us. We will gladly explain our method of treatment free of charge. Consultation always free.

Talks on Teeth

A Sensible Gift

Most artificial teeth are made for looks—not for service.

The wearer puts the burden of the work on whatever natural teeth are left, but

are so near like Nature's teeth that the one who has them in the mouth would have some difficulty in saying which he was favoring—Nature's or "Alveolar."

That is as it should be.

And this is the very reason that this system of restoring missing teeth has revolutionized the science of dentistry.

This is the reason that over fifteen thousand patients of ours are today wearing and enjoying the blessings of a full row of teeth—upper and lower—every one of which is capable of doing its share of the work it is called upon to do every day in the year.

Has it occurred to you that one of the most sensible gifts to yourself or someone near and dear would be an order on us to replace all the missing teeth by this wonderful plan?

Only a suggestion, but if you wish to know the cost of carrying it out our examiners are at your service.

PLATES.

There are a large number of people who through force of circumstances are compelled to wear plates. We have a department to take care of all patients who require that class of work. We have one of the most expert men on plate work on this Coast at the head of that department, which assures all of our patients better fitting, better looking and more serviceable plates than you have ever been able to procure elsewhere.

Our Charges Are Reasonable

We do not ask fancy prices for our work. Just a fair fee—a reasonable sum—just what anyone will gladly and willingly pay for high-grade work such as we invariably execute. Remember that you can always consult us free of charge regarding your tooth troubles, and there is no obligation incurred on your part in so doing.

MIGRATION OF INVALIDS UNDER FEDERAL INQUIRY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The whole question of treatment of migratory tuberculosis patients is involved in an investigation just started by the Public Health Service. With a view to legislation or interstate quarantine regulations, Surgeon Paul Carrington has been assigned to investigating in California; Past Assistant Surgeon A. de Foster in North Carolina and Past Assistant Surgeon E. A. Sweet in Texas, to ascertain how travel of tuberculosis victims affects them, the health of railroad employees and passengers on trains in which such persons travel, the health of the communities in which they settle and to clear up other economic problems.

Health officials say there is a natural drift of persons affected by tuberculosis toward the high tablelands of the South, the pine woods of North Carolina and the marine climate of California.

PROMISE TWO REPORTS ON WASHINGTON LOBBY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The House committee on investigation of charges of lobbyism was in session until late tonight considering the report Chairman Garret will present next Tuesday. There was every indication that some members of the committee, differing in views as to the conservative language in which Mr. Garrett couched his draft of the report, would present a minority report.

This particularly affects that part of the conclusions relating to Representative McDermott of Illinois, whom Col. Mulhall accused of being in the pay of the National Association of Manufacturers for legislative purposes. The members who have been threatening dissent favor more severe language as to certain of these matters and the adoption of a resolution recommending action by the House. This is the chief point of difference in the committee.

The reading of the majority report, together with any dissenting views from the committee, to the House on Tuesday, will constitute a notable departure in the submission of reports of that character. Chairman Garrett's attitude in getting the permission of the House for that purpose was that the matter was of such importance to the membership of that body as to call for the best possible means of getting the attention of the House to the facts disclosed by the report.

TO TEACH KIDS POLITICS.

On New Year's 40,000 East Side Children Will Vote in a Juvenile Primary Election.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—On January 1 40,000 children of the lower East Side will vote in the first primary election of a "juvenile democracy," which is being organized by the East Side Protective Association to teach the future citizens of that section of the city self-government and politics. The polling places will be at the public schools and Assemblymen, Congressmen, Mayor and Commissioners of health, fire, street cleaning and other municipal departments will be nominated. Each voter will be supplied with blank pieces of paper on which he will write his choice for each office. There will be no party emblems on the ballots, assuring an "unbossed" primary.

The general election will be held on February 12, Lincoln's Birthday, when candidates leading in the primary will be voted on.

As soon as they learned of the organization, the girls of the Washington Irving High School sent a note to Harry H. Schacht, superintendent of the East Side Protective Association, demanding the right to vote, declaring that "mere boys should not have the franchise to themselves." When the girls from other East Side schools joined in the demand for the franchise, Mr. Schacht decided to have two divisions to the new republic, one for boys, and one for girls.

The girls will elect their own officers on February 22, Washington's Birthday, and then establish a republic similar in every way to that of the boys.

Arizona Postoffices.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Postoffices have been established in Arizona at Hayden Junction, Pinal county, Joseph C. Boughter of Winkleman, postmaster, and at Moors Spur, Cochise county, James R. Phillips of Chiricahua, postmaster.

BREAKS A COLD OPENS NOSTRILS

"Pape's Cold Compound ends severe colds or grippe in few hours.

Your cold will break and all grippe misery end after taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.—[Advertisement.

NAVAL HOLIDAY VOTE TOMORROW.

HALTING WORK ON THE NAVY A DEMOCRATIC FAD.

Debate on Hensley Resolution Comes to an End in the House, but Hulings of Pennsylvania Warns Politicians Mere Talk Will Not Bring About Peace.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—With only one or two voices raised against the Hensley naval holiday resolution, which would authorize the President to accept the suggestion of Winston Churchill for an abandonment of naval construction for one year, the debate on the resolution was brought to a close today in the House. A vote will be taken Monday.

Most of the speakers favored the adoption of the resolution because warships belonged to a "past era." Representative Hulings of Pennsylvania favored it merely as an expression of changing sentiment.

"Resolutions will not bring peace," said Representative Hulings. "Peace societies will not stop war. Disarmament is a chimera that will only become real after peace is established. The Hague tribunal has broken down because it lacks power.

"We will have war until the day comes when inventions make war impossible. Until the day arrives when the nations perceive that war no longer pays, we should be ready in case of assault to curl up like a porcupine bristling at every point impregnable to attack."

Representative Mann of Illinois, supporting the resolution, declared it would not be to the discredit of any individual to offer a proposition that spoke of peace nor to the discredit of any committee to propose such a plan regardless of whether it should succeed or fail. Representatives Neflin of Alabama and Slayden of Texas also indorsed it.

FAVORS OIL FOR NAVY.

Chief of Bureau of Steam Engineering Would Abandon Use of Coal as a Fuel.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Early abandonment of coal as fuel for the battleships of the American navy and the substitution of oil is foreshadowed in the annual report of Rear-Admiral R. S. Griffin, chief of the bureau of steam engineering, made public today. He declared that the construction of oil engines for the Maumee at the New York navy yard and the elimination of coal from the designs of new battleships and destroyers are steps in this direction.

In order to meet the future needs of the navy for fuel oil, Admiral Griffin recommends that the Navy Department immediately should undertake the production and refining of its own oil. He points out that the sale of by-products in the form of gasoline and illuminating oils will go far toward covering the expense of production and at the same time furnish the ships with suitable fuel at a cost considerably below the present price.

So efficient have the machinery divisions of the various navy yards become in recent years, declared Admiral Griffin, that the machinery of the whole fleet with its enormous aggregate of two million horse power has been kept in excellent condition during the last fiscal year. This efficiency was considerably stimulated, he says, by engineering competitions recently inaugurated.

DR. SNOW COMMENDED.

Members of State Board of Health Regret That Secretary Felt He Must Resign.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 6.—Resolutions commending Dr. W. F. Snow, former secretary, and regretting that he resigned, were adopted by the four remaining members of the State Board of Health at their meeting in the Capitol this afternoon. Snow resigned because of difference with the State Board of Control.

Since Dr. J. H. Parkinson of Sacramento is the only member who could accept the secretaryship, because he resides in Sacramento, and he already occupies that position by virtue of his office as vice-president, it is not thought the matter of a permanent secretary will be taken up until the Governor fills the three vacancies on the board.

Under rules adopted for cold storage, cold storage houses will have to pay a $50 license fee annually and submit to inspection.

In the matter of the application of R. Edmund of Berkeley, for a permit to slaughter horses for human consumption, the board decided that "since the question does not necessarily come within the jurisdiction of the board, the application is refused."

Just Typical Socialists.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 6.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Steps to recall Charles A. Bliss, City Commissioner, were taken by the Socialists this afternoon. They object to Bliss's administration of the police department.

One of the most stunning features of the Midwinter Number of The Times will be the gorgeous full page of the Algerian date grower in Southern California.

LABOR UNREST ALARMS BRITAIN

Dwarfs Both Home Rule and the Suffragist Issue.

Radical Unionists Trying to Tie Up Railroads.

James Larkin of Dublin Is Scoring Lloyd George.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Throughout the United Kingdom labor unrest is fast becoming the fact of commanding interest. For the moment it dwarfs the home rule and the suffragist issues.

Important developments are looked for in the railway field, following the unexpected strike on the Great Western and among the postal employees, who fiercely resent the attitude of Herbert Samuel, Postmaster-General, in his reply to their objections to the scale of pay fixed by the Holt committee, which has refused their request for an all-round increase of 15 per cent. to meet the increased cost of living.

Next Tuesday the Trade Union Congress will hold a special session in London to consider the situation created in Dublin after three months of the great strike there. All the affiliated unions will be represented. The congress will receive and act upon the report of a committee appointed last September to do certain things in reference to the Dublin situation.

It was the refusal of an engine driver to handle a train carrying "tainted" goods from Ireland—goods shipped by "black legs"—that precipitated the Great Western strike.

James Larkin, the Dublin union-labor leader and chairman of the Trade Union Congress, says the Dublin strike will go on until the English union-labor leaders are ready to help; but, though his meetings in England are largely attended, he has alienated many radicals by accusing Messrs. Asquith, Birrell and Lloyd George of taking blood-money from Ireland, by ridiculing Mr. Redmond and by describing the Ancient Order of Hibernians as "the foulest brood that ever cursed the country."

In offending the Irish Nationalist chief he and the extremists have probably driven the English trade unionists away from them; and the congress may decide next Tuesday against Larkin's drastic proposal to bring on a strike that would paralyze the transport trade with Ireland. Dublin's strikers are now reduced to a cruel predicament—"headed after famine for the workhouse," says Mr. O'Brien.

By the national joint committee of the postal and telegraph workers the reply of Mr. Samuel has been referred to the sectional societies for decision as to future action. Mr. Samuel has virtually told them that strikers in the government service will be regarded as having resigned from it, and, if guilty of violence, as criminals. Intense feeling has been aroused by his "truculent methods."

AVERTS POSTAL STRIKE.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LEICESTER (Eng.) Dec. 6.—The threatened strike at Christmas of the government's 100,000 postal and telegraph employees probably will be averted, but the movement will be postponed only as a result of the action today of a conference in which 200 delegates, representing 22,000 members of the postal organizations participated.

The delegates adopted a resolution rejecting the report of the government commission. At the same time they pledged themselves to push their original demand for a 15 per cent. increase of wages throughout the service.

The meeting finally decided to leave the strike decision to a general vote of the members of the organization. A proposal that the postal organizations should unite with the miners, the railway men and the transport workers met with much favor among the delegates.

The conference decided to oppose the government candidates at all Parliamentary elections until the demands of the postal employees are met.

The postal employees base their demands for an increase of pay largely on the argument that the postal service yields to the government great profits in which the workers should have a larger share.

Last Prince of Church Created by Pope Pius IX Succumbs to Pneumonia at Vatican.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

ROME, Dec. 6.—Cardinal Luigi Oreglia, dean of the Sacred College, died here yesterday of pneumonia. He was 85 years of age and was the only surviving cardinal created by Pope Pius IX.

Luigi Oreglia di Santa Stefano was head of the cardinal bishops, or dean of the Sacred College. He was born at Bene Vagienna, diocese of Mondovi, on July 9, 1828, and was created and proclaimed a cardinal by Pope Pius IX on December 22, 1873. He was a bishop of Ostia and Velletri, arch chancellor of the Roman University and prefect of the congregation of ceremonies.

Ku Departs in a Hurry for Washington, D. C.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] On a mission, to all appearances a hurried one, of diplomatic significance, Lieut.-Gen. Ku Hong Shen of the Chinese army, adviser to President Yuan Shi Kai and one of China's foremost fighting men, arrived here today on the liner Mongolia.

Within a few hours after his arrival Lieut.-Gen. Ku departed for Washington. He was accompanied by L. S. Anderson, manager for the Standard Oil Company for Northern China, who said that he was merely an unexepected traveling companion of the Chinese officer.

"There is nothing diplomatic or political about my visit to the United States," said Gen. Ku, who, being unable to speak English, used Anderson as an interpreter. "I have come to the United States merely on a tour of observation. I want to see a real republic."

As to their hurried and simultaneous dash to Washington, Gen. Ku and Anderson would say nothing except that it was merely a coincidence. According to the Mongolia's officers, Gen. Ku purchased his transportation two hours before the Mongolia steamed from Shanghai, and rumor on the liner had it that his trip was of important diplomatic character.

Prof. Smith Returns From Philippines With Insects He Hopes Will Fight Fruit Pests.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prof. H. S. Smith, superintendent of the State Insectary, accompanied by his father-in-law, L. Bruner, professor of entomology in the University of Nebraska, returned today from an extended tour of Japan and the Philippines. He brings with him ten varieties of mealy bug and black scale parasite, which are expected to accomplish good results in the citrus orchards of the State.

"Our investigation of these parasites thus far is very encouraging," said Prof. Smith, "but we cannot say as yet whether they will prove to be the absolute Nemesis of the mealy bug and black scale, which have worked untold harm in the State's orchards. It will take some time to determine the value of the parasites, but it can be said that the experiments so far are highly satisfactory."

Prof. Smith brought a dozen cases containing thousands of the insects, which will be distributed throughout the citrus belt.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Detectives and agents assisting the State Board of Medical Examiners conducted raids today on two institutions operated by so-called "quack" doctors. Wax figures were seized as evidence and warrants were sworn out charging the proprietors with conducting museums without licenses.

C. A. Baxter, who was recently caught in the net spread by State agents in the crusade against physicians practicing without a State license, withdrew his demand for a jury trial in the Police Court today and pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

He was fined $100 and promised not to resume business in this city again.

SAN FRANCISCO "POST" SOLD.

Name of Purchaser Not Announced, But Rumor Says It Is the San Francisco "Call."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Employees of the Post Publishing Company, which publishes the San Francisco Evening Post, were notified that the paper had been sold. The name of the purchaser was not announced. The Post will be printed Monday, it was said, but not under the management of the Post Publishing Company, and what will happen after that was not made known.

Local newspapers for several weeks have carried reports that the Post was to be taken over by the San Francisco Call, which on September 1 was changed from a morning to an afternoon paper.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Among passengers taking the boat train at Euston to sail on the Mauretania for New York today was Madame Luisa Tetrazzini, the famous operatic star, who wore a hat which was apparently adorned with aigrettes of the most expensive variety, but turned out to be, on closer inspection, merely chicken feathers.

"They are feathers from the domestic fowl of Italy," explained the prima donna, "just as I am a domestic fowl myself, for am I not the nightingale of Italy?"

Madam Tetrazzini added that she also had plumes made of hair from the tails of her horses.

JOHNSON POLITICIANS LET GO OF WHAT THEY STOLE.

Promise Not to Make Any Further Use of the Name and Organization of the Republican Party and to Behave in the Future—"Chrysalis Stir" Again.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—From every Congressional district of California the Progressives of the State met today in party conference, repudiated their old-time affiliation with the national Republican party, cheered their leader, Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, and entered immediately on the business of a temporary organization.

Francis J. Heney and Chester Rowell of Fresno are avowed candidates to succeed Senator Perkins, whose term expires next year, and who will not be a candidate for reelection. There has been a feeling that this rivalry ought to be composed before it went to the primaries, that either defeated candidate would draw with him strength from the party. Many leaders who argued this way urged Gov. Johnson as the strongest man to represent the party nationally.

Opposed to this group was another which argued that Johnson was needed in the State to hold his party together and was determined to run him for Governor again.

There was a long conference this morning, which the Governor attended, and the gossip that floated out of the closed room was that the Governor had served notice definitely that he would not again run to succeed himself.

At the offices of the State Railroad Commission, President John M. Eshleman was the center of another little whirlpool of politics. The greatest pressure was brought to bear on him to permit his candidacy to be launched by Gov. Johnson at the conference, but he was resolute that it must not be done.

Meyer Lissner of Los Angeles, formerly chairman of the Executive Committee of the late Republican State Central Committee, said he did not know if the canvass of possibilities had at all weighed with Johnson's determination to withdraw his decision for the present.

"So far as I know," he said, "and I believe it is the truth, Gov. Johnson has not indicated to any living person his intention—whether he will run for Senator or Governor or either."

Rowell and Heney, who did not attend the conference, because they felt their fortunes might be involved, were no wiser.

Gov. Johnson himself departed from his set speech to enlarge on the accomplishments of the State Railroad Commission.

Delegates to the conference—there was no committee on credentials; they came as they willed—gathered by Congressional districts and chose two committeemen from each district, and this committee of twenty-two chose the ten remaining delegates from each district, making up the full strength of the committee.

"Trust the People," Initiatives, Amend Constitution, Are Suggested by the Commoner.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—More direct government by the people was the keynote in speeches of Secretary of State Bryan and members of Congress and representatives from various States, at the first regular conference here today of the National Popular Government League. An easier method of amending the Constitution of the United States, Presidential primaries, the initiative and referendum and other reforms of government were advocated.

"I'd rather trust the people," declared Secretary Bryan, "than have any group of people tell them what questions shall be acted on."

The amendment for the direct election had opened the door, he said, for much remedial legislation which had been impossible to have considered in the past.

THE DOCTORS WHO CURE

DO NOT LOSE HOPE BECAUSE OTHERS FAIL. Even though you have treated a long time and received no benefit, Drs. Shores & Shores offer you the result of their Twenty Years' exclusive Specialty practice—an honest opinion on your case FREE, and a cure, if the case is curable.

OUR CURES STAY CURED

OFFICE HOURS: 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Evenings, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12.

Dr. A. J. Shores.

Catarrh of Head and Throat

This form of catarrh is most common — usually resulting from neglected colds. Successfully treated with little cost by Drs. Shores' treatment.

Is your nose stopped up?
Does your nose discharge?
Is your nose sore and tender?
Is there pain in front of the head?
Do you hawk and clear the throat?
Is your throat dry in the morning? Do you sleep with your mouth open?
Now is the time to be cured—don't let it run into complications.

OF THE EARS.

Catarrh often extends from the throat, along the Eustachian tubes into the ears, causing partial or complete deafness. Is your hearing failing?
Do your ears discharge? Do they ring?
Is the wax drying in your ears?
Do you hear better on some days?
Does a cold make your hearing worse?

Asthma

No one but an asthmatic can appreciate the terrible distress of this disease. Gasping, smothering, panting for breath — suffocating feeling, sitting up in bed at night, are but a few of the terrible torments of an Asthmatic sufferer. If you are an Asthma victim, let not another day pass until you try our wonderful treatment—which gives almost immediate relief and lasting benefits. Call or write.

Eczema

This affliction often baffles the skill of the regular doctor—and tries the patience of the specialist—but our methods have proven successful in so many cases that no matter who has failed to cure you it is worth your time to consult us. We will gladly explain our method of treatment free of charge. Consultation always free.

Specialties—Catarrh, Deafness, Head Noises, Asthma, Hay Fever, Rheumatism, Eczema, Goitre, Chorea, Hysteria, Insomnia, Epilepsy and Other Chronic Diseases of the Stomach, Bowels, Heart, Bronchial Tubes, Lungs, Kidneys and Liver that are curable.

Rheumatism

If you are hobbling about with rheumatic joints or suffering torture from inflammatory rheumatism — come and let us explain our theory and treatment for this painful affliction.

Dr. G. W. Shores.

STOMACH AND LIVER

If you have distress and bloating after eating don't neglect treatment. Catarrh of the stomach is a most common ailment, and can be cured, but remember, a cancer of the stomach we cannot cure. Do not neglect stomach and liver trouble. Consult doctors that know how to cure.

Don't let money matters keep you away. Drs. Shores' rates are low and payments easy. Medicines free to patients. Get busy and get well.

Talks on Teeth

A Sensible Gift

Most artificial teeth are made for looks—not for service.

The wearer puts the burden of the work on whatever natural teeth are left, but

are so near like Nature's teeth that the one who has them in the mouth would have some difficulty in saying which he was favoring—Nature's or "Alveolar."

That is as it should be.

And this is the very reason that this system of restoring missing teeth has revolutionized the science of dentistry.

This is the reason that over fifteen thousand patients of ours are today wearing and enjoying the blessings of a full row of teeth—upper and lower—every one of which is capable of doing its share of the work it is called upon to do every day in the year.

Has it occurred to you that one of the most sensible gifts to yourself or someone near and dear would be an order on us to replace all the missing teeth by this wonderful plan?

Only a suggestion, but if you wish to know the cost of carrying it out our examiners are at your service.

PLATES.

There are a large number of people who through force of circumstances are compelled to wear plates. We have a department to take care of all patients who require that class of work. We have one of the most expert men on plate work on this Coast at the head of that department, which assures all of our patients better fitting, better looking and more serviceable plates than you have ever been able to procure elsewhere.

Our Charges Are Reasonable

We do not ask fancy prices for our work. Just a fair fee—a reasonable sum—just what anyone will gladly and willingly pay for high-grade work such as we invariably execute. Remember that you can always consult us free of charge regarding your tooth troubles, and there is no obligation incurred on your part in so doing.

MIGRATION OF INVALIDS UNDER FEDERAL INQUIRY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The whole question of treatment of migratory tuberculosis patients is involved in an investigation just started by the Public Health Service. With a view to legislation or interstate quarantine regulations, Surgeon Paul Carrington has been assigned to investigating in California; Past Assistant Surgeon A. de Foster in North Carolina and Past Assistant Surgeon E. A. Sweet in Texas, to ascertain how travel of tuberculosis victims affects them, the health of railroad employees and passengers on trains in which such persons travel, the health of the communities in which they settle and to clear up other economic problems.

Health officials say there is a natural drift of persons affected by tuberculosis toward the high tablelands of the South, the pine woods of North Carolina and the marine climate of California.

PROMISE TWO REPORTS ON WASHINGTON LOBBY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The House committee on investigation of charges of lobbyism was in session until late tonight considering the report Chairman Garret will present next Tuesday. There was every indication that some members of the committee, differing in views as to the conservative language in which Mr. Garrett couched his draft of the report, would present a minority report.

This particularly affects that part of the conclusions relating to Representative McDermott of Illinois, whom Col. Mulhall accused of being in the pay of the National Association of Manufacturers for legislative purposes. The members who have been threatening dissent favor more severe language as to certain of these matters and the adoption of a resolution recommending action by the House. This is the chief point of difference in the committee.

The reading of the majority report, together with any dissenting views from the committee, to the House on Tuesday, will constitute a notable departure in the submission of reports of that character. Chairman Garrett's attitude in getting the permission of the House for that purpose was that the matter was of such importance to the membership of that body as to call for the best possible means of getting the attention of the House to the facts disclosed by the report.

TO TEACH KIDS POLITICS.

On New Year's 40,000 East Side Children Will Vote in a Juvenile Primary Election.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—On January 1 40,000 children of the lower East Side will vote in the first primary election of a "juvenile democracy," which is being organized by the East Side Protective Association to teach the future citizens of that section of the city self-government and politics. The polling places will be at the public schools and Assemblymen, Congressmen, Mayor and Commissioners of health, fire, street cleaning and other municipal departments will be nominated. Each voter will be supplied with blank pieces of paper on which he will write his choice for each office. There will be no party emblems on the ballots, assuring an "unbossed" primary.

The general election will be held on February 12, Lincoln's Birthday, when candidates leading in the primary will be voted on.

As soon as they learned of the organization, the girls of the Washington Irving High School sent a note to Harry H. Schacht, superintendent of the East Side Protective Association, demanding the right to vote, declaring that "mere boys should not have the franchise to themselves." When the girls from other East Side schools joined in the demand for the franchise, Mr. Schacht decided to have two divisions to the new republic, one for boys, and one for girls.

The girls will elect their own officers on February 22, Washington's Birthday, and then establish a republic similar in every way to that of the boys.

NAVAL HOLIDAY VOTE TOMORROW.

HALTING WORK ON THE NAVY A DEMOCRATIC FAD.

Debate on Hensley Resolution Comes to an End in the House, but Hulings of Pennsylvania Warns Politicians Mere Talk Will Not Bring About Peace.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—With only one or two voices raised against the Hensley naval holiday resolution, which would authorize the President to accept the suggestion of Winston Churchill for an abandonment of naval construction for one year, the debate on the resolution was brought to a close today in the House. A vote will be taken Monday.

Most of the speakers favored the adoption of the resolution because warships belonged to a "past era." Representative Hulings of Pennsylvania favored it merely as an expression of changing sentiment.

"Resolutions will not bring peace," said Representative Hulings. "Peace societies will not stop war. Disarmament is a chimera that will only become real after peace is established. The Hague tribunal has broken down because it lacks power.

"We will have war until the day comes when inventions make war impossible. Until the day arrives when the nations perceive that war no longer pays, we should be ready in case of assault to curl up like a porcupine bristling at every point impregnable to attack."

Representative Mann of Illinois, supporting the resolution, declared it would not be to the discredit of any individual to offer a proposition that spoke of peace nor to the discredit of any committee to propose such a plan regardless of whether it should succeed or fail. Representatives Heflin of Alabama and Slayden of Texas also indorsed it.

FAVORS OIL FOR NAVY.

Chief of Bureau of Steam Engineering Would Abandon Use of Coal as a Fuel.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Early abandonment of coal as fuel for the battleships of the American navy and the substitution of oil is foreshadowed in the annual report of Rear-Admiral R. S. Griffin, chief of the bureau of steam engineering, made public today. He declared that the construction of oil engines for the Maumee at the New York navy yard and the elimination of coal from the designs of new battleships and destroyers are steps in this direction.

In order to meet the future need of the navy for fuel oil, Admiral Griffin recommends that the Navy Department immediately should undertake the production and refining of its own oil. He points out that the sale of by-products in the form of gasoline and illuminating oils will go far toward covering the expense of production and at the same time furnish the ships with suitable fuel at a cost considerably below the present price.

So efficient have the machinery divisions of the various navy yards become in recent years, declared Admiral Griffin, that the machinery of the whole fleet with its enormous aggregate of two million horse power has been kept in excellent condition during the last fiscal year. This efficiency was considerably stimulated, he says, by engineering competitions recently inaugurated.

DR. SNOW COMMENDED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 6.—Resolutions commending Dr. W. F. Snow, former secretary, and regretting that he resigned, were adopted by the four remaining members of the State Board of Health at their meeting in the Capitol this afternoon. Snow resigned because of difference with the State Board of Control.

Since Dr. J. H. Parkinson of Sacramento is the only member who could accept the secretaryship, because he resides in Sacramento, and he already occupies that position by virtue of his office as vice-president, it is not thought the matter of a permanent secretary will be taken up until the Governor fills the three vacancies on the board.

Under rules adopted for cold storage, cold storage houses will have to pay a $50 license fee annually and submit to inspection.

In the matter of the application of R. Edmund of Berkeley, for a permit to slaughter horses for human consumption, the board decided that "since the question does not necessarily come within the jurisdiction of the board, the application is refused."

Just Typical Socialists.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 6.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Steps to recall Charles A. Bliss, City Commissioner, were taken by the Socialists this afternoon. They object to Bliss's administration of the police department.

One of the most stunning features of the Midwinter Number of The Times will be the gorgeous full page of the Algerian date grower in Southern California.

LABOR UNREST ALARMS BRITAIN

Dwarfs Both Home Rule and the Suffragist Issue.

Radical Unionists Trying to Tie Up Railroads.

James Larkin of Dublin Is Scoring Lloyd George.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Throughout the United Kingdom labor unrest is fast becoming the fact of commanding interest. For the moment it dwarfs the home rule and the suffragist issue.

Important developments are looked for in the railway field, following the unexpected strike on the Great Western and among the postal employees, who fiercely resent the attitude of Herbert Samuel, Postmaster-General, in his reply to their objections to the scale of pay fixed by the Holt committee, which has refused their request for an all-round increase of 15 per cent. to meet the increased cost of living.

Next Tuesday the Trade Union Congress will hold a special session in London to consider the situation created in Dublin after three months of the great strike there. All the affiliated unions will be represented. The congress will receive and act upon the report of a committee appointed last September to do certain things in reference to the Dublin situation.

It was the refusal of an engine driver to handle a train carrying "tainted" goods from Ireland—goods shipped by "black legs"—that precipitated the Great Western strike.

James Larkin, the Dublin union-labor leader and chairman of the Trade Union Congress, says the Dublin strike will go on until the English union-labor leaders are ready to help; but, though his meetings in England are largely attended, he has alienated many radicals by accusing Messrs. Asquith, Birrell and Lloyd George of taking blood-money from Ireland, by ridiculing Mr. Redmond and by describing the Ancient Order of Hibernians as "the foulest brood that ever cursed the country."

In offending the Irish Nationalist chief he and the extremists have probably driven the English trade unionists away from them; and the congress may decide next Tuesday against Larkin's drastic proposal to bring on a strike that would paralyze the transport trade with Ireland. Dublin's strikers are now reduced to a cruel predicament—"headed after famine for the workhouse," says Mr. O'Brien.

By the national joint committee of the postal and telegraph workers the reply of Mr. Samuel has been referred to the sectional societies for decision as to future action. Mr. Samuel has virtually told them that strikers in the government service will be regarded as having resigned from it, and, if guilty of violence, as criminals. Intense feeling has been aroused by his "truculent methods."

AVERTS POSTAL STRIKE.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LEICESTER (Eng.) Dec. 6.—The threatened strike at Christmas of the government's 100,000 postal and telegraph employees probably will be averted, but the movement will be postponed only as a result of the action today of a conference in which 200 delegates, representing [illegible] members of the postal organizations participated.

The delegates adopted a resolution rejecting the report of the government commission. At the same time they pledged themselves to push their original demand for a 15 per cent. increase of wages throughout the service.

The meeting finally decided to leave the strike decision to a general vote of the members of the organization. A proposal that the postal organizations should unite with the miners, the railway men and the transport workers met with much favor among the delegates.

The conference decided to oppose the government candidates at all Parliamentary elections until the demands of the postal employees are met.

The postal employees base their demands for an increase of pay largely on the argument that the postal service yields to the government great profits in which the workers should have a larger share.

CARDINAL OREGLIA DIES.

Last Prince of Church Created by Pope Pius IX Succumbs to Pneumonia at Vatican.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

ROME, Dec. 6.—Cardinal Luigi Oreglia, dean of the Sacred College, died here yesterday of pneumonia. He was 85 years of age and was the only surviving cardinal created by Pope Pius IX.

Luigi Oreglia di Santa Stefano was head of the cardinal bishops, or dean of the Sacred College. He was born at Bene Vagienna, diocese of Mondovi, on July 9, 1828, and was created and proclaimed a cardinal by Pope Pius IX on December 22, 1873. He was a bishop of Ostia and Velletri, arch chancellor of the Roman University and prefect of the congregation of ceremonies.

Ku Departs in a Hurry for Washington, D. C.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] On a mission, to all appearances a hurried one, of diplomatic significance, Lieut.-Gen. Ku Hung Shen of the Chinese army, adviser to President Yuan Shi Kai and one of China's foremost fighting men, arrived here today on the liner Mongolia.

Within a few hours after his arrival Lieut.-Gen. Ku departed for Washington. He was accompanied by E. S. Anderson, manager for the Standard Oil Company for Northern China, who said that he was merely an unexpected traveling companion of the Chinese officer.

"There is nothing diplomatic or political about my visit to the United States," said Gen. Ku, who, being unable to speak English, used Anderson as an interpreter. "I have come to the United States merely on a tour of observation. I want to see a real republic."

As to their hurried and simultaneous dash to Washington, Gen. Ku and Anderson would say nothing except that it was merely a coincidence. According to the Mongolia's officers, Gen. Ku purchased his transportation two hours before the Mongolia sailed from Shanghai, and rumor on the liner had it that his trip was of important diplomatic character.

HOME FOR NATIVE SONS.

Stockton Parlor Has Completed Plans for Two Hundrel Thousand Dollar Building.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON (Cal.) Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The local parlor of Native Sons has about completed arrangements for erecting a fine home. It has been decided to capitalize the Hall Association at $200,000 divided into shares of $10 each. It is practically assured that Stockton Parlor will invest $20,000 in the Hall Association. The committee appointed to prepare articles of incorporation and by-laws has completed its work and will submit a report Monday night. The committee consists of Edward Van Vranken, Dr. D. B. Davenport, Orrin S. Henderson, Robert Reid and G. E. Reynolds.

BRINGS THOUSANDS OF BUGS.

Prof. Smith Returns From Philippines With Insects He Hopes Will Fight Fruit Pests.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prof. H. S. Smith, superintendent of the State Insectary, accompanied by his father-in-law, L. Bruner, professor of entomology in the University of Nebraska, returned today from an extended tour of Japan and the Philippines. He brings with him ten varieties of mealy bug and black scale parasite, which are expected to accomplish good results in the citrus orchards of the State.

"Our investigation of these parasites thus far is very encouraging," said Prof. Smith, "but we cannot say as yet whether they will prove to be the absolute Nemesis of the mealy bug and black scale, which have worked much harm in the State's orchards. It will take some time to determine the value of the parasites, but it can be said that the experiments so far are highly satisfactory."

Prof. Smith brought a dozen cases containing thousands of the insects, which will be distributed throughout the citrus belt.

Members of Southern California Association Guests of the Oakland Commercial Club.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OAKLAND, Dec. 5.—Members of the Southern California Editorial Association, numbering nearly 100 persons, were the guests tonight of the Oakland Commercial Club at a banquet. The banquet closed a day crowded with entertainment for the visiting newspapermen and their families.

This morning the party was given an excursion to Muir Woods and Mt. Tamalpais. Tomorrow the editors will be given an automobile ride through Oakland, Berkeley and the trans-bay cities. They will leave Monday for Visalia, where they will visit the Tulare county citrus fair. From that point they will go to Los Angeles and home.

RAID ALLEGED "DOCTORS."

Agents of State Board of Medical Examiners Seize Wax Figures in So-called Museums.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Detectives and agents assisting the State Board of Medical Examiners conducted raids today on two institutions operated by so-called "quack" doctors. Wax figures were seized as evidence and warrants were sworn out charging the proprietors with conducting museums without licenses.

C. A. Baxter, who was recently caught in the net spread by State agents in the crusade against physicians practicing without a State license, withdrew his demand for a jury trial in the Police Court today and pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He was fined $100 and promised not to resume business in this city again.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Employees of the Post Publishing Company, which publishes the San Francisco Evening Post, were notified that the paper had been sold. The name of the purchaser was not announced. The Post will be printed Monday, it was said, but not under the management of the Post Publishing Company, and what will happen after that was not made known.

Local newspapers for several weeks have carried reports that the Post was to be taken over by the San Francisco Call, which on September 1 was changed from a morning to an afternoon paper.

Joe Mulhattan, Famous Twenty Years Ago, Meets His End in the Gila River.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Dec. 6.—Joe Mulhattan, famous twenty years ago throughout the United States as a traveling story teller, but who refused offers to publish them in magazines and book forms, was drowned near Phoenix today while trying to wade the Gila River, not far from a mining claim where for years he had lived the life of a recluse.

He was survived by a sister, Mrs. Helena Ledlie, of New York.

LEAVES SEATTLE FOR MEXICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Dec. 6.—The cruiser Raleigh sailed from the Puget Sound Navy Yard for Mexico last night. On her way south she will stop at Mare Island Navy Yard to take on ammunition. It is expected at the navy yard that the Monitor Cheyenne will also be ordered to Mexico. The Cheyenne was recently completely overhauled to place her in condition for duty with the torpedo flotilla at San Diego, Cal.

Tetrazzini Says Chicken Feathers Are Just as Good as Aigrettes to Decorate Hats.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Among passengers taking the boat train at Euston to sail on the Mauretania for New York today was Madame Luisa Tetrazzini, the famous operatic star, who wore a hat which was apparently adorned with aigrettes of the most expensive variety, but turned out to be, on closer inspection, merely chicken feathers.

"They are feathers from the domestic fowl of Italy," explained the prima donna, "just as I am a domestic fowl myself, for am I not the nightingale of Italy?"

Madam Tetrazzini added that she also had plumes made of hair from the tails of her horses.

Robberies, Murders and Burglaries Are Becoming Almost of Daily Occurrence on Continent.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VIENNA (Austria) Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Police statistics covering Central Europe show that crime is increasing at an alarming rate. Burglaries of jewelry stores and banks and robbery of railway travelers, frequently attended by murder, are becoming daily occurrences. More than one-half the perpetrators of such crimes and especially of those involving murder, escape detection and arrest. Efforts are being made to promote more efficient co-operation among the police of the different

JOHNSON POLITICIANS LET GO OF WHAT THEY STOLE.

Promise Not to Make Any Further Use of the Name and Organization of the Republican Party and to Behave in the Future—"Chrysalis Stir" Again.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—From every Congressional district of California the Progressives of the State met today in party conference, repudiated their old-time affiliation with the national Republican party, cheered their leader, Gov. Hiram W. Johnson, and entered immediately on the business of a temporary organization.

Francis J. Heney and Chester Rowell of Fresno are avowed candidates to succeed Senator Perkins, whose term expires next year, and who will not be a candidate for re-election. There has been a feeling that this rivalry ought to be composed before it went to the primaries, that either defeated candidate would draw with him strength from the party. Many leaders who argued this way urged Gov. Johnson as the strongest man to represent the party nationally.

Opposed to this group was another which argued that Johnson was needed in the State to hold his party together and was determined to run him for Governor again.

There was a long conference this morning, which the Governor attended, and the gossip that floated out of the closed room was that the Governor had served notice definitely that he would not again run to succeed himself.

At the offices of the State Railroad Commission, President John M. Eshleman was the center of another little whirlpool of politics. The greatest pressure was brought to bear on him to permit his candidacy to be launched by Gov. Johnson at the conference, but he was resolute that it must not be done.

Meyer Lissner of Los Angeles, formerly chairman of the Executive Committee of the late Republican State Central Committee, said he did not know if the canvass of possibilities had at all weighed with Johnson's determination to withdraw his decision for the present.

"So far as I know," he said, "and I believe it is the truth, Gov. Johnson has not indicated to any living person his intention—whether he will run for Senator or Governor or either."

Rowell and Heney, who did not attend the conference, because they felt their fortunes might be involved, were no wiser.

Gov. Johnson himself departed from his set speech to enlarge on the accomplishments of the State Railroad Commission.

Delegates to the conference—there was no committee on credentials; they came as they willed—gathered by Congressional districts and chose two committeemen from each district, and this committee of twenty-two chose the ten remaining delegates from each district, making up the full strength of the committee.

SAME OLD BRYAN BUNK.

"Trust the People," Initiatives, Amend Constitution, Are Suggested by the Commoner.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—More direct government by the people was the keynote in speeches of Secretary of State Bryan and members of Congress and representatives from various States, at the first regular conference here today of the National Popular Government League. An easier method of amending the Constitution of the United States, Presidential primaries, the initiative and referendum and other reforms of government were advocated.

"I'd rather trust the people," declared Secretary Bryan, "than have any group of people tell them what questions shall be acted on."

The amendment for the direct election had opened the door, he said, for much remedial legislation which had been impossible to have considered in the past.

TO STANDARDIZE PUBLIC WORKS.

Uniform System of Building Now Before Congress.

Would Eliminate Expense of Architect's Office.

Department Six Years Behind in Getting Out Plans.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Congress shortly will have an opportunity to digest some suggestions, made in accordance with its own command, for a reduction in government expenses by the adoption of a standard system for public buildings.

Treasury officials have been at work for several months on a preliminary report to the Public Building Committee authorized by Congress and composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Postmaster-General and the Attorney-General and two members of the Senate and House committees in charge of public buildings. The committee was created to work out and approve some system by which a standard could be formed for public buildings so that cities of a certain size should get a prescribed size of buildings.

By its adoption, it was argued the necessity for drawing plans for every new building would be eliminated, the expense of the upkeep of the supervising architects office would be lessened and the actual time consumed between the authorization of a building and its completion would be diminished greatly. At present the supervising architect's office is six years behind in its work. This is due, it is claimed, largely to the fact that Congress lopped off about eighty positions in that office several years ago.

A suggestion which ultimately may be made to Congress, and which probably will meet with less favor than standardization, would put public building bills on somewhat the same plane as bills for the improvement of rivers and harbors. It would mean that while Congress would authorize a public building at a certain place, a report on the amount that should be expended would be forthcoming from the Public Buildings Commission.

Congress is now appropriating between $25,000,000 and $40,000,000 each year for public buildings.

NEW INCOME TAX DECISION.

Interest on Irrigation Bonds Held to Be Within the Provisions of the Law.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Interest on irrigation bonds is subject to the income tax law, according to a treasury decision today, which holds that the so-called assessment districts are not political subdivisions or public utilities" within the meaning of the law. There are many such districts throughout the West.

BURY GAILLARD TOMORROW.

House Expresses Regret in Resolution at Death of Panama Canal Engineer.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The funeral of Lieut.-Col. David Dubose Gaillard, division engineer of the Panama Canal, who died yesterday at Baltimore, will be held in Washington next Monday afternoon. Col. Gaillard will be buried with military honors from St. John's Episcopal Church and the body will rest in Arlington Cemetery. As a recognition of the notable services of Lieut.-Col. Gaillard in the construction of the Panama Canal the house today unanimously adopted a resolution of regret at his death.

WHY ENGINEERS BREAK DOWN.

Commerce Commission Expert Declares Speed Competition Unfits Them and Causes Wrecks.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—W. P. Borland, chief of the safety appliances work of the Interstate Commerce Commission, asked the house committee on interstate commerce today for legislation to empower the commission with authority over operation of block signal systems and other safety devices.

H. W. Belknapp, chief inspector for the Interstate Commerce Commission, who investigates wrecks, testified he believed the strain on engineers in the operation of high-speed trains was largely responsible for wrecks. He said that many men had broken down early in life because of tense competition for speed, that block signals would not prevent accidents in the absence of adequate regulations, and that the Interstate Commerce Commission should have the right to regulate the speed of trains. He condemned caution signals, and said trains should not pass any kind of signal without stopping.

RAILROADS ARE WARNED.

MUST SELL WATER LINES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The Interstate Commerce Commission is about to notify railroads that applications for an extension of time beyond July 1, 1915, in which to divest themselves of ownership or control of water lines, must be made to the commission not later than March 1, 1914. The Panama Canal act prohibits ownership or interest by a railroad in any competing water carrier.

POINCARE'S LATEST CHOICE.

Senator Doumergue, Who May Head New Cabinet, Is Experienced Politician.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Dec. 6.—Senator Gaston Doumergue, upon whom the attention of France is now fixed, as president Poincare's candidate for head of a new Cabinet, is, at 50 years of age, one of the most experienced politicians in the country. He has had twenty years of parliamentary service in both houses and has served as a member of four Cabinets.

M. Doumergue is a Socialist, but the French Socialists are divided into various sections and his Socialism is of a moderate type as compared with the thorough-going quality of that of Jean Jaurès. M. Doumergue belongs to the groups which combined to overthrow Premier Barthou. Although he is in the Senate, he did not take any personal part in the defeat of the government, except in the background.

It seems likely that Stephen Pinchon, the Foreign Minister, will retain his portfolio in almost any event.

The foreign policy of France will be identical in any case and therefore, the attitude of France toward the policy of the United States in Mexico will remain unchanged.

HAMMERSTEIN ENJOINED.

New York Court Restrains Him From Again Producing Grand Opera in New York.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—A permanent injunction in favor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, restraining Oscar Hammerstein from producing grand opera in New York or environs, was granted by Supreme Court Justice Pendleton this afternoon.

Hammerstein agreed to quit the opera field here when he sold his Manhattan Operahouse to the Metropolitan. Subsequently he threatened to disregard his agreement on the ground that it was contrary to the Sherman law. The court held today the law did not apply.

DESCRIBES ROOT'S DEATH.

Partner of American Says He Was Murdered by Drunken Mexicans in Tepic.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Dec. 6.—George Baker, a mining man, arrived here today from the Mexican territory of Tepic, bringing the first authentic account of the killing at Huajoori, Tepic, September 2 last, of his partner, Morris Root.

Baker said that on the day Root was killed their eighty Mexican employees had become drunk at a celebration of a Constitutionalist victory. They coveted Root's revolver and sought his own premises to attack him. One of them stabbed Root through the heart from behind and also inflicted other knife wounds.

Then, taking the murdered man's revolver and waving the knife which had pierced his heart, the Mexicans advanced upon Baker demanding money.

Baker managed to evade them and after remaining in the neighborhood long enough to give Root a decent burial, left for the north.

He said the scene of Root's murder was near the Tepic-Sinaloa line, twenty-five miles from a railroad. He stated he would try to give the details of Root's death to the dead man's family, who, he believed, resided in Pennsylvania.

MORGAN'S GRAVE GUARDED.

Perpetual Watch Is Kept Where Great Financier Was Buried in Hartford.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HARTFORD (Ct.) Dec. 6.—The grave of J. P. Morgan in Cedar Hill Cemetery is now, as it has been from the day of interment, closely guarded, particularly at night. During the day no specially-assigned watchman is kept there, but at sunset an armed guard goes on duty until sunrise.

The body of Morgan was interred here April 14. A cemetery official today said that the Morgan family is paying for the guard and it will be continued as long as the family desires.

Don't Wait for Pimples to Go

They'll Leave in a Hurry If You Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. Tried and Proved by Thousands.

"Oh, they'll go away as I grow older"—perhaps. But why wait for old age to correct the disorders of young blood when Stuart's Calcium Wafers will destroy the eruptions caused by blood impurities in the course of a few days. Why be subjected to the annoyance of a pimply face for years and lose all the admiration and love that youth holds dear when the remedy is so simple? Thousands of people throughout the country owe the beauty and attractiveness of their complexion to Stuart's Calcium Wafers. Why not gain for yourself the blessing these have obtained?

"Don't Wait for Old Age. You Will Never Lose Pimples This Way Until You Lose Your Beauty."

Skin disorders—except those caused by parasites—are also blood disorders. Purify the blood and at the same time you drive out the pimples. Calcium sulphide, the chief constituent of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, is the greatest of blood purifiers and is recommended by all physicians. It converts the poisons in the blood into gases that the pores can easily eliminate. Stuart's Calcium Wafers will cure the most acute case of pimples, brash, blackheads and liver-spots in three or four days.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain nothing harmful to the system. They not only purify the blood, but make it healthy and vigorous, bringing the glow of youth to the cheeks and vigor and strength to the body. You will never know how glorious it is to live until you have a pure, vigorous, abundant blood supply coursing through your veins. There are not only good looks, but health and happiness in every box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers are convenient to carry and pleasant to take. Get a 50c box of your druggist.

TO LIFT THE VEIL.

The Wilson Anti-Trust Programme Is Likely to Be Revealed Tomorrow or Next Day.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Anti-trust plans will be discussed Monday at a conference between President Wilson and Chairman Clayton of the House Judiciary Committee.

Dem[illegible] committee conferred today over the variety of pending [illegible] one or two members believed they had some clear ideas of what the programme in Congress should be, some of the ranking members said no two members of the committee were in accord.

The plan will be thrown into the open after Monday's conference and the committee will begin hearings Tuesday. Representatives Henry of Texas and Morgan of Oklahoma will appear to urge their bills. Opportunity will be given to all to put views on record.

The President is said to believe the Sherman law should stand as the basis for legislation and that while new legislation should be comprehensive and carefully framed, it should be supplemental to the Sherman law.

CROSS, FEVERISH SICK CHILDREN NEED "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowls need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has sour stomach, diarrhoea, remember a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills. Give a teaspoonful and in just a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food, clogged in the bowels, passes out of the system and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless fruit laxative and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Mother, keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no cheaper size. Don't be fooled.—[Advertisement.

A Splendid Gift for Mother!
—the Wonderful
Magic Electro Coil! is a revelation in cleaning
SILVER TARNISH
The Magic Electro Coil is the result of years of experimenting and careful study. Simply place the Coil in an ordinary dish with hot water and a little salt and sal soda, immerse the silver—and presto!—the tarnish is instantly absorbed without the least injury to the silverware. No rubbing—no mussy powders—the coil does all the work for you better than it was ever done before. It would be a mighty good idea to equip your home with a Magic Coil before Christmas so that the wife will save hours of drudgery when the time comes to get the silver spick and span for the Christmas dinner. Price with polishing cloth complete for $1.00. The Sun Drug Company absolutely guarantees the Magic Coil—money back if it fails to do the work.

GREAT MUSEUM, HISTORIC DAY.

Elaborate Ceremonies Mark Laying of Stone.

Magnificent Building on an Ideal Pinnacle.

On Museum Hill, commanding a view unsurpassed, the corner-stone of the Southwest Museum was laid with appropriate ceremonies yesterday afternoon. Built on the sloping side of the hill, the massive steel and concrete structure is as part of the earth as it came from the creation.

The sun gleamed from the summit of snow-crowned Mt. Baldy to the southeast, the intervening mountains and valleys and the heights eastward of the Arroyo Seco standing out on a landscape of transcendant beauty. To the southward the hum and smoke of the city, that thing of life from which the museum will forever be separate, and yet inseparable. Nothing could be more ideal than this site so wisely chosen at Avenue 46 and Marmion way, and the crowd, chiefly of people interested in archeological affairs, was wild with enthusiasm as the scene burst upon the view, after climbing the winding trail from the street.

The structure given official recognition yesterday in the laying of the stone, is in three parts—the Carrie M. Jones memorial hall, the Torrance tower and the Caracol tower. The first two are named for principal donors of the building and the latter for the spiral stairway that winds up its interior. Work has been going on for a year and the structure is well under way.

THE INSPIRING GENIUS.

Charles F. Lummis, founder emeritus of the museum, made the opening address, under the title, "The Day and the Deed." At the very opening, dramatically waving his hand, Lummis exclaimed: "This is the day; here is the deed!" which was greeted with applause.

He stated that, after six years of endeavor, ground was broken and in February or March next it is expected to dedicate these halls to the higher education." Continuing, he said, in part:

"Within ten years we will see this noble hill, as far as you can look up its leonine slope, crowned with a series of patios, and enclosed on four sides with buildings like these before you. Unique in location, in outlook, in architecture and installation, this will be one of the most famous museums in America. No other city has built a museum this way. Museums are usually the gift of millionaire founders, or by city or State or government appropriations. This Southwest Museum is built by this community. Full 700 persons have contributed to this foundation and 7000 more will contribute within a few years. It will be 'Our Museum,' not a museum of alien benefactors nor of political regulation.

"Scientists will come here to study. Architects will come to admire a construction which has no superior anywhere, but has many features never before attempted. Visitors will come here for this matchless view, unrivaled by the outlook from any public building in America.

"We are building for the thing that lasts the longest in the world—education. We are building in a way that is worthy of this eternal thing. Ten thousand years from now these buildings will stand unimpaired. The Southwest Museum is a monument to the faith, the foresight, and the public spirit of the people of the Southwest. No other community has ever done such a thing. It is doubtful if any other community could. With this community, this museum will grow—in bulk and mass we grow materially; in grace and fineness and the love of learning, even as our people grow."

Lummis closed by presenting to Dr. Norman Bridge, president of the museum, a silver trowel to be used in laying the stone, and the latter then, in well-chosen words, presented Lieut.-Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, the first president of the museum, as master of ceremonies.

Gen. Chaffee, in his brief address, said among other things:

"We see about us here today many of those who will enjoy this museum, and we are sure that many others of future generations will seek the historic collection to be placed here, for its educational value.

"Before us lies the great future, unknowable to us except as we know it by the past, and we wish to acknowledge our indebtedness to this Book of the Past. In the future a man will be better or worse, according to his study of this book. We hope that this museum will be, in all the years to come, a benefit to those who wish to learn."

ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT.

President Bridge followed with a lengthy and interesting address from which excerpts are made as follows:

"The laying of a corner-stone is not only a pleasant ceremonial, but it is in the nature of a consecration; it commits everyone connected with the institution to the completion and final dedication of the structure to the purposes of its creation. From today this pile ceases to be merely rock, lime, cement and iron. It becomes alive, and clothed as with a consciousness of its purpose, and determined to fulfill the destiny that is here promised.

"No community in the pioneer days of its life builds monuments or museums, or founds historical societies, for it has nothing to commemorate. For such institutions as this it requires that a people shall be old enough to have a perspective of history, and become prosperous enough to be able to stop and take account of their more permanent treasures.

"Our great Southwest country witnessed the beginning of civilization long before it had a foothold on the Atlantic Seaboard. We boast of the antiquity of Plymouth Rock, and that some of our ancestors settled in New England in the seventeenth century, but long before that time the Spanish padres were in this western country, bringing civilization as well as the church to the aborigines.

"We can build and here building a structure capable of defying the centuries, and not for the vanity of kings but for the learning and pleasure of everybody who will come. Our ambition is that this collection of all the documents and things that illustrate the life of man on this continent shall be used for the enlightenment and education of this people.

"We hope not only to have some additions to our present building, but to have an outdoor amphitheater, and the museum is ready to illustrate numerous lessons in half a dozen different sciences. During the last four years more than 8000 teachers and students have received illustrated instruction, mostly at the hands of our wise and unselfish curator, Hector Alliot.

"We of this metropolis ought to have begun long ago in a substantial way to gather and preserve this vast historic wealth. Thousands of specimens have, during the years of our inactivity, gone to the East and to Europe to enrich their already enormous collections, but we believe enough material is left to fill several buildings like this one. We have now on hand collections numbering at least 122,000 articles, requiring probably half of this great building to properly house them.

"This magnificent building is purposely placed on a hill, that it may be in view of all the people and not reached too easily. The moving multitude will see it, and all who are capable will admire its expansive proportions and its rugged and fitting architecture. This hill site of sixteen acres, costing about $50,000, is a gift of about fifty donors. This building with its furniture and appurtenances, which will cost over $100,000, will be the gift of fewer than 100 donors."

It was announced that the corner-stone would be laid by Bishop Conaty and Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, and when all the various historical articles had been placed in the copper receptable, it was placed in the stone by Curator Alliot, and the silver trowel was placed in the hands of the venerable Catholic prelate.

Dipping up a trowelful of mortar he spread it on the stone, then a second one. He now leaned over, spoke quietly to Gen. Chaffee and handed him the silver trowel. The latter having placed his meed of mortar on the stone, returned the trowel to the bishop; the stone was forced into its niche and then the bishop spoke as follows:

"In the name of education, I dedicate this corner-stone. God bless the Museum, God bless the donors, God bless us all and God bless California."

Telegrams of congratulation were received from President Wilson, W. H. Holmes, director of the National Museum, and Edgar L. Hewett, director of the School of American Archaeology.

Thus closed the ceremonial.

CONTENTS OF THE STONE.

A great number of articles were placed in the stone, the very first ones from the hand of Elizabeth Benton Fremont, daughter of the famous old "Pathfinder," who contributed photographs of her father and mother, and was there to deposit them herself. the full list follows, with but two or three exceptions, the person named placing the article in the box with his own hand:

Elizabeth Benton Fremont, photographs of her father, the "Pathfinder," and her mother, Jessie Benton; Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, copy of loans of the Junipero Serra and other Franciscan relics; Rt. Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, bulletins of the Sequoya League, "To Make Better Indians;" Dr. Norman Bridge, copy of his address at the laying of the corner-stone; Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, copy of Los Angeles Times of November 30, 1913, containing notices of these ceremonies and other documents; Charles F. Lummis, GIRLS! GIRLS! YOU MUST TRY THIS! DOUBLES BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR.

For 25 cents you can make your hair lustrous, fluffy, and abundant.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.—[Advertisement.

EAT NEW BREAD, CABBAGE, SAUSAGE AND DIGEST IT. "PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN."

No indigestion, no sour, gassy stomach or dyspepsia. Try it!

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr., or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered, you get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear. Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Diapepsin is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Put an end to stomach trouble by getting a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.—[Advertisement.

CUT YELLOWSTONE RATES.

Secretary Lane Takes One Dollar a Day Off the Charges Heretofore Made to Tourists.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Rates of transportation to and through the Yellowstone National Park by way of western entrance at Yellowstone, Mont., have been reduced 20 per cent. by Secretary Lane through an order made public today. This means that $1 a day has been taken off the rates which had heretofore been charged to tourists in the park coming through this entrance.

This reduction is due to a new contract for carrying passengers in the park, which has been awarded by the Interior Department. Persons will now be enabled to make the complete tour for $20, whereas the rate heretofore has been $25. Corresponding reductions, it is announced, will be made in the four-day, two-day and other short trips in the park.

CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN.

Republican Committee Will Meet Next Week to Get Ready for the Coming Fray.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The Republican Congressional Campaign Committee will be assembled December 12. Representatives who have been out in their districts will report on the political conditions and prospects. It will be the first meeting of the committee since the election.

DENVER BREAKS SNOW BLOCKADE.

Old-Fashioned Drags Carry Coal and Provisions.

Cripple Creek Is Buried in Fifteen-Foot Drifts.

Train Stalled Three Days on Top of Mountains.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DENVER (Colo.) Dec. 6.—Old-fashioned drags carrying coal, sleighs laden with milk cans and wagons drawn by eight and ten horses burdened with other provisions were breaking tonight what had begun to be a serious coal and provision famine in Denver because of the more than three feet of snow which has covered the city and blocked all traffic for more than three days.

Deliverymen carrying their loads of meat, milk and staple groceries walked for miles through the snow to the residence section of the city and gave succor to many families whose larders had become depleted. Coal deliveries were made to the downtown office buildings and hotels and business resumed a more normal aspect.

Street cars were manned for a short distance on one line and many men and some women returned to their homes for the first time since the storm began. The police took charge of traffic early and throughout the day marshaled the provision wagons through the narrow thoroughfares which had been cut in the snow.

Reports from the State tonight indicate that Cripple Creek, high in the mountains, is in a critical condition due to the blizzard which struck that gold mining town last night and this morning. The power plant was burned to the ground, depriving the town of electric light. Fifteen feet of snow covers the district. Six business houses were practically destroyed by the wind and scores of other houses were damaged.

Reports of missing men were received in Colorado Springs constantly today from mountain points and rescue parties led by United States foresters went out.

Railroad traffic in the State was much better today and by tomorrow, it is believed, the schedule will become much nearer normal for trains in all directions.

Trains Stalled in the Snow.

TOPEKA (Kan.) Dec. 6.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Two Union Pacific passenger trains and one Rock Island train were stalled in the snow drifts of Colorado today, according to reports received at the local offices of the roads. No suffering among the passengers was reported.

HONORS BUSCH'S SON-IN-LAW.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Word was received here today that Hugo Reisinger of this city, merchant and patron of art, has been elected president of the Germanic Museum at Harvard University. He succeeds his father-in-law, the late Adolphus Busch.

JUDGE BEFRIENDS TEDFORD.

Chicago Jurist Says He Will Resign if Redeemed Convict Is Sent to the Penitentiary.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Joshua Tedford, who has risen to commercial prominence here in the seven years during which a mandate committing him to prison was misplaced, found a friend in Judge John Gibbons today.

"If the laws of this State are interpreted to mean that this redeemed man must go to prison, I'll resign from the bench," said the judge.

He added that if necessary he would be glad to issue a writ of habeas corpus for Tedford unless the latter were proved to have been implicated in misplacing the mandate.

RUSSIA REWARDS PRIEST.

Only "Expert" Clerical Witness at Trial of Beiliss to Be Made Bishop of Kowno.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. PETERSBURGH, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Father Pranaitis, the Roman Catholic priest who was the only "expert" clerical witness the Russian government, after scouring the whole of Russia, could find to come forward and testify at the Beiliss trial that the Jewish ritual demanded Christian blood, is shortly to be appointed Bishop of Kowno, one of the richest sees in Lithuania, as a reward for services. This is learned on excellent authority.

It will be remembered that Father Pranaitis's testimony excited world-wide indignation and ridicule.

EGG BOYCOTT EFFECTIVE.

Washington Club Women Will Present Petition for Laws to Prevent Food Monopolies.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Having obtained the support of Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the Vice-President, Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, Mrs. Albert B. Cummins and the wives of nearly all the Cabinet officers and of many other Senators and Representatives, the egg boycott campaign will be brought to a close here today by local club women.

The only other work that now remains to be done is the final round up for signatures to the petition that will be presented to Congress at an early date, asking remedial legislation to prevent food monopolies. Mrs. Ellis Logan, head of the movement here, declares the petition will bear more than 25,000 names. It will be completed on Monday and will then be ready for presentation to Congress along with similar petitions for Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, and other large cities.

During the last week egg prices in Washington have declined from 60 cents a dozen to 50 cents, the price they were quoted at yesterday for the first time since the egg boycott began here.

NOTED ORATORS TO ASSEMBLE.

California Teachers Here Next Week.

Subjects of Vital Interest on the Programme.

Educators from All Parts of State Participate.

Seven educators of national note will be heard among the speakers during the twenty-first annual—three-day—session of the California Teachers' Association, which convenes here the 17th inst.

The educators are John Henry Gray, Ph. D., head of the department of economics and political science at the University of Minnesota; Mae E. Schreiber, educational lecturer, formerly supervisor of English, New York; M. Vincent O'Shea, B.L., professor of education, University of Wisconsin; Charles S. Meek, city superintendent of schools, Boise, Idaho; L. R. Alderman, city superintendent of schools, Portland, Or.; Alice O. Hunt, primary teacher, Alameda; E. Morris Cox, president of the California Council of Education, Oakland.

The opening and general session will be at Temple Auditorium at 8 o'clock on the evening of the 17th, with Horace M. Rebok, city superintendent of schools of Santa Monica and president of the California Teachers' Association, presiding.

Other officers of the body are: Edna T. H. Manley, first vice-president; A. N. Wheelock, second vice-president; Mark Keppel, recording secretary; Mary S. Murphy, financial secretary; Alfred Higgins, transportation secretary, and Arthur T. Merrill, treasurer.

One of the important features of the convention, the reading of proposed amendments to the constitution, comes up at the opening meeting with Dr. Grant Karr, J. A. Cranston, E. L. Hardt, A. S. McPherson, J. E. McReynolds, J. E. McKown, Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, W. R. Murphy and Edith Hodgkins on the Committee of Resolutions.

Dr. Gray will speak at this meeting on "Past and Future," and there will be a musical recital by Mrs. Fannie B. Zeisler.

BUSY SESSIONS.

City Superintendent of Riverside Schools Wheelock will preside at the Thursday morning general session of high and intermediate school teachers at Polytechnic, when Prof. O'Shea will talk on "The Trend of the Teens," and Dr. Gray speaks on "The People's College."

While the high and intermediate teachers are in session at "Poly," the elementary teachers will be meeting at Temple Auditorium, with W. H. Housh, principal of the Los Angeles High School, presiding, and with Superintendent Alderman and Superintendent Charles S. Meek speaking on industrial education.

Afternoon session will be held beginning at 1:30 o'clock Thursday at Polytechnic, where Dr. Karr talks on the fundamentals of primary education and Miss Hunt on reading and story-telling, to the primary teachers. Miss Manley will preside. At Temple Auditorium, elementary teachers' session, with Dr. J. F. Millspaugh, head of the Normal School, presiding, and with addresses by Prof. O'Shea on the "Trend of the Teens" and Miss Schreiber on "Formation of Good Habits of English."

High and intermediate school teachers meet at Polytechnic Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock, with Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, assistant Superintendent of Schools, presiding. Dr. Gray talks on "Democracy and Education" and Superintendent Alderman on "Home Industrial Work."

Elementary teachers, at Temple Auditorium, 9:30 a.m., with City Superintendent of San Diego Schools Duncan MacKinnon presiding, will hear Prof. O'Shea on "The Child's Heritage" and Dr. Gray on "Democracy and Education."

The business meeting of the association will be held at Temple Auditorium at 1:30 p.m. Friday afternoon, with Superintendent Rebok in the chair. Election of officers, consideration of constitutional amendments, report of the Committee on Resolutions, introduction of the president-elect, and miscellaneous business will precede the adjournment.

SECTION MEETINGS.

Annual audit of the secretary's and treasurer's books will be made by Supt. W. R. Murphy, Principal Rose Hardenberg, and Principal G. A. Langworthy.

Section meetings of the association are to be held at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Vital considerations in the educational system arise for discussion, at the administration section, Polytechnic.

Whether the present plan of home study is a success, and whether it would be possible to organize the day's programme so that the student could do all his work in school the next day, is, perhaps, the most important consideration by the administrators, with the minimum of prescribed subjects for graduation secondary.

Members of the Southwestern Order for Advancement of Agricultural Education meet also at Polytechnic Thursday afternoon, to consider animal husbandry, plants and nature study.

The Athletic Council of Southern California, meeting at "Poly," will take up American football, Rugby, courtesy in athletics, the training of athletes, and need of reorganization in the management of athletics.

The Southern California Science and Mathematics Association meets at the Normal School to hear discourses on the biological basis of sex in teaching physiology, and to hear of the fossils of mammoth animals, found at Rancho La Brea. An auto trip will be made to La Brea.

Prof. Daniel H. Colcord of Pomona College will preside at a classical association section session to be held at Polytechnic, the programme to be announced later.

The Los Angeles City Teachers' Association, at 12:45 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, holds a luncheon at the Alexandria, when the following subjects will be given over to addresses: Teachers' retirement salary law, Federation of Women's Clubs, League of Teachers' Clubs, and minor subjects.

Association headquarters will be at the Alexandria.

SEEK HIS IDENTITY.

Sheriff's Officers Trying to Find Friends of Man Who Apparently Ended His Life.

Shot through the head, the body of an unidentified, middle-aged man was found by three boys near the Hollywood reservoir yesterday. Sheriff's officers are attempting to establish his identity. They believe it is a case of suicide.

The body is that of a man 50 years of age, five feet seven inches tall, 165 pounds, slightly bald, light hair, gray suit, with the mark "Eisen, tailor, Angelus Hotel," string tie, black Stetson derby, pleated white shirt, linen collar, cheap stickpin with imitation turquoise, nickel-plated watch, No. 13503982, case No. 72135, cheap eyeglasses.

Preparations for suicide had apparently been made, as there is no name or address to be found. The man left a note, however, saying: "Life holds nothing for me any more, so I say good-by."

A cheap, 38-caliber pistol was found near the body.

White Slave Charge.

Thomas J. Cole, No. 560 Gladys street, was arrested yesterday and is held in the City Jail on a white slavery charge. He is said to have brought Miss Mable Watts here from Phoenix.

Mr. S. S. Johnson, St. Elmo, Ill., writes:

"I was for five years troubled with catarrh. Two years ago I had one foot in the grave. I had tried seven doctors and also went to a catarrh specialist in St. Louis, and took several kinds of medicine a day. I could not walk more than a hundred yards without resting.

"My friends told me to take Peruna and I did so. I now feel that Peruna has saved my life. It is the best medicine on earth, and I would not be without it."

Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

WITHOUT AN OPERATION
BY MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD

I TREAT NO DISEASES EXCEPT THOSE OF THE RECTUM AND BOWELS.

I cure without surgery. My patients are not confined in bed and they do do not lose a moment's time from their business.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic condition in my office.

WELL KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all he claims in his advertising, and at reasonable expense.

the Federals was divided by their having to garrison the northern cities.

As they gain territory the relative positions of the Federals and rebels will be reversed, the rebels having to protect what they have won, while the Federals will be more at liberty for aggressive fighting. It was this condition that led Villa to consider whether the government at Mexico City was not planning a campaign of considerable extent for the South and whether the comparatively undisciplined rebel forces might not have to contend against greater numbers and superior fighting machinery.

Noon tomorrow was fixed by Gen. Villa for his entry into Chihuahua, the State capital, evacuated a week ago by Gen. Mercado, who, with six other generals, and 3000 troops and civilians, are fleeing toward the border at Ojinaga.

Gen. Villa tonight was camped at Sauz, about thirty miles north of Chihuahua. Communication between the city and his camp was by courier as the telegraph between the points had not been restored.

Federico Moye, the Civil Governor, announced his readiness to turn the city over to the new authority. It is the first time since the days before President Diaz that this capital had changed authority while a revolution was pending.

Word came from the vicinity of Ojinaga, on the Texas border, that Gen. Mercado and the other Federal officers and troops were moving slowly. Many of the civilians were on foot and the rebels had guaranteed not to disturb them until the border was reached.

Somewhere behind the refugees a bullion train is struggling across the desert with $2,500,000 from the silver mines at Parral.

Parral has been cut off from train service for months and it was decided to bring the silver to the border in wagons.

REBELS CHECKED, WILSON HEARS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Mexican interest in Washington centered today upon the military operations. Confidential reports indicate that the victorious march southward of the Constitutionalist armies has received a check, the extent of which is not yet known. That the rebel leaders themselves have taken alarm and are preparing to modify their plans of campaign to meet the threatening aspect of the Federal forces was, however, positively affirmed.

Owing to the absence of telegraphic communication and to the reluctance of the officials here to divulge any of the movements of the contending armies in Mexico, which by any chance might aid one or the other of the factions unfairly, it is not possible to ascertain all of the phases of this last military development.

It is understood, however, that the Federal leaders in the north, who, after the supposed defeat sustained by them in the battle of Tierra Blanca, were believed to be returning northward in an effort to find refuge across the border in Texas, actually had abandoned that purpose. Instead, it is reported, they have reorganized their forces and begun a flanking movement on the army which the rebel general, Villa, has rushed from the captured city of Juarez towards Chihuahua. Villa's line is very much extended and his communications would be greatly jeopardized by a sudden incursion from a formidable force of 1500 Federals commanded by Orozco, which is rapidly advancing toward him, apparently with the purpose of driving him into Chihuahua.

Meanwhile, at least two other Federal generals, with fragments of the army reassembled after the battle of Tierra Blanca are reported to be concentrating on Chihuahua with the purpose of entrapping Villa's command. This movement might fail, it is pointed out, through the reinforcement of Villa's command by Carranza troops.

If the Federal troops adhere to their original plan of making their way into the United States, instead of surrendering to the Constitutionalists, they will not be permitted to figure further in the present war in Mexico. Secretary Garrison said today these refugees might cross the line, but they would not be given permission to return to Mexico.

Alveolar Dentistry
Class "A", Dentistry at Half Price

As a special, Holiday offering and a means of introducing our new and Painless "Alveolar" Method of replacing lost teeth without having to resort to bridgework or partial plates—we are offering to you our services—whatever your tooth wants may be—from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. cheaper than regular prices. This offer will continue throughout the holidays.

Alveolar Teeth, Where Bridgework Is Impossible.

If only your front teeth are left, say three or four or more, we can replace all of those that have been lost on both sides clear back with perfect Alveolar teeth, whilst bridgework would be impossible even if you had eight or ten front teeth to tie to. If you have only two back teeth on each side, say molars, we can supply all the front teeth that are missing with beautiful, serviceable, lifelike Alveolar teeth. This could not possibly be done by the bridge route. And where bridgework is possible there is no comparison between the two. A very large percentage of our work is taking out bridgework put in by supposedly high-class dentists, and replacing it with the beautiful and artistic Alveolar Teeth. And, unlike bridgework in another respect, it is practically painless. No boring or cutting into the gums, nothing to be dreaded. Now, then, prices being equal, which would you choose?

We have samples in our office to show at all times. Examinations and booklets on Alveolar dentistry are absolutely free.

Remember that in addition to our specialty, Alveolar Dentistry and treating Pyorrhea (loose teeth,) we are experts in every branch of dentistry from the simple filling up.

CARRANZA IN TOUCH WITH GENERALS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HERMOSILLO (Mex.) Dec. 6.—Opening of telegraph communication with districts in the interior of Mexico has assisted Gen. Carranza in safeguarding the interests of Americans and other foreigners in territory controlled by the Constitutionalists. It also has put him in closer touch with the various military and civil chiefs and assisted in the progress of the revolutionary movement. Many messages were received tonight which indicated a general inclination to abide absolutely with the orders of the insurgent commander-in-chief.

They came from a wide area stretching from coast to coast and far into the interior of the republic. From Tampico in Tamaulipas near the Vera Cruz line on the east coast came a report from Gen. Candido Aguilar that his troops had dispersed a group of bandits which molest the property of the Electric Oil Company, a foreign corporation. He stated that three of the bandits had been executed as an illustration to other small independent bands in the vicinity. Gov. Riveros of Sinaloa, on the west coast, reported that his troops had acknowledged receipt of the complaint from the American State Department that E. B. Windham, an American rancher, was held up for ransom by Mexican insurgents. It was assured that the matter would be investigated with all haste and that if the reports proved true the guilty persons would be punished.

Pastor Rouayx, Constitutionalist Governor of Durango, telegraphed Gen. Carranza that the issue of paper currency in his State had been completed and that the result had proved satisfactory to the business interests. In Durango the business houses, with the assistance of the government, have issued fiat money which had the moral backing of the business men of the community. This issue may be absorbed by the fiat paper currency which is being issued in great quantities here. This issue is not of the various States but bears the backing of the entire revolutionary government. It is interchangeable with paper issues of the various States and so far is being taken generally at par.

Francisco Escudero, Secretary of Foreign Relations in the Constitutionalist provisional Cabinet, has been retired from the Portfolio. This was announced tonight here. Escudero was considered one of the most able advisers of the Constitutionalist leader, and represented his chief in the recent negotiations at Nogales with William Bayard Hale, President Wilson's personal representative. Neither Gen. Carranza nor members of his diplomatic family would comment upon the causes of Escudero's retirement. The impression prevailed, however, that the change had been occasioned by a personal matter, which arose while Escudero was recently in El Paso, where he was to arrange the customs business at the Chihuahua border. Escudero's successor has not been selected. It was considered possible that his position would be filled by Manuel Bonilla, who served in President Madero's Portfolio as Minister of Communications. Bonilla arrived here yesterday to offer his services to the Constitutionalist government. It was asserted that his arrival here and the retirement of Escudero while at El Paso had been purely circumstantial. Escudero was reported as being in New York or on his way there.

A Constitutionalist victory before Monterey in Nuevo Leon was reported tonight to Carranza here. Gen. Pablo Gonzalez stated that his troops had captured a military train bearing the Federal troops of Gen. [illegible] Navarrate to reinforce the [illegible] taking many prisoners, horses, ammunition and supplies. Gen. Gonzales also said that his troops had captured Linares and Montemorelos two towns near Monterey.

DRESSMAKERS IDLE. ASK TO SEE HUERTA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6.—Two hundred idle dressmakers in the Federal capital today attempted to see Provisional President Huerta at the National Palace and to ask his aid in obtaining employment with the contractors for army uniforms. They declared that they and their families were in desperate straits. Gen. Huerta pleaded pressure of business and refused to see the women, who thereupon announced their purpose of making an appeal to Senora Huerta.

A BALL AT GUADALAJARA. AMERICANS ENTERTAINED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GUADALAJARA (Mex.) Dec. 6.—Rear-Admiral Walter C. Cowles, commander of the United States Pacific fleet, accompanied by several officers and twelve bluejackets, paid a visit to this city yesterday coming from Manzanillo, where the flagship California is at anchor. The American club gave a ball and smoking concert in honor of the visitors.

The bluejackets from the California are permitted to visit Colima in groups of 100 at a time.

A Train From Monterey.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] The first passenger train that has come direct from Monterey in several months arrived here today bringing hundreds of refugees including a number of Americans. The passengers reported that the conditions in Monterey were desperate.

WOMAN ATHLETE DROPS DEAD.

Dr. Alice Shepard Kelly, Who Was Celebrated Mountain Climber, Passes Away at St. Paul.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) Dec. 6.—Dr. Alice Shepard Kelly, 43 years old, dropped dead on the street here today while hurrying to the bedside of a patient. Dr. Kelly was well known as an athlete. She attracted attention in Oregon in 1912 by making several record mountain climbs.

Pasadena.

CUTTING COST TO FIT PURSE.

Another Election With Lower Total of Bonds.

Dinner-Dance Attracts Many to Maryland Floors.

PASADENA, Dec. 7.—Though it was the plan to determine at a special meeting of the Board of Education held yesterday whether or not to resubmit the question of a bond issue to the voters of Pasadena, no action, either favorable or unfavorable, was taken by the board. The meeting was held, but the matter was deferred until next Thursday, for which day another session has been called.

Meanwhile Frank May and other members of the board will consult experts and make a survey of the property of the district to see if the projected $156,000 that was proposed for the erection of new schoolhouses in Altadena and Lamanda Park and for improvements at other schools of the city cannot be cut to a lower figure.

Some of the members of the board were of the impression yesterday that if another election is called a lower figure will be submitted.

J. S. Becknell, president of the new Taxpayers' League, which was organized only the day before, engaged in a dispute with May as to whether the board shall or shall not say what kind of buildings are to be erected in Altadena and Lamanda Park if another election is held and the bonds carry. Becknell contended for one-story, open-air buildings, and May declared that the people of these districts should be the ones to suggest what kind of buildings should be put up.

The meeting was attended by a number of representative citizens of the city.

DINNER-DANCE ATTRACTS.

The after-matinee dinner-dance given at the Hotel Maryland last night was the largest and one of the most brilliant social affairs that has yet taken place in the city this winter. It was attended by over 250 persons and more than 100 of these came from Los Angeles. The dancing took place between the courses of the dinner, and afterward, until 12 o'clock, and the hotel was gorgeously decorated. An innovation in social affairs here was the presence of four cabaret singers, who strolled through the lobby of the hotel singing as the guests thronged the place.

There were a number of private dinners in connection with the affair, the largest of which was given by Harrison I. Drummond. Mr. and Mrs. P. Harrison Guthrie assisted him as host and hostess and among his guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Rowan, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Miner, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Macy, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Avery, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Libby, Mr. and Mrs. John Earl Jardine, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flint, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hewlett, Mr. and Mrs. "Jack" S. Others who gave dinner parties are former Mayor and Mrs. Parker Lyon of Fresno, Mrs. H. Robbin of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Gilcrest, Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Linnard.

TO HAVE A PARADE.

Definite plans were made yesterday for the celebration that is to take place tomorrow night, when the electric current will be switched on for the first time in Los Robles avenue, where a new post lighting system has been installed. There is to be a procession of automobiles all the way from Oak Knoll to Altadena, this first night of the new lighted way.

The committee that will have charge of the affair is composed of R. D. Davis, William F. Knight and Thomas Chisholm. An order was issued by the committee yesterday for all loyal Los Robles avenue residents and others who have automobiles to assemble tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at the corner of Los Robles avenue and Colorado street. There, on a given signal, every driver is to "honk" his horn and cheer as loudly as he can. With this the parade will start.

ANOTHER CELEBRATION.

It has been decided by the Pasadena City Commission and the County Board of Supervisors to issue invitations for the celebration that is to mark the opening of the new Colorado-street Arroyo Seco bridge, next Saturday afternoon.

This formal invitation will be made in the form of a folder with statistics bearing on the bridge. It will read:

"The bridge will be opened for traffic at 12 o'clock, noon, and exercises incident to its formal acceptance will take place at the east approach to the bridge at 2 o'clock, p.m.

"COMMISSIONERS OF THE CITY OF PASADENA.

"SUPERVISORS OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY."

CITY BRIEFS.

Among the arrivals at the Hotel Green yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. Watson Askner of Kansas City, W. L. Parrotte of Chicago and I. C. Seamans of Ilion, N. Y., all of whom have for many years been regular winter residents of the city, living at the Green.

Invitations to the number of over 150 have been issued for the wedding of Miss Isabelle Lynds, daughter of Mrs. R. L. Lynds of Los Angeles, and Horace Thompson Major of this city. The wedding will be solemnized Monday evening, December 15, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Robert Clisbie Merriam, No. 444 Oakland avenue. Bishop J. H. The committee that will have charge of the affair is composed of F. S. Davis, William F. Knight and Thomas Chisholm. An order was issued by the committee yesterday for all loyal Los Robles avenue residents and others who have automobiles to assemble tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock at the corner of Los Robles avenue and Colorado street. There, at a given signal, every driver is to "honk" his horn and cheer as loudly as he can. With this the parade will start.

ANOTHER CELEBRATION.

It has been decided by the Pasadena City Commission and the County Board of Supervisors to issue invitations for the celebration that is to mark the opening of the new Colorado-street Arroyo Seco bridge, next Saturday afternoon.

This formal invitation will be made in the form of a folder with statistics bearing on the bridge. It will read: "The bridge will be opened for traffic at 12 o'clock, noon, and exercises incident to its formal acceptance will take place at the east approach to the bridge at 2 o'clock, p.m.

TWO NEW ORGANIZATIONS.

Pomona Alfalfa Growers Concentrate With Beta Kappa in Pomona College Fraternal Aid Section.

POMONA, Dec. 6.—The alfalfa growers in the Chino section are making good progress with the formation of their local organization to further their interests more particularly than can be done by the Alfalfa Growers' Association of Southern California, of which most of the growers are members. Because of the large amount of territory which the latter association is called upon to cover, it cannot give the necessary time and thought to questions of a local nature.

The growers interested, chief among whom are Messrs. A. Newcomer, F. Nutting, W. W. Coke, A. Clarke and A. W. La Forge, do not intend to withdraw from the Alfalfa Growers' Association of Southern California, however. Some of the important matters which the new organization is in a position to take up are the securing of better freight rates, better loading facilities and the like.

The local Fraternal Aid Association has elected officers as follows: Rufus Wiley, Past President; W. M. Stroud, President; George McCain, Vice-President; Charles Carter, Secretary; William H. Poston, Treasurer; Mrs. Helen Parker, Chaplain; Mrs. Florence Wiley, Guide; Ira D. Parker, Observer; Alex Phillips, Sentinel; J. G. Curry, Trustee.

Ten members of the faculty of Pomona College, viz., President Blaisdell, Dr. Charles B. Sumner, Prof. Frank Parkhurst Brackett, Dean Edwin C. Norton, Prof. Daniel Herbert Colcord, Dr. James A. Lyman, Prof. George Gale Hitchcock, Prof. Maro B. Jones, Prof. Charles C. Stearns, Dr. George S. Sumner, will constitute the nucleus of the new Phi Beta Kappa chapter, a charter for which was granted to Pomona College at the last meeting of the national chapter, held in New York City in the summer.

As the membership qualification is retroactive, many of the alumni of the college will be eligible to membership in the society. Elections to membership are made strictly on scholastic attainments during the senior year, but for special insigna, the key is sometimes given a student at the end of the junior. Both men and women are eligible.

BIG REAL ESTATE DEAL.

MONROVIA, Dec. 6.—The first part of one of the most significant real estate deals of the year in Monrovia was closed today when Mr. Franck C. Wood, the big real estate dealer from Chicago, signed the contracts for the sale of $150,000 worth of the highest class residence property in the city, lying north of White Oak avenue and west of Canyon boulevard.

Among the subdivisions included in the mammoth deal are the well-known Stedman tract, Oaks tract, owned by the Monrovia Building and Investment Company, and several otther smaller tracts and subdivisions.

Woods is to act as agent for these properties and proposes to subdivide them and sell them within one year's time.

"An Excursion on the Slow Poke Special" was the title given one of the most unique entertainments ever witnessed in Monrovia, when the ladies of the Congregationalist Church entertained the gentlemen at the home of Mrs. D. J. Mackey on Canyon boulevard and White Oak avenue. The whole affair was a ludicrous take-off on a real excursion on a real railroad, and so varied were the stunts that the hundred guests were kept busy guessing what could possibly happen next. The ladies, in proper uniforms, constituted the train crew, from ticket auditor to news butcher, and ran the special on schedule time. A black-bearded bandit held up the passengers, but was vanquished by the heroic brakeman, Miss Aileen Northup, who superintended most of the arrangements.

So successful was the journey that when the trip was done and the call of the lunch-counter gong resounded from the station platform, calling the guests to coffee and doughnuts, scarcely a passenger, from the bashful bride and groom to the two immigrant ladies with the varied baggage, wanted to leave the cars.

The entertainment was given by the ladies as answer to a challenge from the gentlemen, and it is now up to the men folks of the church to return the hospitality.

REPORTER GIVEN "DUCKING."

Wrote Story About "Yama Yama" Dance Which Was Resented by Athletic Young Men.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

REDLANDS, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As a result of an article published in the Los Angeles Times last Sunday, telling of a "Yama Yama" dance given at the Contemporary Club, H. A. Lamb, local correspondent for the paper, was given a "ducking" in an irrigation reservoir this afternoon. Five members of the Redlands Athletic Club overpowered him on Orange street, at the intersection of Citrus avenue, hustled him into an automobile and drove him to the outskirts of the city, where he was thrown into the artificial pond.

After being hauled out, he was taken back to town, paraded through the business section of the city for a few minutes and then let off at the Casa Loma Hotel, where he lives.

This evening, before Justice of the Peace McIver, Lamb swore to a complaint against the young men, charging battery. The quintette is comprised of Stuart Stevenson, a student at the University of Redlands, who is said to have furnished the automobile in which Lamb was kidnaped; D. M. Peterson, C. A. Caballero and Reyneldo J. Rivera, all three of whom are clerks, and Harold Morgan.

Lamb was grabbed from behind while he was walking with Raymond Duncan, Y.M.C.A. physical director. He was dragged along the street to where the automobile was standing beside the Y.M.C.A. building and placed in it, his hands first being tied behind. By the time Duncan could get word to the police, Lamb was halfway out to a reservoir, three miles east of town, near Colton avenue.

Since last Monday there have been rumors about town that some of the young men who attended the "Yama Yama" dance planned to punish Lamb. They demanded an apology from the reporter, which the latter refused to give. Several days ago Lamb asked Peterson when he and his friends were going to mob him. As time went along and no violence was attempted, people began, according to the members of the "ducking" party, to poke fun at them, insisting that Lamb had got their goat. So, to maintain their dignity, the athletic club members resolved to carry out the job.

UPLAND GROWERS FORESTALL FROST.

PATROLMEN PACE BEATS TO WATCH SILENT PROWLER.

City Cleans Up—Ships First Carload of Oranges—Fruit of High Quality—Finds Honest Man and Prepares for Electric Cars to Start This Month.

UPLAND, Dec. 6.—The citrus growers of the Upland district have succeeded in perfecting organization of a frost-fighting "army," perhaps the largest of any of the districts of this section.

The territory from Twenty-fourth street south to Sixth street is divided into six districts, each with its patrolmen, and each of them provided with a convenient outside telephone. An operator, specially hired for the work, is to be on hand all night long, to receive special weather reports, and also, upon notice from the patrolman, to notify all the ranchers of impending frost danger.

Mercury charts have been prepared, enabling patrolman or rancher to keep a close tab on the different degrees of temperature, for ten hours out of each night, from December 6 to March 1.

December 5 was general "clean-up" day for Upland, and the city wagons were busily engaged all day in carting away the rubbish from the alleys and curblines, where it had been deposited by the property owners. As a result, the appearance of of the city, generally, is much enhanced. This clean-up movement was a pet hobby of the city street superintendent, F. C. Froehde, and his efforts have been heartily backed by the Upland Woman's Club, the Upland Chamber of Commerce and the Upland City Trustees. It is hoped to have this general cleaning done at regular and sufficiently frequent intervals.

Local packing-houses are now busily engaged in putting up fruit for shipment to the eastern markets, the Hanson & Seares house claiming the distinction of shipping the first carload. The Upland Citrus Association, by far the largest of any of the local packers, shipped a car yesterday of the finest fruit which ever went forward from this colony, according to men competent to judge. The sizes were fine, the fruit splendidly colored, of almost kid-glove texture of skin, and containing an especially large percentage of sugar for thus early in the season.

Unless adverse conditions arise, the various managers of the local fruit packing-houses agree that the Upland district fruit, for this season, will equal, if it does not even surpass, its own high mark of quality, while the volume of the crop is estimated at perhaps 80 per cent. of normal.

Kirk Vernon, a local rancher, is in receipt of a letter from Detroit, Mich., enclosing 50 cents in stamps, the writer explaining that in 1911, while employed by Mr. Vernon, he took, without permission, two dozen choice oranges, and that he wishes in this manner to make payment for the fruit. Mr. Vernon now agrees with the optimists that there are a few honest men, after all.

El Centro.

PLANS FOR A CANAL ON AMERICAN SOIL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL CENTRO, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A well-attended meeting of the land-owners water-users league of company No. 1 was held in the Davis Hall in El Centro today, at which the report of the Imperial Irrigation District engineer, A. A. Anderson, on the proposed all-American canal was presented. Anderson says that the water may either be taken from the Colorado River at the Laguna dam or at a bend in the river several miles below it and through it to the valley in an almost due west line, entering the present system at a point slightly north of Sharp's Heading and being distributed from this point to the remainder of the valley.

As this canal would have a fall of but little over one-tenth of a foot in a mile, the sediment carried by the water would keep filling it, making its maintenance very costly. To overcome this, it was proposed to run the water into a huge settling basin which could be made on the 60,000 acres of available land at this point. The clear water could then be passed through the canal, while from one to three dredges could be provided to keep the reservoir clear.

Owing to the necessity of urgent action, it was thought that since the cost of this canal would be in the neighborhood of $20,000,000 and would not be considered by the people at the present time, some other plan should be discussed.

The purchase of the California Development system from the Southern Pacific and other bondholders was considered, but E. E. Forrester stated that he had investigated the Mexican holdings of the California Development Company and found that they did not have the right of the territory over which their system passed to the exclusion of any other similar project and said that a levee could be thrown up on the south side of the hills in Mexico and a canal made in this way much cheaper than any other. This was but one of many routes proposed, all of which involved millions of dollars. These routes will be carefully considered by the league and definite action promised immediately.

To Beat a Cold

Just a Five-Minute Treatment of Virgin Oil of Pine Will Put the Worst of Colds "On the Toboggan."

DON'T WAIT—ACT NOW.

Nearly everybody is subject to colds. Surely half the ills of humanity start with a cold. Colds lead to rheumatism, lumbago, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption and various other ailments.

Give Your Cold a Start and Tell it Good-by.

Don't aggravate your cold by taking strong drugs, cathartics and such "dope." There is a far easier, better, surer, quicker and more pleasant way to cure it. Just drop a little pure Virgin Oil of Pine on a lump of sugar and eat it. Relieves a cough almost instantly.

If you will use this simple and pleasant remedy just once, you will never go back to any of the old nauseous and tedious treatments.

When you get the Virgin Oil of Pine, be sure to insist upon Leach's (Compound Puri.) Cut this out and take it to any drug store anywhere. The price is 50 cents. And if the druggist won't supply you, send the price to the Leach Chemical Co., at Cincinnati, Ohio, and the package will be mailed you direct with all charges prepaid. Money back if your cold isn't cured.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Dec. 6.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 30.16; at 5 p.m., 30.14. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 46 deg. and 56 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 81 per cent.; 5 p.m., 76 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 7 miles; 5 p.m., west, velocity 10 miles. Highest temperature, 66 deg.; lowest, 43 deg. Rainfall for season, 3.68 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The southwestern area of low pressure drifted easterly and is now central over Arkansas and Missouri. Snow continued to fall in Eastern Colorado, and heavy rain occurred in Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri. Denver reported 1.10 inches of precipitation North Platte, 1.24, and Kansas City, 1.20 inches. The barometer continues high over the Western States, with the crest of the high pressure area central over Montana. This extensive field of high pressure will give continued fair weather to Los Angeles and vicinity for another thirty-six hours, with night temperatures not so low as during the past few days.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair Sunday; not so cold Sunday morning; light frost in the morning; northerly to northwesterly winds.

For California south of the Tehachapi: Cloudy Sunday; light frost in the morning.

POLICEWOMEN IN CAFE.

So Many Complaints About Young Girls Drinking There That Chief Sebastian Starts Investigation.

Policewomen were assigned to a novel duty yesterday when they were directed to visit Harlow's Cafe as guests and watch for violations of the law.

Repeated complaints made to Chief Sebastian resulted in the assignment of the women officers to the cafe. Several young girls who have been brought to the Central Police Station on various charges in which their delinquency is involved, confessed that they had gone to Harlow's and had been served drinks.

Similar complaints have been made by many persons and it is to obtain evidence against the cafe management that the policewomen are sent there nightly to mingle with the patrons during the most jolly hours.

If any young girls are found drinking there, the policewomen will at once send them to their homes, and Fred Harlow, proprietor of the place, will be summoned before the Police Commission. Police reports indicate the cafe has become a rendezvous for late joy-riding parties in which young girls figure.

FATALLY INJURED BY CAR.

Gardener Tossed Twenty Feet in Air When His Wagon Is Struck by Beach Flyer.

Charles Hatchess, a market gardener, was probably fatally injured yesterday when his wagon was struck at LaFresa crossing by a through Redondo Beach electric car.

When taken to the Crocker-street hospital Hatchess was found to be suffering from a fractured skull, a broken back and other injuries that make his recovery doubtful.

Motorman Dorth, who was the pilot of the car, reports that Hatchess was evidently thinking of something entirely foreign to his travel, for he failed to consider the danger of the road crossing, cheerfully whipping his mules upon the track directly in the path of the electric car.

The car was traveling, he reports, at the rate of twenty miles an hour The brakes were thrown into action without result, and the train struck the team and wagon with terrific force. The two mules were instantly killed. Hatchess was thrown twenty feet into the air. He was brought to Los Angeles on a special train.

LUMBER-LADEN SHIPS SAIL IN BY FLEETS.

Bring Enough Material in Few Days to Build Fine City.

Twenty Million Feet Reaches Port Between Thursday Morning and Last Night, Over Half of It in One Day—New Lines, With Contracts Soon to Be Signed, Give Even Greater Promise.

TWENTY MILLION feet of lumber, enough to build a town of 2500 houses, arrived at this port in the three days ended last midnight and awoke the already-busy harbor to a feverishness of activity premonitory of the tremendous perpetual rush which will follow the opening of the Panama Canal. Beginning with the arrival of the John A. Hooper from Olympic at dawn Thursday, with its loading line obscured by the slow-rolling waves, scarcely an hour passed for three days that there wasn't an inbound lumber steamer somewhere in the offing or maneuvering at one of the many docks. They came sailing in by fleets.

Though Thursday was the big day, with the arrival of fifteen vessels, bringing 12,500,000 feet of lumber, steamer after steamer came in Friday and yesterday from the North with their decks nearly awash under the millions of feet of "rough, prime and finished." A feature Friday was the bringing in of 30,000 railroad ties by one vessel. This is ties enough to build a railroad from the business center to the city limits in any direction.

But greater things are ahead, once the little affair down south of the border is settled. For one thing, the Consolidated Cananea Copper Company will renew a contract with the Southern California Lumber Company to purchase 1,000,000 feet of mine timbers a month for twelve months for use in its mine in Sonora. Other contracts abrogated by force of disturbed political conditions south will also be renewed. All this lumber will pass through this port, being transferred here to the Southern Pacific for relaying in Sonora railroads. With the rapidly increasing demand in the Imperial Valley and the Southwest as a whole for lumber, the future looks most promising for this harbor as the super-lumber port.

There are also more ships of all lands coming, though November, compared with October, showed a 100 per cent. increase in the amount of merchandise "laid down" here from Europe, South America, the Orient and the Philippines. The American Hawaiian Steamship Company will have a ship calling here every three days after the first of the year. Already a thirty-foot basin has been dredged from Dead Man's Island to just above the turning basin, and also to Pier A, where the big freighters will anchor.

There are also ships en route from Genoa, Antwerp, three from this im-

The one Piano that retains its incomparable Beauty of Tone for twenty, thirty, yes, fifty years after it is purchased. No wonder that although they cost a little more than any other Piano, the sales of Steinway Pianos are increasing each year.

Of all things bought and sold today, no article is more certainly worth its price than the Steinway Piano.

The Choice of the Whole World's Nobility

Almost every Crowned Head of every Nation has selected the Steinway as the Official Piano at Court. The significance of this universal choice of the Steinway by Imperial Families is a testimonial to the merits of this Instrument that needs no further argument. The greatest Ocean steamships—floating palaces with regal appointments—all have one or more Steinways.

MAIL PACKAGES BY MILLIONS.

IMMENSE LOT OF PARCELS TO GO AND TO COME.

Postoffice Expected to Handle Ten Thousand Tons of Christmas Gifts. Good Reasons for Getting Them Away Early—Three Hundred Extra Clerks Arranged For.

Twenty million pounds—10,000 tons—of parcel post Christmas presents—3,000,000 gifts—it is expected by postal authorities here, will be handled through the Los Angeles office.

One million five hundred thousand presents, it is approximated, will be mailed by Angelenos through the city and environs and to the four corners of the nation, and around the world.

As many will be received through the mail.

Preparation has been made to do $1,500,000 worth of outgoing business through the postoffice during the holiday rush, and in the Federal vaults here stamps worth that amount are ready for sale.

Seven hundred and forty-eight thousand dollars worth of stamps arrived yesterday on special order by Postmaster Harrison for the Christmas rush.

Eighty per cent. of the small-package business of Los Angeles—packages weighing less than twenty pounds—will be done this year through the parcel post, it is estimated at the postoffice.

The postmaster has arranged for 300 extra clerks during the holiday rush. All of these have practically been selected. As there are 600 applications on file at the postoffice, additional applications will be but a waste of time for those seeking places, and the government officials.

PACKAGE HEADQUARTERS.

Uncle Sam—the American Santa Claus since inauguration of the parcel post—has arranged for parcel post headquarters, temporarily for the Christmas season, at the southeast corner of Aliso and Los Angeles streets.

There the bulk of the parcel post Christmas business will be handled. This does not mean, however, that the public will have to carry packages there for mailing, they are to be mailed at the postoffice or any of the eighty-six substations, as usual.

The Aliso and Los Angeles-street building has a floor space of 100x200 feet. One hundred clerks will be on duty there, working in connection with the railway mail service attaches.

The postmaster was busy last night making final arrangements for the holiday rush, transmitting orders to subordinates and preparing to facilitate the handling of the mighty deluge of merchandise and mail that has already begun to sweep in and out.

SAY A CITY OFFICIAL KEEPS A BLACKLIST.

Workmen Charge Plot to Unionize All Municipal Work at Harbor and Say They're Refused Jobs for Remaining Loyal to Employers During Summer Strike of Artisans on Dock Number One.

CHARGES that a city official has taken a prominent part in a conspiracy to unionize all of the municipal work at the harbor and that a convenient blacklist is kept for all non-union artisans will be aired tomorrow at a meeting of the Harbor Commission.

The charges were made yesterday by F. B. Wood and W. H. Thomas, carpenters, who, until recently, have been employed by the Snare & Triest Company, contractors, on Municipal Dock No. 1.

The city official who is accused of complicity in the plot to install gangsters and unionites on the municipal work is Inspector Sleeper, an engineer working out of the City Engineer's office. Sleeper is the inspector on the construction of Municipal Dock No. 1.

According to Wood and Thomas, there is an organized conspiracy at the harbor to force all non-union men off city work as well as all others. While they are making charges to the Harbor Commission in respect to the work on the Snare & Triest contract, they assert that the activity of the unionites extends to other city work, and that Inspector Sleeper is co-operating with the union labor leaders who are agitating the workmen until labor conditions

BROADWAY TUNNEL TO BE LOWERED AT ONCE.

Council Has Seven Votes Favoring It When Wheeler and Bryant Take Stand for Great Improvement, Leaving Betkouski Only Member Against It—Downtown Merchants Urge Early Action on Ordinance.

THE final ordinance for the lowering of the North Broadway tunnel will be passed by the Council tomorrow morning, according to present plans, Councilman Betkouski being the only opponent of the project left in that body.

Councilmen Bryant and Wheeler flopped to the side of the tunnel-lowering yesterday during a happy experience meeting in the Council when every member present went on record in the tunnel matter. Councilman Langdon, absent yesterday, will be on the job tomorrow to add his vote to six others for the improvement.

The Merchants' Retail Dry Goods Association started something yesterday when it sent to the Council a statement urging early action on the tunnel project. The matter has been before the Council for about two years and was nearing the time when the final vote on the ordinance must be taken. The association indorsed not only the Broadway tunnel project but the First and Second-street tunnel projects as well.

In its communication to the Council the Merchants' Retail Dry Goods Association calls attention to the following resolutions passed at the regular monthly meeting held November 28, 1913:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting that we present to the Honorable City Council of the city of Los Angeles the urgent necessity of taking as prompt action as is possible in connection with—

"(1) The proposed improvement of West Second street and West First street, both of said improvements to be constructed by means of tunnels;

"(2) The improvement of Sunset boulevard from Marion avenue to the Plaza;

"(3) The reconstruction of the Broadway tunnel.

"Be it further resolved, that we earnestly request your honorable body to use due diligence in securing the completion of the above-mentioned improvements. We fully recognize and appreciate the fact that there is a certain amount of formality and delay inevitable in all municipal work, but we feel that the above projects, which have been approved and ordered by your honorable body, should not be permitted to be delayed in the various departments, nor to be held up by 'red tape.'"

"These improvements," says the letter, "in our opinion, are absolutely essential to the comfort and convenience of a large portion of our population, and will not only insure the symmetrical development of the city, but will do much to relieve the deplorable congestion now existing on the streets of the business district.

"The completion of the canal, together with the Panama exposition in 1915, will undoubtedly bring to us an unprecedented number of tourists and all those who motor from San Francisco or the East must of necessity enter the city from the north. We must be prepared for their coming, and the above improvements should be started at once so as to induce a large number of our visitors to appreciate the continuous development and public spirit for which Los Angeles is noted and consequently decide to become permanent residents.

"Our association represents business and property values in the millions of dollars, and we believe that the contemplated improvements are wisely planned and of the greatest necessity. Our assistance as an organization and as individuals is gladly offered you in active support of these improvements."

The communication is signed by Arthur Letts (president,) Broadway Department Store, A. Fusenot Company, N. B. Blackstone Company, Jacoby Bros., Incorporated, A. Hamburger and Sons, J. M. Hale Company, New York Cloak and Suit House, J. R. Lane Dry Goods Company, Myer Siegel & Co., Bullock's, Fifth Street Store, J. W. Robinson Company and Coulter Dry Goods Company.

ON RACE ADJUSTMENT.

Believing that the race problem in California, as regards the negroes and the whites, has become one to challenge the careful consideration of the best minds of their race, the negroes of Los Angeles have succeeded in securing the services of Prof. Kelly Miller, one of the leading educators of their people, to deliver a series of lectures here on "Race Adjustment." Prof. Miller will spend about ten days in the city, beginning the 23rd inst., and will subsequently lecture in other large California cities.

Prof. Miller is a distinguished mathematician and is dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of Howard University, at Washington, D. C. As a writer he has attained considerable fame, occupying in his race doctrine a sort of middle ground between the radical Du Boise and the conservative Booker T. Washington. Miller's pamphlet in answer to Thomas Dixon's "Leopard's Spots," has had probably the largest sale of any work ever written by a negro.

Combine Charities?

HELPING HANDS MAY CLASP.

UNION OF COUNTY AND CITY BODIES PROPOSED.

Invitations Issued by the Board of Supervisors to the City Council and Municipal Charities Commission for Conference — Greater Efficiency the Aim.

A consolidation of city and county charities, with the exception of the County Hospital and the County Farm, may be effected in the next few days. The Board of Supervisors sent out invitations yesterday to the members of the City Council and the Municipal Charities Commission for a joint conference of the three bodies in the offices of the former, Hall of Records Building, next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The purpose is to consider ways and means for a possible consolidation of all the charitable bodies in the county and the city, with the exception of the two institutions mentioned, the object being greater efficiency and economy of administration.

It is proposed to create a council to be known as the Los Angeles Charities Commission, bearing the same relation to and having the same supervision of all organized charity in the county and this and other cities as the Municipal Charities Commission now does to the city charities. The tentative plan at present in favor is to select nine members, five of whom are to be the members of the Municipal Charities Commission and four to be selected from outlying towns, such as Pasadena, Long Beach, Pomona and others.

TRIAL RESUMED TUESDAY.

The trial of the complaint brought by the Evening Herald Publishing Company against E. T. Earl, George W. Schooley, the Express and Tribune, which was on trial several days last week, will be resumed in Judge York's court Tuesday. The plaintiff is seeking a permanent restraining order to prevent Schooley from imparting knowledge of the business secrets of the Herald to the Tribune and Express. No damages are prayed for, only costs.

The Los Angeles county grand jury that wants to go home and stay there.

Pathetic Plea.

PLEASE MAYN'T WE GO ON HOME?

Grand Jury's A-wearied of These "Mysteries."

Long-Suffering Body Would Like Little Rest.

May Get Away Tomorrow; Let Joy Be Unconfined.

The county grand jury wants to go home and stay there. For several days the members have been importuning Deputy District Attorney Hammon to finish his work and let them return to their own firesides.

The final report is ready to be filed with Presiding Judge McCormick. Unless somebody with a new grievance or another "mystery" gets into the jury-room with his evidence the jurors will be thanked for their work and dismissed tomorrow. Anyway, maybe they will. They earnestly desire to.

They have been in session for nearly one year, and have heard a large number of cases. The jury has been pronounced one of the most energetic that was ever chosen. Foreman Meek and Secretary Wirsching have done an enormous amount of clerical work and the reports taken down in shorthand will fill almost as many volumes as the Congressional record. The so-called white slave cases consumed many weeks and the Long Beach disaster investigation involved considerable extra work.

Next to the 1910-11 grand jury, which returned true bills against the McNamaras and others, it is believed that the 1912 jury will go down in the annals of the county as one of the most painstaking that was ever selected.

They have been meeting on an average three times a week for about fifty weeks, and part of the time met daily. The members have inspected all county buildings, looked into a number of outside cases and returned about 100 true bills altogether.

David Evans was one of the last to appear before the body. He came to explain his attitude on civil service, and his own view of his eligibility to sit as chairman of the Civil Service Commission.

F. C. Finkle also appeared to give testimony concerning the Rose campaign fund. The grand jury will probably embody its conclusions on these cases in its final report.

Anyone caught loitering around the grand jury-room tomorrow with a fresh complaint had best beware. The grand jury will get him if he don't watch out.

MADE HIS COIN AS WAS NEEDED.

SECRET SERVICE AGENT FINDS OUT ABOUT IT, HOWEVER.

Silver Only Pays Him, Gold Being Too Expensive, He Tells in His Confession—Works as Plasterer to Cover His Operations—Amateurish Methods Betray.

Plasterer by day, counterfeiter by night, Charles Simmons got along easily until yesterday when Secret Service Agent Hazen arrested him in his room, No. 501 Temple street. All his paraphernalia was strewn about the room and Simmons confessed.

To explain away the white stains on his hands, Simmons became a plasterer so he could work with his moulds by night without arousing suspicion—when the stains were visible. After working through the day Simmons would manufacture his silver coins in his bedroom. The majority of them he passed on the street car companies.

For a time, he says, he experimented with gold coins, but found them unsatisfactory and hard to pass. His experiment in issuing five-dollar gold pieces was a financial loss as it cost him too much to purchase the necessary gold to fill the counterfeits.

He worked with crude implements.

Simmons is from Paducah, Ky. He insists he made his coins after a method wholly original and that he is not connected with any gang. The crudity of his work, Hazen believes, corroborates the fact.

QUEER DIVORCE SUIT.

A singular triangle in two divorce suits presented itself in Judge Jackson's court yesterday—money, husbands and hearts being the cognomens in two suits. All of these elements are present in divorce suits, else there would be no cause of action.

In the present instance the suits were brought in the names of Ellen Money against Edward Money, and Frank J. Husbands against Josephine Husbands, and in the latter suit, Don Heart was named as co-respondent.

Keeps a Black List.

are thoroughly unsettled at the harbor.

The experience of Wood and Thomas is the same as that of four other carpenters whose names are said to be on a blacklist prepared by Sleeper and furnished to a foreman on the wharf for Snare & Triest.

Wood and Thomas and four other carpenters refused to walk out last July during a strike on the Snare & Triest job. The pile drivers struck for higher wages and the adoption of the union scale. When they walked out other workers on the pier walked out and there were several threats made to the men who remained loyal to their employers.

CAN'T GO BACK.

The strike was settled and many of the workmen returned to their tasks. In October the carpenters and others were laid off because of inability to get material. Wood, Thomas and others were told that as soon as the material was on hand they would be employed again. They kept in touch with developments and last week Wood was told by the foreman to come back to work the following morning. Both he and Thomas, as well as others, appeared for work.

Many of the men who walked out during the sympathetic strike in July were put to work, but the foreman approached Wood and said:

Then, according to Wood, the foreman went to Sleeper, who was standing near, and asked him who was on the list. Returning to Wood he said: "Your name is on the list. I can't put you to work."

Thomas, however, went to work that day and at night the foreman told him that his name, too, was on the "list," and he need not return for further employment.

Wood's son was still employed on the job a few days after this, when Sleeper is alleged to have interfered in an officious manner.

"I won't accept any of that man's work," Sleeper told the foreman. "If he puts in any more you will have to tear it out."

Wood's son was discharged.

Other workmen join Wood and Thomas in the charge that they are being discriminated against at the dictation of Sleeper because they are not union sympathisers.

WARNED, SAYS WOODMAN.

"The commission certainly will investigate these charges Monday," said President Woodman of the Harbor Commission yesterday. "We will not tolerate discrimination on public work and do not discriminate or allow it between union and non-union workmen. Neither has any inspector the right to dictate to a contractor whom he shall employ and whom he shall not.

"I warned Sleeper about interfering in labor matters, once before. When the strike was on last July I heard a rumor that he was interesting himself in the labor difficulty and taking sides, so I warned him to keep his hands off and not to mix in. I understood that he had taken heed, and these recent charges are all new to me. We will investigate to the very bottom and find out who is to blame."

Wood and Thomas are to appear before the Harbor Commission tomorrow morning with other workmen and the Harbor Commission will go into the matter thoroughly.

FIND SUCKERS BAIT.

Roll of Fake Currency and Checks Found On Men Branded Confessed Bunco Artists.

Rolls of imitation currency, false checks and other contrivances to "make" the eyes of the unsophisticated gloat, were taken yesterday from George Walker and C. W. Doyle, who are under arrest as bunco men. They are held on a charge of suspicion.

Both men, detectives say, confessed to getting suckers' money by matching bills. As "come-on" property, both carried large rolls of green and yellow sheets of imitation currency. Hundreds of checks for amounts ranging up from $600 were found on them. Their pockets resembled the realised dreams of a bank clerk.

They admitted, Detective Tom Ziegler says, that they were practicing the bunco game here with success. They were equipped with racetrack reports, and occasionally used that ruse to snare a bankroll.

Also they used opium and carried their stock with them.

PIERCED-ARROW CAR.

The decorations on a motor car which left the Van Nuys yesterday afternoon plainly marked the occupants as a bride and groom. A large red heart, pierced by an arrow, was painted on the rear of the tonneau. A collection of old shoes dangled from a rope. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. William B. Lindsey, who were married at noon yesterday by Bishop Johnson at St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral.

Mrs. Lindsey was Mrs. E. A. Gage, daughter-in-law of Lyman J. Gage, former Secretary of the Treasury. The latter was a member of the party of twenty-five who attended a wedding breakfast at the Van Nuys yesterday afternoon. He enjoyed the fun and was accused by Mrs. Lindsey of being in league with the prank-players.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey will take a wedding trip through Southern California and then make their home in Hollywood, where the groom is in the lumber business.

Tunnel to Be Lowered.

taken an active place in the leadership for the Broadway tunnel lowering, passed the buck right up to his colleagues by urging them to put themselves on record for or against the project.

Councilman Betkouski reiterated his stand in opposition to the tunnel, but said that he is heartily in favor of the proposed improvement of First and Second streets with tunnels and widening. This statement was greeted with pleasure by many of the other Councilmen, who were uncertain of his attitude on these other projects. Betkouski said he had received many letters from prominent men urging him to change his vote on the Broadway tunnel lowering, but he could not do it.

Councilman Bryant said he didn't want to be placed in the attitude of opposing improvements, but he said he felt under the plan the north end of the assessment district would have to stand the greatest burden of the cost. If it could be shown that the business property downtown would stand at least half of the expense, he said, he would be inclined to favor the improvement. McKenzie showed him the Council resolution calling upon the south end to pay half and the willingness of the owners of business property to stand this share of the assessment. Later Bryant said he would support the tunnel project.

Councilman Snowden, always a staunch advocate of the tunnel lowering, spoke earnestly for it and showed that he stands where he has stood right along—for the improvement of conditions that will relieve the congestion downtown and give better egress and access through the tunnel. An interesting point he brought out was that the tunnel is used now almost exclusively by autos because teams cannot use the steep hill on the south side of it.

WHEELER FAVORS.

Councilman Conwell also stated that he is still strongly in favor of the improvement and that left it to Councilman Wheeler, who said that while he had been opposed to the project on many grounds, he is now inclined to favor it and believes it will be an improvement that will not only help the city at large but will have the effect of hurrying the proposed improvement of Sunset boulevard.

President Whiffen closed the meeting with an assertion that he stands unchanged in his attitude and will vote to lower the tunnel.

It requires six votes, but there will be seven in the Council tomorrow morning when the final ordinance comes up for action.

GIRL'S CHARGES APPEAR TRUE.

POLICEMAN ARRESTED FOLLOWING CLOSE INVESTIGATION.

Expert Declares Officer's Handwriting Is Identical With that on Hotel Register Where He Is Accused of Having Taken the Prosecuting Witness.

Policeman O. M. Lawrason was suspended from the force yesterday by Chief Sebastian and immediately placed under arrest on a charge of rape as the result of the complaint made by Nettie Gillette.

It is the first formal action taken by Chief Sebastian since the 17-year-old telephone girl made her confession of delinquency, naming eight policemen as responsible.

A warrant was issued for Lawrason's arrest following a report made by Milton Carlson, handwriting expert, who identified the signature of A. P. Jones in the Chula Vista Hotel as that of Lawrason.

In her confession, Nettie Gillette had testified that she had visited the hotel in company with Lawrason and that they had occupied a certain room. She gave the number.

When the police began investigating her charges, they found that the rooms she mentioned had been occupied on the date she named. A copy of handwriting was given to Carlson, and after the expert had compared it with the policeman's script, he at once identified Lawrason as the author of the signature.

As soon as the report was made to Juvenile Officer Marden, who is in charge of the investigation, the warrant for Lawrason's arrest was granted.

Lawrason was called into the Chief's office yesterday and formally suspended.

Complaints are already drafted against several of the other seven policemen involved in the scandal and their arrests are expected within a few days.

The most detailed examination of the confession has been in progress for several days and if corroborative evidence is secured the policemen will me suspended.

Ridiculous.

FREAK MEASURE DECLARED VOID.

Strike Law Unconstitutional, Says Police Judge.

Its Attempted Classification "Arbitrary, Fanciful."

Decision for Defendant in Knightland Case.

Another one of the ridiculous freak laws passed by the late Legislature met its doom yesterday when Police Judge Joseph F. Chambers, in a carefully prepared opinion on the Knightland case, declared the law to regulate advertisements and solicitations for employees during strikes to be unconstitutional. The opinion closes with the following statement: "I am of the opinion that the attempted classification of employers in the statute in question is entirely arbitrary and fanciful and that the statute is unconstitutional and void."

The provisions of the statute are so sweeping that any person furnishing the name of an employer to an applicant for work could be sent to jail for from twenty-five days to 250 days, if he did not inform the applicant that a strike existed in the establishment of the employer, and this whether or not he knew of the existence of the strike.

In the case before the court, Knightland was sales manager for the U. R. Bowers and Sons Paint Company. Employees of customers of the paint company in Pasadena were on strike. Knightland knew nothing of this, he testified, and when some painters who were out of work applied for employment, he told them there was work to be had in Pasadena. Knightland received no compensation for this, he said, but merely acted in the capacity of bringing employer and employees together for their mutual benefit.

An employee, thereafter, swore out a warrant for his arrest because he did not tell the employee that there was a strike in existence in the Pasadena shop.

VALIDITY ATTACKED.

Knightland retained Attorney Lee Riddle as his counsel and the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association sent its counsel, Oscar C. Mueller, into the case for the purpose of attacking the validity of the law. The association's counsel was directed to contest the law through the highest courts if necessary.

Although the case was pending in a police court, voluminous briefs were filed by the City Prosecutor's office and by the attorneys attacking the law. A similar law came before the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois several years ago, and was attacked upon the ground that it was unconstitutional. The highest court of that State finally rendered an opinion against the law. In the argument before Judge Chambers, this decision was quoted.

It was contended by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association that the law was in conflict with three sections of the Constitutions of the United States and of the State of California.

In the course of the opinion, which is long and comprehensive as to detail, Judge Chambers says: "A person has a natural and legal right to solicit another to work for him in any lawful enterprise. His right to contract for labor presupposes his right to solicit one to make such a contract. This right, says our Supreme Court, must be 'untrammeled by unnecessary regulations.'

DISCRIMINATION.

"Aside from the question of violation of contract, an employee has both a natural and a legal right to quit his employment, and any number of employees have the same right to act in concert in quitting their employment for any reason which may seem to them sufficient, or for no reason. Likewise, an employer may discharge and employ employees, or may continue or discontinue the operation of his business without being answerable to any one.

"A strike may sometimes be unjust and ill-founded—that the employer in a particular case may be without blame. If so, he must get employees to take the place of those on strike, or allow his business to languish or die. The statute prohibits him from advertising for or soliciting such employees without stating the fact of the strike. It puts him in the unfortunate position of not only having his business interrupted, but of being required to advertise that fact, be he right or wrong.

"It is noticeable that the statute places no restrictions whatever upon the activities of employees who are on strike, or who are locked out. It is going much too far in attempting to sustain the validity of this law to ask the court to assume that strikes or lockouts will usually be followed by acts of violence on the part of strikers toward those who may seek to take the strikers' places. The court must assume that, in general, citizens will be peaceable and law abiding.

"The great mass of citizens who come under the designation of employees are not unmindful of the law or of the rights of others, and if a turbulent few of them are so, then why should the law not seek to remove the cause of those few, but rather, by preserving order, to maintain the rights of all."

OIL SUIT CONSULTATION.

S. H. Justice, recently appointed special assistant to the Attorney-General in the "withdrawal" oil suits, was in the city yesterday accompanied by B. D. Townsend, also retained in the same case in the interest of the Government, holding a consultation with Dist.-Atty. Schoonover. The next step in this celebrated case, involving the right of President Taft to withdraw certain oil lands in Kern County from all forms of entry, will be argument on the motion of the defendants for the dismissal of the complaints against certain corporations and individuals before United States District Judge Dooling, the date of which has not yet been determined.

CLEVELAND OIL CASE.

It is expected that the government will complete its evidence in the Cleveland Oil case tomorrow and that the following days will be occupied by the defense, the present arrangement being that the case will go to the jury Thursday or Friday of the coming week. All of the defendants are confident of their acquittal of the charge of conspiracy to use the mails for fraudulent purposes.

CLEVELAND OIL CASE.

It is expected that the government will complete its evidence in the Cleveland Oil case tomorrow and that the following days will be occupied by the defense, the present arrangement being that the case will go to the jury Thursday or Friday of this week. All of the defendants are confident of their acquittal on the charge of conspiracy to use the mails for fraudulent purposes.

Music In Your Home for Christmas

Factory Closing Out Thousands of Dollars Worth of Fine Upright and Player Pianos Gives You a Wonderful Buying Opportunity

Every instrument will be sold from the factory and for less than the regular factory price!

There is real necessity for this sale. Every day that we stay here costs us money. We are behind on our orders. We cannot fill them with the present equipment of this plant, therefore we have built our big new factory at Van Nuys. Therefore, the necessity for moving into it at once and catching up with the demand for our organs and pianos.

See How Cheaply You Can Buy

Scores of Upright and Player Pianos, in the finest mahogany, walnut and golden oak finishes, will be sold for the merest fraction of their original cost. They will be sold on terms that have never before been approached in the piano selling of Los Angeles. As little as $50 will take your choice from a score or more of pianos that were originally sold for $500 or $750 or $1000. $20 will take your choice from dozens of others. $10 or $5 will bring a beautiful instrument to your home. If that is too much to pay, simply pay the cartage and let us send you the piano, so that you may use it free of charge until after the holidays and begin your payments after January 1st.

Why We Do It!

We do it primarily because we have GOT to. We cannot afford to sacrifice our prestige for prompt deliveries on pianos and organs, and we cannot make those prompt deliveries as long as we stay here, therefore the whole factory, full of pianos must be sold here in Los Angeles before we move to our new factory at Van Nuys. And we MUST move to that new factory without any delay whatsoever.

HOW TO GET TO THE BIG SALE.

The Public Service.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Saloonkeepers asked the Police Commission yesterday what they shall do with the big stock of novelties they have on hand for gifts to holiday customers.

The Council yesterday directed the engineer to move with speed in preparing to pave Santa Monica boulevard with bitulithic, ending a long struggle against asphalt.

The Council yesterday invaded the privileges of the Board of Public Utilities by ordering a water distributor to turn on a fuller and better supply to Glassell Park district.

A widow, who exchanged valuable beach property for acreage in Kern county, now claims in a suit against real estate brokers that the property she received is worthless and seeks to enforce a trust.

An automobile and two lawyers, each claiming to be the owner of the machine, are fighting their claims in the Superior Court, seeking damages.

At the City Hall.

NO SOUVENIRS THIS CHRISTMAS.

SALOON ORDER FINDS A BIG STOCK ON HAND.

Police Commission Fails to Answer Query as to Disposition of Holiday Presents Given Annually to Preferred Customers—Fortune Invested in Novelty Gifts.

"What are we going to do with our Christmas souvenirs?" the saloon keepers are asking the Police Commission.

"We should worry," replied the commission. "You saw our order about giving away premiums with drinks."

Saloon keepers of Los Angeles have invested $35,000 in souvenirs, which are given away annually to preferred customers. There are 208 saloons in the city and hardly one of them but has prepared to extend the compliments of the season in the form of a novelty, a miniature bottle of rare old booze, or something of the sort. Novelty agents, who annually reap a harvest in this trade, say that at least $25,000 worth of these "Christmas presents" were ordered this year by saloon keepers before the commission issued its order.

That was before the Police Commission passed a resolution making it a cause sufficient for revocation of license for any saloon keeper to give away with drinks any merchandise as a premium.

The saloon keepers, who have their holiday stocks of souvenirs, naturally have construed this ruling as a shot at the "good-fellow" trade. When the preferred customer enters the saloon during the holidays for a drink he cannot be given, as in the past, a neat little souvenir of his favorite emporium.

"What are we going to do with them?" ask the saloon proprietors.

Police Commissioner Morgan and Chief of Police Sebastian merely point to the order of the commission. They expect the saloon man to construe it liberally or literally—all at his own risk.

In the meantime there are several boxes of souvenirs which may never be distributed.

AGAINST ASPHALT.
COUNCIL FOR BITULITHIC.

The long war between the advocates of asphalt and bitulithic as a pavement for Santa Monica boulevard from Sunset to the city limits was ended yesterday when the City Council adopted a report of the Public Works Committee ordering the City Engineer use all expedition in preparing the notice of intention to pave the long street with bitulithic.

Originally, a majority of the property owners along the boulevard petitioned for asphalt pavement, but later the largest property owners and others withdrew from an asphalt petition and asked that bitulithic be used. A majority of the property owners having petitioned for a bitulithic pavement, the Council agreed to be governed by the wishes of the people.

The court of last resort is to be a fight on the protest when the time arrives. It is believed that the asphalt and bitulithic advocates will wage a merry war along the boulevard and will bring to the Council a protest. Should the Council honor this protest, when it comes, then bitulithic will be knocked out and the whole thing will have to be started over again.

Demand for Service.

Because there is no Board of Public Utilities, it was up to the Council yesterday to order Ralph Rogers to supply good water and plenty of it to the Glassell Park district, including the Washington school. A threat of $500 fine or six months imprisonment, provided by ordinance, was sent to Rogers unless he supplies water of quality and quantity at once. It is charged that the water company which Rogers represents has served bugs, pollywogs and silt in what little water was sent through the pipes in the district served.

"Snowden's Best Friend."

Councilman McKenzie has a new definition for a mule. It is "Snowden's best friend." Councilman Snowden being in the business of bartering horses and mules, and it being assumed that both are his friends, McKenzie included the definition in a committee report which was adopted by the Council. The West Coast Studio has a "movie" establishment at No. 200 East Avenue Fifty-five, and neighbors complained that there were too many horses on the job. McKenzie and the committee found eight horses and one of the "friends." The chief objection, the committee found, was the great number of dogs, and it was recommended that the canine colony be thinned out, but that the horses and "Snowden's best friend" be permitted to remain.

City Hall Notes.

Mayor Rose yesterday returned to the city, but not to his office. He is confined at his home with a slight attack of rheumatism. The illness did not prevent his signature of the humane animal ordinance, however. He said he will be at his office Monday morning ready to affix his signature to the bale of harbor bonds.

The salary of the purchasing agent was raised by the Council yesterday from $150 to $175 per month. He is the only man in the city's employ who could get a raise after the budget was made. It was because he was manifestly underpaid in proportion to the work he is doing.

"His Worship, Mayor of Los Angeles" is invited to attend on June 30, 1914, the ceremonies of Los Angeles day at the Anglo-American Exposition at London. The invitation came to Mayor Rose yesterday from the director-general of the exposition.

At the Courthouse.

ALLEGES LAND IS WORTHLESS.

WIDOW SUES REALTY DEALERS ON PROPERTY TRADE.

Asserts Misrepresentations Were Made to Her Regarding Value of Kern County Acres for Which She Exchanged Beach Lots—Attorneys Litigating Over Autos.

When Mary E. Hay, a widow, exchanged valuable property at Long Beach and Ocean Park for 320 acres in Kern county she believed she had done well. The sad awakening came, she alleged yesterday in a suit filed to show that the acreage was practically worthless.

Mrs. Hay owned seven lots on Signal Hill worth $17,500 and a lot and fine residence at Ocean Park valued at $7500, the properties were encumbered with mortgages aggregating $14,000, leaving her equity $11,000. She made the exchange for the desert land after consulting V. E. Stockwell and H. H. Holler, real estate brokers.

The suit is against Stockwell, Holler, R. P. Greenleaf and W. E. Stockwell. The first proposition was to exchange her properties for land in San Bernardino county, it being agreed to give her also stock in the Washington Square Amusement Company valued at 65 cents a share.

She testified in Judge Morrison's court yesterday that it was alleged to be a good proposition but finally the deal was made for the Kern county acreage. Owen Clark, an expert, testified that it is commonly known as "Suckers' Land."

It is alleged that Mrs. Hay's Signal Hill property was conveyed by Stockwell to Louis Denni, the latter conveying it to Greenleaf. Stockwell is alleged to have received property in Orange county in the deal. The Ocean Park property is claimed to have been conveyed by V. E. Stockwell to W. E. Stockwell.

INVOLVED IN DISPUTE.
AUTO BONE OF CONTENTION.

An automobile claimed by Charles M. Ackerman, an attorney, and Bert T. Demmitt offers a knotty question for Judge Shenk to decide.

Ackerman says he bought it in liquidation of $750 attorney's fees; Demmitt has a bill of sale from Bruce Massey and adds the further information that he paid $275 for the machine and spent $300 in putting it in shape.

Ackerman was counsel for R. Von Tongel, who conducted an auto brokerage. V. A. McCreery claimed he was a partner and in litigation between the two over the auto, Cleveland Schultz was attorney for McCreery. As the result of a default judgment in the justice's court, Constable Hayes took possession of the auto on a writ of execution and Schultz is alleged to have sold it to Demmitt.

Ackerman, in a suit, asks for the machine and damages for its detention. Demmitt, in a cross-complaint against Schultz, W. J. Hittson and Bruce Massey, asks for the return of the machine and damages.

ATTORNEY QUESTIONED.
ANOTHER SHARP CHARGE.

It is probable that the District Attorney's office may be asked by Presiding Judge McCormick to investigate the alleged satisfaction of a judgment note by Attorney Charles S. McKelvey without the consent of the holder of the note.

The matter came before the court yesterday in the suit of H. A. Landwehr against G. G. Gillette, known as the Cattle King of Kansas; W. F. Funderburg, Nathan W. Hall and F. Lowe to set aside a judgment.

It appears that on June 3, 1912, Fundenburg executed a promissory note for $3000 to Landwehr, the other defendants endorsing it. The note was assigned to E. H. Rose and certain payments were made on it.

It is now claimed that approximately $1000 are unaccounted for, the note, however, having been satisfied. McKelvey was examined as a witness. He is under indictment by the Federal grand jury for using the mails for alleged blackmail.

REFUSED GOOD OFFER.
GETS NOTHING AT ALL.

The San Dimas Water Company offered R. T. Soper $2000 for an 1100-foot right of way through his ranch near Lordsburg for a pipe line. Soper preferred to sell his ranch, asking $50,000. The company apparently did not want it, and as Soper still refused to give the right of way, the company obtained a license to run the pipe line along the right of way of the Southern Pacific, which bisected the property. The license costs $10 a year, and the company felt that it had made a bargain.

Soper brought suit against the company to restrain it from using the right of way for a pipe line. The case was tried by Judge Shenk, who gave judgment for the water company.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.
BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

SAVING GIANT TREES. Two giant sycamore trees, the pride of the citizens, at Avenue Sixty-four and Meridian street, are threatened with destruction by the city authorities, and in order to save them, the San Rafael Company brought suit against the city, City Engineer Hamlin and Deputy City Engineer Andrew C. Hansen for an order to restrain them. An order to show cause was granted by acting Presiding Judge Willis, and the matter will be threshed out in court.

"How a Woman Got Rich by the Kitchen Route." It will be told in the Midwinter Number of The Times.

LUMBER PEOPLE EFFECT MERGER.

McCormick Company Gets More Boats Thereby.

Electric Lines Wish to Use Railroad Scrip.

Storm Makes Itself Felt on the Salt Lake.

Announcement was made here yesterday by Charles R. McCormick & Co. that it had absorbed the Hicks-Hauptman Company of San Francisco, and that four of the combination passenger and lumber carriers owned by the absorbed company will be immediately assigned to service between this city and North Pacific Coast ports.

Though the Hicks-Hauptman Company was controlled in part by interests affiliated with the McCormick Company, separate offices were always maintained. Under the new arrangement, the McCormick Company will close all the old Hicks-Hauptman offices and combine forces in its various offices along the Coast. Pursuant to this arrangement, Guy Smith, formerly manager of the Hicks-Hauptman office in San Francisco, comes here as assistant general manager for the McCormick Company.

The new vessels acquired by the McCormick Company are the Leggett, a steel steamer with a carrying capacity for 1,500,000 feet of lumber, the Stetson, with a capacity for 900,000 feet of lumber, and two smaller steamers. All these boats have been seen at one time or another in this port, but will now make regular trips here. Passenger accommodations on these vessels will be in the hands of the West Coast Steamship Company, which is affiliated with the McCormick Company.

In addition to these additions to an already large fleet, it was stated yesterday at the McCormick Company's office here that the new steamer Cottilio will be ready for service about February 1. This boat, which will have a capacity for 1,000,000 feet of lumber and sixty-five passengers, was launched Thursday at St. Helens, Or., and was sent to San Francisco for equipping, in tow of the steamer Klamath.

"FIAT" MONEY.
DRUMMERS LIKE IT.

Whether or not the electric lines shall be allowed to participate in the issuance and use of "fiat money," otherwise railroad "scrip," will be decided at the meeting of the Transcontinental Scrip Bureau in Salt Lake City this week. General Passenger Agent Peck of the Salt Lake and Assistant General Passenger Agent Held of the Santa Fe left yesterday for the Utah capital to attend the meeting.

For many years the railroads of the West have issued scrip books calling for $90 worth of transportation on any steam line and on a number of stage lines. A $20 scrip book is also issued in this State. The advantages are that the return of the cover of a used scrip book by the original purchaser entitles him to a refund of one-half cent a mile by roads where a 3-cent fare is charged and of 1-cent by roads where the duly authorized fare is 4 cents. Thus there is a perceptible saving, or rebate, to those purchasing transportation in quantity.

The scrip books are particularly favored by wholesale houses with a large number of traveling men on the road. Now that the electric lines are beginning to have a real position in the traffic scheme of the West, particularly around this city, San Francisco and Portland, there is a call by the wholesale houses for the extension of the use of the books to the "juice" roads.

The application to be acted on at the Salt Lake City meeting was lodged by roads around San Francisco in the name of various commercial organizations. So far as known no application has been made by the Pacific Electric.

ONE TRAIN LOST
AND OTHERS HOURS LATE.

Out of the deep winter belt of the intermountain country, the Pacific Limited pulled into the Salt Lake station last evening and deposited seventy-six contented Easterners on the platform. The source of their content was that their train had missed the storm which tied up the Los Angeles Limited somewhere east of Cheyenne, where it yet remains tied up, for all that Salt Lake officials know to the contrary.

Riding just ahead of the main storm, but buffeted by minor ones, the Pacific Limited lost ten hours between Cheyenne and this city. As a result it had nearly lost its [illegible] card identity when it arrived here at 8 o'clock last night.

Most unfortunate was the Los Angeles Limited, which trailed the Pacific Limited out of Chicago on the long run West. It plunged into the very vortex of the storm which held portions of Colorado and Wyoming under a four-foot fall of the "beautiful." As a result, it is lost for the time being somewhere about Cheyenne.

Denial in Decision.

Denial of the application of the Newport Beach Electric Light and Power Company for a rehearing of an order granting the Pacific Light and Power Corporation a certificate of public convenience and necessity in the beach town was voiced yesterday in a decision handed down by the State Railroad Commission. The Newport Beach company controlled the lighting field of the beach town. Then the Pacific Light and Power Corporation entered and lodged an application for a foothold, which the Railroad Commission granted. Newport Beach recently vested the commission with its former corporate rights over public utilities.

Espee Retrenches.

One hundred and fifty men were laid off at the close of work last night in the locomotive and car shops of the Southern Pacific. The cut in the working force followed similar reductions in the other shops of the company. According to Superintendent of Motive Power Sheedy, "It is a [illegible] reduction is temporary, [illegible] time of year," he said, "and [illegible] reduction here is small, [illegible] the number of men employed."

To Make Your Christmas Shopping Easy

THE ENTIRE building formerly occupied by the Los Angeles "Examiner" is now a part of the Fifth Street Store. This building located between our north and south buildings allows us to open up connections between all three and admits a better arrangement of departments. For the holidays, this entire building will be devoted almost exclusively to Christmas goods. Assortments are now at their best and the prices for Monday are unusually attractive.

LOS ANGELES (Loce Ahng-hayl-ais)

Entered at the Postoffice as mail matter of Class II.

A WELCOME GUEST.

It was the pleasure of Los Angeles last week to entertain for a few days Dr. Ludwig Fulda, one of Germany's most delightful scholars and dramatists. In his essays, lectures and conversation Dr. Fulda is profound, but in his drama he has a light and happy touch. It was his unique experience when visiting the Polytechnic High School in this city to witness one of his little plays presented by Los Angeles students in the German tongue.

THE BLURRED FACE.

If you sit in a theater or a church and try to recognize the features of a friend across the hall, his face is but dimly outlined in the mists. Try to challenge his attention by putting your mind on his and in nine cases out of ten you will fail. You sit there clothed in flesh with the finest possible material facility for sending and receiving impressions, yet you fail. How, then, shall a man lose himself in the folly of such experiments when there is a division of flesh and spirit? Why expect results from separate planes of existence which cannot commonly be obtained from persons of the same plane?

THE BACKWARD TRAIL.

Mme. Teresa Carreno, who charmed the Los Angeles public with her piano accompaniment and solo work for the woman's orchestra at the Auditorium on Friday afternoon, has long been a joy to the American people. Dr. Burdette remembers her appearance at a time too far back to be gallant to date. She then wore a long strand of fair hair over her shoulders. It blossomed into a bright curl at the end and every boy in the town was mad about her. She was not 15, but she was a great chance and the world was giving her its ear. They did not call the Town Hall the operahouse in those days. That change did not take place until some years later. It is good to look back when our memories are sweet.

LET EVERYBODY SMILE.

Every citizen may well cultivate cheer over the business situation.

That there is a slight depression in certain lines of business it would be idle to deny, but that the depression might readily be deepened by resorting to discouraging remarks on the situation is also a fact. Besides, the facts pretended to be reported in many cases are wrongly stated.

For example, it has been reported that one of the great automobile factories of the world has shut down and dismissed many thousands of workmen. Inquiry discloses the fact that, so far from having shut down or even thought of it, the company has been establishing a great many new branches and has more orders than it can fill, for lack of bodies for its cars, and it is turning out great numbers daily, and has made no sensible reduction in its working force, no more in fact than was absolutely necessary while waiting for additional supplies. The actual reduction of force was not 2 per cent. of those employed.

RUSTIC JOYS.

There is no place for the simple joys of rustic life like the city. The larger the city and the smaller a man's lot, the greater is his rejoicing in his overalls, farming implements and seed catalogues. His implements consist of a lawn mower that will not cut anything and a wife who bosses the job in a morning dress from the dining-room window. When it is too dark to work he devotes the remaining hours until bedtime to a scientific study of the latest seed catalogue which is covered with pictures of glowing cabbages, poetic carrots and fastidious beets. After three hours of scientific investigation in this direction he decides upon a climbing rose with a French name which he forgets to order. He follows this programme for two weeks, and finally buys another kind of rose which the next season turns out to be a bush and not a climber. If this does not fit your case it is because you do not live in the city and do not own a lot, a seed catalogue and a dull lawn mower and a wife. We recommend the entire outfit for dyspeptics and bachelors.

GET BUSY FOR TREES.

No doubt your nurseryman has already advised you that he will begin his delivery of trees early in January. He has made arrangements with the Lord for a comfortable series of refreshing rains to occur in conjunction with your arboreal efforts. A tree is not merely something which you should cut down on Christmas in order to hang upon it a sealskin coat for your mother-in-law. It is meant rather as a tall growth which will feed your youngsters green fruit out of season and from which they can fall in the spring and break their arms and legs. It is something which every family ought to own for the shade it does not make and for the leaves which it will scatter over the place for you to pick up when you feel the least like exercise. As Whittier has remarked: "Alas for him who never sees the stars shine through the cypress trees." We know a man who planted a three-foot blue cedar in front of his house one morning and, coming home a little after 1 a.m., found himself lost and alone in a great forest with nothing for it but to sit with his back against this three-foot shrub until daylight could show him the way out of its dense thickness. By all means get a family tree. You can buy a better one for a dollar than many of our finest old families possess.

THE WISE MAN AND THE FOOLISH.

The wise man is he who when some adverse wind comes and the passage is rather rough, carefully trims his sails but whistles merrily, keeps up his courage and bravely goes on his way. He is the winner.

The foolish man is he who when the skies are a little dark and things are not going quite so smoothly as he would wish, turns about and scurries for a hiding-place He never gets anywhere.

The wise man is he who when money is not quite so easy to get and business is not so easy to do, redoubles his efforts, puts spurs to his energies, summons all his confidence and boldly goes on and on with his enterprises. He is sure to come out ahead.

The foolish man is he who under such conditions is afraid, is panicky, cultivates distrust, abandons his plans and tucks his money away in the cook stove to be burned up. He always comes out behind.

"Twixt optimist and pessimist
The difference is droll;
The optimist the doughnut sees,
The pessimist the hole."

Now is the time to be an optimist. As a matter of fact, the interruption to business is not serious, is not disheartening. Especially is it true in Los Angeles that the great movement is moving, that there has not been a stoppage of industry or of building. Los Angeles must be a city of optimists.

The Times is glad to chronicle the fact that confidence is the dominant note in the local situation. The city is full of wise men who are going right ahead with their plans and operations. There are some foolish ones who are stowing their money away in safety deposit vaults where it will do them no good and earn nothing. Such managers deserve the rebuke that the greatest Philosopher of all the ages gave to them. You remember the talents and the napkin?

The foolish man will lose by fearing to improve the very opportunities that the present situation offers. The wise man will profit by them. These closing hours of the ending year are full of bargains and snaps. Now is the time to catch Opportunity by the tail. Now is the time to go in, not to turn and run. Go in, go in! Go ahead, go ahead! Be a wise man.

The poor, foolish fellow who draws his funds out of the bank and buries them in a hole in his cellar instead of wisely investing them or letting some wiser man do it for him—he will wake up a few months hence and growl about his "hard luck."

"Hard luck?" Huh! It isn't hard luck It is simply damfoolishness.

Don't be foolish. Be wise, brethren. Talk wise. Look wise. Think wise. Live wise. That's it!

THE TIMES' BOOK SECTION.

Books are our best friends, as some gentle cynic has said, because when they tire us we can shut them up. The analogy between friends and books may be carried along indefinitely, and in The Times' Book Section of this issue we take pleasure in introducing the readers of the Southwest to a great number of excellent books that will make intimate friends. We have endeavored to tell the truth about them, even to give their weaknesses as well as their merits and to say in a few words just what may be expected from each of the books presented. In honor of the occasion at which so many notable volumes are introduced, we have put on a gala attire of color, and reproduce a clever allegorical picture which now hangs in a London gallery, showing the "New Woman" as dominating the "world of literature."

Several special articles are devoted to the more striking books, and other classifications are made under the headings of "Essays and Science," "Books of Poetry and Drama," and "An Independent Review of the Present Season's Fiction." Among others is an extended review of M. Bunau-Varilla's book purporting to give the inside history of the Panama Canal, in which he claims the credit for himself, and himself alone, of having caused the canal to be built.

A DREAMING SCHOOLMASTER.

Macaulay says of Lord Lyttleton: "Pedantry was so deeply fixed in his nature that the hustings, the treasury, the exchequer, the House of Commons, the House of Lords, left him the same dreaming schoolboy that they found him."

Substitute schoolmaster for schoolboy and Macaulay's comment on Lyttleton would be not altogether inapplicable to President Wilson. Our Princeton pedagogue is the only President that ever entered the White House not only without previous experience in law, in legislation or in military command, but the only one whose previous avocations absolutely unfitted him for the office.

The making and the execution of laws and treaties are duties which require not only a high order of intelligence, but special knowledge and adaptability.

The miner would not send his ore to a shoemaker to be assayed. The sufferer would not call in a blacksmith to remove his vermiform appendix. The railway superintendent would not place a lawyer in charge of a locomotive. The person whose liberty or property was at stake would not retain a veterinary to represent him in the courtroom.

Of the twenty-three* Presidents of the United States, two (Washington and Grant) were generals who had never been in law. Five (Jackson, Taylor, Pierce, Garfield and W. H. Harrison) were both lawyers and military commanders. Thirteen (Cleveland, McKinley, Taft, Madison, Monroe, Quincy Adams, Van Buren, Ben Harrison, Fillmore, Buchanan, Lincoln, Johnson and Arthur,) had been lawyers. One (Roosevelt) had been a political jack of all trades, and one (Wilson) had been a schoolmaster.

All of the Presidents except Grant and Taylor had been members of State Legislatures of Congress, of the Senate, or of constitutional conventions and had had experience in the framing of laws and details of politics.

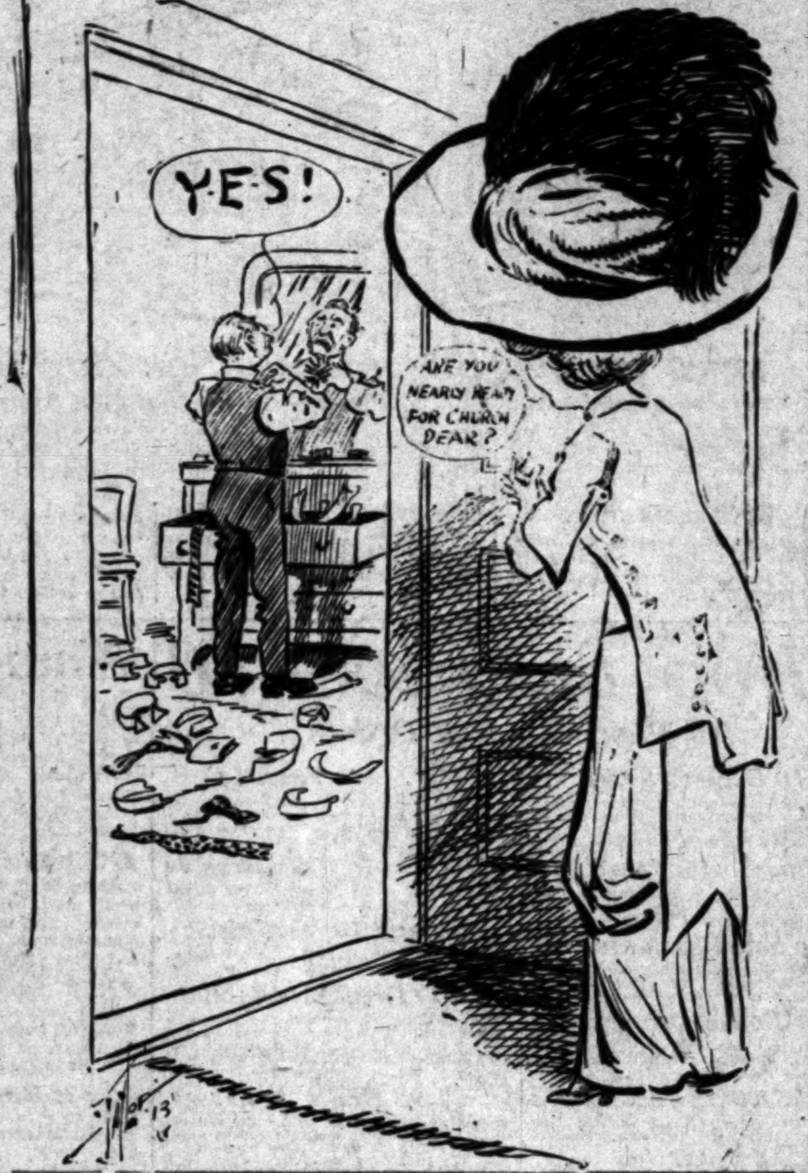
Woodrow Wilson is the one instance of a President who did not enter the political field until he was 50 years of age, and whose sole public experience was acquired during a brief term as Governor of New Jersey.

A schoolmaster rules his pupils so far as their intellectual development is concerned even as a ship captain rules his crew so far as the performance of their duties are concerned. He is necessarily a despot. He is controlled by no law but his own will, and he must enforce that will upon his pupils. He cannot permit them to disobey him or to doubt the wisdom of his instructions. He cannot permit himself to doubt his own wisdom or the accuracy of his knowledge. If the captain orders his crew to reef the mainsail he cannot when they are out on the yard exclaim: "I have made a mistake. I should have ordered the reefing of the main royal."

If Schoolmaster Wilson instructed his class that London is the capital of Timbuctoo and thrashed three or four boys who claimed that it was the capital of England. If he had declared that a verb is the name of a person, place or thing, and that twice two makes seven, he would have lost his usefulness if he permitted his statements to be disputed by his pupils.

Mr. Wilson has carried into the Presidential office the habits of the classroom. In the seclusion of the study he has generated in his dreaming brain certain theories concerning revenue and currency and trusts which are not supported by the average experience of mankind. These he is in process of diligently cramming down the throats of Congress and it is not probable that he will stay his devastating hand until he shall have completed his self-imposed task.

"Everybody's Doing It."



YES!
ARE YOU NEARLY READY FOR CHURCH DEAR?

DEMOCRATIC PRICES.

Those of us who have read, not for pleasure or profit, but because duty demanded it, the long-winded document known as the Democratic national platform, perused artfully-written sentences about the high cost of living. That phrase came trippingly off the Democratic tongue when the Republicans were in office. Now it is more haltingly said by the deluded followers of Schoolmaster Wilson and Chautauqua Lecturer Bryan. The high cost of living has gone higher since they took up the reins of government and they are hard put to it to explain this most disconcerting state of affairs.

Of course they have the stock Democratic excuses. They lay the blame on monstrous meat trusts, wicked farmers who kill calves, woeful middlemen who boost the price of eggs, dreadful merchants who insist on charging more for potatoes, and greedy poulterers and dairymen who demand increased prices for hens and butter.

Atty.-Gen. McReynolds tells the country virtuously, not to say tragically, that he is "investigating" to find if millions of dollars of eggs and millions of pounds of dairy products have been withheld from the market to force high prices. Be it noted that this investigation is being made weeks after that cure for all high prices, the Democratic tariff, came into force. During the last campaign many Jeffersonian voices grew husky telling how, immediately the Republicans were put out of office, the cost of living would take a tumble, and porterhouse steaks would be within the reach of all. Much meat has passed through the hands of butchers since President Wilson was inaugurated on March 4 last, but steaks, roasts and chops were never so high in twenty-three years as they were last month, according to official figures collected by the Bureau of Labor at Washington.

In 1909, when Taft sat in the Executive chair, Los Angeles housekeepers bought fine juicy rib roasts and thick, inviting-looking sirloins for 15 cents a pound. Similar cuts cost them last month 22 cents per pound, despite the Democratic tariff. Statistics compiled by the Bureau of Labor from the forty principal cities of the country, dealing with eighteen articles of food, show that prices have increased from 5 to 20 per cent. in the past year. And all the Democrats can do for the people who have to pay the higher prices is to investigate. Huh!

The pleasure of having the Democrats in office is costing the consumers of the country millions of dollars. No small part of the blame for this state of affairs must be placed upon the shoulders of Roosevelt, Holy Hiram and the bunch of malcontents who allowed themselves to be misled into temporarily deserting the Grand Old Party. Had the so-called Progressives remained true to their party, their country and themselves the Democrats must have failed to win their way into office. In that event prices might have remained at a moderate level and at least the country would have been spared what has been called a "slow panic," brought on by fear of what the Democrats might do to business interests. The remedy lies in the hands of the people. At the elections next year they can materially change the complexion of Congress and pave the way for the return of a Republican President to the White House. One term of Schoolmaster Wilson surely will be enough.

OUR INCREASING EXPORTS.

Governmental reports show that in each of the great groups of our exports there was increase in the past nine months, except in "crude materials for manufacturing." Here are the comparative figures of the three groups:

Total for 1913, nine months	$1,133,058,772
Ditto for 1912	1,052,676,840
Increase in 1913	80,381,932
Analysis:
Foodstuffs partly or wholly manufactured, 1913	$236,794,528
Ditto for 1913	219,786,310
Increase in 1913	17,008,218
Manufactures for remanufacturing, 1913	306,297,369
Ditto for 1912	279,721,233
Increase 1913	26,576,136
Manufactures ready for use, 1913	589,966,875
Ditto for 1912	553,169,297
Increase in 1913	36,797,578

Comparison of the imports and exports in these three groups shows a large balance of trade in favor of the United States. Here are the import figures for 1913, nine months:

Foodstuffs wholly or partly manufactured	$ 153,000,000
Manufactures for re-manufacfacturing	265,000,000
Manufactures ready for use	300,000,000
Total imports	718,000,000
Total exports	1,133,000,000
Balance of trade in our favor	415,000,000

The United Kingdom, with sales to us of over $201,000,000 and purchases of nearly $389,000,000, keeps far in the lead as our best customer, the balance in our favor exceeding $187,000,000. Second comes Canada, with sales of $92,000,000 and purchases of $313,000,000, affording us a favorable trade balance of $221,000,000.

Germany comes third with purchases of $222,000,000 and sales of $136,000,000. France fourth with exports to us of about $100,000,000 and imports from us of $90,000,000, giving her, for the first time, a balance against us of $10,000,000.

Our other chief customers in 1913, nine months, were:

Belgium	$48,000,000
Increase	9,000,000
Denmark	14,000,000
Increase	3,000,000
Italy	54,000,000
Increase	5,000,000
Netherlands	96,000,000
Increase	20,000,000
Sweden	9,000,000
Increase	2,000,000
Central America	31,000,000
Increase	1,000,000
Cuba	53,000,000
Increase	8,000,000
South America	110,000,000
Increase	8,000,000
China	21,000,000
Increase	4,000,000
Japan (decrease $1,000,000)	40,000,000
Australia	31,000,000
Increase	1,000,000
Philippines	20,000,000
Increase	2,000,000
Straits Settlements	3,000,000
Increase	1,000,000
Africa	22,000,000
Increase	2,000,000

All of which is not only satisfactory, but encouraging. And now is the time for Los Angeles to give more attention to the development of the foreign trade that beckons us.

ASIATIC EXCLUSION.

BY MARSHALL D. TAYLOR.

The labor unions of California are intensely interested in the Immigration Department's active efforts to exclude East Indians on the ground that they are likely to become public charges. The walking delegates of the unions are constantly on the watch for rival labor, and wish it banished from our shores, as the building trades will then be hampered and forced to employ union men.

East Indians, like other Asiatics who flock to the Pacific Coast, do not care a brass farthing for the labor unions. They prefer to keep what they earn, instead of having to dole out a portion of their hard-earned wages to keep alive a gang of useless loafers who prey upon real workers.

There is no doubt that the types of East Indian which visit this coast are in many instances undesirable from a social point of view. Illiterate, unsanitary and lazy, they are not adapted to our temperate clime. The money they earn in this country is seldom banked, but remitted to relatives in northern India, who either bury it in bamboo choongas, or melt it down to be later fashioned into jewelry for their women folk. From an economic standpoint, therefore, they are not likely to benefit California, or, in fact, any of the Pacific Coast States.

This is not the only country which is anxious to exclude East Indians, Japanese and Chinese. Australia is most rigid in its exclusion of Asiatic labor. The cry of that Commonwealth is: "A white Australia." Canada, and British Columbia in particular, is facing the same problem as that which confronts the government of South Africa.

So acute has the situation become in Natal that the government of India is restricting the importation of low-caste natives from entering South Africa and is doing all in its power to stop the tirade of abuse in the vernacular press against Africanders.

The white population of South Africa, with the exception of the tea and sugar planters of Natal, welcomes the action of the government of India in restricting the emigration of coolies to South Africa. East Indians, on the other hand, have petitioned the home government with a view to having the Transvaal modify its anti-Asiatic immigration law, claiming that as British subjects they are entitled to all the rights and privileges of the other subjects of the crown.

Mohammedans feel the slur cast upon the race as keenly as the Hindus. Natal has been as reckless as the Transvaal in its harsh treatment of Asiatic labor, although the free importation of cheap labor is necessary to that province, as the stoppage of the supply will stifle Natal's industries.

The color problem of South Africa is destined to prove as complex and far more formidable than the negro question of our own country. The native tribes of South Africa outnumber the British and Dutch combined five to one in point of population. Since the imperial government's activity in putting the lid on tribal warfare, the Bantu population has increased at an alarming rate.

Africanders, whether Boer or of British descent, object to the wholesale importation of thousands of coolies from India, who for the most part are of aboriginal descent and come from Chota Nagpur, the Santhal Pergunnahs and the northwest provinces.

In the event of the franchise becoming universal, the black vote would so far outnumber the whites, that the latter would have no say in the government of their country. The accession of the Bantu to power would mean the wiping-out of the whites. This is what the agitators of India would like. This is what labor-union bosses would like. Parasites that they are, they would like to see capital killed, provided they could be in at the killing and grab the major portion of the loot. But such a state of affairs will never come to pass, so long as workers are free-born citizens and not the slaves of walking delegates and union bosses.

The Bantu, whether he be Kaffir, Zulu, Swazi or Basuto, is not fitted for the exercise of even the most limited franchise; neither is the aboriginal native of Lower Bengal, who flocks to the tea and sugar plantations of Natal, fitted to vote intelligently. They are like the unionite bosses, in that they would be apt to use the brains of others more unscrupulous than they, not having any brains of their own.

The Kaffirs are rank Socialists. They hold their land as communal property. They have deteriorated to such an extent through gross laziness and immorality that they are more like animals than human beings.

The East Indians which come to the Pacific Coast are low-caste men. They are mostly natives of northern India and are unfitted for hard manual labor. Driven out of their own country by succeeding droughts and over-population, they are enticed by the fabulous wealth of this country and the high wages prevailing in California. For it must be remembered that a single dollar to a native of India is the equivalent of half a month's pay in his own country. Of a thrifty disposition, they work their way from the Philippines and South Sea Islands to San Francisco and British Columbia ports.

They come in gangs, with a jemadar or head man to pilot them from one orchard to another, where they engage in fruit picking. These jemadars are often of a higher caste, many being Sikhs and time-expired soldiers. They are a shiftless lot, and in no way must they be confused with the ryots (farmers) or even middle-class natives, who are industrious, law-abiding people. They are as different as chalk and cheese.

THE STATION AGENT.

BY WALT MASON FOR THE TIMES.

Have you ever sat and waited for a railway train belated, have you hung around the depot half a day? Then you've marked the angry pageant marching round the station agent, and have ceased to wonder greatly that he's gray. All the rubes line up before him and denounce him and implore him, and they ask the same old thing a million times; and the agent, still politely, gives the information rightly, in an effort to deserve his meagre dimes. Forty million times he answers all the snorters and the prancers, and he never groans or whimpers o'er his task; there are fat and fussy strangers, there are sour bewhiskered grangers, and they all have silly questions they would ask. There are women with their babies, there are gents who have the rabies, and they gather round the agent in a ring; there are jays of all descriptions throwing fits they call conniptions, and they all have fool conundrums they would spring. And the agent answers plainly, answers patiently and sanely—I admire the station agent for his pluck! In his place I'd rise in dudgeon, seize the nearest wet elm bludgeon, and among the question springers run amuck.

If you would smile a little more
And I would kinder be;

Then I would help and so would you
To make a better world.

If you would cheer your neighbor more
And I'd encourage mine;
If you would linger at his door
To say his work is fine,
And I would stop to help him when
His lips in frowns are curled,
Both you and I'd be helping then
To make a better world.

But just as long as you keep still
And plod your selfish way,
And I rush on and heedless kill
The kind words I could say,
While you and I refuse to smile
And keep our gay flags furled,
Some one will grumble all the while
That it's a gloomy world.

Christmas Male.

MOUSE TRAPS, CAN OPENERS

Also Mince Meat, Lingerie and Chandeliers!

What Men Buy in Five-and-Ten-Cent Stores.

Even Get Wife Wedding Ring for a Dime.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

A seductive tune.

"That Creamy Crematory Rag" via the piano catches him.

STRAINS THAT LURE.

Signs of plenty.

The man with the cornucopias also wants a mouse trap!

Christmas Male.

MOUSE TRAPS, CAN OPENERS.

Also Mince Meat, Lingerie and Chandeliers!

What Men Buy in Five-and-Ten-Cent Stores.

Even Get Wife Wedding Ring for a Dime.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

Do our men shop in the 5-and-10-cent stores? Go forth on the plate-glass circuit and behold!

Yes, verily, you'll find the chicken-feed emporium hath landed him; the junk jungles have claimed him as their own. He has the 5-and-10-cent disorder as badly as ever woman had the bargain-sale complaint.

Reason? It's the county fair, the prize-box, the grab-bag and bucking the tiger rolled into one!

Yes, tamed at last, our men, city broke, kind and sound, stand without hitching and eat from the hand. And it's the V and X joints have done it. The 5-and-10-cent stores: home of the stained-glass jewelry, the hand-painted soap, the solid ivory collar-buttons, and the self-starting razors.

Does the real hot sport from the [illegible] brigade or the waiters' union spend his substance in the pool-rooms nowadays? No, sir. He takes his little 49 cents down to some small change bazaar, and places it on the collar-button wheel, or drops a nickel in the necktie slot, or buys a picture and tries to guess what it's about. He has exchanged the uncertain return of the brass-ring-and-cane game for the certain if sticky joys of the gum-drop counter, traded the hazards of bucking the tiger for the blissful possession of September Morn in three colors, the nerve-racking uncertainty of shaking dice for the simple, babe-like joy of pursuing the gentle tooth-brush to its lair.

I know a man who creates a financial flurry in the domestic exchequer every time he goes down town. Why? Because his wife fears he will come home drunk? Nix! She's afraid he'll come loaded with patent fly-catchers and music boxes. And as for the bachelors, progressive 5-and-10-cent store shopping is just nuts for them. They may be seen wandering about, their pockets bulging with baby-ribbon and mud-colored meerschaum pipes and near [illegible] vases, as with a faraway look in their eyes they seek yet other 10-cent palaces.

STRAINS THAT LURE.

Formerly when a man entered one of these places, he would put his hat before his face, after the manner of the melodrama adventuress leaving the side door of the scene of crime, and duck. Now he's lost all shame, and, gazing longingly down the sumptuous vista of almost oil-paintings, richly colored table-[illegible], shiny rat-traps, lacy lingerie, delicate colored socks, and other commercial scenery, and listening to the seductive strains of "That Creamy Crematory Rag," played on the piano by a small tippy-tilty blonde he dashes gaily in to recklessly buy and buy.

Particularly at noon-time do men haunt these places, their two-for-a-nickel cornucopias grasped firmly in their hands, while they gaze about them, acquisitive joy in their eyes.

I met a man coming out of a Broadway store the other day, his pockets bulging. He had that reckless 5-and-10-cent look they all get, and said he had just bought a tuning fork and some Turkish towels and some salted almonds and a thing to squirt medicine in your eye, and a cook book and a bottle of Florida water, and a patent-egg-beater—the beater patented, not the egg—and three yards of baby-ribbon and a sunbonnet and a fishline and a watch-spring and a rubber teething ring and a tin of mice meat.

"But you don't need any of these things!" I cried.

"Ah, but you never can tell when one may!" And he winked slyly in high delight at his bargains.

PLATE AND BABY RIBBON.

In a store a little further down the street a man with gray side whiskers and a straw hat was buying something that looked like a coffin-plate, but the clerk said it was a thing to put inside your hat with your name engraved on it.

At the next wonder shop a man was acquiring a bolt of baby ribbon.

"Why?" I gasped to the clerk.

"Oh, I don't know. Something mysterious about it. But they're always buying that stuff. Maybe it's for their wives, or maybe they tie their laundry with it. Yes, sometimes they do call for corsets."

A smooth-faced man at the next counter was returning a patent can opener.

"I've opened everything with it except a can!" he wrathfully complained, "including my infant son's right eye, the French plate window in the dining-room, and an old quarrel with my rich aunt. I even picked the lock with it one night when I hadn't my pass key. But a can opener is what I want, a simple can opener without any ambitions beyond fulfilling its humble station in life. Take back this high-brow patent thing, and gimme a plain old-fashioned one that'll open a can, not a religious controversy!"

Next entered a man with a little paper sack of fig bars. He said he had tasted one, and didn't like it, and please might he return 'em!

And then another man came in and bought a 10-cent wedding ring. He had hocked his, and had to fool wifie!

I know a bachelor who used to be real wicked — smoked cigarettes, drank cocktails, and sometimes stayed out till 9:43 p.m. But one afternoon last fall, we beguiled him into a 5-and-10-cent store, and from that day on he has been a changed man. It is pleasant to see the innocent delight with which he plunges into the buying of Battenburg doilies, patent rat traps and other things for which he can have no possible use.

SEES A SAW.

Among other things he bought a saw. Not because he needed a saw, but because, well—he saw a saw. But it turned out not to seem to know what saws were for, and curled up at the least sign of having to perform. But the bachelor's faith in that saw was touching. You'd have thought to hear him talk about it, that it was an heirloom in the family, and that he would undertake to build the ark with no other implement.

He bought a chandelier, too, in bits, 5 and 10 cents a bit. He said he knew how it went together because he had a picture of it in his pocket. But somehow the pieces refused to live up to their photo. At the first putting together, it looked like a pump with the rickets. Next it resembled the thing on top of a wireless station pole, and the next time it had a funny little dew-dad on top like a coat hanger. But the bachelor was very patient. Next time I saw him he said he had found a double purpose for it. He could toast bread and kill rats with it. He said he didn't really need a chandelier, anyhow, and he was glad it had all turned out just as it did.

At the next place I visited, a man was buying some near-silver spoons because the servant always steals them, anyhow!

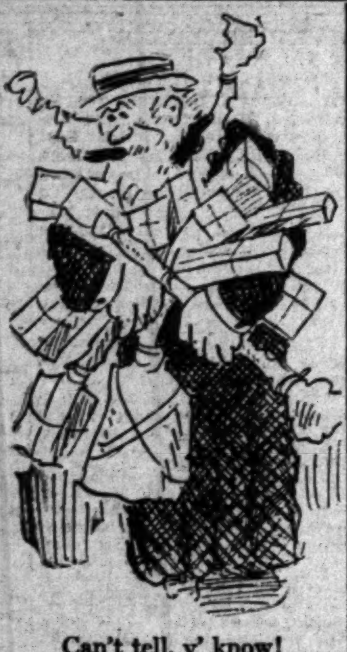
FOR A DEAF ONE.

Down at a Spring-street store, a man was buying an alarm clock as I came in. He said it was to call a deaf man, and his wife had been using a fish horn, but sometimes she didn't wake up herself, and he wanted an extra strong alarm. The clerk showed him one, and told him it would make the horn of the Angel Gabriel resemble the soft sound of a man hissing through his false teeth, and the customer went out satisfied.

There, too, I met a bridegroom who was furnishing his house.

"These 5-and-10-cent joints have sure grown some," he said. "You remember the day you could buy only paper napkins and porcelain vases and bone hair pins and tin spoons and for-my-darling cups and handkerchiefs and collar buttons and corn plasters and chromo copies of the Angelus and fly paper and fountain pens and a few million other small things. Well, now, sir, I've nearly furnished my house from this store. Yes'r, and I'm proud of it. I got silver-plated spoons and knives and forks and dishes and a hall tree, a piece at a time, and you put it together, and a Morris chair (you put that together, too) and a piece-by-piece book case and doilies and table cloths, and the things for a drop-light, and the standard authors, a book at a time, and records for a phonograph, when we get one, and lace curtains and clothes pins, and I've bought nearly enough ironing boards to build a lean-to on my house!"

Don't tell me women are the only bargain hunters. He has the same grab-bag instinct as a woman. You just turn him loose in a 5-and-10-cent store and see!



Can't tell, y' know!

Some of these things may be needed at any time.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism, and Serious Diseases Follow.

The kidneys get clogged up, the same as the bowels do. Then they become sluggish, and only filter or strain out a part of the waste or poisonous matter, all the rest remaining in the blood and poisoning the system.

As soon as you notice the first indications of backache, pains in the sides, or aches around the kidneys, or if the urine is light and pale, dark colored, cloudy, thick, or has an offensive odor, burns, is scalding or irregular in passage, take a little Croxone three times a day and end these troubles before they become more serious.

There is no more effective remedy known for the prompt relief and cure of kidney, bladder troubles and rheumatism, than Croxone. It soaks right into the kidneys through the walls and lining; cleans out the clogged up pores; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles, and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drive it out of the system.

A few days' use of this new scientific preparation is often all that is ever needed to end the worst backache, or overcome the most annoying urinary disorders.

You will find Croxone entirely different from other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it should fail in a single case.

BLAZING NEW WAY TO WEST.

Bond Issue Veils Important Traffic Plans.

Rock Island and Spreckels to Work Together.

Promises Greater Future for Imperial Valley.

In a decision which the State Railroad Commission is expected to hand down this week, authorizing the issuance of $15,000,000 in bonds by the San Diego and Arizona Railway, will be the seeds of great things—another railroad for the southern part of Imperial Valley, perhaps another transcontinental line for the State—certainly the waving of a magic wand which will awaken to life a vast domain of unknown mineral and agricultural resources lying in plateaus and valleys contiguous to the basin of the Tia Juana River.

Until a few weeks ago the San Diego and Arizona, though known to have the backing of the Spreckels interests, was looked upon as a joke by traffic men. They were, of course, conversant with the fact that the road is the possessor of forty-nine miles of track, extending from San Diego, via National City and Tia Juana, to a somnolent village, yclept Tecate, somewhere south of the border, and that two locomotives and 112 cars bear its name. Nearly all of them had also heard that the Spreckels interests were nursing designs on Yuma, but as the Spreckels carefully concealed its plans, the traffic men were content to let the San Diego and Arizona "wag as it will."

Then, six weeks ago, the Spreckels came to the fore with an application to the State Railroad Commission for authority to issue $15,000,000 in bonds, a portion of the issue to be used in refunding personal notes issued by John D. Spreckels, the president, for construction work. It was the seeming dead come to life, and with an announcement of intentions which stirred the traffic world.

ON TO YUMA.

Saliently, the San Diego and Arizona will use $3,500,000 of the bond issue to refund old construction notes, and the remaining $11,500,000 to push construction of 150 miles of track to link Tecate with Yuma. In other words, the San Diego and Arizona is going to do what it set out to do, and with the sanction of the State Railroad Commission, for it has been made known that the bond issue will be sanctioned by that body, with the usual reservations, of course, regarding bond guarantees and the like.

Thus a line striking across the Tia Juana country straight into the fertile acres of the Imperial Valley and thence to Yuma is assured. But more is assured, or at least the signs in the skies indicate such. The El Paso and Southwestern built into Tucson some time back, then went right on, building west. Ostensibly, the westward construction is of a mine railroad to penetrate the Phelps, Dodge & Co. mine holdings in the Ajo Mountains.

But things have been happening lately which convince even the most skeptical that the El Paso and Southwestern is going to Yuma. If it does, then an interlinking of interests with the San Diego and Arizona and the El Paso and Southwestern as participants, will bring the Rock Island trains into this State over what may be called "home rails," for the Phelps, Dodge & Co. interests are now paramount in Rock Island affairs, as well as those of the El Paso and Southwestern. The Phelps, Dodge interests, are, morever, known to be friendly to the Spreckels.

The route of the San Diego and Arizona from Tecate east is below the international boundary to Calexico, then straight as the crow flies to Yuma. Commissioner Edgerton of the Sate Railroad Commission was over the proposed road a week ago in an automobile, following the hearing of the bond application in San Diego. When he stopped off here on his way to San Francisco, he was full of the beauty of the country and the possible material development which will follow the opening of the traffic artery between the little city to the south and the bustling city which sits on the banks of the Rio Colorado.

POSSIBILITIES IMPRESS.

Though, of course, reticent as to what action the commission will take on the San Diego and Arizona's application, Edgerton smilingly remarked that the road has good backing. Commissioner Loveland, who occupied the bench in San Diego with Edgerton, was also impressed with possibilities, as well as construction work to date. This last includes a mammoth steel and concrete bridge over the Tia Juana River and two long, concrete-lined tunnels to provide a low grade into the Tia Juana Valley.

E. Aldrete, sub-prefect of Tia Juana, accompanied Edgerton and others on the automobile trip. He was enthusiastic, according to reports, foreseeing the day when the San Diego and Arizona will be forced, by material developments, he asserted, to build a line from Tia Juana to Ensenada and perhaps farther south.

Though the building of the San Diego and Arizona is not the first invasion of Lower California by the steel rails, a glance at the map will show that a long, double-edged wedge of country, extending from the tip end of the California peninsula well into Riverside county, will, for the first time, be spanned by something in the freight or passenger-carrying line more tangible than wagon roads and trails. True, there is a little railroad down the Lower California coast, but it is only ten miles long and goes nowhere, nor starts anywhere, for that matter, for its two terminals, San Ramon and San Quintin, are mere fishing villages.

IS CALIFORNIA FORGOTTEN?

The bright weekly journal published here for the French colony, known as "L'Union Nouvelle," in a recent issue publishes a well-considered article on French walnuts which seems of so interesting a nature to California growers of this crop that The Times presents the article in translation as follows:

"France is in the world the principal producing country of nuts. For all the markets of Europe and America, Correze, Charente, but above all Dauphine, Grenoble and the Chabertes enjoy a reputation without rival. It is a sufficient reason that certain exporters, little scrupulous, do not hesitate to mix with the fine nuts, nuts more common and less esteemed. This fraud has taken for some time an importance so great that at the instigation of Mr. Bernard, professor of agriculture at Saint-Marcellin, syndicates have been formed for the most par tin the cantons of the I'Sere to exercise control over shipments made by their members and to guarantee by means of a label authenticity of origin. We are not yet at an official delimitation of the Grenoble nuts, but the thing can be very well brought about some day.

"On the other hand, the 'renewing' of nuts is now made upon a vast scale and is a practice that cannot be easily too rigorously forbidden. It consists simply in immersing in water, more or less salt, old nuts of a year, of which the kernel has become more or less shriveled; plunged into the liquid the meat swells, the internal skin grows light colored and the weight is increased; there remains only to bleach the shells in sulphuric acid to give them the appearance of fresh nuts. However, the value of the fruit thus treated is mediocre, their keeping quality precarious and their digestion cannot be without inconvenience. So foreign consumers complain very justly and are beginning to manifest their discontent by lowering the price of purchase.

"In 1909-1910 Grenoble nuts in the shell were generally sold to American merchants on the spot for 115 francs per 100 kilos and at the same time the kernels had a value of 4 francs a kilo. This year the choicest fresh nuts of Dauphine have found purchasers only at 110 francs and the market course seems to have been established at between 80 and 105 francs. This is a warning which ought to be heard.

"Let us hope that the Minister of Agriculture will give immediately to his agents formal orders to trace without mercy these 'dippers' of nuts, since the falsification of them has become at the same time dangerous to the public health and to the prosperity of all the French region."

The price above per pound is about 10 cents for the Grenoble nuts in the shell and about 33 cents for them shelled.

To Have Smooth, White, Soft Skin All Winter

(From the Woman Beautiful.)

Does your skin chap or roughen easily in this weather, or become unduly red or blotchy? Let me tell you a quick, easy way to overcome the trouble and keep your complexion beautifully white, smooth and soft the winter long. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at the nearest drugstore and use a little before retiring as you would cold cream. Upon arising, remove the coating with sudsy water. The wax, through some peculiar attribute, flecks off the rough, discolored or blemished skin. The worn-out cuticle comes off just like dandruff on a diseased scalp, only in almost invisible particles. Mercolized wax simply hastens Nature's work. Used as required, it keeps the face constantly free from devitalized scarf skin and only the healthy, young-looking skin is in evidence. It's the best treatment known for weatherbeaten, aged, muddy, freckled, pimpled and all unbeautiful complexions.

Some skins wrinkle easily in winter. There's an excellent remedy in a harmless wash lotion made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel. This will quickly eradicate every line.

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—Seven millions of dollars headed this way. It is reported from New York that this amount has been sent to the Federal subtreasury in this city. According to the best authority it will be used to buy Pacific Coast securities. Of course we had planty of money already, but every little bit helps, and $7,000,000 cannot be picked up daily.

Love of nature is commendable along certain lines, but we draw the line when it tries to prevent the acquisition of pure water from the mountains. The Hetch Hetchy matter loomed large in the United States Senate this week. Our heavy artillery was brought to bear with telling effect on that august body. It was a case of give us water or give us death, and so far no one here has signified his willingness to die.

Society ladies in the East have started "spug" organizations on the basis of abolishing the custom of donating useless gifts at Christmas. The feminine portion of that community can do as it pleases. Our ladies are not built along those lines. What may be useless gifts this season will be useful next year to present to dear friends. Besides that the shopkeepers have some rights in the matter.

At last the status of a poet has been determined. Mrs. George Sterling says that it is impossible to live with one and so she will get a divorce. Her lawyer calls it incompatibility of temperament. Before George became a poet he was in the real estate business. If he wishes to enjoy the happiness of the matrimonial state he better resume selling corner lots and make enough money to buy butter and eggs.

For selling liquor on election day the management of the St. Francis Hotel has been censured by the police commissioners. In a commendable spirit of contrition the said management, at the request of society women, will abolish table cloths and substitute plate glass. The next step may be looking glasses.

Adolph Sutro will not fly any more. He has the weight record of 900 pounds and also one of the many speed records. An international license to operate an aeroplane is one of his proud possessions. His relatives think that aeronautics is a dangerous profession and the son of our former Mayor agrees with them. He says that he will put in his time looking after his property. This is more cheerful than having an executor manage his estate.

In contrast to Adolph Sutro's refusal to take the air again is the plan of J. R. Struble. He lives in Oakland, but comes here for his daily business. He finds the ferry boats too slow or perhaps he is tired of hearing the same old jokes from his fellow-commuters. Be that as it may, he has ordered a hydroplane built in the next thirty days and he intends to travel in it back and forth from his home to his business.

It is all well enough to tell your troubles to a policeman, but when he is not around no one takes his place. Three highwaymen, known as "The Black Trio," are nightly robbing saloons and the proprietors cannot find patrolmen in time to prevent it. Pat McGushenx, a former Schmitz Supervisor, was robbed the other night. He is known as a poet and thinks it would be poetical license for anyone to say that the robbery was a case of retribution.

The Federal grand jury insisted that the books of the Western Fuel Company be brought to them for inspection. An official of the company was thrown into jail for not complying. Finally, several tons of the books, filling a dray, were brought. In order to examine the books to see if the government had been defrauded the jury will have to probably be made a permanent institution.

In the matter of loaves of bread the vanishing point was almost reached when Weight Inspector Dolan came on to the scene. He insists that the weight must be right and the name of the baker on every loaf. Mr. Dolan may be unreasonable, but the consumer believes that he is the right man in the right place.

PLUTO.

WILCOXON CASE READY.

Charge Is Attempted Bunco Game Involving Detective and Deputy District Attorney in Alleged Scheme.

Dr. L. O. Wilcoxon, who was taken to the private office of E. T. Earl several months ago in charge of police officers presumably to be interrogated on certain subjects, will be brought to trial in Judge Craig's court tomorrow. Deputy District Attorney Shannon, who successfully prosecuted the Lee Rial case, will have charge of the case for the State.

The charge is a somewhat intricate one. It is alleged that Dr. Wilcoxon went to William LaCasse, then awaiting a hearing in the Juvenile Court, and represented that he (Wilcoxon) could secure a dismissal of the case if given $500 for "hush money."

It is averred that the defendant represented to LaCasse that half of the money would be given to Detective McLaren in the District Attorney's office and half to Deputy District Attorney McCartney, who prosecutes cases in the Juvenile Court.

LaCasse says he notified Davis and Rush, his attorneys, who, in turn, laid the purported facts before Capt. Fredericks. Wilcoxon did go to the District Attorney's office and $500 was found on his person.

Just what was said and done there will be related at the trial.

ROAD WORK PLANNED.

FRESNO, Dec. 6.—Announcement was made today that work would start shortly after the first of the year on the new wagon road that will connect Auberry and power-house No. 1 of the San Joaquin Light and Power Company on the San Joaquin River. The building of the road will open the North Fork country and the Madera county Sierra territory to the mountain railroad that now runs to Auberry and it will also provide a much shorter route to Fresno. The wagon road will be but six miles in length, but goes down the side of a mountain at a very steep grade. The total cost, including the bridge over the San Joaquin River, will cost $13,000. The Federal government has appropriated $3000, Fresno county, $3000; Madera county will pay one-half for the steel bridge over the river; San Joaquin and Eastern Railroad, $500; Pierce Lumber Company, material for the bridge, and the remainder of the expense by the San Joaquin Light and Power Company.

Public Hearing.

EVANS REPLIES TO CHARGES.

SUPERVISORS HAVE THE POWER TO FIRE HIM.

Earl Said to Be Pulling Wires for His Retention as Chairman of County Civil Service Commission. Grand Jury Investigation Probably Ends Tomorrow.

David Evans, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, who has been under fire at various times during the past two months, will make his reply to the Board of Supervisors tomorrow. It is not known whether he will address the board in person or merely submit a written statement in attempted refutation of Dist.-Atty. Fredericks's charge that he is ineligible to sit on the Civil Service Commission.

In statements published in the Earl organs Evans has sought to evade the charge that he was a member of the Democratic County Central Committee by the assertion that he never did any active work and that he afterwards resigned.

Lawyers who have read the county charter provisions carefully say that there is no question but what any person named on the committee of any political party is barred from serving on the commission, which, in theory, is non-political in character.

But ever since his appointment Evans has warred with the District Attorney and the county counsel, apperently for the reason that Capt. Fredericks and Hill are personally obnoxious to Earl. Hill was appointed to his present position by the supervisors.

The grand jury began an investigation of the Civil Service Commission Friday and will probably conclude tomorrow. It is alleged that stenographers in the District Attorney's office were deliberately undermarked and that their papers at the examination were mysteriously "lost" for the time being. Several affidavits support this allegation.

A complaint from the County Highway Commission will probably go to the supervisors Monday. It is alleged that W. D. Armstrong, said to be one of the most efficient head draftsmen in road-making in the State, is to be derated by Chairman Evans and his place taken by Ben Harrison, a rodman, who recently took the civil service examination.

Armstrong was employed by the Los Angeles County Highway Commission for a long time and then, because of his knowledge of the subject, was secured by the State Highway Commission. Five months ago he came back to work under Engineer Joyner.

To derate him and try to place a much less experienced man in his place will create considerable friction in the County Highway Commission. It is said that many other such alleged instances have aroused heads of departments to such an extent that they will complain to the Board of Supervisors.

CHRISTMAS EVERY DAY.

College Women's Club Brings Out a Cheery Greeting for the Holiday Season.

The members of the College Women's Club of Los Angeles have written and compiled a handsome little Christmas greeting, entitled, "Christmas Every Hour." The brochure is printed in red on fine paper and contains more than a dozen pages of short, pithy Christmas greetings, of which the following is one:

"Christmas is always joyous
And it last the whole year through;
We've just to catch its spirit,
That's all we need to do.
Then work becomes a pleasure;
The days are never long;
Through all we think and all we do
We hear life's joyous song."

AT ST. AGNES CHURCH.

Funeral of Well-known Club Woman to Be Conducted Tuesday. Noted for Her Charity.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. James Greenleaf Fox will be held at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon at St. Agnes Church, West Adams street and Vermont avenue, instead of on Monday, as previously announced.

Mrs. Fox was numbered among the best-known club women and philanthropic workers of the State and though her energies were mainly devoted to the Los Angeles branch of the International Sunshine Society, she was associated with many other charitable enterprises and except for her illness would have occupied a leading part in the Municipal Charities Commission.

She aided Bishop Conaty in many of his charitable plans and was equally active in undenominational work. She was State president of the Sunshine Society as well as leader of the local branch. She was keen to detect fraud and imposition on the part of professional mendicants but was also ready to help those in need who might suffer before the old red tape methods of the Associated Charities permitted an investigation.

Representatives from various clubs of the city will attend the funeral and it is expected that the church will be filled with friends of Mrs. Fox. She was 53 years old and died at the California Hospital. She leaves a widower.

REVERSAL OF HUTTON.

The District Court of Appeal has reversed the rulings of former Superior Judge George H. Hutton, in his rulings in the case brought by [illegible] V. and P. L. Rawles against the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, for damages resulting from an injured ankle. The jury found for Mrs. Rawles in $1500, and the court holds that Judge Hutton erred in his rulings in regard to the admission of certain evidence that was prejudicial to the rights of the defendant corporation.

To Honor With Banquet.

A banquet in honor of [illegible] Leoncavallo will be given by the Italian colony under the auspices of the Dante Alighieri Society Tuesday evening at the Delmonico restaurant. The Executive Committee is made up of C. Marchetti, president; G. [illegible], Italian consular agent, honorary president; E. Lebegott, president Dante Alighieri Society; G. Andreani, secretary; J. Lopizich, M. Orsatti, C. [illegible], [illegible] Martinoni, S. Torre, C. [illegible], [illegible] Bussi, J. De Bartolo, J. [illegible], L. [illegible]si, E. Pozzo and E. [illegible].

MOTORIZING TO LEAD COUNTRY.

Los Angeles Purchases Most Modern Equipment.

Goes Even a Bit Ahead of New York City.

Nearly Eighty Thousand Dollars One Day's Buy.

Los Angeles will now be on a par with—in fact a little ahead of—New York City in the possession of motor-driven fire-fighting equipment. The City Council yesterday purchased $79,240 worth of high-power apparatus that will increase the already high efficiency of the department and elevate Los Angeles to the lead of American cities so far as fire department facilities are concerned. The equipment of Los Angeles will be a bit more modern than New York's.

In motorizing the fire department the city's purchase adds fifteen pieces of apparatus of a type approved by the New York Fire Commission and accepted here as the best equipment available. This city already has a great deal of such apparatus. That purchased yesterday will displace twenty-four horses on fire engines and chemicals, and is as follows:

LOT OF EQUIPMENT.

Four Christie tractors from the Front Drive Motor Company, Hoboken, $4500 each, or total of $18,000; delivery to be made in sixty days.

Five Moreland chassis from Moreland Motor Truck Company, at $3950 each, or total of $19,750; delivery in thirty days.

One Seagrave water-cooled, six-wheeler aerial, drawn by four-wheel tractor motor-propelled hook and ladder truck, to entend seventy-five feet from the ground, for $11,265; from Seagrave Company of Columbus, O., on bid of the Gorham Fire Apparatus Company; delivery in 120 days.

Two Seagrave water-cooled, motor-propelled city service trucks for $7500 each, or total of $15,000; delivery in 100 days.

Two Seagrave water-cooled, four-cylinder 53-horse-power, motor-propelled combination hose wagons and chemical engines for $5,750 each, or total of $11,500; delivery in ninety days.

A discount of 3 per cent. on the Seagrave apparatus is allowed, bringing the net expenditure down to $78,207.05.

The front-drive Christie tractors will be used with four fire engines, the present engines being transferred to the new motor tractors. The six Moreland chassis will be used to place the bodies and equipment of six horse-drawn hose and chemical wagons.

The big aerial is a complete equipment and there are two new chemical and hose wagons.

LIBERAL BIDDING.

The Supply Committee of the Council, consisting of Conwell, chairman, and Betkouski and Bryant, has worked for two months with Fire Chief Eley toward the betterment of the department equipment. Under the recent competition there was most liberal bidding and the city has every reason to feel that it is getting the very best equivalent for the money expended.

"We started an innovation," said Councilman Conwell, "by letting the bidders talk in open meeting about their various material. After the bids were opened the committee held public hearings at which the various points were discussed. These statements have been preserved in the city's record and everything that was said and done was gone over carefully by the committee, the purchasing agent and fire chief, so that we were all fully acquainted with every angle.

"The motorizing of the fire department and the motorizing of vehicles now in use opens to Southern California manufacturers a splendid opportunity to make fire apparatus, not only for this city but others along the coast. The purchase by the city of nearly $80,000 worth of motor-driven apparatus jumps Los Angeles far ahead of larger eastern cities, and puts this city right on a par with New York, second to none in America."

NEW SYSTEM DEVISED.

County Registrar McAleer Gets Out New Registration Affidavit for Convenience of Voters.

County Registrar McAleer has introduced a new system of registration of voters which will save much time and confusion at elections. He has had printed a large double sheet, in which is written the name, street address, political affiliation, signature of deputy, etc.

In one corner of the duplicate slip made by the carbon is the name, occupation, street address, political affiliation, signature of deputy and precinct of each registering voter. This is given to each person who registers.

If there is any dispute at the polls, the man has only to produce the carbon copy of the slip which contains all the necessary information concerning his identity. If further proof is needed a telephone message to the County Registrar will do the rest, as the original can be quickly looked up for verification.

McAleer has not copyrighted his plan and it is probable the system will be adopted in all the large counties in the State.

NEW TRIAL FOR GEORGE.

Deputy District Attorney Veitch Says He Will Ask Court to Set Date of Second Hearing.

After deliberating until midnight, the jury in the manslaughter case against R. S. George, a jury in Judge Craig's court reported yesterday morning that the members were unable to agree. The court thereupon discharged the panel.

Deputy District Attorney Veitch said yesterday that he will make preparations for another trial upon the ground that the evidence justified such a course.

George, who is a wealthy Whittier ranchman, is charged with causing the death of Mrs. A. S. Carman, the occupant of another machine with which his own car collided May last.

Millions of Parcels.

alone, from the opening in the morning until the close at dark, there was a line of persons that at times reached half-way down the corridor to the street. And these were the early posters! Today, however, several windows will be open and extra men will assist the regular parcel-post clerk. And as each day draws nearer Christmas, more and more men will be put to work.

CRIPPLE OR HELP.

"It is up to the public to either cripple entirely or assist us in the handling of Christmas presents through the parcel post," said Postmaster Harrison last night. "Christmas presents are meant for delivery on Christmas morning. If the Los Angeles public wants the gifts they send away delivered on that day, they must start immediately to help us. Shop and mail early—let that be the slogan!

"The public has but three things to remember in lending us their help—pack properly, address correctly and get their holiday shopping over now. It is fake economy to pack valuable presents in flimsy boxes, and in a slipshod manner, and it causes the postal clerks more worry and troubles and inconvenience than it does the sender worry. Also, it sometimes costs money. Packages should be well wrapped and boxed, properly and legibly addressed and marked plainly with the sender's name and address."

"This will expedite service and obliterate freedom from delay in delivery. Objection usually made to early shipment of Christmas presents is overcome now by the fact that the sender is allowed to write on the package: 'Do not open until Christmas.'

"Merchants here tell us that our campaign for early shopping and shipping is working wonders. Shopping and shipping are akin during the holidays, you know.

SHOULD.

"If Christmas packages are insured they should carry the insurance tag.

"Presents to the Atlantic Coast should be mailed not later than the 15th inst. if the sender would be sure and have them received by Christmas morning. When fragile matter is contained in the parcel, the package should be so indorsed.

"Packages containing calendars, books and matter of that nature must not contain merchandise; the rate of postage is higher on books than on merchandise and mixed parcels must be paid at the highest rate of postage.

"Parcels must be presented to the postoffice window for dispatch. Do not drop them in the street package boxes. The weight limit on merchandise is eleven pounds, except in the first and second zones, which, being within a radius of 150 miles of the city, is twenty pounds. The weight limit on books and printed matter is four pounds.

"The insurance rate is 5 cents for parcels valued up to $25; 10 cents for parcels valued up to $50. Insurance has been substituted for registration on merchandise. Parcels of merchandise cannot be registered unless sealed and prepaid at the first-class rate.

"Labels and stickers resembling stamps must be placed on the back, not the face of the package, if at all."

EAGLE ROCK.

EAGLE ROCK, Dec. 6.—The Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce is now only one month old, but is showing evidences of being a pretty active youngster. First came a banquet tendered Dr. John Willis Baer, the man who brought Occidental College to this city. Plans were being perfected for the dedication of the new buildings here when the date was postponed. Arrangements are now under way to assist in the dedication of the Arroyo Seco bridge on December 13. At a meeting of the chamber last evening, when a large number of the leading citizens were present, it was unanimously voted to urge the City Trustees to take the necessary steps at once to secure a Carnegie library. It was also voted to enter a float in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

WALDEN ESTATE CLEARING UP.

Culminates an International Legal Battle.

Survivor of Shipwreck Gets Bulk of Fortune.

Hundred Claimants Sought Woman's Property.

Distribution of the $100,000 estate left by the late Mrs. Mathilda Walden is expected to be made this week, bringing to culmination a legal battle that has been waged from State to Supreme Court and has involved 100 claimants within the past three years.

International in its ramifications, the case has, through the scattering of claimants, aroused interest in the United States, Great Britain, Scotland, Ireland and Australia.

Victory crowned the efforts of a little woman in far-off Ireland and to her goes 50 per cent. of the spoils of the legal war—property at the southeast corner of Main and First streets being the principal asset.

Mrs. Martha Monro, a niece of the late Mrs. Walden, and five children of Mrs. Jane Ross, divide the fortune, Mrs. Monro, who resides in Belfast, taking the bulk of the property and each of the others getting 10 per cent.

Charles M. Stephens, attorney for Mrs. Monro and the Ross children—who reside in Scotland—stated last night that the property was originally the possession of the late John Wilson, pioneer of the days of 1856, who made a fortune as a blacksmith during the racing days at Santa Anita.

Wilson died in 1896. In 1864 he was married. He placed his accumulating property in his wife's name. She, however, died before his demise and he only regained part of his property after long litigation, which arose from relatives of his deceased wife.

Compromise was effected and of the original $200,000 estate Wilson regained about half. Wilson's sister Mathilda married Charles Walden, who preceded her in death a short time, her demise occurring in 1908.

Her death was followed by a rush of claimants to heirship from England, Ireland, Scotland and Australia. The Ross children in Edenboro, Scotland, and Mrs. Martha Monro, in Ireland, all nieces of Mrs. Walden, joined forces.

Mrs. Walden died intestate and the search for heirs was given in charge of Public Administrator Bryson by order of the court. No estate that has come to the attention of the Los Angeles county courts in years occasioned the research this did.

Mrs. Walden came here in the early '60's, and she was known to all of the older residents.

During the search for rightful heirs thousands on thousands of pages of affidavits witnessed by American consuls in all parts of the world, enlistment of an army of attorneys and a maze of involving detail arose.

After months of work investigators got on the right track and the court eliminated all but a score of claimants, these in turn being reduced to three groups. Some were natives and some lived abroad.

The battle hinged between those alleging direct relationship to Mathilda Walden and those who averred kinship to John Wilson.

Contestants to the claims of Wilson's relatives declared that as a matter of fact she had not been his sister, that he had been her common-law husband and that she had deserted a family for him.

Witnesses came in from Australia and New Zealand, Ireland and Scotland.

The court upheld the contention that Wilson and Mrs. Walden were brother and sister.

Allegations to the effect that Wilson was other than a brother to Mrs. Walden were carried, however, to the United States District Court, the diverse citizenships of the claimants necessitating this. An attempt was made to enjoin the defendants from enforcing judgment of the State courts and to question the constitutionality of the California code.

It was Judge Rives who decided—and who was upheld—that Martha Monro was a niece of Mathilda Walden and that Mathilda Walden wa a sister of John Wilson; others i whose favor he decided this issue b ing Wilhelmina Wilson Johns Martha Modie, Sarah Jane Mell Robert Ross, Andrew Ross and tw others.

MANY LOSERS.

Orators in the suits were Cath Ridgell, J. D. Detterhaim, R. Detterhaim, Ida Smith, William Detterhaim, J. W. Dangley, W. Dangley, Jasper Graham, Mrs. F. Graham, B. Graham, R. E. Graha L. L. Graham, Minnie Harwell, R berta Vail, Tinnie Thomas, Be Graham, W. H. Willette, Leon W lette, Sarah Halzell, Otis Will Eliza J. Poindexter, Alice Poind and Anna Patton. All reside in Kan sas. They alleged they were nep ews, nieces, grandnephews and gran nieces of Martha Walden.

John Wilson had a brother, Jam in the British army in India. Mr Monro and Mrs. Ross are the daug ters of this soldier. They and the mother left India for England t gether while John Wilson was in Cal ifornia amassing the fortune the finally won.

Their mother died aboard the Eas ern Monarch, an East Indiaman, a a short time later on the voya the ship was blown up and the gi were taken ashore at Spithead, at th barracks; later they were placed wi their father's parents, the fath dying in 1874.

Other contestants had alleged tha it was John Wilson who had pe ished at sea. To disprove their a sertions the Lloyd reports of ma disasters were gone into at Londo and a verification of Mrs. Monro's story of the wreck was found.

Neither Mrs. Monro or the Ros children have ever set foot on Ame ican soil and they did not send single witness to this country, a though many from abroad appeare in their own behalf. Mrs. Mon simply wrote a deposition and re mained at home, while the fig waged here and ended in her vi tory.

Attorney Stephens said last nig that the division of the property ma be made through sale and the cas of which $50,000 goes to Mrs. Mon sent to Ireland. The principal pro erty is the lot and old building o the southeast corner of First an Main streets, now and for many yea occupied by a saloon.

FOR THOSE WHO CARE

What Every Woman Wants—
A TEA SERVICE FOR $5.00

Every woman needs a Tea Service and every woman wants a Tea Service that is handsome enough for Social Use and yet serviceable enough for Family Use.

The Set illustrated is one-half actual size. It fills both requirements. The shape is as old as the hills. It's the real Old English Brown Betty—Centuries old—imported by us direct from England.

This ware is a dark cathedral brown — beautifully mottled and highly glazed—almost like Rookwood in its richness—covered with a rich pattern of silver decorations as illustrated. A combination that is indescribably artistic and absolutely new. All decorations are 999-1000 pure silver (even better than sterling.)

Our price is $5 for the set of 3 Pieces—as illustrated—The biggest value in a $5 Tea Set you ever saw or heard of—possible only because of direct importation and tremendous production.

We deliver anywhere in the first postal zone free—outside of that—one-half the charges.

NEW SOUTHWEST TRACT OPENED.

EMIL FIRTH ENTERTAINS JOLLY CROWD OF THOUSANDS.

Motion Pictures of Photo Plan and Burning House Form a Feature—Athletic Sports of Champions—Toy Balloons With Money Orders Sail to the Heavens.

Several thousand persons were attracted to the opening of Southwest tract at Arlington and Santa Barbara avenue yesterday afternoon between 2 and 4 o'clock. This charming subdivision is the newest enterprise of Emil Firth and he could not have wished it a happier beginning. No sales were attempted and the afternoon was given over entirely to amusements on the grounds.

The programme included an exhibition hurdle race by Fred Kelly, hero of the Olympic games at Stockholm, and the making of a sensational motion picture which culminated with the burning of a forty-year-old eight-room house which had once been the finest building on the famous Cienega ranch.

Southern Californians are always interested in real estate projects and motion pictures. An army of persons is always ready for an exhibition at either.

Land openings here have ceased to be advertisements and have become fetes. All that a man with a new proposition in real estate in or around Los Angeles has to do is to put a notice in the papers that he will be on such and such a corner at a given time in an automobile with a streamer on it and a brass band, and the public will do the rest. He does not have to meet them half way. They come all of the way by themselves and stay as long as he wants them. The danger is that they will want to become squatters and never leave.

With motion pictures it is much the same way. Every motion-picture outfit has to seek the remote places to get room to operate. It is even necessary for them to invent wildernesses and jungles to imagine comparative solitude. When it comes to a picture down by the sea there is nothing for it but to take miles of waves and skyline entirely surrounded by eager spectators. It isn't uncommon to see little boys climbing onto the horns of the moon and the corners of an evening star to get a better view.

It was next to impossible at the opening yesterday to keep the people outside of the ropes and give the cameras a little clearing and light to snap the tramp as he leaned from his straw bed in an old piano-box and rushed into the flaming, smoke-blinding building to rescue the child.

Fred Montague, in the role of the tramp, gave as much satisfaction as he once gave to Modjeska, Julia Marlowe and W. A. Brady when he took leading parts in the companies of these legitimate stars.

Little Buddy Harris, aged 6, permitted himself to be rescued with all the eclat and sulphur smoke he could stand for and was not heard to remark on leaving the fire and brimstone that he had enjoyed a sweet foretaste of the hereafter. What he did say was, "Lemme go! I want to get where I can see." Buddy is only his stage name. In private life he is George.

Several field-day contests were witnessed and 100 toy balloons were sent up bearing cards which were orders on Firth for different sums ranging from 50 cents to $25 and totaling $250. Some of these sailed far away and may be weeks in the finding. Perhaps some will be lost in the hills. If a real tramp finds one he will be a happy gazabo.

CITY DESIGNERS COMING HERE.

NATIONAL CONVENTION IN THE EXPOSITION YEAR.

American Institute of Architects Votes Unanimously to Gather in Los Angeles—Local Man Elected to the Directorate at the Meeting in New Orleans.

Announcement was made yesterday afternoon by telegram to R. B. Young, president of the Southern California Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, that the hundreds of delegates in attendance at the annual convention of the institute at New Orleans had unanimously voted at the morning business session in the southern city to hold the 1915 convention of the national architectural body in Los Angeles. The interests of this city were urged before the convention by the half-dozen delegates from this city and received instant and enthusiastic support.

At the same session Octavius Morgan, senior member of the firm of Morgan, Walls & Morgan of this city, was elected a director in the institute.

The great annual meeting of the architects of America will be one of the most important in the list of national conventions to be held in the Southwest metropolis during exposition year, as hundreds and possibly thousands will be in attendance.

For easterners there will be no New Year's present equal to the Midwinter Number of The Times. It will tell the truth and the whole truth about this land of wonders.

Lumber Laden Ships.

portant German city, Liverpool, Hamburg, various Japanese ports, and New York. The Japanese boats of Matsui & Co. are making regular visits; the Atlantic and Pacific Steamship Company is furnishing around-the-Horn service, preparatory to service through the canal later on. The Luckenbach boats furnish service to Balboa at present; the Harrison and Kosmos lines are sending an increasing number of boats here each month from European ports.

If there are any harbor skeptics left, and there are perhaps a few in obscure corners, a visit to the port either Thursday or Friday or yesterday would have set them right on several matters. Anchorage was at a premium both days, and the air was almost constantly rent by the deep-voiced calls for leeway here or anchorage room there.

But the activity had not ended even yesterday, for 20,000,000 feet of lumber, including the 30,000 ties, are not stowed away for distribution in any matter of minutes. So, for three days past, donkey engines have coughed and wheezed along the waterfront, unloading booms have danced in and out, carrying great handfuls of "sticks" to rest on the docks, where they have been eagerly seized by many hands and transferred to the donkey carts which whisk them away to add to the height of the lumber piles which feature the harbor, or to fill the yawning maws of sundry freight cars.

Even here the activity of the port was felt, for cars were in demand for the rehandling of the millions of feet of lumber and the thousands of tons of freight that came in.

NEEDS MORE FACTORIES.

Former Santa Fe Industrial Agent Says Business Should Be Kept at Home Here.

R. E. Wilson, former assistant Industrial Commissioner of the Santa Fe Railroad, believes that Los Angeles has too few factories in comparison with its resources and wealth. He is a guest at the Alexandria.

"Up to this time Los Angeles has given most of its attention to real estate and the development of the agricultural and horicultural resources in the district," Wilson said. "This programme has resulted in the production of a vast amount of raw material which is sent elsewhere to be worked into finished form.

"Factories have not kept pace with the growth along other lines. As a manufacturing center the city is behind some other communities of its size. With the raw material and other opportunities for manufacturers here it is simply a question of making the situation known."

KILL CATARRH GERM
USE BOOTH'S HYOMEI

Try the sure and most effective way to reach the raw, tender, inflamed mucous membrane infested with catarrh germs—breathe Hyomei. All druggists sell it.

You cannot reach the nooks and crevices of the breathing organs with liquid preparations; there is only one way—breathe a few times daily the germ-destroying air of Booth's Hyomei. It acts directly on the inflamed membranes and destroys the catarrhal germs.

Hyomei is not a cure-all; it has one purpose—quick and effective relief of catarrh and diseases of the breathing organs. When you are free of catarrhal ills the general health will improve.

If you suffer from offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat, spasmodic catarrh, use Hyomei at once. It will destrow the disease germs in the nose, throat and lungs, and give quick and permanent relief.

Hyomei does not contain cocaine or any habit-forming drug—no stomach dosing—you just breathe it. The complete outfit including pocket inhaler and bottle of liquid costs $1, extra bottles of liquid, if later needed, 50 cents.—[Advertisement.

TELLS JUDGE HER STORY.

Accused Man Listens with Sneer on Lip to Tale of Alleged Mistreatment.

Mrs. Ada Falkenrath, wife of a prominent young contractor, repeated her tale of misuse at the hands of one F. J. Kokosky before Police Judge Chambers in Police Court yesterday. The assault, she alleges, occurred November 17 in the I. W. Hellman building.

She complained to the court that Kokosky lured her to the office on pretense of taking her to some friends, and there attacked her. Kokosky, who indulged his delight for sneering, sat with curled lip through the major part of the hearing, which was continued until Monday.

Mrs. Falkenrath had only time to tell her experience when the Saturday recess occurred. The case will be resumed at 10 o'clock Monday morning

Celtic Meeting.

The Celtic Club will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m., at the clubrooms, No. 551 South Broadway. The evening will be devoted to Irish songs and lyrics. The chief speaker will be Laurence Brannich, B.A., the pupil and friend of the renowned Irish prelate, Father O'Growney. The club's historian will speak on Irish contributions to folklore songs and an Irish musical programme following a banquet, will conclude the evening's event.

Into the Street?

ORPHANS MAY HAVE TO GO.

Two Hundred Menaced by the Legislature's Act.

Withdrawal of State Aid Will Hamper Charities.

Meeting of Protest Called Ten Days Hence.

"Danger of expulsion from the various orphan asylums and homes in which they are sheltered threatens probably 200 children in this city, who come under the provisions of some of the wild-eyed legislation passed by the late unlamented Legislature. The charitable organizations affected will have to turn over some of the children under their care, from whom State aid is withdrawn, to the county poor authorities, or else face greater difficulties in financing their charitable undertakings, which frequently means contributing from their own pockets thousands of dollars annually in addition to giving much of their time to the management of the institutions. Another alternative is turning the helpless little ones into the street.

The responsible heads of various orphans homes in this city yesterday decided to call a meeting for the 17th inst. of representatives of all the institutions from which State aid will be withdrawn. The meeting probably will be held in the offices of the Associated Charities, and Dr. Jessica Peixotto of San Francisco, a member of the State Board of Charities and Corrections, will be present. The object of the meeting is to determine whether some relief may not be obtained from the drastic provisions of the new law.

The paragraph affecting orphan asylums provides that "no child whose parent or parents have not resided in this State for at least three years prior to application for aid, or whose parent or parents have not become citizens of this State, shall be deemed a minor orphan, half-orphan, or abandoned child within the intent and meaning of this chapter."

A HARD BLOW.

Under the old law, one year's residence was all that was necessary. The present law has been interpreted by the Attorney-General to apply to children who have been in the various institutions for a number of years. This retroactive feature is cited by those affected as particularly hard upon boards which already are harassed by the problem of making ends meet.

Mrs. Theodore Eisen of No. 2626 South Figueroa street, president of the Los Angeles Orphans' Home, stated last night that the latter home will suffer by having State aid withdrawn from twenty-eight children. The State provides $100 for every orphan coming under the provisions of the law, and $75 for every half orphan. The Jewish Orphans' Home shelters thirty-three children who are affected by the new law; the Regina Coeli Orphans' Home, ten, the Home of the Guardian Angel, eighteen, and the two or three others in the city limits, with others in Pasadena, South Pasadena, Gardena, Anaheim, and in other towns, in proportion. As the average cost of keeping a child in an institution of this sort is from $18 to $19 a month, it is pointed out that the aid the State gives at best is fractional.

The fact of the law being enacted without opportunity for a hearing of those affected is cited as a further injustice. Mrs. Eisen said the blow came like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky and will seriously affect the home of which she is the president. This home stands among the first of similar institutions in the State. The new quarters were built at a cost of $60,000, and have been occupied less than two years. It was the first of the kind to be indorsed by the Municipal Charities Commission. "At a meeting of our advisory board today," said Mrs. Eisen, "it was decided to call a meeting of the officers of all the homes and asylums in the city and vicinity on the 17th, on which date we shall be able to have with us Dr. Peixotto of the State Board, whose counsel we highly value. We hope that some means may be devised by which the application of the law may be made less drastic."

SAYS FALSE ECONOMY.

S. G. Marshutz, president of the Jewish Orphans' Home, said last night that it is false economy for the Legislature to try retreanchment in caring for dependent children.

"The children are here," he said, "and must be taken care of, if not by the orphans' homes and asylums, then by the poor authorities. The alternative of turning the children out upon the street is the most expensive horn of the dilemma that could be chosen, for there they will very probably develop into the costliest type of dependent we have—the criminal. I hope that something tangible may develop from the meeting to be held on the 17th of this month."

Assembly!

G. A.R. HUNTS LOST COMRADE.

PRIDE STUNG BY NECESSITY, VETERAN VANISHES.

Preferred Starvation to Restrictions at Soldiers' Home, Friends Believe, and Has Wandered Off, Perhaps Mentally Deranged, to Trust in Providence.

Rather than go to the Soldiers' Home, William L. Prouty, veteran of the Civil War, is believed to have faced starvation and friends are searching frantically for some trace of the aged soldier.

When last seen he was leaving his former quarters, No. 561 South Hope street, to go to the Home, as it had become necessary for him to depend on the government for support.

This not only stung his pride but roused fear that food he relied on for nourishment would not be provided him. He brooded.

When he left the residence where he had been occupying quarters, his money was exhausted, and during the last weeks he had been saving closely, that he might prolong freedom from restrictions at the army home.

On the morning of November 29 he left. So far as investigations have shown he never arrived at the Home, nor even started for there. Instead, it is believed, he took m oney given him for his fare to Sawtelle and used it to go in some other direction, preferring to trust to providence for his welfare rather than go to the Home.

Prouty is 69 years old, and walks with a crooked cane. He is dressed in a blue suit, a soft white shirt and gray hat. Friends have appealed to the police for aid in finding him, and a wide search, furthered by the Grand Army of the Republic, is in progress. Many veterans are hunting for the aged comrade.

Jo sacrifices her tresses to raise money.

One of the heart-touching moments in "Little Women," which comes to the Majestic Theater one week from tomorrow. No one who has read Louisa Alcott's delightful story can have forgotten this pathetic incident. At the right, shorn of her crowning glory, is devoted Jo, while from left to right, the others are Beth, Mrs. March, Meg and Amy. The lower picture shows Jo and Prof. Bhaer in their fascinating little love scene under that wonderful apple tree which plays such an important part in "Little Women."

The Week.

SEX PLAY AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Blindness of Virtue" Hits from the Shoulder.

"Little Miss Brown" Is Next Burbank Attraction.

Vaudeville and Picture Bills of Great Interest.

"The Blindness of Virtue," by Cosmo Hamilton, a noted Englishman of letters, is a new play that has been attracting considerable attention in other parts of the country. It has been commended because of certain lessons it contains that at the moment are being agitated by some of the foremost scholastic, medical and clerical minds both in America and England, that insufficient thought is being given by parents to the education of children in the knowledge of the responsibilities of the sexes and that the time has come when the information should become a part of the course of studies in public schools.

Whether such teachings are for the stage, the school, the church or the home, each must decide for himself, but the play makes a strong argument and plea that the teaching should begin in the home and in its preachment show that a young girl's greatest danger lies in her perfect innocence and ignorance of the subject.

"The Blindness of Virtue" will be presented at the Majestic Theater this week, the engagement starting tonight. The Wednesday matinee will be given for women and girls only.

The story concerns a vicar, his wife, their seventeen-year-old daughter and a young man, who has been sent by his father to be tutored by the vicar. Effie Pemberton, the daughter, has been allowed to grow to womanhood in utter ignorance of the meanings and temptations of sex. The boy, Archie Graham, has sowed some of his wild oats, but has a good-sized spark of manhood in him for all that. He and Effie fall in love with each other, and the girl in her ignorant innocence tempts the young fellow almost beyond endurance.

Found by her father in each others arms in the boy's bedroom, the boy is accused of the worst by the terrified father. Archie denies it and upbraids the vicar in a furious outburst of indignation for having allowed his daughter to remain in total ignorance of her womanhod and its powers. The vicar in turn reproves his wife for having broken her promise, recently made him, to initiate her young daughter into the mystery of sex. It is finally made clear, however, by the girl herself that she is still innocent and ignorant. The vicar begs the boy's forgiveness and the girl goes out to her mother to be told some of the things she should have learned before.

The same lesson is taught again through a minor character in the play, Mary Ann, a little village girl, who has "got into trouble" because of her ignorance. The poor young thing's unconscious response to the instinct of motherhood, her humble, half-frightened joy in the coming of her child, and through it all, the innate purity of her soul, is another

In Its Flight.

TIME'S HAND MOVED BACK.

"Little Women" Step from Story to Stage.

Louisa Alcott's Dear People in the Flesh.

Play Will Be at Majestic Next Week.

Make me a child again, just for tonight!"

So sang that inspired poetess, Elizabeth Akers Allen, many, many years ago. The appeal to Father Time came from the very depths of her soul. It was a world-old longing that she voiced, a longing that comes, at one time or another, to everyone.

There is a play coming to the Majestic Theater—week commencing Monday, December 15—that is said to have the magic faculty to turn back the hand of time. It is the dramatic version of Louisa M. Alcott's beloved story, "Little Women."

"Little Women!" Ah, what a flood of memories the mere mention of the title of the story conjures up for us. "Little Women!" A household treasure everywhere.

There are no available statistics, but it is safe to say that well-thumbed volumes of "Little Women" are in nearly every other home in Los Angeles. Clean and sweet, full of gayety and cheer, "Little Women" is perhaps the best-loved work in American literature. Ever since its publication, in 1868, it has been a "best seller," not only in the United States, but also in Canada, England, Germany, France and other European countries. The publishers tell us that more than 2,000,000 copies of the book have been sold in English-speaking countries during the last forty-five years, and that the present rate of sale is approximately 20,000 copies a year.

WHOLESOME STORY.

Yes, quite a few people have read "Little Women," and to have read it is to love it. That is the rule. There may be one or two exceptions, just to prove the rule, but it is doubtful.

"Little Women" is a story of New England home life fifty years ago—a charming though simple, narrative of the lively doings of a family of four of the most fascinating young women, together with their friends (beaux included,) that ever were put between the covers of a book.

There is the tomboyish, resourceful Joe, with her literary ambitions. Scratch, scratch, scratch goes her quill pen "when genius burns." She has the same trials and tribulations that all budding literary geniuses are popularly supposed to have. The magazine editors, it seems, do not enthuse noticeably over the product of her pen; that is, at first, but Jo is one of those girls who is not easily discouraged. She keeps scribbling away, despite the fate of her manuscripts, until finally they begin to sell. It is a splendid example of the old axiom that perseverance wins, or that one must have perseverence to win. Jo is of a romantic turn of mind, and ere the book comes to an end she marries happily, becoming

MUSICAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

MELBA AND KUBELIK TO GIVE ONLY ONE CONCERT.

People's Orchestra to Introduce Its New Conductor, Hans S. Linne, Next Sunday—Beel to Be Soloist of Symphony Orchestra in December Recitals.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

After winning success in Paris, London and on the continent, the great cities of Canada and America, Mme. Nellie Melba, the world's greatest lyric soprano, and Jan Kubelik, the most finished of all the modern violinists, will be heard at the Auditorium next Tuesday, December 9, in one concert only. There is probably no modern singer equal to this woman with the glorious voice that has made her the ideal heroine of "Lohengrin," "Faust," "Romeo and Juliet," "Traviata," "Pagliacci," "Lucia," "La Boheme," "Aida" and "Otello." She was the logical successor of Adelina Patti, and the great Strakosch, when he discovered her, predicted her wonderful success. In opera, when she makes her entrance, there is no rustling of the wings, no significant wait, no pause in the orchestra, no trickery to attract attention. She is Nellie Melba, queen of singers, and with the knowledge of authority. She has perfect diction, beautiful enunciation and a voice unequaled in its purity, and able to sing a ballad, an operatic aria or an oratorio number with equal precision and effect.

Jan Kubelik Violinist.

Jan Kubelik is undoubtedly the only musician of equal authority who could be given a place of co-star on a Melba programme. His nature is similar to that of the singer; his laugh is infectious; he is extremely fond of a joke; few artists have a keener sense of humor. A talk with this young Bohemian leaves a lasting impression. In spite of his tremendous success he is unspoiled; he assumes no special dignity and makes no attempt to appear a great man; he is always earnest and enthusiastic, but his enthusiasm is of a character that leads one to believe he is speaking of his art as a mere admirer rather than one directly interested. In the years since the violinist was first heard in America he has grown in his art; it is generally conceded that he stands in the front ranks of violin virtuosi.

Playing the violin does not fatigue Kubelik, and he is one of the few members of his craft wearing a high collar at all hours of the day. His violins are famous throughout the world; his Emperor, which he plays here, is valued at over $100,000. He is intensely fond of America, for he feels that the Americans are people who understand him and whom he understands. "That all people should love music," he declares, "is only logical. It is the common friend, the universal solace. Painting, sculpture and other arts are more for the few; music is the language of the emotions, the language of nature, the expression of the heart."

It is a universal impression that geniuses are more or less eccentric, but Kubelik is a striking exception. In everything he does he is extremely normal, even if he does wear his hair long.

The Melba-Kubelik programmes are works of art, and their offerings unequaled. In addition to their own splendid efforts will be added those of Edmund Burke, Canada's celebrated baritone, whose success in England, on the continent and in Australia has won recognition in competition with European aspirants for concert and operatic fame. The assisting artists include M. La Pierre, pianist, and Marcel Moyse, the celebrated flutist. A more remarkable aggregation of artists has seldom, if ever, been brought to America. There will positively be but one concert in Los Angeles.

The following is the programme: Aria, "Benvenuto Cellini" (Diaz,) Edmund Burke; Concerto No. 2, D Minor (Wieniawski,) Jan Kubelik; "L'Allegro ed il Penseroso" (Handel,) (flute obligato by Marcel Moyse,) Mme. Melba; "When Dull Care" (old English,) (Leveridge,) "To Anthea" (Hatton,) Edmund Burke; aria, "Il re Pastore" ("Figaro") (Mozart,) with violin obligato, Mme. Melba and Jan Kubelik; songs, "Meeting of the Waters," "Minstrel Boy," Irish melodies (Moore,) Edmund Burke; arias, "Addio" ("La Boheme") (Puccini,) "Ave Maria" ("Othello") (Verdi,) Mme. Melba; violin soli, "Spanish Dance" (Sarasate,) "Humoresque" (Dvorak,) "Witches Dance" (Paganini,) Jan Kubelik.

People's Orchestra.

The People's Orchestra will introduce their new conductor, Hans S. Linne, on Sunday afternoon. The "Festival Overture," by Nicolai, written around that old Bach choral, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," will be followed by Strauss's "Blue Danube Waltz," and the "Peer Gynt Suite," by Grieg, and a paraphrase on the opera, "Natoma," by Victor Herbert. Then two little string numbers, "The Mill," and "A Little Conversation," by Gillett, a modern French composer, followed by Glazunov's "Bacchanale."

The People's Chorus are working industriously on Handel's "Messiah," which will be presented on the 28th of December with soloists and orchestra.

Chauvenet Concert.

Pupils of the De Chauvenet Conservatory of Music, assisted by several members of the faculty, will give a concert next Saturday afternoon, December 13, at 3 p.m. at the De Chauvenet Auditorium, No. 845 South Figueroa street.

Symphony Orchestra.

Manager Toye announces that owing to the illness of Franz Egenieff, baritone, who was scheduled to appear at the next pair of concerts of the Los Angeles Symphony, his appearance has been postponed to January 23 and 24.

For the Christmas concerts Los Angeles music lovers will have an opportunity of hearing Sigmund Beel, the excellent first concert master of the orchestra. Mr. Beel, who is a concert artist of renown, as well as one of the foremost concert masters of this country, will perform Bruch's Scotch fantasy with the orchestra.

The other numbers on the programme will be the overture "Solenelle" of Glazunov, Beethoven's fifth symphony, Handel's "Largo" and "L'Arlesienne" suite of Bizet.

Beethoven's in C minor will be the main feature of this concert. It was written in 1807 at Heilingenstadt. The following year the composer returned to Vienna, bringing with him, ready for performance, the two symphonies, C minor and "Pastoral." They were produced at a concert given by Beethoven in the Theater "An der Wien" on December 22, 1808. Four other numbers were on the programme and the result was unfortunate. In addition to the enormous length of the programme and the difficult character of the music, the cold was intense and the theater unheated. The performance appears to have been dismal. Time, however, has placed this work among the greatest, and with the possible exception of the Seventh, is the most popular of the nine symphonies of the master.

Mme. Nellie Melba. Soprano.

The C minor is said to be the first in which Beethoven expressed himself freely and absolutely and threw away all traces of formalism in expression or development to give vent to the perfect utterance of his musical feeling. In the first and most striking movement, the C minor is rugged and stern; a sort of struggle with fate, one of the most thoroughly characteristic of Beethoven's productions. The second is a contrast, peaceful, though strong and earnest. The Scherzo again is one of his most original movements, in its musical spirit as utterly unlike anything that had been produced before. The last movement, which follows without break after the Scherzo, is triumphant; seeming to express the mastery in the wrestling and striving of the first movement. It is historically interesting as the first appearance of trombones and contrafagotto in modern symphony, the most powerful in sound up to that time.

Verdi Centenary Celebration.

Signor Pietro Buzzi, director of the Verdi School of Singing, assisted by Mrs. Aliberto Arnaz, lyric soprano; Miss Helen Beatrix Cooper, soprano; Miss Adela Levy, soprano, and Glenora Zink, pianist, will give at Blanchard Hall, on Friday, December 12, a historical sequence of Verdi's compositions, with an address by Signor Buzzi on Guiseppe Verdi, as a man, patriot and musician.

Y.W.C.A. Evening of Song.

At an "evening of song," given under the auspices of the Y.W.C.A. and under the direction of Caroline E. Tew, Misses Adelaide Clifton, Enid Bowers, Gertrude Hillis, Abagail Swartzbaugh, Helena Parker, Estelle Stensquise and Berenice Moden appeared in selections from Schubert, Schumann, Winter, Gounod, Verdi and other classical composers.

American Music to Hindoo Verses.

John Alden Carpenter, one of the foremost composers in the United States, has just written music for six of Tagore's most beautiful poems, namely, "When I Bring to You Colored Toys, My Child," "On the Day When Death Will Knock at Thy Door," "The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes," "I Am Like a Remnant of a Cloud of Autumn," "On the Seashore of Endless Worlds" and "Light, My Light," soon to be published. Rabindraneth Tagore, the great Hindoo poet who has just won the Nobel prize for literature, is essentially a singer, rather than a writer or a versifier. In the poet's native land his "Gitanjali" (song offerings,) are sung by people of all classes; men chant them at village gatherings; women croon them to their little ones; troubadors sing them at the courts of princes, and laborers hum them as they toil in the fields.

Bergerettes in English.

At the court of Marie Antoinette dainty little songs of shepherdesses were in great favor, under the name of "Bergerettes," and have been given occasionally in concerts. J. B. Weherlin has now translated the text and written modern piano accompaniment for these frivolous dainties of the eighteenth century, which will be issued by Oliver Ditson as musical gift books.

When Dr. Mitchell was in New York, on his way from his summer rest at Bar Harbor to Hot Springs, Va., he was asked if he had done any literary work during the summer. "Nothing very much," said Dr. Mitchel. "Oh, yes, I wrote a 5000-line dramatic poem on Barabbas."

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Mrs. William B. Derr, president of the Housewives' League of Philadelphia, has inspired the members of her league to work together to lower the price of foodstuffs in that city. The plan is to co-operate with the dealers who are willing to sell turkeys, ducks, chickens, oysters and fish at a reduction from 5 to 8 cents. The names of these dealers have been supplied to the members of the league.

Mrs. Charles E. George, wife of a San Francisco lawyer, has been formally adopted into the Cree tribe of Indians, whose headquarters is at Alberta, Can., and has been awarded 320 acres of land in the reservation. She has been given the name of Laughing Water.

Twin sisters, Misses Clara and Clarissa Pritchard, were graduated from an Albany law school a year ago, but were not allowed to practice, as they were not of age. Last week they passed the State bar examination, now being 21 years of age.

Miss Mae Horner of Annville, Pa., a graduate of the 1910 class of Lebanon Valley College, and who has been for the past three years instructor in the Norristown High School, has volunteered as a missionary and is going to Africa. She will teach in the girls' school at Movambo, West Africa.

The whole St. Gaudens family seem to have been talented in sculpture work. Miss Annette St. Gaudens, daughter of the late Augustus St. Gaudens, having a collection of sculptures now on exhibition in New York.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young of Chicago says that a teacher who becomes a mother may not have a regular position until her child is 2 years of age, but she may substitute during that time. She says this rule is for the benefit of the child as well as the schools, as a child needs all its mother's time until it is at least 2 years old.

According to Mrs. Sarah Evans, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs of Oregon, a mother's pension bill, an industrial home for girls, a minimum wage for women, rigid laws against wife-desertion, a sterilization bill, form the immediate results of votes for women.

Edmunde Burke, Baritone.

Mrs. Plante won the championship trophy at the Herne Bay angling festival with a total catch of 108 pounds.

Mrs. A. J. Alexander of Montpeinier has an English ivy that was presented her twenty-five years ago. She also has a Boston fern fifteen years old, with branches that reach fifteen feet from the floor.

Miss Ellen Gleditsch, radium expert, is the first woman designated by the Norwegian government to one of the fellowships for American study given by the American-Scandinavian Foundation.

Mrs. Dan Staffler of San Francisco recently eloped and was married for the second time in two years. Her first marriage was soon annulled, and she was later a guest at the wedding of her ex-husband.

Miss Maria Sanford, professor emeritus of the University of Minnesota, 77 years old, won a farm in Montana during the recent government land drawing and is planning to go out there to develop her property.

Mrs. Grace Hopkins, field secretary of the Women's National Democratic League, is soon to publish a cook book to which the prominent Democratic women of the country have contributed favorite recipes.

Mrs. Bryan, wife of the Secretary of State, owns and operates her own little electric coupe, and is thus better off than most of the wives of members of the Cabinet, who can only go calling when their husbands do not want the carriage, which the government provides. Many of these are said to be relics of a former administration and not very much to be proud of.

Mrs. Mark Muroski of Philadelphia succeeded in dancing with 212 partners at her wedding dance, and, according to an old Polish custom, she received $2 from each partner.

The youngest member of the G.A.R. in New England, if not in the United States, is Miss Theodora Keith, bugler for a post in Weymouth. She became a member through taking her father's place as substitute bugler and has a uniform.

The railroad station master at Froissy, France, is Madame Taillefer. Her husband is a conductor.

One of the greatest changes noted by Lady Dorothy Nevill, in the course of her long life, was "the vast increase of extravagance as regards ladies' dress." When Lady Dorothy "came out" her father allowed her £45 a year. Her mother spent £300 a year on dress and personal expenses, and this "was considered very ample for the wife of a rich peer."

Mrs. Hetty Green, the world's wealthiest woman, is 78 years old. Her millions are more than her years, even at a conservative estimate, according to those persons in a position to know. There was no especial observance of her recent anniversary. As usual, she was at her office, No. 111 Broadway, a great part of the day. Despite her advanced years, Mrs. Green is hale and hearty. She ascribes as the reason for her long life and good health frugal living and hard work.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Gov. Colquitt headed an annual turkey parade held in Cuero, Tex., in which 8000 live turkeys were led through the streets in bands of 100. One of them drew a baby carriage in which was a small child.

Hon. Joseph H. Choate, who was one of the original incorporators of New York Metropolitan Museum of Art in 1870, has just been made honorary president of the institution, an office which the trustees voted to create for him. He has served in an official capacity ever since the museum was formed.

In payment of a promise made twenty-four years ago, Dr. Brashar of Pittsburgh, Pa., is going to visit Dr. Burckhalter of Oakland, Cal., to celebrate his seventy-third birthday. The promise was made twenty-four years ago while on an expedition with Dr. Burckhalter, who is an astronomer.

After diligent search through Rome for a building suitable for an embassy, Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador, has given it up and taken apartments in a hotel. James W. Gerard, Ambassador to Germany, after a long hunt found a house in Berlin for which he will pay $15,000 a year of his $17,500 salary, in addition to spending some thousands of dollars to make it a fit place in which to live.

Associate Judge John Clinton Gray of the New York Court of Appeals, retired from the bench last week after twenty-five years of service. He was originally appointed by Gov. Hill, but has been twice elected by the people.

Because of ill health Dr. B. W. Pond has retired as a member of the examining corps of the United States patent office after forty years service. In point of service he ranked third in the office. He is a native of Maine and a graduate of Bowdoin College.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED

Princess Wigenstein, the oldest active society woman in Europe, is in her ninety-fifty year, and leads an active life. She dances, it is said, with the grace of youth, and has just finished a play. Fifty years ago she established herself at Lausanne and has lived there ever since. Her chalet is the center of intellectual activity.

"I expect to be doing my regular duty as a police officer when I am 100 years old," said Oliver Noughton to friends who congratulated him on his ninety-third birthday. Houghton, who has served continuously on the Weymouth (Mass.) force since the Civil War, is probably the oldest policeman now in active service in the United States.

W. W. Hemingway, one of the first persons born in Binghamton, celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday anniversary by walking twenty-four miles. He started out in a slight rain and walked over the hills to Quaker Lake and return. Only three times in the last ten years has he missed taking a stroll of not less than six miles every morning. Often he walks ten miles or more.

"Uncle" John Martin, the oldest resident of Rumford, Me., has been presented by the local theater with a complimentary pass which will be good the rest of his life. He is 88 years old.

Mayor Joseph F. Dennis, aged 87, of Bellecenter, O., believes he is the oldest Mayor in the United States, and has just been elected for a second term. He says "a man ain't worth a cent until he is 75 and over."

At the age of 93 E. W. Gorman of Huntington, W. Va., has just joined the Baptist Church.

J. L. Barnes, conductor on the first Pullman car ever run in this country, lives at Canute, Kan. He has reached the age of 78 years. When the car was put into operation the system of book-keeping was very crude. The conductor collected the fare from the passengers and before he turned the money in to the company collected his own salary from the revenues. No receipts were given, no records kept.

he wife of a learned, whole-souled German professor, who furnishes much of the humor of the book.

MANY LOVE STORIES.

Two of her three sisters also get married—Amy and Meg. You see, there is a three-ply weave of love in "Little Women." Amy, who had ambitions to become a great artist, but who finally realized that her ambition was hopeless, marries the debonair Laurie, who, at the outset of the story, was deeply in love with Jo, who coldly spurned his proffered love. Meg, practical girl, marries a manly young fellow by the name of John Brook, and the stork visits them with a pair of twins.

The fourth and youngest of the four sisters, poor little Beth, with her sweet, winsome ways, dies, and her death is one of the few pathetic features of the story. Even Dickens with his numerous death-bed scenes has never made readers sob with more heart-breaking grief than did Miss Alcott with her narration of the death of angelic little Beth.

But what's the use of relating the story of "Little Women?" Nearly everyone knows it, and those few who do not deserve to have it told to them at second hand. Having read the book, most people will want to see the play, and, according to reports from New York, where the play ran all last season, it is a splendid play, as near like the book as it is possible for a play to be like a book.

In "Little Women" the auditor sees the visualized Jo, Meg, Beth and Amy, together with all the other delightful characters, for Miss Marian de Forest, who dramatized the story, is said to have merely released Miss Alcott's people from the covers of the book and allowed them to continue their immortal lives upon the stage.

In the dramatic version we see the four young women and their friends before our very eyes, just as we have always imagined them to be, and in surroundings that are an exact replica of the surroundings in which they actually lived. There are those who always approach the dramatization of a popular story with trepidation, fearing that the characters which have lived in their imaginations year after year will not prove true to the mental ideal when visualized upon the stage.

IDEALS VISUALIZED.

Admirers of "Little Women" need have no fear that the dramatizer has tampered with the characters as Miss Alcott portrayed them. They are merely Miss Alcott's characters, transplanted to the stage, incarnated with marvelous fidelity by a splendid organization of players who fit their respective parts as though those parts had been written especially for them. "Little Women" is a William A. Brady production, and Mr. Brady, realizing the tender affection surrounding the remembrance of the characters, took special pains to obtain actors and actresses for the parts who would most nearly visualize the conceptions that readers of "Little Women" have cherished for so many years.

Nor has Miss de Forest in her dramatization of "Little Women" taken any liberties with the plot of the story. The main episodes are included intact. Miss de Forest and Mr. Brady have rendered an inestimable service to theater-goers in giving them the opportunity of renewing acquaintance under such delightful auspices with Miss Alcott's merry folks.

Quite apart from its literary associations, which alone doubtless will send thousands of Los Angeles admirers of Louisa Alcott to the Majestic Theater next week, "Little Women" is a splendid four-act play and a most refreshing entertainment. Those who go to the theater for the best there is in it will be amply rewarded by going to see "Little Women."

In "Little Women," the book and the play, we have an imperishable record of family life in the middle of the nineteenth century. That is why the book is so important and so popular a piece of literature. Wholesome, gay and spirited, teeming with pleasant action and life, "Little Women" shows us how much we have changed in fifty years, and, sad to relate, he would indeed be an optimist who would say that the change has been an improvement.

The more important roles of the play are in the hands of Miss Jane Marbury, who is the Jo of the piece; Miss Ida St. Leon, who plays the part of Amy; Henrietta McDowell as patient little Beth; Jean Brae, who plays the mature and charming Meg; Donald Gallagher as Laurie; Robert Fischer as Prof. Bhaer; Helen Beaumont as Hannah; Miss Marta Oatman as Mrs. March; Frank McEntee as Mr. March; Marshall Birmingham as the gallant John Brock, and a number of others.

The Majestic management has arranged for four matinees of "Little Women"—on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

OVER THE SEA.

Thomas Hardy, who has published after many years a new volume of fiction—"A Changed Man"—recently witnessed in London the cinematograph version of his "Tess of the D'Urbervilles." Mr. Hardy, now in his 74th year, sat in the last row of the theater and followed the film with great interest.

The merit investigation bureau has requested the President of China to send Miss Li Feng-sun to San Francisco to be educated at the government's expense as an appreciation of her assistance during the Wuchang uprising. Miss Li is the principal of Chung Teh Girls' School in Peking.

Rev. Philip Carlyon, the oldest clergyman in the United Kingdom, died at Falmouth recently at the age of 101 years.

The death at Cape Town, October 18, of Dinizulu, removes the last of the warrior kings of the Zulu nation. He was the son of Cetewayo and himself a famous fighter. In 1890 Herman S. Davis, now of Pittsburgh, who was a member of the government eclipse expedition, saw him at St. Helena, where he was in exile with his uncles.

M. Jean Richepin, poet, recently lectured before the venerable Institute of France on the tango. He said that the dance was known to the ancients, as certain antiquities in the British Museum prove. M. Richepin boldly attacked the view that the tango was not a quite suitable subject, and asserted that no dance was vulgar unless the dancers made it so.

Earl Nelson, who succeeded to the Trafalgar estate in February, has closed the ancient Church of Standlynch, which for centuries has been used for a house of worship according to the usages of the Church of England, but the new Lord Nelson is a Roman Catholic, and the church building is the property of his estate.

M. Jean Richepin, poet, recently lectured before the venerable Institute of France on the tango. He said that the dance was known to the ancients. Certain antiquities in the British Museum prove. M. Richepin boldly attacked the view that the tango was not a quite suitable subject, and asserted that no dance was vulgar unless the dancers made it so.

Lord Nelson, who succeeded to the [illegible] estate in February, has sold the ancient Church of Standlynch, which for centuries has been used as a house of worship according to the usages of the Church of England, but the new Lord Nelson is a Roman Catholic, and the church building is the property of his estate.

Dramatic Reviews.

powerful indictment of the force of the author's argument.

It is understood Mr. Hamilton has handled the sex hygiene question in an adequate but entirely refined manner. There is nothing objectionable in the play, nothing in the dialogue or situations to give offense. It is truth presented under a veneer of pure gold, but to the purpose that mothers should see it and learn its lesson. The play is really a comedy and much of the comedy is brilliant, with that one strong situation of dramatic importance between the father and the lad.

The parts will be interpreted by Frank Elliott, Rutherford, Herman, Harley Knowles, Vera Fuller Melish, Alys Rees, Pollie Emery and Marjorie Allen.

Burbank.

Philip Bartholomae's stupendous laughing success of the last season on the metropolitan stage, "Little Miss Brown," will this afternoon be offered for the first time by a stock company anywhere at the Burbank Theater.

"Little Miss Brown" is doubtless more or less familiar to every one, for when it was given by a traveling organization at the Majestic last season proved one of the really big fun hits of the year, and as it is unusually well adapted to the talents of the Burbank players the presentation here should prove a success of more than ordinary proportions.

"Little Miss Brown" is philip Bartholomae at his very best, and this, a tale of honeymoon complications, is even brighter, cleverer and faster than his famous hit, "Over Night."

"Little Miss Brown" is beset by all sorts of complications—laugh-provoking situations of the finest character, from the first curtain to the last, and as the Burbank patrons have in the past proved that they are great lovers of genuine fun, this piece should prove a gale of side-splitting laughter from start to finish.

Selma Paley in the title role of the little lady in brown, will have unlimited opportunities to further distinguish herself, while Forrest Stanley is cast for the part of Richard Dennison, which gives him the finest opportunity he has ever enjoyed for capital fun-making.

Morgan Wallace will reappear on the Burbank stage after three weeks' absence, in the splendid comedy role of the hotel clerk; James Gleason, a young light comedian of unusual ability, will play Phillip Dennison; Beatrice Nichols will be seen as the telephone girl; Thomas McBarnie will be entrusted with the part of Joseph Clews; Donald Bowles will play Robert Mason; Florence Oberle will be seen as Eulalia Burke; James K. Applebee will have the part of her husband; Lillian Tucker will be seen as Mrs. Richard Dennison; Grace Travers will be seen as the maid; H. S. Duffield will be seen as the night clerk, while all of the other Burbank favorites will be seen in the big cast.

"Little Miss Brown" has never before been offered on the American stage at popular prices and should prove uncommonly popular on its first stock presentation here.

Following "Little Miss Brown," Oliver Morosco will offer "The Littlest Rebel," in which Harrison Hunter will make his first appearance with the Burbank players.

Mason.

After two seasons of the most remarkable business ever done by a musical comedy in theatrical history, Gus Hill offers a second edition of that famous Bud Fisher cartoon comedy conceit, "Mutt and Jeff," entitled "Mutt and Jeff in Panama." The new book, by Owen Davis and Bud Fisher, gives still greater scope for good comedy and keen satire than the original production.

An entirely new musical score is furnished by Leo Edwards, with lyrics by D. B. Cobb. Men of this caliber, coupled with the producing experience of the dean of cartoon comedy productions, Gus Hill, should be able to turn out a masterpiece of hilarious fun, and they undoubtedly have done so. Having already cleaned up a snug fortune on this play in the past two seasons, Mr. Hill has gone the limit in making this the most stupendous offering of the current year. A scenic and electrical production with massive and intricate mechanical effects is something unknown in musical comedies in the past, but "Mutt and Jeff in Panama" combines the sensation of a melodrama with the "whirlie-girlie" of extravaganza and the music of a light opera, into one more than pleasing entertainment.

The company coming to the Mason Operahouse Monday night, next, consists of fifty people—comedians, singers and dancers. A chorus of the prettiest girls you have ever seen in one company, wearing twenty different costume changes, will add to the general quality of the entertainment.

Orpheum.

Ellen Beach Yaw—our own "Lark Ellen"—perhaps the most unique figure in modern music, is announced as the new headliner at the Orpheum for the week beginning Monday matinee, December 8. The announcement in itself is almost unprecedented, in even Orpheum annals. Miss Yaw has hitherto confined her appearances exclusively to the high-class concert stage, and while thousands have heard her there, it has been always a somewhat exclusive privilege in that it has been a costly pleasure.

In luring her to vaudeville, the Orpheum has again demonstrated that nothing is impossible to the master minds of this circuit, and that no one is too big or too "good" for Orpheum audiences. Miss Yaw occupies a peculiar place in music. Not only is she a most finished artiste; a soprano of wide culture and ability, but she possesses positively the highest notes ever given by a human voice. The extreme range of her vocal powers has made her unique; yet at the same time she is not a mere freak, as her musical education has been most thorough, in America and abroad.

The result is that Miss Yaw is thus enabled to equal the usual prima donna soprano in her artistic work, and at the same time do more—render compositions impossible to any other singer. So few are these compositions that Miss Yaw has even written her own, and it will be an added pleasure thus to welcome her as a composer as well as a singer. So, in every way, Miss Yaw's coming is a most notable event. And when it is added that this is the first time the general public has ever been permitted to hear this artiste at popular prices—the usual scale of concert rates, $2 to $5, having hitherto been the rule—the coming engagement may easily be accepted as epochal.

Naturally a fine bill is surrounding Miss Yaw, in keeping with such a star. There is, for instance, Joe Welch, whose interpretations of character have set him quite apart from the usual. Mr. Welch will be seen in "A Study from Life," with much comedy and a little pathos intermingled in masterful fashion. He has the ability to combine laughter and tears admirably, and will be found, as usual, at the very top in his line.

S. Miller Kent, a comedian of well-recognized parts, brings a new detective story, "The Real Q," which has a lot of mystery, fun and adventure admirably combined, and Armstrong & Clark, song writers and singers of international repute, will favor with a couple of their new ditties and a lot of their old ones.

The acts retained include Miss Kathryn Kidder and her fine company in "The Washerwoman Duchess," the remarkable Chung Hwa Comedy Four, the Ellisons in "The Village Blacksmith," and the Blanks, jugglers. The orchestral concerts of exceptional worth, and the world's news in motion views conclude the bill.

Pantages.

"In Mexico," the feature act of the new Pantages show, is not a melodrama, a war story, or a farce comedy as the title might suggest, but an amusing musical comedy in which the characters are Mexicans as they ought to be—not as they are, or as Huerta would like to have them. There are neither Federalists, Constitutionalists, Zapatistas, Maderistas, insurrectos, nor vaqueros. But, instead of these unpronouncable persons appear senoritas, senoras, dons and duennas, ballerinos and ballerinas in festive garb and joyous humor. This is the production for which Manager Carl Walker endeavored to secure the services of Henry Lane Wilson, ex-Ambassador to Mexico. Reports on this act secured from the northern end of Pantages circuit, describe it as tuneful, amusing and original in plot and development. Alf. Goulding heads the cast in the role of "Ginger, ship's cook," which is a guarantee of the comedy end of the act.

The added attraction of the show is Raymond Hutchins and his company in "An Eventful Honeymoon." The comedy is built around the misadventures of a newly-wedded couple who run counter to the prejudices of a crusty old guardian.

The Bottomley Troupe, a woman, three men and a juvenile, offer one of the best gymnastic acts recently seen here; in fact, theirs is the first real circus aerial act accommodated to the vaudeville stage. The achievements of the woman in particular, hold the audience spellbound at their skill and daring.

The Oxford Quartette, three well set-up young men and a fat comedian, appear in popular songs. Their numbers are judiciously selected, well harmonized and presented in good taste without overdoing the comedy to the detriment of the music.

Wilson and Lenore, a singing, whistling and yodling team, and the Five Bragdons, a quintette of Scotch musicians, dancers and singers, make up the bill to its usual strength. The Animated Weekly news pictures are still an exclusive Pantages feature.

Empress.

Heading the big new Sullivan & Considine bill which comes to the Empress Theater tomorrow afternoon will be the world renowned Lester Trio of European funmakers in their famously funny farce, "The Bathroom Mystery."

This act has won an international reputation for its laughter-provoking qualities and comes with the reputation of being absolutely nothing but twenty minutes of whirlwind fun from start to finish.

The second feature of the new bill and an uncommonly attractive one will be the celebrated Dunedin Troupe, a group of bersatile equilibristic marvels that have just arrived in America from European triumphs and who are now making their first tour of the United States, over the Sullivan & Considine circuit.

The Dunedin Troupe is an organization of daring equilibrists, sensational wire walkers and cyclists, who offer a series of tricks performed in a whirlwind manner that is said to thrill an audience from the first moment of their appearance until the last curtain falls on their act, while they also sprinkle their act with much good comedy and some clever singing and dancing that serves as a distinct relief to their series of thrills.

Third among the newcomers will be Louise and Clara Campbell, two pretty young women who are splendid musicians and at the same time possess a sense of humor that they are able to put over the footlights to the delight of every auditor. The Campbell sisters are entertainers of the very highest quality and they promise to rank among the biggest favorites of the new bill.

Fourth in the matter of importance will be Andru Lewis and Helen Norton, the former musical comedy stars in their lively skit, "On With the Dance," an act quite unlike anything that has ever been seen on the local stage and one designed to give dull care a strenuous kick under the coat tails and exclude him, at least for a week, from the vicinity of the Empress.

The roystering knock-about comedians, Maglin, Eddy and Roy, will take te audience again into the realm of side-splitting laughter with their pantomimic acrobatic fun. This trio has been a feature of the Barnum & Bailey, and other big tent shows, and are all clowns of the brand that can really be labelled 100 per cent. funny.

Completing the new bill will be Cullen Brothers, the dancing laughmakers, with their eccentric pedalry and the new and exclusive Keystone comedies. The new bill is chiefly made up of standard fun-making acts and for this reason should prove one

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY SYDNEY FORD.

MISS MIRIAM L. WOODBURY, national secretary of the Congregational Home Missionary Society, is in Los Angeles. She will address the Missionary Societies of the First Congregational Church next Thursday morning.

Miss Woodbury, a young woman of charming personality and splendid executive ability, is the first national secretary of the organization who has ever visited Southern California. Plans have been made for her to speak at various church and missionary gatherings during her two weeks' sojourn here. The arrangement of the dates is in the hands of Mrs. Mary Porter Haines, president of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Congregational Church, and of Rev. Ralph B. Larkin, secretary of Home Missions.

An unusually large attendance is expected at Thursday's meeting, not only of the women members of the church but of Congregationalists at large, who will be glad to hear Miss Woodbury.

Dominant December Meeting.

The tea and musicale of the Dominant Club was held at the Ebell clubrooms yesterday afternoon. A Russian programme was presented by Mrs. Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus. The mere announcement that Mrs. Dreyfus would appear was sufficient to call out an unusually large audience which completely filled the great reception rooms. Mrs. Heartt-Dreyfus who has just returned from a year's study abroad, was accompanied by Miss Lazarre on the piano and Mr. Gerdohu on the violin. The tea which followed the musicale was, as usual, a delightful social feature.

The College Women's Club.

The College Women's Club is growing at the rate of thirty to fifty new members a month. The December list includes Miss Olive M. Brink, Mrs. H. O. Hill, Dr. Ida B. Stockwell, of Northwestern University of Illinois; Mrs. J. E. Lawshe, Miss Edith Osborne, Miss Marjorie Driscoll of Pasadena, Miss Margaret Gardner, Miss Winifred Millspaugh of Hollywood, Stanford University; Miss Vera Brooke, Mrs. Eleanor Jones, Hollywood; Miss Katherine Philleo, Covina; Miss May Atkinson, Azusa, University of California; Mrs. G. Plary, Miss Katherine Gibson, Mrs. Emma M. Grossman of Pasadena, University of Michigan; Miss Elizabeth Lowe, Miss Leona Lodwick, Occidental College; Mrs. Warren Smith, Iowa State College; Miss Gloria Carr, Missouri University; Miss Carobel Murphy, Smith College; Miss Esther Anderson, University of Wisconsin; Miss Ella Lounsberry, Wellesley College; Miss Ruth Disbrow, Oberlin College; Mrs. J. H. Francis, San Joaquin Valley University, Otterbein and University of Southern California; Mrs. W. C. Parriott, Pomona College; Mrs. E. R. Purdy, Knox College; Miss Elizabeth Etter, Allegheny College; Mas Charlotte Olin, Columbia University; Mrs. Joseph Hill Pengilly, University of Minnesota; Mrs. William Olmstead, Goucher College, University of Chicago, Johns Hopkins, Oxford University, England.

Cases of Poverty.

Of all the pitiful stories of the high cost of living and consequent hard times, the most pathetic comes from Germany, where, we are credibly informed, the Kaiser is in such reduced circumstances that he is seriously considering the sale of one or more of his sixty castles in order to make both ends meet. This is a case which demands the rigid investigation of the Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

Another pitiful tale comes from our own land that Andrew Carnegie is in such reduced circumstances that he has only $15,000,000 left to scrape along with for the rest of his life.

Incidentally it might be remarked in passing, I know of another case, which is not to be compared with these, but nevertheless is interesting. It is that of a 5-year-old boy in Los Angeles who every night before he goes to bed adds to his evening prayer this petition: "Oh, Jesus, send my papa a job!"

He Knows Brazil.

Chautauqua boys have a way of coming to the front. There's George Vincent, for instance, son of Bishop Vincent, the founder of Chautauqua, who has worked his way to the top until he is president of the University of Minnesota. Then there is his cousin, Leon Vincent, the brilliant lecturer, and his brother Harry, who is a distinguished musician. There's "Pansy's" son, Raymond Alden, a professor at Stanford University and winner, a few years ago, of a $1000 prize in a short-story contest.

The latest Chautauquan to appear before a Los Angeles public is Prof. P. A. Martin of Stanford University, who gave a most fascinating lecture before the Ebell Club Monday afternoon. He is a son of the late A. M. Martin, for many years field secretary of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle, and like his confreres above mentioned he has distinctly "made good." He has recently returned from South America, where he was sent by Stanford University to secure historical data. His lecture was illustrated by some splendid photographic slides. It seems a curious condition that Brazil's wonderful mineral mountain, running from 70 to 80 per cent. solid iron, is yet untouched, because Brazil has no coal. The pictures of the splendid public buildings of Rio Janeiro excited a great deal of interest, especially the operahouse and library.

At the close of the lecture Prof. Martin and his mother, Mrs. A. M. Martin, who resides in Los Angeles, received with the president, Mrs. W. L. Jones, at an informal reception which was held in the tearoom.

A Texas Turkey Trot.

The Texas cattle queen has long been a common figure among female financiers, but it seems she is to have a rival now, for the gobbling of the turkey is mingling joyfully with the low of the kine on the Texas plains, and Texas women are turning their attention to turkey raising. It is an easy occupation, providing you can keep the turks' feet and feathers dry for the first thirty days—after that they take care of themselves.

Down in Cuero county, which is the center of the turkey-producing section of Texas, they have inaugurated a novelty in the shape of a turkey pageant, when the turkeys are put on public parade, led by a band of music down the principal streets of the county seat. This year over [illegible] turkeys marched, being driven to the occasion from a point [illegible] miles distant. They were two days on the way, roosting over night in a forest of trees. This turkey trot has become so popular that this year it occupied four days, with a parade each day.

In common with our California Raisin Day, inaugurated by our Fresno neighbors, a feature of this turkey pageant is the feast of turkeys which follows it. Hotels, boarding-houses and restaurants prepare special dishes of roast turkey, turkey hash, turkey pie, etc.

Everybody enjoys this but the turkeys.

Miss Miriam L. Woodbury,
Of New York, national secretary of the Home Missionary Society of the Congregational Church, who is spending two weeks in Southern California, and who will speak next Thursday morning at the First Congregational Church before the Women's Missionary Society.

Young Women's Work.

Mrs. C. M. Carter, wife of the pastor of the First Baptist Church, has planned a special service for [illegible] evening at the church on Flower street, near Eighth, which will appeal especially to young women. In fact, the service is to be carried on by the young women of the church, with the exception of the sermon which will be preached by Dr. Carter, on the topic, "The Old-Fashioned Girl—Is She Dead?"

There are a large number of young women in this church, and this service is an effort to reach out for more. There will be young women ushers, a young woman's choir and quartette, and six live girls will answer three live questions.

"The questions are such as I have met in my work among young women," says Mrs. Carter, "and will be answered in a little platform meeting preceding the sermon. I am told there are approximately 75,000 young women in Los Angeles, and only [illegible] reached in any way by Christian organizations. We want to know these girls, and following the service there will be a reception, an acquaintance again, and light refreshments will be served."

These are the three questions:

"Ought a clerk or teacher who works six days be asked to do Christian work on Sunday?"

"Does this church provide enough social life for young women?"

"Is this church friendly toward young women strangers?"

During the past week 2000 invitations to this service have been sent out, in stores, offices, rooming-houses, homes, cafeterias, and wherever young women can be reached. The service was especially designed to take advantage of this particular Sunday, which has been designated as "The day when everybody goes to church."

A Public Christmas Tree.

At last we are to have it—a Christmas tree in Central Park. The Woman's Million Club is mother of the idea. The custom was started some years ago in eastern cities, and as one might guess, it was women who put forward the scheme there, with possibly one notable exception. I believe it was through the instrumentality of that friend of forlorn childhood, Jacob A. Riis, that the municipal Christmas tree has now become a Yuletide feature in Madison Square, New York. Last year 30,000 women and children gathered about this great "tree of light," and New York had a real Christmas.

In Newark (N. J.) the Woman's Club will be sponsor for the first public Christmas tree, this year. Wilkesbarre (Pa.) will likewise this year have her first public Christmas tree, and Philadelphia is planning for a wonderful demonstration in Independence Square, where, under the shadow of the old State House, with its liberty bell, a great Christmas tree seventy feet high, with over [illegible] colored lights in its branches and a giant star six feet in diameter, will be raised. When the Mayor touches the button the star will burst into light, and a chorus of 1000 voices and a band of forty-five musicians will break into one of the old-fashioned carols.

The St. Louis women have gone a step farther, and sent out a dozen bands of carolers into residence streets. The women of San Francisco have discovered the municipal Christmas tree, and with the lavishness characteristic of California, set up last year not one, but seven, in Golden Gate Park, and invited children to meet Santa Claus there.

In eastern cities, where the frost king reigns at Christmas time, of necessity evergreen trees are brought from a distance and set up in public places. Happily, here in Los Angeles, where Christmas comes under smiling skies and in the balmy atmosphere of June, no such necessity arises. We can select any one or two or three of our growing trees, and decorate them, and have a really "live" Christmas tree. Chief Sebastian has been designated as Santa Claus, and several hundred pounds of candy, nuts and fruit will be distributed to the children of the city. The movement is fairly under way, and it goes without saying it will gain in momentum as Christmas approaches.

Entre Nous Club.

An open meeting of the [illegible] Heights Entre Nous Club will be held on December 1[illegible] from 3 to [illegible] at the residence of Mrs. [illegible] No. 209 North Soto street.

Fancy Aprons for Gifts

Mighty few women will go to the trouble to make aprons for themselves as these are made, no matter how much they enjoy wearing them. These were bought especially for gifts.

Aprons of plain or dotted net or swiss, of dainty laces and embroideries. Dozens of brand new ideas in serving aprons, maids' and nurse girls' aprons. Prices 35c to $3.

Boudoir Caps

The word "charming" describes these caps better than any other term we can think of.

Fancy woven muslins, shadow laces or nets are employed. Some are lined with printed silks showing the figure through, others with plain. They are finished with dainty ribbons and laces. Not one style, or two, but dozens of them. 65c to $2.00.

Camisoles, 75c to $6.00. A new line, and as pretty and dainty as can be. Add them to your list.

Crepe de Chine and Silk gowns, $9.00 to $16.00. Slips, $3.95 to $15.00. Skirts, $6.00 to $15.00. Combinations, $7.00 and $8.00.

You know how acceptable such things are!

The Washington County Hospital and the Washington County Free Library of Hagerstown, Md., will shortly receive $405,595.62 from the estate of the late Edward W. Mealey, one of Hagerstown's wealthiest residents. Mealey, after providing liberally for his wife, bequeathed the bulk of his estate to the two institutions with which he was so closely identified in his lifetime.

His wife survived him only a short time, and he left no children. The court has now ordered the distribution to the hospital of $180,000 in stocks and bonds, and $72,920 in cash, and to the library $90,000 in stocks and bonds and $36,465 in cash.

A man who gave his name as W. C. Bush of Waukesha, Wis., gave 20 cents to Ben Smelser, agent of the Union Traction Company, in Marion, Ind., with the explanation that the money was due the company, since Bush's wife eight years ago received 20 cents too much change from a conductor.

Bush said he lived formerly in Marion and Fairmount, and that when converted three weeks ago he promised the Lord he would return to Grant county and settle financial obligations of former years. He said he had seen at least forty persons in Marion, Jonesboro and Fairmount, and had paid them money.

The newly-organized Minneapolis Society for the Blind today made public plans for a campaign to help the blind of Minneapolis, estimated at [illegible] in number, to help themselves, by obtaining for them employment, amusements and training that they may not become dependents. A similar organization is to be effected soon in St. Paul. Later, a State society will be formed to bring about the establishment of a State home for dependent blind persons, of whom there are now eight or more in Hennepin county. The initial work will be started in four branches:

Educational—Employing of home instructors to teach reading and handwork, that the blind may learn ways of occupying their time.

Social—Arranging for evenings at homes and for automobiles and guides to carry blind persons to them; also a ticket bureau where holders of season and other lecture and theater tickets who find they cannot use them, may leave them for the benefit of the blind.

Industrial—Finding of suitable employment for the blind, who can render valuable services if placed in the right positions.

Preventive — Founding of dispensaries where medical treatment will be given and aiding in general health work.

The society has already received financial aid. Dr. S. M. Moulton has volunteered to give free treatment and medicines to all blind persons recommended by the society, and B. B. Sheffield, president of the directors of the school for the blind, has pledged a cash subscription equal to one-tenth of the total funds raised by the society before January 1.

MEN AND EVENTS

After six years' mental derangement caused by a sickness, James Hebron of New York City suddenly recovered his memory and all his mental faculties when he struck his head in a severe fall which he had.

D. F. Weaver of Minerva, Ky., thanks to the industry of his bees, has just shipped 13,981 pounds of honey to sweet-toothed Cincinnati.

George Pople, oldest Odd Fellow in the United States, charter member of Cornucopia Lodge, F. and A. M., and for more than seventy years a resident of the old village of Flushing, died at the home of his son, on the eve of his ninetieth birthday.

Frank F. Gesner of Springfield, Mass., has killed a bushel of flies within a few weeks—that is, the insects he has swatted actually fill a bushel basket. Mrs. Gesner thinks that her husband is at least New England's champion.

Andrew Kangstrom, a Swedish graduate student at Cornell, will lead another assault on Mt. McKinley next summer, under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution.

Robert W. Emmons, II, who has been selected to manage next season the America Cup defender that is to be built by Nat Herreschoff for a syndicate of New Yorkers, is a Boston man, and is well known in the world of yachting. In 1911 his Bibelot was one of the three boats selected to go across the ocean, and at Kiel Mr. Emmons won with her the Emperor's Cup. The German yachtsmen were so taken with the Bibelot that they bought her and she never was brought back to the United States.

Augustus Cordier, Jr., 23, son of the late Augustus Cordier, who was president of the Lalance & Grosjean agateware factory in Woodhaven, L. I., has begun work as a workman in the factory. When the young man's father died he left his extensive interests to his widow, who is said to be worth several millions. Each morning this week Cordier has arisen early and, scorning the use of one of his mother's automobiles, has gone by train to Woodhaven. He dons overalls and works as hard as any of the employees. He is known as Gus to his fellow-workmen.

Commodore Alfred Brown of College Point, N. Y., has sailed for Panama. He will try to swim through the canal, a distance of forty-eight miles. Brown recently swam from the Battery to Sandy Hook.

William Moeller of the Denver police force stands six feet seven inches and weighs 204 pounds. He has been successful in many different forms of athletics, from football to swimming, and when being examined for the police force received a mark of 100.

Herbert Jump, who grows chrysanthemums on an extensive scale at his home in Milford, Del., has used umbrellas to protect them from the frosts. Each umbrella is half-opened, with two or three blossoms tied together underneath it.

The first prize offered by the Good Farming Association of North Dakota for boy farmers was won by Henry F. Granlund, who raised from one acre 106.7 bushels of corn. The prize consisted of $100 in gold.

Philip Voss recently paid $50 for an inch of land in New York City. The inch was needed to give him a clear title to a piece of praperty which he already owned.

Henry Nagle of New Holland, Pa., has the honor of having completed fifty years as treasurer of Earl Lodge, No. 413, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, a distinction given to few, if any, other person in Pennsylvania. He has been a member of the order for more than sixty years, and is not only the oldest member of Earl Lodge, but one of the oldest Odd Fellows in that State.

SUPPLEMENTING THE TIMES CABLE NEWS.

IN ENGLAND.

No Coffins and No Burials in Liverpool.

Owing to a threatened strike of coachmen employed by the undertakers at Liverpool, Eng., who are affiliated with the Carters' Union and thus form a strong body, orders for burials have been declined by many of the undertaking establishments, the dead being taken to their last resting place by private conveyances. In many cases even coffins are not obtainable, as the coffinmakers and polishers also demand better terms. The coachmen insist on a schedule of hours from 7 to 7 on week days; six hours on Sundays and 35 shillings per week.

John Still at It.

At the London Horticultural Hall, the London Bulldog Society held an exposition of 200 animals of this "gentle" breed, the total value being something like $100,000. Several of the dogs were valued at $5000 and plenty of others at $2500. The vagaries of fashion do not effect the bulldog. He is a staple article in the tight little isle, good puppies being often sold for $250 and over.

He Likes Prison Life.

Benjamin Phillips, who had been discharged from prison after having spent forty years of his life behind prison walls, always for damage offenses, was again sent to prison for nine months for smashing a window in one of the big shops of the London Strand. It must be remembered that this is winter in London and a warm prison with a quantity of grub is better than sleeping on the Embankment between police patrol, covered with fog and not a morsel within.

Costly Furs.

Bargusinsky sables lately sold at auction at Nesbitt's in London, fetched $325 per skin. Is it any wonder that Congressman Jefferson M. Levy paid $30,000 for his fur overcoat? Bargusinsky sables come high when one is in politics.

He May Come Here.

Emanuel Bisgyer, a London merchant, is only nine-and-twenty, as they say in the classics, but he has managed to "do" some Italian silk merchants out of $250,000. He has jumped his bail, and as steamers are said to go directly from England to America without stopping at wayside stations where an English "canstabul" is likely to show up, it is quite probable that Emanuel may hie himself hitherward. A few others have done the same thing.

IN IRELAND.

Irish Present to Prince Arthur.

The Irish people who sent a wedding present to Prince Arthur of Connaught, were gratified at the appreciation manifested by His Royal Highness in a letter addressed to Lady Fitzgerald-Arnott, who was entrusted with the presentation of the gift to the Prince and the Duchess of Fife. "I look back upon the time spent in Dublin, when my father was Commander of the Forces, as the happiest years of my life," wrote the Prince, and he may be sure that the Irish people, with the big hearts in them, know how to love a man who loves them.

Carnegie's Money to a Woman.

The trustees of the Carnegie Hero Fund have awarded Mrs. Mary Jane Howe of Drumgarley Farm, Newbliss, county Monaghan, £10 in recognition of her heroic action in going to the rescue of her mother-in-law and her three children, who had been attacked by a maddened bull. Mrs. Howe seized the bull by the nose ring and pulled it away, holding it resolutely until farm hands came to her assistance.

If the Government Owned Utilities.

An important decision affecting postmasters was given by Judge Wakeley at Sligo Quarter Sessions, when Bernard Clancy, postmaster, Cliffoney, was decreed for £6 15s. for an error in the transmission of a telegram sent by James Hamilton, hotel keeper, Bundoran, to John Lang of Grange, county Sligo, directing him to buy nine calves at £4 5s each. In telegraphing the figures were given as £5 5s., at which price the calves were bought.

IN SCOTLAND.

Carnegie's Bible.

It was reported at a meeting of the Carnegie Dunfermline Trustees that Mr. Carnegie had presented to the Pittencrieff House Museum a Bible dated 1791, a pocketbook with manuscript notes, and a notebook with a number of jottings in connection with the work of weavings, all of which articles belonged to Mr. Carnegie's father.

Workmen's Homes at Argyll.

Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, cut the first sod and planted the first tree on the site of a garden village to be erected at Alexandria for the workers employed in the motor-works of Argylls, Ltd. The site is a beautiful one. To the north the hills round Loch Lomond form a fine background; to the east are the wooded banks of the River Leven; and to the west the undulating park of Tullichewan Castle. The total cost of each house is estimated at £250, and the rent is to be 7s 9d. per week, including rates and taxes.

Rebellion in Scotland Public School.

The youngsters in the public school at Duns are protesting vigorously "against working overtime" in the shape of home lessons. The Black Flag (a coal sack,) with the headmaster's name blazoned on it, was hoisted on the school flag-staff, and a gutter-band made things lively in the vicinity of the schoolmaster's house. Next morning a number of the bigger boys refused to enter the school, but now they are feeling rather tender over the business, no doubt due to the correcting rod.

LONDON LOSING PRESTIGE AS THEATRICAL CENTER.

With Fifty-four Licensed Houses Nightly Attendance Only Averages Between Twenty-five and Thirty Thousand—Ministers and Bishops Are Heading Crusade to Abolish Improper Vaudeville Acts.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Theatrical business in England is slumping downwards. The London stage is in a parlous state, and nobody knows what is going to happen—least of all the theatrical managers who wring their hands helplessly and try to think they may be saved by the names of great authors or by new and extravagant methods of advertisement.

One grim fact, however, stands out with startling distinctness. London has ceased to be the principal play producing center in Europe. Bernard Shaw, for instance, prefers Berlin or Vienna, and men like Sir J. M. Barrie and Arnold Bennett declare in private they pin their faith to the judgment of New York. Smaller men than these blame the critics, but the critics of London are no better and no worse than the critics of other European capitals. And first night audiences who go out to wreck plays—as they did recently for Ned Wayburn and his "Magic Staircase"—can be easily sat on and made to be good.

Pretty Sheila Hayes, who has just concluded her engagement as a "star" in Shaw's ill-fated play, "Androcles and the Lion," says that actors and actresses with creative ability are looking to the big cities of the United States in ever-increasing numbers to save them from the dead rot that has set in on the London stage. "I am off to New York soon," she added, "and I know I shall have a good time in America. There is no audience in the world so keen and so appreciative of your best efforts as is an American."

QUAINT EXPERIMENTS.

Meanwhile all manner of quaint and curious experiments are being tried in London, to crush vaudeville entertainments, to keep the "movies" in a suitably-humble position, and to make theaters crowded to their doors. For instance, on December 8 London is to have "The Woman's Theater," that remarkable new enterprise of a group of suffragettes, the Actresses' Franchise League, when will be staged a translation by Mrs. Bernard Shaw of Brieux's "La Femme Seule." This is not done to oust men or to be antagonistic to them, but to help women. The secretary of it points out:

"The English stage is very much overcrowded so far as women are concerned. There are twenty applicants for every woman's vacancy to two for every man's. The Woman's Theater is going to extend woman's field in the theater to other branches besides acting. Many modern actresses have excellent business capabilities, and we are going to have women stage managers, women producers, and women in charge of the box office at our headquarters. Men will not be employed except as actors.

"It is our intention also to fight to our utmost against the sex qualification in the theater. There ought to be no sex in art, and yet it is an undoubted fact that a large proportion of managers (there are many honorable exceptions, I am glad to say) still appraise an applicant not by her abilities, but by her phisical attractiveness. A woman of talent ought not to be compelled to go through the ordeal of being regarded much as if she were some prize animal. I have been through the experience myself, and I will never forget it. They do things better in Russia, where ability, and ability alone, counts in the theater. If our organization does nothing else but eliminate this low sex standard, it will have done a fine thing.

"The Woman's Theater also intends to bring about a revolution in the way in which less important actresses are treated at some theaters. I know a beautiful, refined girl who has a 'walking-on' part, and when she had to attend four weeks of all-day rehearsals she was not even provided with a chair to sit on. All day long she stood on her feet, and could scarcely crawl home with fatigue. Moreover, the insolence and bad language from stage employees and underlings to which women have to submit in some theaters is almost incredible.

"We also intend to help women generally by the plays we produce, and to counteract the effects of plays of the low French farce type, which are so popular in London just now. What kind of effect can plays which deal almost exclusively with the 'cleverness' of men who tell lies to their wives and fiancees in order to cover up their escapades have on the average young man or woman who flock to see them? These plays teach boys that it is quite a manly thing to make fun of their womenfolk by hoodwinking them, and teach girls that the ordinary manly man usually acts in this despicable fashion."

VAUDEVILLE CRUSADE?

Concurrently with this, an agitation has been headed in London by the bishop of London and other ministers to crush improper vaudeville turns. As several public men have pointed out, London just now is suffering from the debasing influence of indecent entertainments. And the chief point of attack is the Palace Theater and its manager, Alfred Butt. Thus we are told:

"Long before Butt controlled the destinies of the Palace, the first controversy raged over certain 'living pictures' which were considered daring. They saved the Palace from failure, but there was a long public discussion as to their desirability.

"Butt's first phenomenal success was the engagement of Miss Maud Allan. It is not necessary to speculate as to what proportion of Miss Allan's popularity was due to her artistic dancing and what proportion to the scantiness of her attire. It is interesting, however, to recall that the suggestive features of her performance were deliberately accented in a brochure written by a well-known Irishman, and issued by the Palace.

"Butt afterwards withdrew this pamphlet, but its appearance is evidence of the tendency towards 'the verge.'

"Much more recently came Prof. Max Reinhardt's production of 'A Venetian Night,' which the Lord Chamberlain stopped at the last moment on account of impropriety, and which, as it finally appeared, was extremely dull and Teutonically vulgar. It was unlucky in all the circumstances that the Lord Chamberlain, so soon after music halls had come under his jurisdiction, should have been forced to interfere with a house of the importance of the Palace.

"Mlle. Gaby Deslys and the unsavory interest aroused by her suggestive dancing again brought the Palace into unpleasant prominence, and while no one suggests that clergymen should become unofficial censors of public entertainments, it is undeniable that in this instance the protests agains the dancers were well founded.

COLORED MAN ELECTED MAYOR.

Battersea's Choice Second in Country's History.

Harbor for North Sea Fleet Nears Completion.

Turbines for New Liner of Novel Design.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—While Battersea has been electing a colored man to be its Mayor, the second time in the history of the country that a native of the West Indies has reached that position, some of the provincial towns have either declined or placed obstacles in the way of workingmen who aspired to the chief magistracy of their towns.

The most notable case of the rejection of a workingman candidate occurred at York. Here, as in all English cities, the Mayor is elected by the City Council and invariably the Senior Alderman is chosen. At York Alderman J. H. Hartley, the senior member of the Board of Aldermen, a railway shunter, was by all precedents of the Council entitled to the position and he was actually offered and had accepted it. When the Council met to ratify the election, however, the Unionist members offered a candidate in his place, and succeeded in defeating the workingman choice. This was in spite of a resolution passed at a great mass meeting of the citizens calling on the Council to adhere to its original decision. As a result the laborites throughout the country are charging the members of the York City Council with a downright act of snobbishness.

In other towns, notably Bradford, Yorkshire, where a workingman elected to the City Council was dismissed by his employers, and Warrington, where the new Mayor received similar treatment, certain classes have been showing their objection to workingmen gaining an ascendency in civic affairs.

The colored Mayor of Battersea is John Richard Archer. He is the son of a West Indian, but was himself born in Liverpool. His wife, who is colored, is a native of Canada. Mr. Archer was elected by the votes of the Progressive or Liberal members of the Battersea Council.

NEW NAVAL BASE.

The Rosyth Naval Base, which England is building at immense cost to harbor her North Sea fleet and better enable her to meet any attack from Germany, will be completed a year ahead of contract time.

Commenced in 1909, the contractors were given until 1916 to finish their work, but it is now announced that the base will be ready for use in 1915, although many additions have been made to the original plans. The original scheme called for a high level main basin covering fifty-five acres, with an entrance lock from the fairway enabling ships to pass out and in at all states of the tide; a dry dock 750 feet long by 110 feet wide; a submarine tidal basin; workshops and offices, and electrical power and pumping stations. To this was added another double dry dock and a third dry basin. Besides, a new town is being built for a population of 30,000 persons.

The turbines for the new Cunard liner Aquitania, which weigh about 1400 tons, and are the largest ever constructed, comprise the latest ideas in marine engineering. Thousands of pounds were spent in experimenting, and full use has been made of the experience gained by the company in the construction and running of their other turbine ships, the Carmania, Lusitania, and Mauretania. In the case of the Aquitania an exceptionally high degree of economy is maintained by passing steam successively through high-pressure, intermediate and low-pressure turbine to the condenser, instead of as formerly, direct from high to low pressure. This ensures more work from both coal and water.

A special feature is the arrangement made for going astern. Each of the four propeller shafts has an independent turbine for this purpose. There will be over a million turbine blades in the engines, which, if placed end to end would reach more than 140 miles.

UNIONS DEMAND RECOGNITION.

The Railwaymen's Union is voting on a proposal to give notice of the termination of the counciliation scheme agreed upon by the men and the companies after the strike of 1911. The result will not be made known until the middle of December and then, if it is in the affirmative, a year's notice will have to be given the companies.

Nevertheless, the men and the companies are looking forward to it with a great deal of interest, mixed with misgivings. The effect would be to reopen the whole question of the relations between the companies and their employees. On the whole the conciliation boards have worked well, for out of a total of 219 settlements, 204 were reached by mutual agreement without the assistance of an independent chairman appointed by the Board of Trade. The complaint of the men is that these independent chairmen are chosen invariably from the "capitalist" class and that they favor the companies as against the workers.

However, the real object of those who desire to abrogate the agreement is to obtain recognition of the union, which has gained enormously in membership since the Royal Commission drafted the conciliation scheme. The commission pronounced definitely against the recognition of the union, because the companies would not permit of intervention between themselves and their men on the subject of discipline and management. It is understood that the companies are now prepared to discuss the question of recognition.

KING COSTLY TO BAVARIA.

Berlin Police Have Arrested Clever Counterfeiter.

Germans Adopt Scientific Way to Kill Mice.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—The Bavarian people will pay well for the luxury of being ruled by a real king. Under the twenty-seven-year regency, which has just come to an end, they paid Ludwig, as Prime Regent, $85,000 a year; as King he will cost them $1,500,000 every twelve months.

This sum includes certain comfortable allowances to the new King's sons and daughters, who, up to the present time, have received nothing from the public treasury. Now Crown Prince Rupprecht will get $98,500 a year; Prince Franz, brother-in-law of the new American Duchess of Croy, who was Miss Nancy Leishman, gets $34,000; Prince Karl, who is unmarried, $26,000, and the five Princesses, Adelegrunde, Hildegarde, Wiltrud, Helmtrudis and Gundelinde, $6300 each.

Other expenses upon the new civil list bring the total cost of maintaining the royal family, exclusive of the amount spent on the insane King Otto, to $1,716,434, or about 25 cents per head of the Bavarian population per year. Prussians have to pay per capita for their royalty only half as much.

The incomes of the new royalties will be supplemented by the revenues from the private fortunes of the Wittelsbach house, which, in spite of the great sums spent by the mad King Ludwig II, in castle and theater building and in beautifying the City of Munich, are still immense.

AMERICANS IN RUSSIA.

The plan to organize an American Chamber of Commerce in St. Petersburg has attracted much attention from German business men, who see in it a systematic effort to eliminate Germany from its present position as intermediary of the trade between Russia and the United States.

Most of Russia's imports from America are first sent to Hamburg and Bremen, whence they are transshipped to Riga and St. Petersburg. Another step toward displacing Germany as a point of transit for this commerce is seen in a projected steamship line connection between Gothenburg, Sweden and Harwich, Eng. According to reports from Stockholm, the purpose of this new line is to divert, in part, Russia's trade with western Europe and the United States to the route through Sweden, for which favorable through rates over the Finnish and Russian railways will be arranged.

In another direction, too, there is a prospect that Germany's trade relations with Russia may become disturbed. Every year about 225,000 Polish laborers leave Russia to take summer work on German farms, returning to their homes at the end of the season. Recently a Russian commission came to Germany with the ostensible purpose of studying the economic situation of these laborers. In the German press, however, it is asserted that the real object of the Russian government is to prepare the way for prohibiting this temporary emigration of laborers, unless the German government makes big concession to Russia in the forthcoming negotiations for a new commercial treaty.

FIND CLEVER COUNTERFEITER.

The Berlin police have just arrested a remarkable counterfeiter, barely in time to prevent the circulation of 20-mark notes (approximately equal in value to an American $5 bill) printed by the same processes used in the Imperial Bank, and so perfect that only an expert with a microscope could have detected them. So clever was the counterfeiter that he had taken advantage of suggestions, in a circular of warning issued by the authorities against his first batch of notes, to improve his product almost beyond the possibility of detection.

Some months ago nine of the notes found their way to the bank and were stamped as dangerous counterfeits. The customary circular of warning was sent out, describing the notes and the particulars in which they differed from genuine currency. The man arrested on the charge of making and uttering these notes is 40 years old and a painter and decorator by trade. By years of study he became an expert in photography, color processes and engraving. He then turned out a first batch of thirteen twenties, all of which he passed in one day. From the circular sent out by the Imperial Bank he learned in what details these notes were faulty, and set about studying the bank's own processes. When arrested he had made presses and plates for printing notes precisely as they are printed by the Imperial Bank. Four of the first thirteen notes are still in circulation.

TRIBUTE TO WILSON.

A high tribute to President Wilson is paid by the Frankfort Gazette, which, however, takes occasion to criticise the American government's Mexican policy. The paper declares that "the place for this idealist is in political life, and we should consider ourselves fortunate if we had at the head of the German government an idealist of such will power and progressive tendencies."

KILLING OFF MICE.

German science has lately turned its attention to mouse-killing, and an effective method of exterminating the rodents by exploding bombs in their holes is the result. The country is just now suffering from something like an Egyptian plague of mice, and the scientific men long have been trying to find a means of killing the pests by wholesale. A German chemist has discovered a method of using with safety bisulphide of carbon, a gas which poisons small life. Capsules containing the elements of the gas and a little explosive cartridge are lowered into the burrows of the mice, all the entrances are stopped with earth, the capsule is exploded and the gas generated permeates all parts of the holes, killing every inmate. The process is swift, requires little labor, and is cheap.

London Loosing Prestige

tiveness of amusement caterers. One manager copies another's success even in the matter of innocent novelties. A music hall prepares a 'staircase' act, and its rivals forthwith engage carpenters who work night and day building bigger staircases for similar acts.

'Such imitativeness naturally extends to that class of entertainment which panders to degenerate tastes. If a dancer fills pit and stalls because of her artistic posturing in bare legs, the demand arises for other dancers who, although possibly less artistic, are not afraid of cold feet.

"If the paying attraction at one variety theater is a debased dance, such as the now-all-but-dead 'bunny hug,' competing houses go one better. If indecency scores a success at one music hall, then the market for out-and-out indecent 'turns' is booming."

Thus the craze for outraging proprieties threatens to become a poisonous epidemic in London, and some of it may certainly be traced to the fact that the British theater is also on the down grade.

With a population of seven millions, and the host of visitors always here, the nightly audiences at the fifty-four licensed theaters is only between 25,000 and 30,000. That means that for the bulk of the people of London the theater is practically non-existent; that the London public are not a theater-going public. There is no repertory theater at all, and a very slender choice of plays worth seeing each week.

In contrast to this, Berlin, with a population of two millions, has thirty theaters, of which twelve are repertory theaters, and a choice every week of some seventy-five plays.

London also needs working-class theaters. St. Petersburg and Moscow have such places, where, for 6 or 12 cents, classical plays can be seen.

QUEEN'S FAD IS KNITTING.

She of Ten Takes Her Ball of Wool to a Tiresome Function or During a Drive.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—King George, it has just been discovered, is a very great admirer of Nelson and portraits of the great admiral are to be found in nearly all his Majesty's private apartments.

A small picture of Nelson is hung over the King's bed on board the Victoria and Albert and a larger picture is to be found in the cabin that leads out of the sleeping berth. The King is also very fond of pictures of great naval battles and sea pieces generally and he also possesses a wonderful library of naval literature.

On the other hand Queen Mary has a mania for knitting. It is Her Majesty's custom to conceal a ball of wool under her bouquet whenever a particularly tiresome function is on hand. This more particularly applies during a carriage drive, and is the result of the Queen never having mastered the all-important Royal knack of "knowing what to do with your hands." King Edward was famous for his gracefulness in this respect.

The Queen also knits throughout her private receptions, and there are many children in Belgravia who may one day boast that the Queen of England made their clothes. Take, for instance, the Roxburghe heir, Lord Bowmont. Her Majesty spent two or three days on some white woolen underwear for the infant, and even went so far as to try the garment on the baby at the Duchess's town house.

LABOR TROUBLES HURT ERIN.

Financiers Give Cold Shoulder to Propositions Asking for Investments or Speculations.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

DUBLIN, Nov. 22.—Those who have been following closely the course of events in Ireland within the last two or three months declare that the progress of the country has had a setback from which even a native Parliament will not be able to rescue it in twenty years.

It had taken years to establish any sort of confidence in the minds of financiers that Ireland was a favorable ground for investments. Political and labor disturbances have now practically killed most of the good work done by the Industrial Development Association, with the result that not a cent can be found in the country to float an industrial enterprise. The government savings banks are uncomfortably packed with Irish money. Money can be had for English or French rubber, automobiles and even for such a speculative affair as aviation, but you could not find so much as would supply the motive power to a donkey barrow if the investment were earmarked for Ireland itself.

This breach between capital and labor will take years to heal, because labor thinks, rightly or wrongly, it has been living in a sort of fool's Paradise for a generation. It realizes now that many who are so bitterly opposed to its demands have merely masqueraded for years as the friends of Ireland and the Irish laborer. This feeling has lent additional bitterness to the situation.

NEW ERA AT BUCKINGHAM.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—A new and charming era in the life of the royal family of England has just been started by the transformation of Buckingham Palace. It has been King George's and Queen Mary's particular wish that Princess Mary's "coming out" should be surrounded by every pleasant circumstance and that her London home should be transfigured from its rather drab, early Victorian appearance to a more modern and joyful setting. Hence the choice of pretty pinks and gold which have been so largely used in the interior.

The court is now rejoicing at the disappearance of certain dreary and inconvenient old landmarks and of the heavy look of the state rooms. It is hoped, too, that the era of change will be marked by an improvement in English court ceremonies, which left a little to be desired, notably in the appearance of one of the large drawing-rooms, where the ladies awaiting presentation seemed rather like an audience awaiting a concert where the music had failed.

It is becoming quite a rage for women to decorate their rooms in their pet color scheme. One of Lord Brassey's daughters, who is very fond of violets, some time ago had her boudoir painted in this shade, with curtains, carpet, lamp shades and everything to match.

Her writing paper, monogram, address—everything—was in harmony, and the idea was thoroughly carried out. Another well-known woman has a rose-colored boudoir, and Lady Evelyn Cotterell, one of the Duke of Richmond's daughters, has a charming apartment in gray-blue, a shade of color that wants very careful selecting, otherwise with artificial light it fades into a dirty gray appearance.

Beyond the Atlantic.

own more land in the United Kingdom than they can properly handle with profit, have offered the English government a little over 900,000 acres of the Scottish Highlands at a price close on to $10,000,000. The lands are for deer preserves, the noble owners reserving to themselves the fishing rights in the rivers and in the sea. We wonder if the common people will be allowed to go shooting in these preserves or if they will be the exclusive property of the officialdom of England. At all events the world knows that the Scottish Highlands so long practically closed to the people will now become public property.

IN FRANCE.

The Thief-Catcher Robbed.

The ex-Prefect of Paris, M. Lepine, one of the greatest police officials of modern times, while waiting for a train at Esschen Station in Belgium, had his pocketbook, containing a large sum of money stolen and he did not discover his loss until he was on the train.

Cambon to Retire.

The French Ambassador to Germany, M. Cambon, who was the leading factor in avoiding war between France and Germany over the Moroccan trouble in 1911 and who was greatly appreciated by the Kaiser's government for his work, will resign his post on January 1, 1914. It is said that he will receive an important place in the home government.

IN SPAIN.

The Krupps in Spain.

With the rise of commercial activity that has taken place in Spain since the war with the United States of America the north has taken the lead. In the Basque provinces, San Sebastian and Bilbao have become commercial centers, the former on account of its beautiful situation and its fame as the summer resort of Don Alfonso and hence of the entire nobility and the "richesse" of the country, also because it is, so near Biarritz and on the line from Madrid to Paris, and the city of Bilbao because of the mineral wealth in the mountains surrounding it. Probably the greatest iron mines in Europe are now being developed by the Krupps of Cannon fame for their industries at Essen and Bochum in Westphalia. One of these mines belonging to a Basque peasant has been leased for a long term of years by the Krupps at an annual rental of 60,000 pesos and a big smelter is now in course of construction. Other large smelters are in operation and altogether the iron industry in that locality bids fair to become one of the most extensive in Europe. San Sebastian also is very active and the harbor at Passages accommodates now not only the big mineral steamers from England, France and Germany but also many transatlantic boats that go directly from Spain to South and North America.

Anti-Gambling.

The late Spanish Premier Canalejas, who was assassinated because of his activity in the Ferrer execution, was the first Spanish official to take a decided stand against gambling and it was he by whose orders the Casino at San Sebastian, similar in character to Monte Carlo, was for a time closed and then modified to the elimination of roulette.

Hitherto the country was wide open and in San Sebastian not only the foreigners but also the natives were shorn of everything they had. The Lessee, a former French waiter, made an enormous fortune out of his two casinos, one in San Sebastian, and the other at Nice, and the one in the former place was the proverbial thieves' den. So open and barefaced was the robbery in this casino that the croupiers frequently laughed in the faces of the players when they lost. With the advent of Queen Victoria at San Sebastian a curb was put on the robbers, roulette being forbidden during the residence of the Queen. But it was not a bit better at the other games. Baccarat and Trente-Quarante had the finest slight-of-hand men as the dealers. Men and women were allowed to win large sums only to have them taken from them at the next deal.

The complaints that reached the Premier went toward eliciting an investigation with the result that the casino was for a time entirely closed. But money and influence reopened it again, but not with roulette. This game is now entirely forbidden even in the private casinos, such as exist in the larger cities all over Spain. This edict nearly ruined the casino at Madrid which was built at an expenditure of over a million dollars, until the Count de Romanones, the former Premier, who is a large stockholder in the casino, winked his eye and the casino was saved. What Dato, the present Premier, will do is not known, but as Dato does not fancy the French "Chevalliers d' Industrie" who infest the border town, it is likely that roulette will henceforth be a memory in San Sebastian.

IN GERMANY.

"Sie Lebe Hoch!"

The Kaiserin of Germany has celebrated her fifty-fifth birthday. Sie lebe hoch!

Berlin chronicled the visit of the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs, Sasonow, to the Kaiser and the seismograph at London was in constant vibration. Somewhere in Russia there are vineyards and oranges grow as golden as in California and champagne is made to delight the palate of an epicure and men wear turbans and women have their faces veiled and precocious youths recite verses from the Koran, and somewhere in the British Empire there are other men with turbans, etc., although the other and more delectable things are missing, and these two peoples stretch hands over a narrow strip of some country peopled by some heathen persuasion, according to Christian standards; both Russia and England are tenderly solicitous for the psychic welfare of these peoples; the Kaiser stands at a distance and smiles like Mephisto at the dance of the Hexen, so when Sasonow goes to Berlin there is trembling at London. Ja so; schon gut.

"Piece Writers" and the Theater Business.

The stage has never been looked upon as a business proposition in Germany and by "Germany" is meant all the German-speaking countries, including Austria. The dramatist—the poet of the stage—lived in an ideal world of beautiful thought and heavenly abstinence of all things vulgar, including food and other minor details that ordinary people make such a fuss about. The managers who purveyed the ambrosia of the poets at so-an-so much admission fee, waxed fat on shekels while the poets grew thin on flattery. Now a new spirit has arisen among the "piece-writers" of Germany. They have begun to calculate the relative averages of cost, expenditures, number of theaters, audiences, admission fees and royalties paid to the 200 "piece-writers" that now form the "Verband"—or Association of Dramatists throughout the German-speaking countries. The result is quite interesting. There are then in Germany and Austria about 209 theaters that have an average attendance of from 500 to 1200 persons during the season which has 270 theater evenings with a paid admission of $35,000, or $9,500,000 per annum.

Deducting about $2,000,000 for royalty-free works, would leave $7,500,000 in the theater treasury, of which the 200 "piece-writers," receiving a royalty from 10 to 12 per cent., would enjoy the comfortable income of $37,500 per annum each. This, according to Mr. Hans Brennert in Die Woche, is one of the pleasant dreams the nasty part of which is the waking-up. Wonder what the statistics in America are in this respect?

Apfel-Zeit.

This is the apfel-zeit—apple-time—in Germany as in most countries of Europe, as it is, in fact, in our own country. In Germany agronomic writers go into supernal delights about the varieties each different section produces. Pomerania, Prussia, Westphalia, Bavaria and other sections produce under high cultivation their own special apple. Learned articles are written glorifying the product as to descent, color, size, aroma and taste. It is then "der grosse apfel," "der schoene apfel" or "das aepfelchen," the little apple. The Americans have not got so far and probably never will get to such delicate treatment of the Pomaceoe. In Kansas there are orchards with over 60,000 apple trees. In Oregon, where they celebrate Apple Day," there are apples that task the strength of an able-bodied man to carry off a sack containing two or three dozens. We could write quite a story about our apples, but what is the use; in Europe they would call it "Amerikanisch," which is tantamount to exaggeration. In other countries, like France and Spain, this is cider-time and le cidre de la Normandie is famous the wide world over where men have a champagne imagination and a cider pocketbook and where drunkenness, as in Spain, is a disgrace to inspire horror.

IN RUSSIA.

"The Political Prisoner."

The Prawda Truda, a workingman's paper, in St. Petersburg, was suspended by order of the police.

Conversion by Persuasion.

A polyglot paper published in the city of Warsaw under the significant name of The Political Prisoner, says that Dombrowski, an American citizen condemned for life to hard labor at Kutomara in Siberia, has sent word to a friend at Warsaw that by order of the prison authorities all prisoners must confess themselves before the Russian Pope, no matter what their religion may be. Refusal to obey the order deprives the prisoner of the necessaries and a second refusal subjects him to the flogging post. One of the prisoners committed suicide after the flogging.

Labor Strike in St. Petersburg.

After all there is something strong and courageous in the Russian "poloy" if they can organize a strike and march 10,000 strong in defiance of the police, which they did at St. Petersburg the other day. Of course to defy the Russian police by word of mouth and try to defy them in fact, is vastly different. The police, fortified by the Cossacks, made short work of the paraders.

Elimination of Poles.

The Polish railway line from Warsaw to Vienna, formerly the only line operated by private and Polish capital, has been nationalized under the Russian system and all the Polish employees substituted by Russians. Thousands of poor devils, grown gray in the service, are now without means of subsistence, while the imported Russian soldiers enjoy a lucrative income. It will be a miracle if the Poles, who have suffered much from Russian tyranny, will not rise in rebellion at this outrage.

The Duma and the Czar.

Foreseeing a struggle with the Duma, the Czar's government is preparing measures to curb the radical elements in the National Congress. It is quite likely that this will lead to serious results as the various parties in the Duma are as radical as the Czar's government is reactionary, and the published political programmes show a spirit of independence on the part of the Duma that promises well for the future of Russia. Even the bear gets old.

White Slavers in Poland.

White slavery is as old in Europe as its own civilization, but never on a large scale such as it has been carried on within the past twenty-five years, ever since, in fact, the great immigration into the United States has taken place. The traffic is not always for immoral purposes—the Ghetto sweat-shops need the human burden bearers in New York and other large cities. The supply comes largely from countries where the standard of education is low among the masses. Of these the Slav countries yield the most, and now the virtuous police at Warsaw actually discovered a regularly organized society with widespread agencies to procure the women necessary in their trade, and the principal agent, a certain Sejchart, was arrested. He will not be sent to Siberia, you may be sure; the Russian authorities place a limit upon a man's political expressions, but there has always been a premium placed in Russia upon bastardy; why should they treat harshly an allied activity?

LO, THE ORIGINAL CUBIST.

Lone Star, the Indian Artist, Declares the American Redskin Originated the Present Fad.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CARLISLE (Pa.) Dec. 6.—Credit or responsibility for the origination of cubist art is claimed for the American Indian by Lone Star, art instructor in the United States Indian service, who is stationed here.

Lone Star, with his wife, Angel Decora, a beautiful Winnebago Indian girl, who is also an artist, has devoted many years to the study and collection of Indian art specimens and they have many examples to substantiate their assertion that the Indians found the cubist school some 200 years ago.

The eagle, which is a common figure in Indian art specimens, is but a square which is shaped totally unlike an eagle, yet impresses the observer immediately with the conviction that it is an eagle. This, declares Lone Star, is the height of the cubist art.

THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR

SUITABLE FOR CHRISTMAS GIVING AND YOUR OWN READING

This page is virtually a guide to the best fiction and juvenile books of the year, having been selected from lists of the various publishers of the country—big and little—and contains those books that will be most widely read, talked about and given for Christmas.

You Can Safely Make Your Selections from It Either for Christmas Gifts or for Your Own Reading

It also contains a list of the great books of former years that still retain their popularity and which we offer at the reduced price of 50c, such as: "Ben-Hur," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," "The Mistress of Shenstone," Van Dyke's "Blue Flower," etc. (See list at bottom of page.)

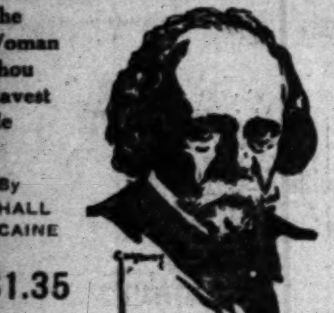
BROADWAY, EIGHTH AND HILL STREETS



The Woman Thou Gavest Me

By HALL CAINE

$1.35

The author says of this book: "I have done my best to deal with the four great and solemn phases of woman's life in the cumulative order of their importance—The Woman and Her Father, The Woman and Her Husband, The Woman and Her Child, The Woman and Her God." The book is a wonderful revelation of a good woman's soul. This story deals with the great everlasting human problems, the place of woman in the scheme of the world, the story of a woman's life in the most human, most intimate, most poignant phases.

The Coryston Family

By MRS. HUMPHRY WARD

Illustrated

$1.35

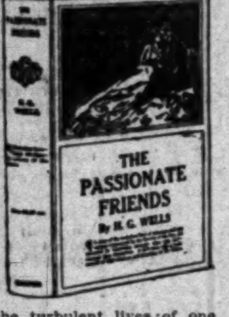
In this new novel the author is revealed in a new light, for she has written a love story pure and simple whose heroine will rank as her most charming portrayal of young womanhood today. Here is the keen grasp of the big questions at stake in modern English life that we have learned to expect of her, and a dramatic presentation of the struggle between the aristocratic and radical elements. We experience the feeling that we are allowed to share in the innermost discussions of statesmen and to enjoy the well-bred, cultured conversation of the fine flower of British aristocracy.

The Call of the Cumberlands

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

$1.25

"The Call of the Cumberlands," is a most attractive book for Christmas giving. It is a long story, beautifully illustrated and bound, and is that rare combination—a gift book and a novel all in one.



The Passionate Friends

By H. G. WELLS

$1.35

A story of the turbulent lives of one man and one woman—separated by the barrier of law, yet attracted by something stronger than any law—stronger than themselves. A love story with a background of high idealism and prophecy of the future, full of interest and pathos. Some might call this the story of a woman's great mistake, but if the woman had always done just what was expected of her she would not have been the radiant creature she was. She lost her game because she believed she could eat her cake and keep it.

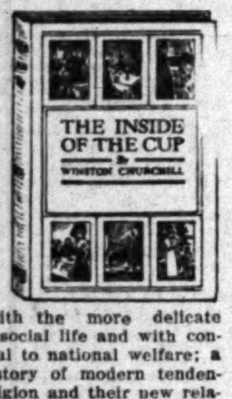
Within the Law

By MARVIN DANA and BAYARD VEILLER

Illustrated in color by W. C. Cooke

$1.25

Mary Turner, an innocent shopgirl, is convicted of stealing and is "sent away" for three years as an example to other girls. The law can be molded to suit the wishes of the rich, and once out of jail she lays her plans accordingly. Surrounded by a band of clever crooks she soon becomes very rich because she is acting within the law. In a spirit of revenge she marries the son of the man who wrecked her life. Young Gilder is madly in love with her, and she soon finds herself in love with him.



The Inside of the Cup

By WINSTON CHURCHILL

Illustrated

$1.50

Deals with the more delicate phases of social life and with conditions vital to national welfare; a powerful story of modern tendencies in religion and their new relations to modern life. The chief figure in the book is a minister who is forced to meet certain issues not only interesting in themselves but which reveal Mr. Churchill's remarkable insight into life and character. A vital novel, full of originality and significance.

Making Over Martha

A Sequel to "Martha-by the-Day"

By JULIE M. LIPPMANN

$1.20

Martha and her family go to the country, where her neighbors and friends take a hand at "Making Over Martha," with results that surprise and delight them.

The Maid of the Forest

By RANDALL PARRISH

Illustrated

$1.35

The scene of the story is the western frontier, during the revolt among the Indians after peace had been nominally concluded with Great Britain.

The Lady and the Pirate

By EMERSON HOUGH

Illustrated

$1.25

In it this famous author has given free rein to his humor, and it proves refreshing, wholesome, delightful. The action takes place in a boat taken by a pirate crew (two lovable boys and a retired man) down the Mississippi to the Gulf, and a fair captive whom the man loves and who is not wholly averse to her captivity. The story is unique.

The Lady and the Pirate breathes of youth and boyhood on the warpath of fun. None can read it without infection of mirth and rebirth of spirits.

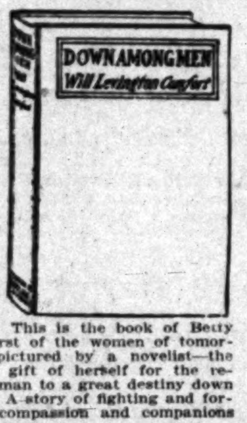
Broadway Jones

BY EDWARD MARSHALL

Illustrated from scenes in the play.

$1.25

The story tells of a young man tired of the small city. A relative dies leaving him a fortune, and he loses no time in reaching Broadway—the wonderful, glittering street of his dreams. There his money goes. He goes "broke," and being deeply enmeshed in debt, he falls an easy prey to an ancient lady, the past heroine of many matrimonial adventures, who offers her money in exchange for his youth, wit and popularity.



Down Among Men

By WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT

$1.25

The story of a man who was forced—body, brain and soul—into the fighting down among men. This is the book of Betty Berry—the first of the women of tomorrow to be pictured by a novelist—the story of her gift of herself for the reborning of a man to a great destiny down among men. A story of fighting and fortitude, of compassion and companions down among men.

The House of Happiness

By KATE LANGLEY BOSHER

Frontispiece.

$1.25

The heroine, Taska Baird, is according to Cricket's opinion, the "kind of a woman you just want to have around!" And Cricket himself, a country orphan, alias Josephus Hammill, is as cheerful as his nickname implies. The third of the trio of friends is Rives Colburn, a successful banker, a Virginian like Taska. He had overtaxed his health in the city, and in consequence has to consent to a protracted rest in a northern sanitarium where Taska was staying for the same reason.

Madcap

BY GEORGE GIBBS

With pictures by the author.

$1.30

Madcap, a handsome, healthy, extremely lively society girl, goes in for sports. One day her flying machine misses fire and she lands on an island where she runs across a hermit artist. The contempt of the man for the things the girl typifies; her interest in him; a vagabond pilgrimage in France which they take together under extraordinarily peculiar conditions; the discovery of their innocent but compromising relation by a rival woman and subsequent dramatic events, are all a part of this excellent story.

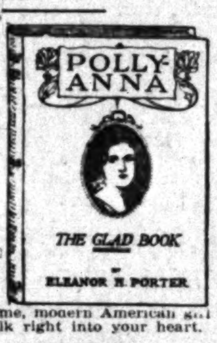
The Broken Halo

By FLORENCE L. BARCLAY

With colored frontispiece.

$1.35

The hero is an ambitious young doctor determined to reach the top of the tree. He wins the highest success in his profession, but still greater happiness comes to him through a sweet and strong influence which teaches him that there is a better ideal than money or fame.

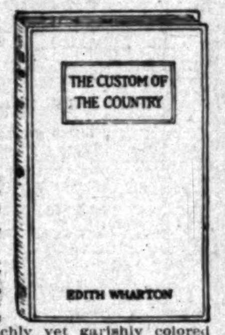


Pollyanna

By ELEANOR H. PORTER

$1.25

Pollyanna is the daintiest, dearest, most irresistible maid you have met—a brave, winsome, modern American girl who will walk right into your heart.



The Custom of the Country

BY EDITH WHARTON

$1.35

Its people are mainly those who, by wealth or position, are a part of what is called society, the entire fabric of which, now so curiously confused in qualities and tone—so richly yet garishly colored—is unrolled and spread out for view.

The White Linen Nurse

By ELEANOR HALLOWELL ABBOTT

$1.00

You are hereby invited to take a look through the rainbow and see what happened to the White Linen Nurse, who undertook General Heartwork for the crusty Senior Surgeon and the naughty Little Girl.

The Way of Ambition

By ROBERT HICHENS

$1.35

Illustrated.

Its setting is the social life of London and New York, of Morocco and "The Garden of Allah," country; a happy ending, and a keenly interesting, dramatic story without a touch of the morbid.

The Double Life of Mr. Alfred Burton

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Illustrated.

$1.25

Alfred Burton eats of the brown beans of a plant which makes him see the things of Life and Death as they really are. The strangest happenings then occur.

The Patchwork Girl of Oz

By L FRANK BAUM

Wonderful pictures in gay colors and black and white by John R. Neill.

$1.05

Carries with it all the interest of the other Oz stories. most of the old characters children insist on meeting again, all the mystery and charm of the Fairyland of Oz—and a new character—new in every sense—the lively, fascinating, gay-colored Patchwork Girl. There is Ojo, too, and his Unc Nunkie, to be hailed with delight by the children.

The Goody-Naughty Book

By SARAH CORY RIPPEY.

Illustrated with 15 full-page colored plates and 31 drawings by Blanche Fisher Wright. 50c.

The Goody-Naughty Book is as sparkling a novelty as has appeared in a long time. In one half of the book are eight stories about good boys and girls. On turning the book upside down the other half presents an equal number of stories about children who misbehave.

Each of the sixteen stories teaches a homely moral without being in any sense preachy.

Laddie

A TRUE BLUE STORY

By GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Four illustrations in full colors and a very attractive scheme of decoration. $1.35.

A tale of Indiana—a picture straight from life, showing the home circle of the Stantons, and telling the love story of Laddie, the big brother of the Stanton family, and Pamela Pryor, an English girl. The book is full of poetry and that love of nature that goes hand in hand with the author's idealism. Here again one has that sense of being very close to the heart of nature, in flower and bird; and very close to the heart of man, in the purest and best emotions of life.

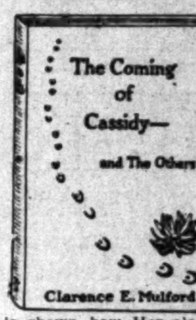
The Story of Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Illustrated

$1.30

The setting is the familiar Maine village so dear to the hearts of the readers of Rebecca. The plot deals entirely with the experiences of the two heroines as young women, and not as children. Goes deep into humanities and pulls hard at the heartstrings.



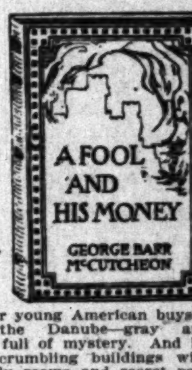
The Coming of Cassidy

By Clarence E. Mulford

Illustrated.

$1.35

In which is shown how Hop-along got his hop. Episodes of Bar-20 Ranch are told; tales of the men who came there and were not admitted to the brotherhood until they had proven their mettle.



A Fool and His Money

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Illustrations in color by A. I. Keller.

$1.30

A muscular young American buys a castle on the Danube—gray and ancient and full of mystery. And lo! among his crumbling buildings with vaulted lonely rooms and secret passages he discovers an isolated tower wherein is securely locked and hidden away a charming young countess, with her beautiful little girl, whom she is trying to hide from the count, a disreputable, money-seeking Austrian, who has obtained the custody of their child and will not give her up until the payment of a million dollars from the bride's American father. A love story of the true McCutcheon type follows.

Annie Laurie and Azalea

By MRS. ELIA W. PEATTIE

Four half-tone pictures. Cover and jacket design in colors. 75c.

It has the charm and interest—and more—that make this author's books so popular. Azalea's many friends will be glad to continue her acquaintance in this story, as well as to meet a new and interesting one in Annie Laurie. A story of the Blue Ridge Mountains, with homely, everyday human characters.

The Business of Life

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Pictures by Charles Dana Gibson.

$1.40

The story is of fashionable life, of club men and society women of New York's multimillionaire circle. James Desboro, "all-around good sport," finding himself in financial difficulties, decides to dispose of a valuable collection of armor through Nevers and Company. To his amazement he finds that golden-haired Jacqueline Nevers, since her father's death, is head of the house. He engages her to catalogue the armor, and the romance begins in the magnificent armory at his country home.

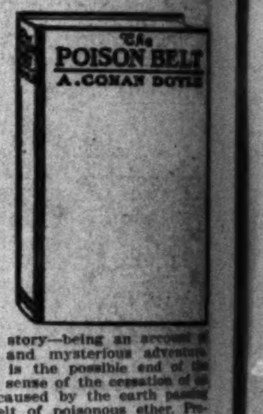
The Iron Trail

By REX BEACH

Illustrated.

$1.35

Alaska again!—the scene of Rex Beach's great successes—in a story more crowded with action and sentiment than anything he has ever done before. Struggles of rival railroad builders, fights against the glaciers, and the love of an unusual heroine make a powerful novel, quickening the blood like a breath of glacial air. As for humor—there is a new vein of it in "The Iron Trail" as rich as the gold through Klondike's best ore.



The Poison Belt

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Illustrated

$1.20

A mystery story—being an account of an amazing and mysterious adventure. The keynote is the possible end of the world, in the sense of the cessation of all animal life, caused by the earth passing through a belt of poisonous ether. Professor Challenger is the one man who sees ahead of his generation and knows the meaning of the poison belt. It starts with a sensation, goes on with a shock, and keeps the reader greedily eager throughout. It describes something which might happen any day but which never has happened.

The Way Home

By BASIL KING

Illustrated

$1.35

It deals with the most important things of life—single life, married life and church life—and portrays the inner motives of a self-centered man. It is the story of a struggle between the spiritual and the material in the average man—a series of tense, emotional situations in which a strong man who was far from being a hero found himself. He found, too, a tower of strength in the love of the woman he had misunderstood. Through the strata of love, misunderstanding, sin, sacrifice and the essence of the Christian faith, wells up the clear, beautiful narrative.

Stop Thief!

By GEORGE C. JENKS AND CARLYLE MOORE

Illustrated in color.

$1.25

To tell the story would be well-nigh impossible, there are so many complications developing after the entrance of two thieves into a house on the day on which the eldest daughter is to be married. Her father, a trifle absent-minded and predisposed to forgetting where he places things, and the bridegroom.

painter can be said to have a theory at all—is that it should be painted from start to finish out of doors, at one sitting if that be possible, never in more than two.

This doctrine he follows with zeal and enthusiasm, and the result is that he is one of the most spontaneous of our painters. Here is no fiddling for effects, but a quick, straightforward transcript of the impression he received from a happy inspection of nature. Yens believes in the sword thrust, the manly hitting from the shoulder when he wields his brush. He himself is very much alive, and so is his work.

You may say, with some apparent measure of truth, that he paints nothing but sketches, that his procedure permits him no more. But you forget to take into account the rapidity of his execution, the broad simplicity of his carefully chosen subjects, the quick keenness of his vision. A painter like Yens can see and put down much—quite enough for a picture—in an hour or two.

Don't think that out-door painting is the easiest of all the arts. It isn't. It is sometimes attended with tremendous difficulties, not seldom, as in eastern wintry weather, with real dangers. "Ploughing Hard Ground" is the title of one of the liveliest of the studies Yens exhibited last week in the College of Fine Arts. It is certainly "direct"—and well it may be! If it seems to be only a forceful sketch, there are reasons. Yens painted it "on the run," literally. He followed the ploughman and the two horses, his painting materials arranged on a tray suspended from his neck, exactly as collar buttons are hung to a street vendor. When he painted that picture Yens fell sprawling twice, and paints and brushes were flung sky high, for ploughed ground is infested with deep black ruts.

That "hard ground" is very near the picturesque studio Karl Yens occupies on the heights of Arroyo Verde. Other paintable things are near the studio, so that Yens does not need to go far afield for subjects for his brush—though, of course, he sometimes does. The Cawston Ostrich Farm is close by, and the long-legged denizens of those arid acres have proved interesting models when grouped together. Turkeys, too, strut near the Arroyo Verde. Yens has painted them delightfully, revelling in the brilliant bronzes of their sunlit feathers. Even the grapes on his own vine have "sat" for this enamored colorist—a huge bunch of flaming Tokays that have lured a sprightly red-winged blackbird to inquisitive search among their fan-shaped yellow leaves.

But westward, ho! let us follow our artist's white umbrella to the blue shores of the Pacific. It was planted there like a big mushroom many times during the summer just past—at Balboa and at Catalina. From Balboa we have "Desert and Sea," the lagoons seen under a clouded sky, all in silvery grays; "At Balboa," a large canvas, 24x30, yet painted at white heat in two hours, and showing a woman seated on the stretch of beach, while beyond reaches the blue of the undulating sea; "Land's End," rocks set in the vivid turquoise of the waves; "Rocky Point," etc.

"The Fisherman's Wife" also is from Balboa, where Yens seems to have "invited his soul" to some purpose, for all his studies from there are vital and interesting. The old good-wife, in a dull-blue gown, is seated with her face against the light, and is busily darning the socks of her fisherman. Behind her is a cottage whose wall shines startling yellow in

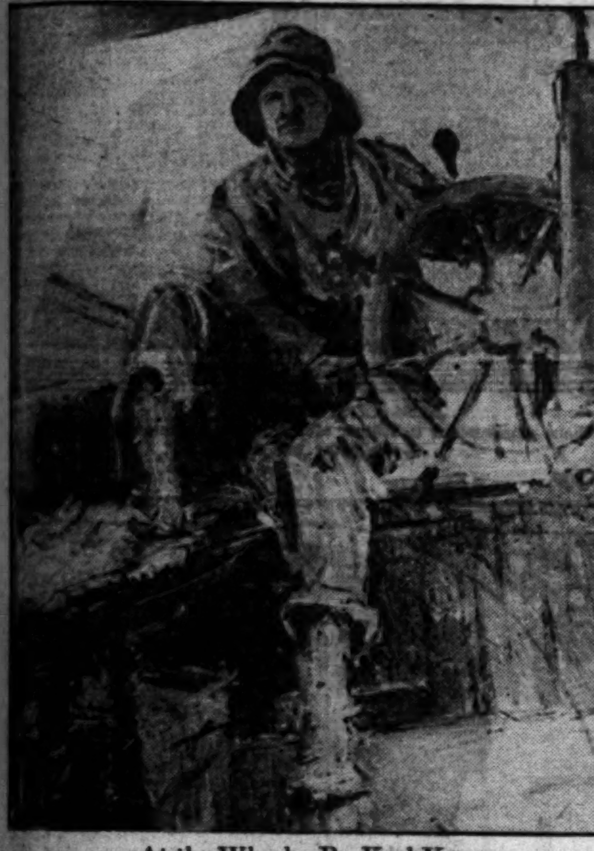
Karl Yens's theory of landscape painting—if, indeed, such a direct painter can be said to have a theory at all—is that it should be painted from start to finish out of doors, at one sitting if that be possible, never in more than two.



At the Wheel. By Karl Yens.

This doctrine he follows with zeal and enthusiasm, and the result is that he is one of the most spontaneous of our painters. Here is no fiddling for effects, but a quick, straightforward transcript of the impression he received from a happy inspection of nature. Yens believes in the sword thrust, the manly hitting from the shoulder when he wields his brush. He himself is very much alive, and so is his work.

But you forget to take into account the rapidity of his execution, the broad simplicity of his carefully chosen subjects, the quick keenness of his vision. A painter like Yens can see and put down much—quite enough for a picture—in an hour or two.

Don't think that out-door painting is the easiest of all the arts. It isn't. It is sometimes attended with tremendous difficulties, not seldom, as in eastern wintry weather, with real dangers. "Ploughing Hard Ground" is the title of one of the liveliest of the studies Yens exhibited last week in the College of Fine Arts. It is certainly "direct"—and well it may be! If it seems to be only a forceful sketch, there are reasons. Yens painted it "on the run," literally. He followed the ploughman and the two horses, his painting materials arranged on a tray suspended from his neck, exactly as collar buttons are hung to a street vendor. When he painted that picture Yens fell sprawling twice, and paints and brushes were flung sky high, for ploughed ground is infested with deep black ruts.

That "hard ground" is very near the picturesque studio Karl Yens occupies on the heights of Arroyo Verde. Other paintable things are near the studio, so that Yens does not need to go far afield for subjects for his brush—though, of course, he sometimes does. The Cawston Ostrich Farm is close by, and the long-legged denizens of those arid acres have proved interesting models when grouped together. Turkeys, too, strut near the Arroyo Verde. Yens has painted them delightfully, revelling in the brilliant bronzes of their sunlit feathers. Even the grapes on his own vine have "sat" for this enamored painter—a huge bunch of flaming [illegible] that have lured a sprightly red-winged blackbird to inquisitive search among their fan-shaped yellow leaves.

But westward, ho! let us follow our artist's white umbrella to the blue shores of the Pacific. It was planted there like a big mushroom many times during the summer just past—at Balboa and at Catalina. From Balboa we have "Desert and Sea," the dunes seen under a clouded sky, all in silvery grays; "At Balboa," a large canvas, 14x30, yet painted at white heat in two hours, and showing a woman seated on the stretch of beach, while beyond reaches the blue of the shimmering sea; "Land's End," rocks set in the vivid turquoise of the waves; "Rocky Point," etc.

"The Fisherman's Wife" also is from Balboa, where Yens seems to have "worked his soul" to some purpose, for all his studies from there are vital and interesting. The old fisherwife, in a dull-blue gown, is seated with her face against the light, and is busily darning the socks of her goodman. Behind her is a cottage whose wall shines startling yellow in the sun, and beyond lies a little strip of blue bay.

"After the Rain," painted toward evening, gives us one of the wonderful dramas of nature, when the somber curtains of the clouds are torn apart to show us the beautiful blues and greens of a sky newly washed by the showers. The heavens reach high above towering eucalyptus trees.

All these studies by Karl Yens were recently exhibited in the College of Fine Arts, in Garvanza, where he is now instructor in outdoor work.

Poetic Interpretations.

Nell Brooker Mayhew showed two very interesting studies at the recent exhibition in Garvanza. They were "The Restful Way" and "The Witching Hour," and both were characteristic examples of this capable artist's work in the oil medium.

My high opinion of many of the qualities of Mrs. Mayhew's paintings and etchings is already known to readers of Art and Artists. Mrs. Mayhew recently exhibited in Chicago, and Harriet Monroe, art editor of the Chicago Tribune, speaks in warm praise of her work. I quote Miss Monroe almost in full, feeling sure that my readers will be interested in a verdict rendered so far from home.

"Fresh imaginative feeling," she says, "strong vitality and broad handling—in short, real style of a high order—characterizes the oil landscapes and color etchings by the California artist Nell Brooker Mayhew, which are now on exhibition at Anderson's. They are chiefly California scenes, and they show a sensitive instinct for the essentials of form and color in nature and a readiness to omit disturbing details which are always rare. These qualities make the difference between literal and imaginative interpretation, between prose and poetry.

"Mrs. Mayhew has studied with special zest eucalyptus trees, sycamores and poppy fields. 'Valley Sentinels' especially shows how well she understands the decorative value of tall tree trunks and broad, simple masses of foliage. 'Sierra's Golden Garden' and 'A California Poppy Field' present dramatically the glory of yellow bloom which transfigures far-western valleys at certain seasons. Always her touch is light and sure; she expresses her theme with grace and a certain eloquence.

"It follows that in a medium so delicate as colored etchings she is extremely fortunate. It is so easy to overdo them, to try to say as much and say it as definitely as in the more solid and manageable oils. Mrs. Mayhew, in such fine plates as 'In Silhouette,' 'Silver Sea,' 'Summer's Day in Illinois,' is as discreet, as reserved as a Japanese. She is satisfied with a hint, and her hint is of rarest delicacy."

Max Wieczorek.

A Los Angeles painter whose work always proves to be interesting and worthy of study is Max Wieczorek. An exhibition of his paintings and decorations will be held in the Steckel gallery, No. 337½ South Broadway, beginning tomorrow and continuing to December 22.

Wieczorek was trained, as youth and young man, in the military profession, but the peaceful art of painting proved a stronger attraction to this virile idealist, and so he came to America, to practice design and decoration with Tiffany in New York, before he buckled down to the serious job of painting portraits and landscapes. Hitherto, of course, he had done much tentative work in this direction, but only within the last past few years has he decided definitely and irrevocably in favor of the "big stuff."

Not that his decorations lacked bigness. On the contrary, he has done many notable designs, in full and brilliant color, for church and memorial windows, some of which will be seen in the exhibition just about to open. But he feels, and not without reason, that he can express himself more fully and freely in landscape and portraiture. He has already painted portraits of a number of well-known men and women of Los Angeles and Pasadena, and five more are on his roster.

He has done strong and appealing things in landscape, his studies of Los Angeles gardens being especially effective. Six of these landscapes, two of them lent him by Louis C. Tiffany of New York for this occasion, will be shown; eight portraits and eight or ten decorative schemes, some in black-and-white and some in color.

ART NOTES.

On one or two afternoons during the past week the studio of Kenneth Avery in Pasadena was used by John O'Shea for the exhibition of some eighteen or twenty of his impressionistic pictures of Southern California. O'Shea is a young New York painter who has been here since March. He has given us some wonderfully beautiful interpretations of our landscape, full of vibratory light and color. It is his intention to show these pictures in Los Angeles some time in the spring, when no lover of art should neglect to see them, for they are as individual as they are lovely.

The Palette Club of the Los Angeles School of Art and Design met last Tuesday evening with a large attendance. Hamilton Achille Wolf, instructor, and president of the club, spoke on the technique of painting and illustrating. The students will hold their Christmas party on Monday night, December 22, when a varied programme will be given.

Nona White and Emily White showed water colors during the past week at the Ebell Club. Interesting things by both artists were exhibited, Emily White being represented by marine studies, Nona White by flowers and sketches of Los Angeles gardens.

George Henry Melcher, whose ranch and studio are in Topanga Canyon, will exhibit water color landscapes at the Pennsylvania Academy. He will also exhibit in Los Angeles. Melcher's wife is also an artist, being the originator of the famous Sunbonnet Babies.

The studio of Warren E. Rollins, in San Gabriel, will be open to the general public from now on to the end of the Christmas holidays. The artist is holding an exhibition and sale of his smaller sketches, Indian subjects and landscapes.

The meeting place of the California Art Club has been moved to No. 424 Copp building. The regular meeting and annual election of officers took place on the evening of December 6.

The corner-stone of the Southwest Museum on Museum Hill was laid yesterday afternoon with appropriate and impressive ceremonies. The building will be completed in February.

GIFT OF PRICELESS ART.

Multi-Millionaire Collector of New York Leaves Treasures to the Metropolitan Museum.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The year 1913 will have an unusual record to contribute to the history of fine arts in this country. This fact is brought to the fore by the death this week of George A. Hearn, the third multi-millionaire art collector to die during the year. His death promises to enrich the Metropolitan Museum of Art with priceless treasures, which may be roughly estimated above $100,000,000 value in all.

DOUBTS THE EARTH'S MOTION.

An Inquirer Wants the Scientists to Tell Why Things Are So if the Globe Turns Around.

[Washington Post:] On a warm evening last summer I sat in the front yard viewing the heavens, and thinking of the wisdom (?) of the "scientists." Among other things, I thought of what "scientist" Herr Von Goethe said: "In whatever way or manner may have occurred this business, I must still say that I curse this modern system of cosmogony, and hope that perchance there may appear in due time some young scientist of genius who will pick up courage to upset this universally disseminated delirium of lunatics."

"Scientist" Proctor said, "In the absence of any evidence from observation or experiment, all ideas must be regarded as merely speculative."

Then I thought of what 'Scientist" Huyghens said, namely, "In my opinion, as long as we are upon the earth, nobody can be able fully to prove its motion."

Suddenly a new thought came to me, namely: "While "scientists" teach that the earth is whirling on its axis once in twenty-four hours, which would mean, leaving out fractions, that it goes (on that one movement) about seventeen miles a minute, and still acknowledge that they cannot prove its motion, I believe that it is not whirling as they teach. Here is my argument:

Get into an aeroplane that you can guage to the distance of just one mile per minute. Rise directly over the Capitol's dome. We will say that the Capitol, with the earth turning seventeen miles per minute, is going westward. You start west in the aeroplane, and travel one minute, which would take you one mile. If the earth is turning on its axis every day, then at the end of that minute the Capitol building will be sixteen miles west from you and your aeroplane. But the fact is you in the aeroplane, would be exactly one mile west of that building. Suppose you travel east. If the earth is going seventeen miles a minute, then at the end of that minute of flying through the air in the opposite from what the earth and Capitol are traveling, of course the Capitol would be eighteen miles west of you in the aeroplane. But the fact is you, in the aeroplane, would be just one mile east of that building.

Now if the so-called scientists were honest and wanted the truth, would they not accept the easy things especially, even if they did not originate among their ignorant and delirious inferiors.

A HEN'S WAGES FIXED.

Nebraska Court Decides the Value of Biddy's Time While Hatching Setting of Goose Eggs.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean:] A unique lawsuit has been settled in Omaha, in which the court officially placed the wages of a hen for hatching out a setting of goose eggs, and gave her owner judgment for that sum against the owner of the eggs.

Soren Lund and Louis Naugle were neighbors. Lund had seventeen goose eggs. Naugle had a hen that wanted to "set." The two men arranged that Lund's eggs should be set under Naugle's hen and the goslings should be divided equally between the two. Four of the eggs were not good and thirteen hatched out.

Two days later a thief got into the chicken house and stole the goslings.

Naugle thereupon filed suit against Lund for the time his hen consumed in hatching out the eggs. Two lawyers represented each man, and the case occupied the attention of Justice C. W. Britt's court for nearly three days.

Naugle trimuphed, and the court allowed him 97 cents as the wages of his hen during the time she was setting. Lund threatens to appeal the case to the higher courts.

A DEBUTANTE ABROAD.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

ST. PETERSBURG, DATE—OH, BOTHER! Anthony Darling: It has all been so adorable, and we leave for London tomorrow. Oh, I could have stood months of it, but of course it was too dazzling to last. But I simply cannot date this letter, cherie—it is too complicated. Russian dates are eccentric and coy and one needs a cool head and a calm mind to work out what day of the week it is in America when it isn't anything of the kind in St. Petersburg.

And we went to the opera last night. Sunday night is ballet night at the government operahouse, the Marinsky, and everyone of the haute monde goes. We have been very "haute" these last two weeks and have hardly spoken to anything less distinguished than a count.

And a Russian ballet, Anthony, is adorabl. It is the most poetic thing you ever saw. The special divinity among the Czar's aristocratic dancing girls who charmed us on this occasion was Karsavina, the primma ballerina assoluta, and half the men in town are in love with her. We saw Les Syphides, and I have lost my heart to Nijinsky, Karsavina's dancing partner. If I can't have a husband like him I won't have any. Grace is a poor word to use. Anthony darling, he is the quintessential essence of rarified grace, supple, lissom, soft and strong, almost womanish and yet intensely masculine. His face is beautiful, youthful and wise and—well, it's awfully exciting to have a crush on a dancing man and know just how the young princelings feel when they have crushes on dancing girls! Do you think it would improve the strain of our effete American aristocracy if some of us progressive girls married into the ballet in the same way that the British peerage marries into musical comedy? This is the woman's age, you know, and we girls ought to get a look in somewhere.

If I can't have Nijinsky, then I think it better be Davidoff. You pronounce the "vi" in that with an emphatic vee—and he is the darling of Russian drama. Another government theater, the Alexander, houses this superb being—fancy being made love to like that on an ordinary Monday morning at home.

If I had not seen either of these heroes, I believe I could have adored the prince's younger brother, Anatole. There is something very interesting about sitting up all night under perfectly proper conditions, with a poetic, lordly and decidedly amusing young man. You see, we all sit up all night here and the theaters don't begin until 10 and 11 o'clock. We have a little fairy breakfast in bed somewhere about 9 in the morning, then go off to sleep again. Some of us get up for lunch if we feel disgusctingly active, but in a general way it isn't necessary to show up until one is ready for the afternoon drive along the Quay and meet everybody we know. It's the social rendezvous. Then we drop in at the confectioners — those fascinating places where they sell a bast assortment of pretty cakes, elegant enough to wear—proceed to the palace and drink tea and eat cakes till it is time to dress for dinner. That is about 8 o'clock. Then we drink lots more tea and talk till theater time. We go to one or the other of the theaters every evening, where we have supper about 1 a.m., so that besides Nijinsky and Davidoff, I have had an opportunity of waxing rapturous over a wonderful dramatic wolf hunt, with real wolf hounds, and some extremely edifying nude statuary, impersonated by some very nicely chiselled French ladies, that would send prudish New York into spasms. I was a little concerned about taking the mater, but Anatole seemed to think it was alright for his people, so I tried not to fuss. But I rather think father is relying upon me to keep her as sweet and unsophisticated as he found her twenty years ago.

They took us for an outing in sledges over the country roads one day, just to give us an idea of Russian scenery. Such a lot of Christmas trees growing all over the landscape. It was amusing to see the dear old wadded peasants stand respectfully on one side, muttering polite imbecilities as we passed. Naturally I wanted to know what they were saying, especially as they all looked so oddly sheepish.

"Excuse us, we are a little drunk," was Anatole's free translation. It appears that it was a public holiday or saint's day of some kind and on such occasions everybody gets drunk whether he can afford it or not. It is accepted as a matter of course, providing they are not too drunk to make the polite apology.

I have decided that even for Nijinsky I could not live in Russia, though. There is one charming young Englishwoman here who married a delightful Russian noble—but the loneliness of his estate in Tver and the rather trying domestic conditions are, she assures us, driving her mad. In the first place they can only come to St. Petersburg once a year for three months and for the rest of the time they are on a vast, lonely estate, thirty miles from the nearest neighbor, with wolf hunting as the one relaxation. In Russia no lady may do anything approaching work other than that fiendish-looking embroidery, so she goes wolf hunting, too, although she is scared to fits, danger being the lesser evil to melancholy solitude.

The domestic arrangements are a little difficile, too. It appears that when a son marries he takes his bride home to the paternal mansion, where they have a separate suite, but practically live and dine with the rest of the family. In her case there is a mother, two unmarried sisters, and another married brother, and they all like her so much and think her so charming that she is called upon to live up to her reputation twenty-four hours a day. So every now and then, in sheer desperation, she flies home to her English relatives on all sorts of trumped-up excuses—a sister's bilious attack becomes appendicitis and so forth—and then she has an orgy of being horrid and catty and thoroughly enjoying herself.

Our first engagement when we get back to London is tea with Sir Thomas Lipton. Mr. Goode, the handsome, debonair young man who is trying to persuade the British government to revoke its unkind decision about not taking part in the Panama Exposition in 1915, introduced us to him—and I shall have to tell you all about that next week, beloved.

Your ever affectionate,
BETTY.

The California chapter of the Cliff Dwellings' Association was pleasantly entertained by Mrs. L. D. Miller, No. 1405 Harvard boulevard, on Tuesday. Mrs. D. L. Cornell of Long Beach read an interesting paper on art, and traced the subject through the forms of bead work, basketry and handwrought metal articles down to the beautiful madonnas of the old masters. A musical number was furnished by Mrs. A. D. Rose.

YESTERDAY'S breakfast of special interest to the smart set hereabout was that presided over by Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner and Mrs. George J. Denis, who entertained with a brilliant affair at the California Club, complimenting Mrs. Allan C. Balch, who has just concluded a wonderful trip.

The decorations were unusually artistic. A tall gold vase, filled with American Beauties, stood in the center of the large table, and around this were gold baskets filled with hothouse begonias. Candlesticks in gold with pink and gold shades were at either end, while violets and blue bows of ribbon formed a handsome band around it. Monogrammed cards held places for the Duke and Duchess de Richelieu, Mrs. Mary Willcox Longstreet, Dr. and Mrs. Granville MacGowan, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Miss Wood Hostess.

A pretentious affair of Friday evening was the dinner dance which had for its hostess Miss Elizabeth Wood of No. 20 St. James Park, who entertained in honor of Miss Daphne Drake and Miss Helen Jones, two of this season's debutantes. The attractive young hostess, who was assisted by her sister and cousin, Mrs. Joy Clark and Miss Katherine Johnson, asked twenty-eight guests for dinner, and later they were joined by forty-two other young people. The table, representing a sunken garden of delicate pink and white roses and orchids, was placed beneath a canopy of ferns and blossoms dotted here and there with electric bulbs. Broad bands of tulle fastened with huge bows hung from the canopy to the table, where it divided each couple. Imported roses, with the name in gold on one petal, were placed for Miss Constance [illegible], Miss Helen Ives, Miss Amy [illegible], Miss Doris Simpson, Miss Katherine Stearns, Miss Ruth Winslow, Miss Aileen McCarthy, Miss Marguerite Drake, Henry Daly, John [illegible], Mat Head, Joy Clark, Jack [illegible], Warren Bovard, Frank Gilchrist, Neil Brown, Arden Day, Morgan Adams, James Page, Ernest Ben[illegible], Tim Horan and Jack Riddell. The ballroom on the third floor was decorated with American Beauties, Christmas balls and greenery. Among some of the delights of the evening were selections by the Ad Club entertainers and a darky orchestra.

Amateur Players.

Mrs. Ezra T. Stimson of No. 825 [illegible] street will have as guests [illegible] afternoon at 3 o'clock members of the Amateur Players, who will enjoy readings by Miss Gertrude Workman.

At Country Club.

Complimentary to their sister, Miss Emily Hadley, formerly of Whittier, who has moved to Hotel Darby to reside, Mrs. Charles Monroe and Mrs. Thomas E. Newlin, entertained yesterday with an elaborately appointed tea party at the Los Angeles Country Club. An immense basket of fruit formed a center adornment for the refreshment table, which was attractive with cut glass and silver. Mrs. Newlin and Mrs. Monroe were assisted by Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mrs. William May Garland, Mrs. Hugh Livingstone Macneil, Mrs. J. J. Byrne, Mrs. James McBride Cockins, Mrs. Jefferson Paul Chandler, Mrs. A. C. Jones, Mrs. Dan McFarland, Mrs. Bertnard Smith, Mrs. W. G. Kerckhoff, Mrs. John D. Foster, Mrs. C. C. Parker, Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt, Mrs. Mary Wilcox Longstreet, Mrs. Joseph F. Sartori, Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant, Mrs. Edward D. Silent, Mrs. J. E. Cook, Mrs. Eugene Smith, Mrs. Charles C. J. Thomas, Mrs Roy Pinkham, Mrs. Carey Marble, Mrs. Rae Smith, Mrs. W. S. Hook, Jr., Mrs. Woolwine, Miss Carrie Waddilove, Miss Harriett Severance, Miss Kate Van Nuys, Miss Louise Burke, Miss Mary Burnham, Miss Aileen Staub, Miss Koster, Miss Walbridge, Miss Edith Maurice and Miss Julia Derby.

At Midwick.

Elaborate in appointment was the luncheon of 125 covers given yesterday by Mrs. Robert P. McReynolds of No. 20 Berkeley square at the Midwick Country Club. The tables were radiant with baskets of Cecile Brunner and Madam Chatney roses and dainty cards held covers.

At the Ebell.

Another large tea of last week was the Friday afternoon gathering at the Ebell Clubhouse, in response to invitations sent out by Mrs. Moses N. Avery and her daughter, Miss Avery. The holiday colors were used in decorating the rooms, which were cosy with the large poinsettias and holly berries. The unbonneted ladies who assisted the hostesses were Mrs. Gail B. Johnson, Mrs. Robert Marsh, Mrs. George D. Cadwalader, Mrs. Valentine Peyton, Mrs. Edwin S. Rowley, Mrs. Thomas Caldwell Ridgway, Mrs. William Lacy, Mrs. Leslie C. Brand, Mrs. S. Goddard, Mrs. Henderson Hayward, Mrs. William F. Callender, Mrs. A. A. Hubbard, Mrs. Alexander Barrett, Mrs. Charles H. Payne, Mrs. Percy Clark, Mrs. G. L. Peck, Mrs. Le Roy M. Edwards, Mrs. Robert L. Leonard, Mrs. William W. Mines, Mrs. Herman Henneberger, Mrs. Arthur Bumiller, Mrs. Charles M. Cotton, Mrs. Earl Cowan, Mrs. William L. Graves, Jr., Mrs. Ralph Williams, Mrs. Roy P. Hillman, Miss Florence Clark, Miss Lina Johnson, Miss Ruth Kays, Miss Jessie Morgan, Miss Mary Belle Peyton and Miss Josephine Lacy.

Formal Announcement.

A charming luncheon was given Friday at the Hershey Arms by Mrs. Frank B. Yoakum, when formal announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Ethelyn Carson, daughter of Judge and Mrs. E. W. Sargent of this city, to Lieut. Herbert A. Jones, U.S.N. An original idea of the hostess was carried out in decorating the bride-elect's table. Lieut. Jones is in command of the torpedo destroyer Hull, and the table centerpiece was a reproduction of the boat in wood. This floated on a pond adorned with valley lilies and ferns. Centerpieces for the other tables were also attractive, slippers, wedding bells and Dutch bouquets having been used. There were covers and dainty favors for thirty-five friends.

Date Chosen.

Miss Marguerite Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace Wilson, of the Hershey Arms, and her betrothed, Hoyt Post, Jr., of Detroit, have chosen January 2 for the date of their marriage, which will be solemnized in St. John's Episcopal Church in the evening. Invitations for the smart event were issued Friday and society will wait with eager interest for the function. Mrs. John Hewitt Mathews has been asked to assist as matron of honor, while Waldo Johnson of Detroit will stand with the groom. Little Wanda Yoakum will make an attractive little flower girl.

Invitations Out.

Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt has issued cards for a reception and dance to be given at the Ebell Clubhouse on the afternoon of Saturday, December 20, when her daughter, Miss Louise, will be introduced to society.

Subscription Dinner.

The Midwick Country Club will hold a subscription Yama-Yama dinner-dance for members and guests on New Year's eve under the direction of Mrs. James Calhoun Drake and Mrs. John Barnes Miller.

For Daphne Drake.

Mrs. Dean Mason's luncheon yesterday for Miss Daphne Drake was a brilliant affair, the appointments having been carried out in a delicate pink and blue scheme. The young guests were entertained at the hostess's home at No. 340 Andrews boulevard.

Miss Brown Engaged.

A tea dance was given Friday afternoon and evening by Mrs. Ignatius Brown at her home, No. 2100 Park Grove avenue, when news of the betrothal of her attractive young daughter, Miss Charlotte Brown, and Elliott G. Mulford was made known. The decorations were suggestive of the holiday season, quantities of poinsettias and holly having been gracefully combined. The young bride-elect is a popular member of the Tau Chapter of the Alpha Pi Phi Sorority, and is an accomplished member of the Woman's Orchestra. The engagement was told at the tea in the afternoon, which was shared by young women friends only. The table was done in red and at each cover was placed a wicker bird's nest, on the edge of which perched tiny birds containing the secret in little envelopes held in their bills. During the collation the guests were entertained by the bride-elect's brother, Ygnacio Brown, who is a talented musician. Those sharing the pleasures were the Misses Irene Robinson, Hilda Robinson, Helen Morrow, Dolly Martin, Alma Vonderiohe, Margaret Wetherby, Aileen Zimmerman, Isabelle Percival, Elizabeth Blair, Lulu Parkinson, Wilma Towne, Leona Walton, Don Short, Pauline McKinney, Sue Kuhurts, Nell Eigholz, Barbara Taylor, Katherine Ashley, Margaret Best, Margaret Schabarum, Ethel Stoddard, Kathleen Walsh, Winifred Olmsted, Edith Olmsted, Brown, and Bert McDonald, Stanton Johnson, Walter Burbank, San Garroway, Wood, Howard Henshey, George Morrow, Claud Poor, Christy Walsh, Edward Woodward, Arthur Morris, Walter Larson, George Kubits, Fred Taylor, Fred Dunlap, La Valle Lund, Ray Caldwell, Langdon Smead, Karl Schurz, Edward Gibbo, Robert Garland, Warren Cowles and Mathew Walsh.

Will Receive.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hellman will be at home to their friends today at their residence, No. 1126 Lake street. Guests will be received from 2 to 6 o'clock.

New Visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Armand A. Normandin are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a baby daughter, who has been named Litizia.

Engagement Made Known.

Announcement is made of the betrothal of Miss Blenda Olson, the attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Olson of No. 2082 West Twenty-ninth place, to H. E. Gillett. The wedding will be solemnized in June and later the young people will occupy a home in Glendale.

Lovely Affair.

Mrs. W. G. Eisenmayer and Mrs. Frederick Hooker Jones recently entertained with a tea party at the home of the former in San Rafael, complimentary to Mrs. William John Scholl, who had been enjoying a visit with relatives in this city. Mrs. Scholl, who now spends half the year in San Diego and half in this city, will be remembered for her interest and prominence in musicale and club circles. She was president of the Treble Cleff Club of this city for years and many of the guests at the interesting party were members of the organization. Mrs. Scholl returned last week to her San Diego home, much to the regret of her friends.

World's Tour Ends.

Mrs. James Hyde Forbes and her attractive daughter, Miss Ada May Forbes, returned to this city recently, having concluded their two years' tour of the world. Among some of the countries visited were Japan, China, Switzerland, Germany, Spain, France, Holland, Belgium and the British Isles, where seven months were enjoyed. The summer was spent with

Women's $29.50 to $37.50 suits coats and dresses Monday . . . $24.50

—A wonder piece of news!—

—Just imagine buying garments like those in the picture at $24.50!—and the garments themselves will cause even greater astonishment and arouse even more enthusiasm!—

—How does it come that we can price them so low?—Our garment buyer who is now in New York bought the surplus stocks of several manufacturers way under worth and rushed them on to us by express!—Many of the garments were exact duplicates of garments we had in our regular stocks and so we've put them all into the sale—making one of the most extraordinary events Los Angeles has seen in a long, long while!—

—If only we could hand you some of the garments we would need to say nothing more than to name their sale price and when they were to be sold!

—Those we have on display in one of our windows today will be well worth your while coming down town to see today!—

—The suits are in both plain tailored and fancy models of imported Duvetyne—velours de laine—wool poplin—broadcloth—diagonals and Bedford cords in black and a wide range of colors!—

—The coats are in a world of pretty styles!—The materials include cut velour—brocaded velvet—chiffon velvet—fancy boucle—chinchilla and two-toned mixtures in all wanted colors!—

—The dresses are of walrus crepe—peau de peche—crepe de chine—brocaded poplin—charmeuse and satins in both evening and street shades!—

—Note the picture again! These six garments are but fair representatives of the scores of others — more than likely you'll find many you think are a great deal prettier!

—There are so many garments concerned in this event that it matters little whether you come at store opening or store closing you'll find one to suit you exactly—

—$29.50 to $37.50 suits—coats and dresses at $24.50!—

Third Floor.

SOCIETY.

[illegible] and friends in the East. [illegible] Forbes took Miss Forbes north [illegible] night ago for the Stanford and [illegible] football game and they are visiting Mrs. Forbes's son [illegible], who is a student at Stanford. They will return for Christmas.

Wedding Announcement.

Announcement is made today of the wedding, November 30, of Miss Mary Forbes and Elmo Allen [illegible] of Merced, which was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Margaret Forbes, of the [illegible] apartments. Dr. Charles Edward Locke, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was the officiating clergyman. The rooms were decked with violets and lilies of the valley. The young bride was gowned in white [illegible] trimmed with hand-made lace and carried a shower of bride roses and lilies of the valley. The ceremony was followed by a dinner at Hotel Hayward. The young people will reside in Merced.

Reception for Mrs. Larkin.

One of the larger affairs of the early winter, notable for its beauty of appointment, was the reception given Friday afternoon by Mrs. [illegible] G. Hamilton at her home, No. [illegible] Ingraham street, as a farewell for Mrs. E. Larkin, who, with her husband, removes shortly to San Francisco. Dr. Larkin has been appointed editor of the Christian Advocate which is published in the northern city. In the living-room where the guests were received and in the [illegible] American Beauty roses nodded on long stems in crystal vases, and the music-parlor, the reception hall and the rooms upstairs were embellished with potted palms and plants. In the dining-room the large tea table, which was set with a handsome embroidered cloth, had as its centerpiece a basket of Killarney roses and maiden hair ferns, other features of the decoration being the cut glass bowls filled with bon-bons. Presiding [illegible] were Mrs. Emory Warner, Mrs. [illegible] F. Crabill, Mrs. M. L. Carter and Mrs. Harvey Philip. The hostess was assisted in receiving by her guest of honor, Mrs. Larkin, Mrs. Walter [illegible], Mrs. Valentine Peyton, Mrs. George Bailey, and the sister of Mrs. Larkin, Miss Augusta Carhart. Eastern Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Garver and daughter of Pasadena are on an extended eastern trip. They will stop on the way at San Francisco, Portland, Chicago and Niagara Falls.

Las Buenas Hostess.

Invested with much charm was the luncheon given by Mrs. S. L. Bean at her home, No. 2744 Kenwood avenue, complimenting the Las Buenas [illegible] Club, of which she is a member. The rooms given over to the [illegible] were enlivened with deep red roses and showers of crimson carpa[illegible]. A tray luncheon was served, following which, while the members were busy with dainty needlework, Mrs. S. F. Couch gave a talk on "Ideas in Cuisine and Serving." Each member brought her favorite recipe and contributed it toward the cook book for the year, from which the club arranges its luncheons. Members present were Mrs. [illegible] F. Willis, Mrs. E. E. Bean, Mrs. Alexander Burrus, Mrs. N. Couch, Mrs. A. H. Flower, Mrs. M. A. Baird, Mrs. H. S. Botsford, Mrs. C. N. [illegible], Mrs. H. G. Carlisle, Mrs. William P. Clark, Mrs. H. Home from Auto Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boylson of No. 314 Kingsley drive and Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson of the Bryson apartments have returned from an enjoyable automobile trip to San Diego and other interesting points.

Emanon Club.

Members of the Emanon Club were entertained Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Charles Bradley at her home, No. [illegible] Park View avenue. Luncheon was served at small tables, and a centerpiece was formed of baskets filled with yellow centurias, the handles being tied with perky bows of yellow tulle. After luncheon tables were arranged for auction and prizes were won by Mmes. Kierulff, Pitcomb and [illegible], and the guest prize by Madam Cato. Special guests included Madam Cato and Miss Cato and Mrs. L. Williams of St. Louis, who are in the city for the winter. Members present were Mrs. Allan M. [illegible], Mrs. E. J. Salyer, Mrs. W. [illegible], Mrs. Harrison McDonald, Mrs. [illegible] Barnhart Dorr, Mrs. Frank Kierulff, Mrs. Frank Griffith, Mrs. T. Pitcomb, Mrs. John [illegible], Mrs. Le Roy Daniels, Mrs. [illegible] Young Moore, Miss Alice [illegible] and Miss Nellie Beacon.

Dinner and Theater Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore L. Stassforth, who have just returned from an extended European trip, were the honored guests at a dinner given at the Los Angeles Athletic Club, followed by a theater party at the Orpheum. The affair took place Thursday evening, and was given by Mr. and Mrs. George L. McIntyre of No. 330 South Alvarado street. The fragrance of the sweet-scented violet was wafted over the dinner table; the same flowers were scattered over the cloth, and corsage bouquets of the blossoms were presented to the ladies as favors. Hand-worked violet cards marked covers for Mr. and Mrs. Stassforth, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Davis, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thayer, and Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre.

Returned from Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gethen, who were recently married, have returned from their honeymoon, and for the present are located at Stongs' Otsega Apartments on Fifteenth street, where they are at home to friends.

Juvenile Party.

Mrs. F. H. Bryant of No. 265 South Harvard boulevard entertained at her home Tuesday afternoon in honor of the fifth birthday anniversary of her little son, Robert Frazier Bryant. Red and green were the prevailing colors used in the decorations. The table in the dining-room, where the refreshments were served as the afternoon drew to a close, had as a centerpiece a Christmas tree illuminated with colored electric light bulbs, the tree holding a gift for each little guest. Rose candles were placed at each cover, also little baskets filled with bonbons. Merry games made up a pleasant afternoon. Little friends of the small but charming host present included Virginia Robinson, Thomas Pascoe, Burkey Neece, Jane Ellen Wood of Pasadena, Billie Tinsman and the little sisters of the host, Dorothy and Sallie Bryant.

Home from Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Culver, with their baby daughter, who have been occupying a cottage at Venice since July, have returned to their home at No. 2801 Menlo avenue.

Westlake Bridge Club.

A delicious turkey luncheon was the hospitality provided for members of the Westlake Bridge Club Thursday afternoon by Mrs. E. T. Sherer at her home, No. 986 South Arapahoe street. A Japanese basket filled with the flaming poinsettia centered the table, and surrounding this were crystal vases filled with holly, held in leash to the next by means of crystal chains. Holly cards marked covers. Games of auction employed the balance of the afternoon, and prizes fell to Mmes. Vogel, Variel and the guest prize to Mrs. Jergins. Special guests present were Mrs. A. T. Jergins and Mrs. Robert Haynes, and members, Mrs. L. L. Vogel, Mrs. William Variel, Mrs. L. E. Ford, Mrs. Frank Boswell, Mrs. Frank A. Jay, Mrs. Ralph Hagan, Mrs. Lou Palmer, Mrs. George Rector, Mrs. William A. Morehouse, Mrs. E. J. Brent, Mrs. A. Pennell, Mrs. Albert Mortenson, Mrs. Joseph Zemansky and Mrs. Fred Gollum. Huge floor vases of holly and potted plants enlivened the large living-room, where the card tables were placed.

Invitations have been issued by members of the Invierno Club for their annual football prom, which will take place on December 19, at Goldberg-Bosley's. The assembly-rooms will be decorated with pennants from the various schools. School songs by various glee clubs, and college yells are sure to be heard throughout the evening. The patronesses are Mrs. George H. Rector, Mrs. David Edgar Llewellyn, Mrs. Edwin J. Brent, Mrs. Stoddard Jess and Mrs. Willoughby Rodman.

Merry Dancing Party.

A merry dance party was given by Miss Beatrice and Harold Chambers at their home, No. 1924 Grace street, recently. Holiday decorations and quantities of greenery were effectively use in the rooms. Assisting the host and hostess were Misses Constance Chambers, Ruth and Elizabeth Felts, Messrs. Alfred Briggs and Lovel Chambers. A buffet supper was served at 11 o'clock to twenty-five guests.

Arrowhead Notes.

Miss Georgia Truman of this city motored to Arrowhead Wednesday to engage reservations for the family, who will shortly arrive to spend the greater part of the winter. Maj. and Mrs. Truman and their daughter visit Arrowhead several times yearly to take the baths and enjoy the attractions the resort offers. They expect to be settled in the hotel before Christmas.

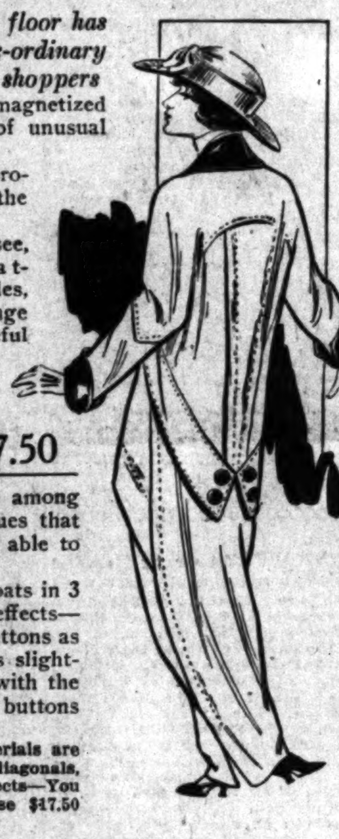
Suits at $17.50! Listen!

The beautiful new 3rd floor has planned an out-of-the-ordinary program for Monday shoppers

—Three prices are to be magnetized through the electricity of unusual values—

—We wish we could reproduce here a dozen of the suits concerned.

—We wish you could see, not only the strikingly attractive nature of the styles, but also the splendid range of varieties, and the careful perfection of designing and tailoring that makes



These Suits at $17.50

—So charming as to be among the most interesting values that this store has ever been able to offer.

—Tailored styles, with coats in 3 and 4 button cutaway effects—some with rows of self buttons as trimming and with skirts slightly slit; or novelty suits with the cutest slanting tucks and buttons in rows—to match.

—Yes, indeed, and the materials are hard finished serges and diagonals, in black, or tan striped effects—You should not fail to see these $17.50 suits.

Then there are Suits at $19.50

—plain tailored and semi-novelty suits, regulation plain tailored cutaways—square cut novelty with semi-blouse back, finished with novelty ornaments or sash effect of black velvet—some have back collar and over collar of velvet—high and low cut novelty cutaway—some have long shoulders and deep yokes with ornament of self material for fastening—some are medium length with novelty black silk braiding all around the edge of coat and long roll velvet collar—Then there are smart combination suits with check or stripe skirt and plain cutaway coat of black or navy mannish serge—Other suits are made of wool repp, wide wale diagonal, homespun, mixtures, mannish stripes and serges.

And Other Suits at $25.00

—Novelty Suits, many of which are copies of imported models—smart, unusual styles—Some French tailored suits that are notable for their lack of plainness and stiffness so common to the plain tailored garments—Suits with all the prettiness and exclusiveness of the original models—

—Some coats are made without the revers and fasten in diagonal fashion with velvet loops and buttons—velvet collar, cuffs and bands for trimming—edge of collar and cuffs have touch of fur which gives a touch of smartness—

—Another of the very pretty models has very unusual cut revers that can be buttoned up in several ways, each way giving a different front effect—semi-blouse front caught in at waistline with a couple of pleats that are held down with a stitched-on belt of self material—a soft French back belt of velvet confines the loose coat back—sash ends on right side made of self material trimmed with ball fringe.

—There are navy suits with back collar of velvet, caracul, velour and velour in futurist tones—long shoulders, deep yokes, novel vests—plain tailored cutaway styles—semi-Norfolk and College styles.

—Made of broadcloth, duvetyne, wool repps, corded materials, Bedford cords, pebble granite, pebble cheviots, men's wear serge, rough diagonal, basket weave, wool brocade, small and medium size black and white checks, staple and novelty colors.

Queen of Handkerchief Values

SOCIETY.

friends recently with a birthday luncheon, honoring Mrs. Edward L. Haff. There were covers for Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Harrington, Mrs. Porley, Mrs. Daly, Mrs. Daniels and Mrs. Barton.

Just Returned.

Mrs. C. H. Green of No. 1122 West Ninth street, has returned to her home after a two months' visit in Ohio and Indiana, where she was called by the sudden death of her father.

Miss Darmody Hostess.

Miss Louise F. Darmody recently entertained a number of friends at her home on Dorchester avenue with a Five Hundred party. Violets were used entirely in decorating, a large mound of the fragrant blossoms centering the table. The guests who received as favors corsage bouquets of violets, included the Misses Marjorie Bell, Bodier, Isadora Couts, Elinor Daniels, Josephine Daniels, Florence Dorn, Freda Faris, Marion Holmes, Anna King, Magee, Annie McDonald, Leila Nickerson, Florence Paul, Ruth Taylor, Wilhelmina Rector and Clarita Ritchey.

Dinner and Theater.

Miss Bertha Bosbyshell of South Pasadena, who leaves shortly from San Francisco in company with Rev. and Mrs. Horace Day of this city for a trip around the world, was the honoree at a dinner, followed by a theater party at the Morosco, given by Mrs. Edgar H. Howes, Friday evening, at her home, No. 337 North Mathews street. A cut-glass bowl filled with poinsettias, the Christmas flower, graced the center of the table, and the surprise of the evening came when little envelopes were found at each cover with a theater ticket enclosed. Places were arranged for Miss Bertha Bosbyshell, Mr. and Mrs. Howes, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Balfour, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Rhone, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Irwin of Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Chase, Miss Clara Bosbyshell, Miss Clara Carpenter and Fred Bosbyshell.

Dinner Dance.

Mrs. G. E. Marshall entertained last evening with an enjoyable dinner dance at the Casa Linda, No. 201 South Bonnie Brae. The ballroom, which was ablaze with lights, had been turned into a bower by the use of a profusion of pink roses and potted palms. An orchestra furnished music for the dancing and many feet kept time to lively music. Fifty guests were entertained, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Van Alstyne, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Butler, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen, Mr. and Mrs. B. Everitt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. E. Hayden, Mrs. A. Lore, Mrs. C. Phipps and Messrs. E. E. Gray, Carl Carlson, L. Burbank, G. Davenport and H. Underwood.

Galveston Guest.

Mrs. Kathryn Hutchings of Galveston, Tex., is the guest of Mrs. William Kelly of No. 941 Potter Park avenue. She will be joined next week by her husband, who is the captain of the life-saving stations along the Gulf of Mexico. The couple will spend the holidays in this city where they have many friends.

OUT-OF-TOWN-SOCIETY.

Pasadena.

NOTEWORTHY among several pleasant social affairs last week was the reception given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Thomas Snowdon Tompkins, and her daughter, Miss Carolyn Tompkins, at their home on South Pasadena avenue. Between the hours of 4 o'clock and 6 o'clock 300 society matrons and maids were entertained. The living-room was charmingly decorated with golden brown and yellow chrysanthemums and the mantel was banked with zinas. Pale pink carnations with quantities of ferns were also used. In the dining-room where refreshments were served an unusually artistic effect was produced by a free use of ruddy autumn leaves which adorned the tea table and were effectively used elsewhere. In the den, where punch was served, pepper berries made a pretty decoration. Presiding at the tea table were Mmes. Torrey Everett and John E. Maeble, the first hour, and Mrs. J. E. Scott and Mrs. Hazard Halsted, the second hour. Others assisting were Mmes. John Earle Jardine, Thaddeus Jones, S. M. Hamilton, A. M. Drake, W. E. Nichols, Maynard Force, Thayer M. S. Todd, W. W. Billson, G. C. Horton, Robert Pierce, Misses Barbara Hossack, Alice Markham, Marian Drake. At the punch bowl Misses Gertrude and Hildreth Markham, Ethel Richardson, Margaret Reynolds, Mary Thomas Lockwood, Penina Jones, Norma Williams, Marian Brown and Gladys Waterman assisted.

Miss Emily Hibbard of Bellefontaine street entertained Thursday afternoon with a small auction bridge party complimentary to Mrs. J. H. Holden, who is a guest for the winter of Mrs. Clarence Bryant Hall of South Grand avenue. Garden flowers were used in ornamenting the rooms and after the games tea was served, several friends coming in for that function. Among those present were Mmes. Thomas Campbell, Taylor McDougal, Clarence B. Hall, J. Fister Rhodes, Jr.; E. M. Mackey, David F. Blankenhorn, Volney Craig, W. B. Merwin, C. Warring, Leffingwell, Joseph Azarian, Walter Schuyler Volkmar, Misses Markham, Gertrude Markham, Mary Ranney, Emma Peterson, Mabel Norton, Elizabeth Speer and others.

One of the jolly functions of last week was the costume dance given at the Pasadena Country Club by the winners of the Thanksgiving turkey shoot at that club. These were Miss Elizabeth Sherk, Messrs. Roy Hull and Will H. Nevin, who acted as hostess and hosts upon this occasion. Music was furnished by Earle's orchestra and the clubhouse was appropriately decorated with autumnal foliage and Christmas greens. Those present came in costume, most of them wearing the garb of country folk, cowboys and ranchers, and the evening was gaily spent. The party included Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Macy, Mr. and Mrs. John Earle Jardine, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Nutting Wigton, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pitcairn, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. Zenneth Avery, Mr. and Mrs. T. Harrison Guthrie, Miss Margaret Sherk, Messrs. Irving Benton, John Staats and Turner.

Mrs. L. P. Pomeroy was the hostess Monday afternoon at a prettily appointed tea given in honor of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Libby, of San Diego, and her niece, Miss Gertrude Pomeroy, of Portland, Me. Roses and carnations were used in decorating the rooms and assisting the hostess were Mmes. George A. Damon, Farah Frye, C. G. Woodman, Harry Lord and Lyman Clark, and Miss Gavina Roehrig.

Prof. and Mrs. Jerome O. Cross held their monthly salon Monday evening, with sixty-five guests present. Assisting were Mmes. J. P. O'Mara, W. H. Nichols, Misses Pierson, Alma Holloway, Isabelle Cass, and Macpherson. Miss Ford, one of the guests, entertained with an account of a most eventful trip to South America and Miss Kemp sang a group of songs appropriate to the Christmas season. Prof. and Mrs. Hubert Parker gave violin and piano selections.

Mrs. William M. Ritchey gave a small, informal tea Monday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, the guests being Mmes. Clara Bryant Heywood, G. F. Berggren, Frank G. Martin, Margaret A. Bonney, C. H. McGavren, Garrett Newkirk, Stanley P. DuBois, H. G. Austin, Charles E. Ashcroft, Misses Bonney and Nellie Russ.

Miss Madeline Harris of South Orange Grove avenue was the hostess Tuesday at a small auction bridge party given in honor of Miss Gladys Waterman, who is soon going East for an extended stay. Ulrich Brunner roses were used in decoration, and tables were placed for sixteen players, among whom were Mmes. Alexander Nottmeyer, George Arthur Vedder, Archibald Morris, Gamble Reighart, Roland Ahlswede, Walter Barnes, F. R. Harris, Misses Mabel Seibert, Lucy Smith, Margaret Mears, Ellen Kellogg, Jessie McCament, Gladys Waterman and others.

Mrs. E. A. MacCoy of Brooklyn avenue and her son, Dr. William E. MacCoy, entertained the New York-avenue Card Club last Monday evening and the rooms were elaborately decorated with Maman Cochet roses and asparagus plumosus. The prize winners were Mrs. Gragg and F. W. Pierson. Mr. Gragg and Mrs. Warren Richardson received consolation prizes. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sorver, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Lacey, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton J. Platt, Mr. and Mrs. John Bustin, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Livingston, Mr. and Mrs. Alvick A. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Macpherson, Misses Emma Bustin, Gertrude Pierson, Louise Lacey, and F. W. Pierson.

Mrs. Albert Hatcher Smith of Garfield avenue entertained a party of ten young people over last Sunday, who came over from Hollywood Friday to attend a costume party that evening given by Miss Smith at her home. There were forty-six young people present and the affair was greatly enjoyed. The house was decorated with roses and pink carnations, and Mmes. W. B. Gard and Andrew Lord assisted at the table when refreshments were served. Music was furnished by Mrs. and Miss Stewart, and Lewis Stanley and Miss Hoskins gave interesting readings.

Mrs. Charles Grimes gave a bridge tea at the Altadena Country Club Thursday afternoon for a few friends, among whom were Mmes. E. E. Harwood, Edward Braley, Frank Whittington, Harry Black, Charlotte Webster, Flora May, R. B. Burnette, Henry Hanscomb and Perkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Miller of South Madison avenue formally announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Miller, and Harold Herbert Loomis of Los Angeles, the wedding to take place on New Year's eve. Miss Miller was the guest of honor Friday at a small affair given by Miss Azalia Bean of Bowens court, and several pleasant functions are being arranged in her honor.

Mrs. Maynard Force Thayer, assisted by Mrs. J. F. Force, entertained the Pasadena chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution Friday. Miss Irene Mersereau gave current-event items and M. H. McComb outlined "The Mexican Problem."

Mrs. C. T. Fleming entertained the members of the Optimo Club at her home Wednesday with luncheon and Five Hundred. Roses adorned the table and the prizes were won by Mmes. Samuel Blasing and William Loud.

Mrs. Charles Henry Hamilton and daughters, Misses Marion and Alice Hamilton of East California street, left Thursday morning for Chicago, where they expect to spend four months.

A pleasant party of young people went to Mt. Wilson for the week-end, returning Saturday evening. Mrs. Revel English chaperoned the party, which included Misses Mary Thomas Lockwood, Louise Sherman, Alice Lyman, Genevieve Stehman, Lewyellan and Blow, Messrs. Barker, Flas, Brokaw and Lance Sherman.

Mr. and Mrs. Tod Ford, who have been over from their ranch at Hueneme, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pitcairn, Jr., of State street a portion of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mauris Robinson returned Friday from an extended eastern trip.

Miss Gladys Gardner of East Colorado street spent a few days this past week at Riverside, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Frye.

All festivities which had been arranged incidental to the marriage of Miss Gladys McLachlan and Gardner Towne of Los Angeles, which is to take place this month, have been abandoned owing to the sudden death of the grandmother of the bride-elect.

Mrs. Louis Blankenhorn will entertain Wednesday, December 10, from 4 to 7 o'clock with a tea dansant given at the Valley Hunt Club for their daughter, Miss Barbara Blankenhorn, who is one of this season's debutantes. Invitations have been extended to members of the younger society set and the young friends of the debutante.

R. D. Davis gave a stag dinner at the Altadena Country Club Thursday evening, when the decorations were unique. The central idea was the Rose Tournament and the table decoration carried out the chariot race and floral entries in miniature most cleverly. Covers were laid for J. B. Coulston, C. C. Clarke, H. L. Story, L. H. Turner, A. T. Gartz, William H. Vedder, A. T. Welles, G. Lawrence Stimson and the host.

Tuesday afternoon the Plaudertasche Club was entertained by Mrs. A. Scott Ormsby of Garfield avenue. Miss Christine Bartelle gave piano numbers and Miss Genevieve Church Smith sang a group of German songs. There were twenty-five members present.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Doane of Mountain street entertained Friday evening with a very pretty party, which was enjoyed by thirty North Pasadena people who used to go to school together years ago. The affair was called a children's party, and old times were called to memory by the guests appearing in old-time children's costumes.

Mrs. Marshall Northcross entertained Thursday with a prettily-appointed luncheon when covers were laid for twelve. She was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. J. D. Thomas of Santa Ana, and the guests were ten Santa Ana girl friends of the hostess, who is an October bride.

South Pasadena.

THE home of Mrs. William A. Cochrane, No. 1938 Milan avenue, was beautifully decorated Tuesday afternoon with the rich dark green of the holly foliage and the bright red of the berries, the occasion being a Kensington party and musical afternoon for sixty of her Los Angeles, Pasadena and South Pasadena friends. Assisting ladies were Mrs. R. D. Tinklepaugh of Los Angeles; Mrs. Samuel McDonald, Mrs. Norman Foote Marsh, Mrs. Otis Byers Manchester, Mrs. George D. Werden and Mrs. Mossom G. Ritchie. A delightful programme was presented by Mrs. Mabelle Havens Corbett, a dramatic reader of Los Angeles, who gave "Leah" (Lena Rivers,') prefaced by Van Dyke's "Walk a Mile With Me," and a suite of three songs by Harriett Vail Tussing. Resting on a handsome cluny luncheon cloth on the tea table was a Japanese basket filled with the large shaggy red and yellow chrysanthemums, on either side of which were butterfly bows of red and yellow ribbons. Red-shaded candelabra shed a soft glow over the table, and here a two-course luncheon was served following the programme. Baskets of red chrysanthemums and American beauty roses were also placed in the large living-room, which was bright with the Christmas greens and holly, suggesting the coming holiday.

Mrs. J. T. Glover has as her house guests her daughters, Mrs. Emery iMtchell of oPrtland, O., and Mrs. E. C. Cornell of Tipton. The latter is accompanied by her small son.

Members of the Las Amigas Club were delightfully entertained at the home of Miss Charlotte Butterfield, No. 1625 Fair Oaks avenue, Tuesday afternoon. Three brown Japanese baskets filled with the golden chrysanthemums, resting on cluny lace centerpieces, centered the long luncheon table, and covers were laid for sixteen. After luncheon tables were arranged in the large living-room for games of auction, the high score winner being Mrs. Hobart. A profusion of white and yellow chrysanthemums arranged in baskets and vases embellished this room. Members present were Mrs. George Patterson, Mrs. Norman Foote Marsh, Mrs. David Vail, Mrs. Carl McStay, Mrs. Grace Hudson, Mrs. Edward Fisher Hobart, Mrs. Robert Gortner, Mrs. John C. Paine, Mrs. W. D. Newert, Mrs. George C. Bush, Mrs. B. F. Huntington, Mrs. Jessie Cairns Shoebottom, Mrs. Ernest V. Sutton, and Mrs. William H. Harrison and Mrs. Robert [illegible] Hardy of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Bristol are entertaining Mrs. Barbara May Neil and Mrs. Belle Webster of Des Plaines, Ill.

Mrs. Roy B. Stephens entertained with an enjoyable luncheon Tuesday, honoring her house guests, Miss Della King of Imperial, a teacher in the public schools, who is spending her vacation in this city. The table glowed with yellow chrysanthemums, and covers were also laid for Mrs. Charles Hurst and Miss Maud Hurst of Covina; Mrs. Vera Rogers of Whittier and the hostess. Dainty needlework and pleasant conversation passed the balance of the afternoon.

Miss Jennie L. Thompson has returned to her home in Camden, N. J., after spending some months with her niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley C. Packer, No. 1108 Fremont avenue.

Wednesday, December 10, has been chosen by Miss Louise W. Mason, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Mason, No. 1100 Windsor place, as the date of her wedding to William Eichoff of Azusa, the ceremony to take place at the bride's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Rounds of Chicago were the honorees at a dinner party given by Mrs. J. P. Whitmore, No. 1143 Fairview avenue, on Wednesday evening. A mound of violets graced the center of the table, which were later presented as corsage bouquets to the ladies. Covers were also lyaid for Mr. and Mrs. Frd Manley of Glendale and Mr. and Mrs. Whitmore.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Perkins announce the engagement of their second doughter, Miss Eleanor, to Charles W. Clay of Los Angeles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Clay of Harvard boulevard. The bride-to-be is a member of one of the oldest families of the Bay State and with her parents has lived in Southern California for nearly twenty years. The wedding will take place early this month, and the young people will make their home in Los Angeles, where the groom is associated in business with his father.

Walter Lord, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Lord, and Gail Vandenbraak, who have been attending Stanford University, are spending the Thanksgiving holidays at home. In their honor, Arthur Taylor, No. 1636 London street, was host at a dinner and theater party—the dinner given at his home, then taking his guests in automobiles to Los Angeles for the theater. The fluffy yellow chrysanthemums centered the table and covers were laid for Walter Lord, Gail Vandenbraak, Arthur Taylor, Bruce Spencer, Roy Pierson, Dallas Spear, Harold Cass, Newton Catters, George Howard, Ben Cravens and Fred High. Miss Gladys Taylor, sister of the host, and Miss Louise Dodge, assisted in entertaining the guests.

Mrs. Augusta Raab and her two daughters, Miss Minnie Raab and Miss Dora Raab, No. 1109 Buena Vista street, have returned from Germany, where they have been staying for the last five months. Miss Dora Raab graduated from Wellesley last June, and her mother and sister went East to be present at the exercises. They then left for their former home in Germany, where Miss Dora Raab has been studying music.

One of the most attractive affairs of the current week was the dancing party given by Miss Louise Dodge at her homa, Huntington drive and Pine street. The house was a garden of great shaggy white and yellow chrysanthemums, combined with a profusion of gaily-tinted autumn leaves. The house was brilliantly lighted throughout, and the ballroom vibrated fascinating music, to which many feet kept time. Among those included were Miss Alice Penny, Miss Isabelle Richards, Miss Bessie Richards, Miss Aurelia Daggett, Miss Alberta McKay, Miss Elwyn Perry, Miss Gladys Taylor, Miss Marguerite Perry, Miss Isabelle Scott, Miss Genevieve Boone, Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn Padan, and Messrs. Clarendon Foster, Clarence Council, Jean [illegible], Charles Ewing, Arthur Taylor, Bruce Spencer, Bernard Cravens, Dick [illegible]man and Charles Dodge.

Mrs. Nellie Keith, the city librarian, and her daughter, Miss Mildred Keith, a student at Occidental, are spending the week-end at the home of relatives in Long Beach.

The Misses Ruth and Helen List of Los Angeles, former residents of this city, and popular among the younger set, were the honorees at an informal evening given by Miss Violet Lacy, Thursday, at her home, No. 1901 Mission street. A musical evening was enjoyed, followed by dancing. Included were Miss Ruth List, Miss Helen List, Miss Frances [illegible], Miss Jane Thompson, Miss Nell [illegible]son, Miss Marjorie Gillie, and Messrs. Bob Horner, Albert Lacy, [illegible] Donaldson, Lou [illegible], Ward Fowler and Mr. and Mrs. D. [illegible] of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Huntington, No. 1535 Ramona avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. George C. Bush and daughter, Antoinette, are enjoying a week-end automobile trip to Riverside, and will stop at the Glenwood Mission Inn.

Glendale.

A PRETTY affair was the marriage of Miss Ruth Palmer and Martin Sunkes, the affair taking place at the home of the bride's brother, O. S. Palmer, Rev. John Henry [illegible], pastor of the First Baptist Church officiating. The bride wore a gown of embroidered marquisette and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Miss Veda Ray, classmate of the bride, was maid of honor, while Rav Helman of Casa Verdugo served as best man. At the ceremony the coupla stood beneath a bridal arch of flowers and greenery, from which was suspended a wedding bell. Mr. and Mrs. Sunkes are at home at No. 138 Elrose avenue.

The girls' Philathea class of the First Methodist Church had a meeting Monday evening at the home of Miss Helen Wright. A short business session was held at which it was decided to do Christmas work for the Children's Hospital in Los Angeles. The next meeting of this society will take place December 11 at the home of Miss Gladys Anderson.

Mrs. Frank Marek and Mrs. [illegible] Tatlow entertained Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] in honor of their husbands, whose birthdays occurred on that date. The home was decorated for the occasion with hundreds of seasonable flowers and graceful ferns. After several hours of jollification delicious refreshments were served to Mr. and Mrs. John Heinmiller, Miss [illegible] Heinmiller, John Heinmiller, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Mulligan, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]

The Monday Afternoon Club was entertained this week by Mrs. Edward N. Lee at her home, No. 106 Cedar street. Beautiful pink and white roses furnished attractive decorations for the afternoon. The approach of the holidays was suggested by the appearance of bright holly berries and green foliage. Sewing and social chatter constituted the afternoon's diversions. Twenty-five members and the following non-members were present: Mrs. W. W. Lee of Los Angeles, Mrs. M. P. Harrison, Mrs. M. Wilson, Mrs. Edgar Leavitt and Miss Gray of San Diego. The next meeting of this club will be held at the home of Mrs. I. N. Hall, No. 124 North Glendale avenue, when she and her two daughters, Mrs. J. T. Anderson and Mrs. Belle Hall, will act as hostesses. This will be in the form of a Christmas Kensington.

The Lo-Lo-Mi Campfire Girls of the Baptist Church met Friday evening in the church classroom. The attendance was quite large, quite a number of visitors being present. The speaker of the evening was Miss J. L. Brede of the health department of Los Angeles, who took for her subject, "Things That We Ought to Know That We Do Not Know."

Tropico.

THE true Christmas spirit was manifested at the bazaar and cafeteria dinner given by the Tropico Thursday Afternoon Club in the Payne block, Tuesday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Frank B. McKen[illegible], chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the club, was most ably assisted by Mrs. Charles A. Barker, president of the club, and members, and each officer as well as each club member feels justly proud of the financial as well as of the social success of the bazaar of the past week. The hall where the bazaar was held was prettily decorated in chrysanthemums and autumn leaves.

N. P. Banks Woman's Relief Corps gave a "Tacky" party at G.A.R. Hall Tuesday evening, when dancing and games were enjoyed. Robert Taylor, Past Post Commander, and Mrs. [illegible] Burlingham, Past Corps President, lead in the grand march.

It was a merry party of Tropico citizens who left early Saturday morning for Elizabeth Lake in their automobiles for a few days' outing. The party made their headquarters in a cottage near the mountains, from which place excursions were made on the mountains, where snow was discovered on the mountainside which was in sufficient quantities to afford snowballing. The party of winter picnickers was composed of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Logan, Miss Mary Logan, Capt. and Mrs. C. A. Neil, Archer Neil, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Neil, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Neil and George Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Rice entertained with a dinner party at their home on Central avenue Sunday. Seated with the host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Peckham, Miss Frances and Miss Gladys Peckham.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Richardson, who were the guests of their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Richardson while en route home from a visit in Brawley as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Neville, have returned to their home at Santa Paula.

Mrs. William La Fountaine and sons Harlan and Robert La Fountaine, have arrived from their home in Pittsburgh, Pa., and will pass the winter as the guests of Mrs. Norton Marshall of Acacia avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Finlay returned from Hermosa Beach, where they are spending the winter, to be in attendance at the bazaar given by the Thursday Afternoon Club, Tuesday, of which society Mrs. Finlay is secretary.

Casa Verdugo.

MISS MATTEBELLE PROVOLT was the house guest of Miss Elizabeth Lange on Wednesday and Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman McG. Kelly of No. 908 Dryden street entertained with a Thanksgiving dinner on November 27. Covers were laid for seven and the table was profusely decorated and suitably to the season. After a most delicious dinner was enjoyed to the fullest extent, the evening was spent in music. The guests who enjoyed this hospitality were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Staggner, Miss Elizabeth Lange of Casa Verdugo and the Misses Olga and Athena Purt of Los Angeles.

One of the prettiest home weddings that has been solemnized in this community in many a long day was that which united Miss Mary Ruth Palmer of Glendale and Martin Sunkes of Casa Verdugo, on Thanksgiving night, at the home of the bride's brother, A. L. Palmer of Glendale, Rev. J. H. Levy of the First Baptist Church performing the ceremony. The bride wore a gown of embroidered marquisette over cream satin, with a tulle veil, which was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was of bride roses and orange blossoms.

Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer Green of No. 1016 Fairview avenue were guests at a Thanksgiving dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lawson of Glendale.

Redondo Beach.

MRS. GEORGIA CRAIG delightfully entertained the Lonely Lonesomes Monday evening at her home on Broadway with progressive whist. Mrs. J. Shultz won the first prize, Mrs. W. F. Springer the second and Mrs. J. Wade the consolation. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Whitten, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wade, Mr. and Mrs. J. Shultz, Mr. and Mrs. F. Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] C. Garner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Springer and Mrs. Georgia Craig.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Newell of Nashville, Tenn., are visiting Mrs. Newell's mother, Mrs. F. H. Seymour, at the [illegible] Hotel for the winter. Mr. Newell left Monday for Fronteras, Mex., on a short business trip, and will return next week.

Mrs. F. H. Seymour entertained at auction bridge Wednesday at the Cliff[illegible] for Mrs. A. B. Newell of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. B. Bruce of Santa [illegible] and Miss Florence Sutton of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Klingensmith of [illegible], B. C., will arrive here Monday to spend the winter at La Neptune.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Zak of Chicago, who have spent the past two months at La Neptune, will go to Los Angeles Monday for the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Hickey of Hot Springs, Ark., are guests at the Phoenix for a month.

Among the recent guests at Hotel [illegible] spending the month there are Mrs. E. M. Stafford of Little Rock, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Long of Los Angeles, Mrs. Ella Smith of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Adams of Los Angeles and Mrs. Helen Huston and daughter Lavelle of Belvidere.

Sierra Madre.

ON MONDAY evening a delightful dinner party was given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Krebs, the guests being a few friends and those who recently took part in the production, "What Happened to Jones." The table was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and ferns and candles cast a soft glow over the whole effect, which made it very pretty. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening and Raymond Hedderly, accompanied by Edward Pelletier, rendered some musical selections, which were well appreciated. Those present were Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dietz, Mr. and Mrs. James Hawks, Mr. and Mrs. Henderson Childs and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Nuetzel. The Misses Lydia Webster, Edith Blumer, Lottie Humphries, Daisy Hawks and Helen Williams and Messrs. Raymond Hedderly and Edward Pelletier.

A party motored to Griffith Park on Sunday and spent the day. A delicious lunch was served at noon and a most delightful time was enjoyed by those present. Among those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. William J. Lawless, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Carhart, Mr. and Mrs. George Letteau, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ingraham, Mr. and Mrs. G. Hallett Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Mason, Mrs. Ballou and Miss Hazel Woodward. Los Angeles guests were Mrs. W. S. Knight and her son, Mr. Knight, and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Siegmund and Mr. Bravinder.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Camp returned on Wednesday from San Francisco, where they had been for a short time visiting relatives.

Miss Dorothy Humphries spent a most enjoyable week-end in Santa Monica, where she was the guest at the home of Miss Alice Whitaker.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Baker entertained with a family dinner party Sunday at their home, the occasion being in honor of their little boy's birthday. Covers were laid for Mrs. R. H. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Ray A. Baker and their daughter, Miss Consuelo, and Miss Lea, all of whom are residents of Los Angeles.

Many Sierra Madre people were most charmingly entertained on Monday when they were guests in Long Beach at the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando McDaniel. Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel were formerly residents of this city, and while here won a great number of friends. The decorations used were most effective, carrying out the gold color scheme. A beautiful gold bracelet symbolic of the endless circle of friendship, and bearing the inscription "From a Circle of Friends," was given to Mrs. McDaniel and a pretty stickpin was presented to Mr. MacDaniel. The reception, which was from 3 to 9 in the evening, was well attended by others from other cities. Those from this city were Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. George Coapman, Miss Lyford, Mrs. N. H. Hosmer, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Copps, Mr. and Mrs. Benadum, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Walker, Mrs. Staples, Mr. Sparks, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dietz, Mr. Sokol, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Welsher, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jones, Mrs. Martha Rust and Mrs. O. M. Cadwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dietz entertained with dinner on Wednesday evening at their home, the guests being Mr. and Mrs. Carcus Copps and Capt. and Mrs. J. A. Osgood.

A jolly crowd of the younger set enjoyed a delightful week-end in the cabin in Bailey's Canyon. Those in the party were Mrs. B. H. Kuhn, the Misses Hallie Kuhn and Adelaide Mahon of Pasadena and Stearns of Long Beach, Messrs. Marshall Wright, Victor Hill, Herbert Ingraham, Lawrence Nourse and Stearns of Long Beach.

The Dickens Fellowship was most delightfully entertained on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Frank Wright, Mrs. Selma Beyers of Santa Monica being the hostess. A goodly number were present and dainty refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. George Coapman entertained with a dinner party at their home on Thanksgiving. Yellow and white were the colors used to decorate with and covers were laid for Mrs. Ross, Miss Ross and Norman Ross and Mrs. F. J. Morgan of Monrovia, Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Lee, Miss Marguerite Lee and Morgan Lee and Miss A. V. Stanley, all from Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burell of Sierra Madre.

Mrs. Donald C. Ashmore entertained informally with tea at her home last Saturday afternoon complimentary to Mrs. George Seager of San Bernardino, who is visiting relatives here for a short time. Others invited were Mrs. Wilbur Gilliland, Miss Hazel Hill and the Misses Lottie and Dorothy Humphries.

The Eleven and One Club were delightfully entertained on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Ruth Sparks. The time was spent in making candy for the coming sale, the club having charge of the candy booth.

Miss A. E. Wadleigh and Mrs. George Wadleigh were the luncheon guests on Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. J. Saunders.

Monrovia.

MRS. J. J. WILLIAMS entertained Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Manno Woods of Glendale, superintendent of the purity department of the California Woman's Christian Temperance Union. In addition to the guest of honor, Mrs. Williams's guests included Mrs. Alice Castello and Mrs. George O. Monroe. In the afternoon Mrs. Woods addressed a large meeting of Monrovia women at the Orange-avenue school on "Mothers and Daughters."

Miss Edith Dixon, whose engagement to Edward D. Arthur was announced recently, has been the guest of honor at a number of delightful social affairs during the past few weeks. On Friday evening of last week Miss Dixon was tendered a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Claude Chess of East White Oak avenue, assisted by the Misses Tressie Eason and Anita Rives. Two dozen friends of the bride-to-be were present and many charming and beautiful gifts were presented. Invitations are now out for another party in compliment to Miss Dixon, to be given by Miss Nancy Beamer at her home in Venice.

Monrovia hotels and apartment-houses are rapidly filling with winter guests and a number of charming parties are being given. At Hotel 'Leven Oaks last night two score students from Occidental College made merry at a banquet of the O.M.A. Fraternity. Among the week-end guests at the hostelry are registered: W. R. Thompson and R. T. W. Moss, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Baird, S. W. Newman, Miss Bridges, H. A. Bingham and Miss Hamilton of Los Angeles; A. Podranki, wife and daughter of Upland; Mr. and Mrs. Pietch of Milwaukee and Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Miller of Los Angeles.

A number of Monrovia people were guests at the wedding of Miss Kathryn Pendleton and Carroll Brayton Reynolds, which was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Demming in Los Angeles, Tuesday evening. The bride spent a number of years in Monrovia, where she has a large circle of friends. Among those who attended the ceremony from this city were Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Schilling, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barks, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Roe and the Misses Eva Harvey, Waunita, Anita and Opal Rives, Mary Smith and Hal Rives.

Eagle Rock.

THE chrysanthemum card party, given by the Women's Twentieth Century Club, was held Saturday evening at the homes of Mrs. W. I. Rice and Dr. Myrtle Phinney of Fairmont avenue. The two homes were connected with a chain of Japanese lanterns, and the interior of both homes were beautifully decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums and smilax. It was a grand success, both socially and financially. Progressive whist was played. After the game, and while Miss Erna Herzog sang two beautiful selections in her most pleasing manner, the committee arranged the tables in the dining-room at Mrs. Rice's, and Mrs. Mary Hickson and Dr. Myrtle Phinney poured coffee and served cakes. Mrs. C. A. Hilton was the lucky one to receive the prize for the ladies, which was a very pretty Japanese basket full of yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Alice Winters received the second prize, a beautiful Venetian thimble, which had been donated by Mrs. Mary Hickson. The gentleman's first prize was awarded to Mr. Knightlinger and was a brass ash tray. H. Bourne received the second prize, a fine deck of cards.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Miller were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hill at the Ivins apartments on Sunday.

Ross Smith and Miss Alice Berger were united in marriage on Tuesday. Mrs. Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Berger. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will reside for the present at the home of the bride and will later move to San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Shaff, who have spent several months visiting in Michigan, Illinois and Missouri, have returned to their home here this week.

Misses Emily and Cynthia Buck of Rowland avenue had as their guests on Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Buck, Mrs. Esther Smith and Miss Hensel.

Mrs. J. Edwin Brown, dean of the Collegiate School, was a guest on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brubaker of West Sycamore avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. G.F. Howard of Eddy avenue gave a delightful dinner party on Thanksgiving Day. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carey and daughter Louise, Mrs. Carey and daughter, Miss Elizabeth of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Shields of Glendale.

Dr. and Mrs. Carle Phinney and family were guests Thursday of the former's aunt in South Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Ebermayer had as guests Thursday Mr. Kelsey and Paul O'Conner of Los Angeles and Miss Elsie Johnson of York Valley.

San Jacinto.

DR. JOSEPH F. BLACKSHAW leaves next week for the northern part of the State on a visit to his son, who is also a physician.

Miss May Vertrees of Fullerton spent her Thanksgiving with her parents on North San Jacinto avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Emerson went to Los Angeles Thursday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Crow entertained at progressive whist this week. Their home was charmingly decorated for the occasion.

Miss May Vertrees, while home for her Thanksgiving vacation, entertained a number of her former San Jacinto schoolmates.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Smith entertained a number of friends at a house party during the week-end.

Mrs. H. C. Malone has returned from a week's visit to Los Angeles to visit her married daughter.

The Misses Pico entertained at Casa Loma this week in honor of Miss Ethel Caughron of Pasadena.

Santa Barbara.

THE benefit bazaar and dance given in the palm room of the Potter Hotel Thursday evening was attended by practically all of the society folks of both Montecito and Santa Barbara, the affair being given by the leaders of the smart set for the St. Francis Hospital, a charitable institution. In the afternoon society turned out en masse to the sale held on the Potter veranda, expensive Christmas gifts going like wienies at a circus. Those who took a leading part in the management of the affair were Mrs. Milo M. Potter, Mrs. Oliver Dwight Norton, Miss Josefa de la Guerra, Miss Nina Jones, Miss Anne Bispham and Miss Marguerite Doe.

Mr. and Mrs. William Norman Campbell, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Marion Campbell, and Miss Gladys Ogilvy, went to Los Angeles Thursday, the young ladies being on their way to Woodstock, Vt., to spend the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo M. Potter left Friday morning for San Francisco, where they will spend a week or more visiting.

Mrs. James H. Bull, wife of Commodore Bull, who has been spending a few months in New York and Washington, is expected home in a few days. She takes an important part in the social whirl here and her coming home is of great interest.

A picnic luncheon at Stanley Park was immensely enjoyed Sunday by a number of Montecito and Santa Barbara society folks, the trip being made

If I Ate That I Would Die

You Will Never Fear Food If You Go to a Dinner Carrying One Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

You needn't pass up all those savory dishes just because you are afraid of what the stomach will say to them. Armed with a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, you can bid defiance to the most cantankerous stomach and be assured that your food will be perfectly digested in spite of the stomach's objections.

"At Every Banquet You Will Always See Some Person Who Is Afraid of Food."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a compound of pepsin, and those elements that must be secreted by the stomach if the food is to be digested. When the stomach fails to secrete enough of these digestive agencies, the only sane remedy is to supply a sufficient quality of these elements to digest the food. This is the service for which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets were made and they are recommended by leading doctors and scientists. One or two of these tablets is sufficient to digest the largest dinner. They stop almost instantly all forms of indigestion, such as sour stomach, belching, heartburn, dizziness, brash and dysentery. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain digestive elements, a single grain of which is capable of digesting 3000 grains of food, such as meats, eggs, grains, vegetables, starches and mineral matters of all kinds.

If your stomach is sluggish or worn out, let Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do your digesting for you until the stomach can recuperate. Give it a little vacation. It has a hard enough struggle at the best, with all you put in it. And even when your stomach is in perfect condition, you will occasionally need one after a big banquet or other social affair that taxes your stomach to the uttermost.

Make Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets the ever-ready friend and assistant to your stomach. Get a 50-cent box of your druggist today.

Bring the Children to See Our Toys and Dolls

They are wonderful and fascinating. Electric Trains and Trolleys that thunder through tunnels and over bridges, operated by simply attaching to the electric light socket. The children will thrill with delight at the Cannons that shoot real Caps—Boats, whole flotillas of them—Fire Engine Houses with Engines that rush out automatically—proud Soldiers—Dogs, Bears and other animals that perform amusing antics. And the Games and Books come in for their share of attention. They're the sort that cultivate and instruct young minds, as well as afford hours of entertainment.

BOOKS! BOOKS! BOOKS!—the kind that teach and amuse.

A Doll Carnival!

THE EMPIRE SELLS, TOMORROW,
$60 Suits and Dresses for 24.75
Remember Alteration FREE

Why can the Empire afford to sell garments that way? Easy enough. The Empire sells their garments on the second floor, that means low rent and less expenses for running our place. Then, again, the Empire buys for cash and buys mostly samples, that means lower cost. Furthermore, we sell at a narrow margin of profit. That is why the Empire can sell $60 suits and dresses for $24.75.

Handsome fall styles in an extremely large variety. High-grade apparel that would cost you $60 in street level stores, on sale Monday at the Empire for $24.75.

$15.00 to $20.00 COATS

—Another extraordinary bargain that shows the superiority of our second floor method in selling high-class coats for almost half their regular worth.

Many of these are samples, therefore you are certain of scores of different styles. The newest all wool fabrics. Women's and misses' sizes. It is only a second floor store that can sell $20 coats for $9.85 and that store is the Empire.

by automobiles. Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Joel R. Fithian, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. Knott, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart, Mrs. Oliver D. Norton, Mrs. John Edward Beale, Mrs. William Miller Graham, Mrs. T. K. Culley, Mrs. William H. Bartlett, Misses Bispham, Nina Jones, Marguerite Doe, Beatrice Wetmore and Messrs. George Baker, Loring Andrews, Russel Ray, Francis Wilson, Eliot Rogers and E. W. Runyon.

Mrs. William Miller Graham on Tuesday evening entertained at her Montecito mansion in honor of the Duke and Duchess de Richelieu, who with J. W. Byrnes of San Francisco are enjoying a sojourn here. The Duchess was formerly Miss Wise of Baltimore and a belle of that eastern city. Mrs. Graham's home was beautifully decorated for the affair, which was one of the smartest of the season.

Mrs. Isaac Milbank of Los Angeles, accompanied by Miss Coggshall of the same city, are spending a week or so at the Arlington Hotel. Many parties have been planned in their honor.

Inglewood.

A WEDDING of more than usual interest because of the popularity and social prominence of the bride, was that of Thursday evening, December 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Doir H. G. Hurlburt, when their daughter, Miss Bertrice, became the bride of Mark Gemmill of Geyner, Nev. The large living-room of the home, where the ceremony was performed, had been transformed for the event into a bower of greenery interwoven with pink and white blossoms, the beamed ceilings and walls being canopied with festoons of pepper boughs and smilax interwoven with pink and white carnations. Ropes of smilax marked the bridal path through the hall to the farther side of the living-room, where had been improvised a beautiful altar of palms, ferns and carnations. Preceding the ceremony a musical programme was rendered. Miss Camille Grimaud, a talented singer of Hyde, sang "Until You Came," and "Sweetheart," and was followed by Miss Elizabeth Buffington, who rendered very charmingly, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms." At 8 o'clock the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by Mrs. Harry M. Estes, marked the approach of the wedding party. The bride, who was attended only by her sister, Mrs. A. N. Clough, as matron of honor, passed down the bridal path to the altar and was met by the groom, who was attended by A. N. Clough, husband of the matron of honor.

The members of The Merry-go-Round Club were very delightfully entertained Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Mosher at their home, corner of Regent and Fir streets. All the members were present and the usual game of five hundred was enjoyed, the prizes being captured by Mrs. A. F. Monroe and Frank Zilligitt. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Mosher at the close of the game.

One of the enjoyable social events of the past week was that of Tuesday evening, when the members of the Inglewood volunteer fire department, of which Charles Howell is chief, entertained a large crowd of friends at a social dance in the reception and clubroom of the firehouse.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Clough returned to Inglewood Saturday, after several weeks' pleasant visit in Nebraska and Iowa.

Huntington Beach.

MISS BEATRICE McKENNEY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McKenney of this city, left here Thursday evening for San Francisco, from which place she will sail Tuesday in the Lurline for Honolulu to meet Dr. Edwin McKillop, to whom she will be married in the Hawaiian city. Dr. McKillop was recently a house surgeon in the County Hospital at Los Angeles. The young couple will reside at Honolulu.

Mrs. Mary V. Bushard, at her suburban home near Huntington Beach, entertained at dinner Thanksgiving Day, her guests being J. H. Reynolds, wife and son and Mrs. Dora C. Mellette of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Blakely of Alhambra.

Clinton F. Brainard, president of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate of New York, is a guest at the Huntington Inn, where he is visiting his father, Thomas C. Brainard. The latter has been seriously ill several months.

Mark B. Stearns and wife and daughter, Mrs. Maude Roderick of Edmonton, Can., reached here this week, and will remain through the winter and perhaps permanently.

Miss Eleanor St. John of Los Angeles is visiting friends in this section. She was this week a guest at the home of H. T. Sundbye on Main street.

W. F. Lindner and family left here Sunday for Red Bluff, Cal., where they expect to reside.

Laurel Canyon.

THE Laurel Five Hundred Club was entertained Thursday at a daintily-appointed luncheon given by Mrs. D. M. Small. The tables were decorated with baskets filled with pink blossoms, and the same dainty color was used in place cards and other accessories. The first prize was won by Mrs. K. V. Redpath and Mrs. R. D. Vercler was given the consolation. Other guests were Mmes. Don Porter, H. M. Boehner, E. W. Kidder, E. R. Barnett, C. S. Mann, F. M. Price, J. A. Matthews, G. Tully and F. J. Ephlin.

Wednesday evening being the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Tully, a number of friends surprised them by congregating at their beautiful new home during their absence and preparing a bountiful dinner, which was served on their return at 7 p.m. After dinner dancing was enjoyed. When the guests had departed some beautiful pieces of china were found to have been left as souvenirs of the occasion.

Lookout Mountain Inn was the scene of a jolly party Saturday evening, when twenty young people of the Hollywood High gave a dinner dance, chaperoned by Mrs. G. W. Mellville and Mrs. Stella Hoagland. They danced to the music of a large Victrola and between dances enjoyed the beauties of the valley below, that appeared as a fairyland with its myriads of twinkling lights.

Mrs. F. M. Rublee of Lookout Mountain Park entertained her mother, Mrs. A. Moore of Whittier, over the week end.

Mrs. L. F. McClellan returned to her home in Guadalupe Saturday after spending three weeks with her sister, Mrs. J. A. Matthews.

Whittier.

NOTABLE among recent social events was the annual reunion of the former students of Bryn Mawr College held at the home of the president of the Southern California Association, Miss Hazel Howard of Berkeley Way, last Saturday. There were present on this delightful occasion Mrs. Mary L. Eddy, Miss Alice Johnson, Mrs. J. E. Duffy and Miss Mary Walker of Los Angeles; Miss Alice Lewis of Pasadena, and Mrs. A. C. Johnson, Mrs. H. S. Fawcett, Mrs. J. H. Douglas, Jr., and the hostess of Whittier.

Miss Nellie M. Taylor of Albia, Iowa, has returned to Whittier for the winter, and is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milo Hunt of North Friends avenue.

The bungalow of the Baptist Church was the scene of a pleasant function Thursday evening when the entire church membership turned out to bid a happy welcome to Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Bryan, the new pastor and his wife. Although Rev. Bryan has been in the city some weeks, Mrs. Bryan arrived only recently. Short addresses of welcome were made, Rev. H. E. McGrew speaking for the Pastoral Union; while the various activities of the Baptist Church were represented in welcoming the new pastor and family. Rev. and Mrs.

Introducing Mr. J. S. Launderville Decorative Specialist

MR. LAUNDERVILLE is a man who has had a very broad decorative experience, particularly as relating to the exacting requirements of Southern California.

For ten years—and most of that time with this house—he has specialized on decorations as suited to local conditions. Under the term "decorations" is included the tout ensemble or complete furnishing of the home, and it is thus that we wish to introduce Mr. Launderville. He has made a careful study of the art of furnishing a house from top to bottom—draperies, carpets, furniture and the designing of special features—so that the entire decorative scheme may be consistent throughout. His ideas are original; his judgment exceptionally good. He is frequently consulted prior to the building of a home in order that the architecture may harmonize to the fullest extentwith the interior decorations.

We take this opportunity of commending Mr. Launderville in the highest terms. He will be glad to confer with you about your decorative problems at any time—and we shall be pleased to endorse and stand back of any promises or statements that he makes to our customers.

Gift Suggestions

Both our windows this week are filled with appropriate gifts for the holiday season—but they contain only a suggestion of the many good things you will find throughout this store. We call especial attention to our department of Objets d'Art on the Seventh Floor.

ONE of the most interesting announcements of the week is the news of the approaching marriage of George Edmund Saunders of this city to Miss Kathern Wilson Potts of Troy, N. Y. The date for the wedding has been set for December 16, Mr. Saunders leaving the last of this week for the East. The wedding will be quite an elaborate affair, the family of the bride being prominent socially in the eastern city, as is Mr. Saunders's. The wedding journey will be done away with, the young couple leaving immediately for the West to make their home in this city. It was while Mr. Saunders was a student at Cornell that he met the charming young lady who is to become his bride. Sinve leaving colllege Mr. Saunders has been associated with his father in the real estate business.

Another equally interesting announcement is of the engagement of Miss Emma Corwin of Madera and Arthur Chandler of this city. At a charmingly appointed luncheon given at the home of Miss Virginia Langenhovel of Madera, Saturday afternoon, the interesting secret was told by Miss Corwin. Mr. Chandler is a prominent young business man of this city, where the couple are to make their home. No date for the wedding has beet set as yet.

The University Club is planning a dancing party to be given January 9. The affair will be a large one and one of the most brilliant of the winter season. Herbert Gundelfinger, John Meux, Royal Carter and Christian Skov constitute the committee on arrangements.

The members of the Palmita Bridge Club were the guests of Mrs. S. L. Wiley at her hospitable home in Wolter's colony. The following guests enjoyed the afternoon: Mmes. Hundreds of Deaf People to Have Hearing Restored

During the holiday season hundreds of deaf people are expected to accept the invitation of the General Acoustic Co. to come into its offices at 927 Security Bldg., Los Angeles, and have their hearing restored for one hour, free of charge.

People who have been deaf for years, others only slightly hard of hearing—all in any way afflicted—are invited to enjoy the world of clear sound again at our expense. The inconspicuous six-tone "electrical-ear" of the Turner-Acousticon—one of the most remarkable productions of science and electricity—will provide the means of hearing, and every one who wishes to have his or her deafness permanently eliminated will be enabled to take the wonderful instrument home with him. The General Acoustic Co. has adopted this method of personal demonstration to prove to the deaf people of Los Angeles and neighboring cities that their hearing can be brought back by the Turner-Acousticon permanently.

Arrangements have been made to give special attention to all applicants visiting these permanent offices during the holiday season. Clip out this address now and come in at your earliest opportunity. General Acoustic Co., 927 Security Bldg., Los Angeles.

Omega Oil FOR Rheumatism and Lumbago

The first thing to do, if you suffer from Rheumatism or Lumbago, is to rub the aching parts with Omega Oil; then soak a piece of flannel with the oil, lay it over the place that hurts and cover with a piece of oiled silk. This treatment usually gives relief and is worth trying. Trial bottle 10c.

Teach Your Child How to Be Healthy

Regular Bowel Movement from Infancy Insures Good Health in Later Years.

We cannot all start life with the advantages of money, but every child born is entitled to the heritage of good health. Through unfortunate ignorance or carelessness in the feeding of a baby its tiny stomach may become deranged. This disorder spreads to the bowels and before the mother realizes it the two chief organs on which the infant's comfort and health depend are causing it great suffering. If the condition is allowed to continue grave ailments often result.

There is, however, no occasion for alarm, and the sensible thing to do—but it should be done instantly—is to give the baby a small dose of a mild laxative-tonic. In the opinion of a great many people, among them such well-known persons as the parents of Bertha Lee Woodard, 3 years old, of Moultrie, Ga., the proper remedy is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mrs. I. N. Woodard says that little Bertha was troubled with constipation for over a year, and that after trying several different kinds of remedies she found her relief in Syrup Pepsin. It is a mild, pleasant-tasting laxative, which every person likes, does not gripe nor cramp, and contains that most excellent of all digestants, pepsin.

BERTHA LEE WOODARD.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is especially intended for infants, children, women, old people and all others to whom harsh cathartics, salt waters, pills, etc., are distressing. In fact, in the common disorders of life, such as constipation, liver trouble, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, and the various other disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels nothing is more suitable than this mild laxative-tonic, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Three generations of people are using it today, and thousands of families keep it constantly in the house, for every member of the family can use it. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, the latter being the size bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, No. 419 Washington street, Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

The friends of Miss Edith Ruth Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. [illegible] Walker of West State street, were surprised to learn of her marriage [illegible] at Needles to George Earl Clark. Miss Walker went to Needles to spend a short time with friends, and while there decided to marry. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. [illegible] Davis of the Needles Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. and Mrs. Clark were here for a short visit with the bride's parents. They will reside in Needles, where Mr. Clark is connected with the Santa Fe.

Complimentary to Mrs. Truman K. Temple of Lancaster, who is her guest for a few weeks, Miss Teneriffe Temple pleasantly entertained Friday afternoon at her home in North Euclid avenue. The afternoon was spent at needlework and afternoon tea was served. The guests included Mrs. Roy Lyman Henry, Mrs. Paul Wright Nichols, Mrs. John Stewart Ingalls, Mrs. William Puzey Arden, Miss Ruth Milliken, Miss Olive Granger, Miss Harriet Granger, Miss Katheryn Salter and Miss Elise McCann.

The members of the Ramblers' Club spent an enjoyable afternoon Friday at the home of Mrs. Howard Raymond Berg, No. 306 West E street. Interesting papers were given by Mrs. George Tillotson Barr and Mrs. Lewis Hugo Mertz.

At the meeting of the Round Table Club Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank L. Shimmin in North Laurel avenue, the members were given a talk on currency by Charles A. Pierce. Mrs. Shimmin was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Ira Otis Middaugh.

An enjoyable programme was listened to at the Monte Vista Country Club Friday evening. Those taking part included Miss Ruby Oglivie, Miss Alice Laidlaw, Miss Mary Fuller, Mrs. William Laidlaw, Mrs. Harry Hart, Miss Osa Powell, Paul Reeder and Charles Perrin.

THE Merry Wives Embroidery Club was delightfully entertained by Mrs. C. M. Sikes on Thursday afternoon. Chrysanthemums were used in decoration with holly. Chicken salad and cheese cakes were served to the following guests: Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. Aaron Brest, Mrs. Paul Cushing, Mrs. D. D. Crew, Mrs. George Gregg, Mrs. F. H. Manker, Mrs. E. B. Reynolds, Mrs. Perry Long, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, Mrs. William Reynolds, Mrs. Walter Slugg, Mrs. N. G. Pehl, Mrs. M. V. B. Bradford of Ontario, Mrs. J. F. Sawyer, Miss Saidee Sawyer, Mrs. George Duley, Mrs. Robert Frownfelter, Mrs. J. M. Collins, Mrs. W. B. Duncan, Mrs. William Cline.

The G. T. Club met with Mrs. M. L. Thompson Thursday afternoon. The house was decorated in Christmas green and red, and the "eats" were fruit salad, fruit and nut cake and coffee. Among those present were Mrs. Wilbur Spicer, Mrs. Edelblute, Mrs. Charles Roberts, Mrs. R. R. Wisely, Mrs. Smith of Los Angeles, Mrs. Clifford Lamb, Mrs. Lyman Clark, Mrs. John Short, Miss Mable Myers, Mrs. Bert Spicer, Mrs. Earl Maurer, Mrs. H. O. Blohm.

On Sunday occurred a family dinner at the E. P. Chaffee home given by Mrs. Chaffee in honor of her husband's birthday. The relatives present were Mrs. Herman of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shober of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Clark and children and Henry Chaffee. On Monday evening the Rebekah's surprised Mr. Chaffee, a goodly number being present, bringing ice cream and cake with them. Those who helped in the surprise were Mr. and Mrs. Enoch Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. George Crane and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. Waterman, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Bowden and son, Mrs. Jessie Osborn and daughter, Mrs. George Cooley, Mrs. William Littlewood, Mrs. Dale Clark and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shober of Chicago and Henry Chaffee.

Wednesday night the annual banquet of the Frank Work Club took place at the John Rarick home, the gentlemen being the guests of the club. Over twenty sat down to the chicken dinner and all the trimmings. Those enjoying the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. George Cable, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Palls, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Bordwell, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. R. C Norton, Mr. and Mrs. John Rarick, Mrs. J. B. Goodrich, Miss Amanda Gerry and Miss Saidee Sawyer.

A committee appointed by the president of the Upland Woman's Club, to plan for a flower show next October is composed of Mrs. George Cable, Mrs. Charles Allen and Mrs. W. O. Jones.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS in gorgeous clusters and crisp-leafed smilax enhanced the interior of the Charles Wondries bungalow Wednesday afternoon when between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock Mrs. Wodries, one of the city's charming younger matrons, extended hospitality to some forty friends. Auction bridge proved a fascinating indoor sport in which the lucky player was Mrs. C. B. Fuller, who received the trophy of the game, a cut glass dish. Later in the afternoon, when lengthening shadows outside induced electric bulbs to shed light within, the card tables were again surrounded for the serving of a dainty two-course luncheon.

Friday evening saw the auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church filled with a happy crowd of young and old in welcome to the new pastor of the church, Rev. Ralph Marshall Davis, his wife and little daughter. Not only Presbyterians joined in extending greetings to the family, but many others from the various denominations of the city. A musical programme furnished diversion and light refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Gilbert and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Adams were members of a merry party of relatives who gathered at the home of Col. and Mrs. J. B. Shepardson in San Bernardino, Thursday evening, to celebrate with an elaborately appointed dinner the birthday anniversaries of Mrs. Gilbert and the colonel, which occur but three days apart. The two families are old-time friends and the double celebration has been a happy event of the past six years or so. Huge cakes laden with the required number of candles were among the good things that graced the festive board, the two honor guests cutting their respective cakes with gay ceremony.

The approaching Christmas tide was hinted at in the decorations of the Presbyterian Church, Thursday, on the occasion of the Pastor's Aid meeting for the month. The officers, Mrs. M. A. Shumate, Mrs. T. C. Lanier, Mrs. E. G. Palmer and Mrs. E. J. Strock, were hostesses of the day and had provided for a musical programme and refreshments of homemade cake and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bean are entertaining as their house guest an aunt of the former, Mrs. McNaught of Nome, Alaska, who is spending the winter in California.

Rev. Samuel Forsey and family left Friday for San Diego, where the pastor has accepted a call from the Second Advent Christian Church.

NEW POST FOR A DUKE.

London Hears He Will Become Commander-in-Chief of the Army After His Return from Canada.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 15.—It is generally remarked in London that Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught have had the cheapest royal honeymoon on record. No special trains, no hotel bills (or hardly any) and no tips. Why no tips? There is a most interesting reason.

A close friend of the bridegroom offered to reimburse all honeymoon tips instead of duplicating a wedding present, and Prince Arthur, always out for a little fun, accepted. Rumor says he was tipping a trifle high! The latter half of the honeymoon was even cheaper than the stay at Mr. Astor's. King Alfonso will present no bill, neither will the old family friend at Biarritz. Both have been let into the secret, and are enjoying the joke about the tips quite as much as Prince Arthur is.

There is no doubt, however, that in many ways Prince Arthur has shown already that he intends to be a model husband. Many men, marrying a girl so ignorant of the world as was his bride, would have risked boredom and allowed her to cherish her carefully fostered love of seclusion. Not so Prince Arthur. He took her freely about in society and in public almost a week after they were married. He has been used to a cosmopolitan and cultured crowd, for of all royalties the Duke and Duchess of Connaught have been the least given to thinking about their dignity. Their son and daughters have been allowed to mix very freely with the aristocracy of thought as well as of birth, and the result has always proved of the happiest.

The Duke of Connaught it is said will become commander-in-chief of the army when he returns from Canada next fall. All arrangements for the revival of this post in favor of his royal highness are now practically complete.

There is, therefore, likely to be some fun at the British War Office before very long. "Arthur" is the last man in the world to consent to occupy a mere sinecure, and since he has very definite ideas of the manner in which the army should be conducted the present heads of the War Office look like having the time of their lives.

DRUNKARD ACQUIRES FORTUNE.

Man Who Was Believed to Have Been Hopeless Inebriate Found to Be Keen Business Man.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

DUBLIN, Nov. 22.—The affairs of a hopeless drunkard, who appears to have proved a keen business man, for he amassed a fortune, were mentioned in the Probate Court at Dublin the other day. Application was then made on behalf of Francis Baggott, executor and defendant in the action of Baggott versus Baggott, for an order that further proceedings by Thomas Baggott should be stayed and that applicant should be at liberty to apply for grant of administration of the will of James Baggott. It was alleged that this will was procured by the undue influence of Francis Baggott.

The man whose will was in dispute died in Donovan's Castle, county Limerick, in 1906, and at that time was domiciled in Buenos Aires, where proceedings are pending. The property consisted of estate in Buenos Aires valued at $1,000,000 and property in Ireland amounting to over $10,000.

Unfortunately the man had been made a lunatic. He went to America about forty years ago and started as a marine store dealer in the Argentine, and although he was a hopeless drunkard he managed to acquire this enormous wealth. His brother brought the action to protect the assets here and try to upset the will in the Argentine. The real question tried in the Argentine was whether or not the testator was so addicted to drink as to render himself incapable of making a will, but the Irish judge declined to interfere.

Paris.

SEES NEW ERA FOR EURASIA.

Ferrero Says American Ideas Are Growing There.

He Believes They Present a Great Problem.

The Historian Wonders Over Final Outcome.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

PARIS, Nov. 22.—America has started a new current of civilization in the world, according to Guglielmo Ferrero, the Roman historian. Prof. Ferrero, in a lecture before the Societe des Conferences-Etrangeres in Paris, contrasted America and Europe and declared that new standards of judgment must be formed if Europe is to understand America at its true value.

"We are accustomed," said he, "to regard things solely in terms of quality. We look upon the riches of America, for instance, with a kind of disdain. They are often regarded in Europe in the same light as the riches of a barbarous people which, to acquire them, has forsaken man's superior spiritual activities. It is not necessary to spend much time in America to see that Americans are very far from being devoted solely to the pursuit of wealth.

"I have also heard it said that Americans are without taste for art; that their cities are hideous. They are pictured as paying large prices for anything that is antique or passes as such, without distinguishing the beautiful and the authentic from the mediocre and the false. It is unjust to say that the American is indifferent to beauty. Moreover, who would dare to affirm that the progress of the arts, letters and sciences is at this moment the principal preoccupation of the old world? Listen to what is said about us. We hear nothing but talk of perfecting economic equipment, the exploitation of iron and coal mines, industrial development, and how to increase trade. If all this is American, then Europe must be undergoing Americanization at an amazingly rapid pace."

M. Ferrero sees in this new spirit, which has developed since the discovery of America, an immense historical movement which threatens to overthrow the very foundations of the present civilization. It is founded on the idea of progress, which, born at the end of the seventeenth or the beginning of the eighteenth century, now dominates our civilization.

"This idea of this progress is as vague and indefinite in its meaning," said M. Ferrero, "as it is popular and powerful in action. But it is a strange phenomenon that just in this century of so-called progress everyone seems to be complaining of the decadence of things. Are we progressing or are we not? Can it be that this progress for which we sacrifice our repose, our tranquillity and sometimes even our lives, is only an illusion? This is the supreme problem which presented itself to me as the result of all I saw and learnt during my travels in North and South America.

"In former times quality was more important than quantity. We have now reversed the world in which our ancestors lived—piling up riches has become our aim. We have won liberty, destroyed almost all the limitations of the past, but we have had in the process to abandon almost all the ideals of artistic, moral or religious perfection held in veneration by our ancestors. Nowadays we must everywhere sacrifice quality to quantity.

"Thus there are two standards by which we may judge civilization, the standard of quantity and the standard of quality. One is typified by the civilization of America, and the other by the past civilization of Europe. Either, judged by the other's standard, will appear deficient. You cannot reproach a Presidential candidate in the United States who is compelled to make half a dozen speeches during the day if his style is not so polished nor his phrases so nicely turned as those of Cicero. Nor could you expect such gems of oratory from Cicero if he had been called upon to comply with the same demands as are made upon the modern orator."

PAINT SMELLS.

The "painting of sounds, noises and smells" is the latest ambition of the most advanced school of Paris futurist artists. Sounds, noises and smells, they affirm, "are incorporated in the expressions of lines, volumes and colors, just as lines, volumes and colors are incorporated in the architecture of musical work. From the point of view of form there are sounds, noises and smells which are concave or convex, triangular, ellipsoidal, oblong, conical, spherical, spiralic, etc. From the point of view of color they are yellow, red, indigo sky-blue and violet. In stations, factories, garages, hangars and, in fact, throughout the whole of the world of sport and mechanics, the sounds are almost always red. In cafes, restaurants or salons they are silverish, yellow and violet. As for the sounds, noises and smells of animals, they are yellow and blue; of women, green, sky-blue and violet." In order to be the latest kind of a futurist you must use plenty of "reds, screaming reds," and "greens, never enough greens; yellows, never enough yellows, exploding yellows, saffron, copper and early morning yellows."

KEEPS CORPSE IN ALCOHOL.

Hector Granet, an obscure scholar living at Viverols, in the Auverne, conceived the idea of preserving in alcohol the corpse of his dead father. This eccentric act appears to have supplied the touch which was necessary to transform his obscurity into prominence. M. Granet is now the celebrity of Viverols. It has since been discovered that his studies are worthy of some notice and the French government has decorated him with the Academic Palms. M. Granet also has prepared a glass-roofed coffin similar to that for his father, which is one day to receive his own body for similar preservation.

Some of the amazing profits made by Southern California farmers will be correctly reported in the Midwinter Number of The Times, out January 1.

Gas Heaters—From 75c to $11.00.

—Cedar Chests and Screens always please!

—There is hardly a woman who has not longed for a cedar chest. As a safe receptacle for furs, woolens, linens, etc., there is nothing to take their place. Articles kept in a cedar chest are safe from moths, mice, dust and dampness. There, too, is the rare fragrance, the fresh, spicy breath from the forests. Then, there is a sentiment which connects them with Colonial days.

—Why not consider this as a splendid gift article to the wife or daughter. Our assortment covers widest possible range of assortment—in all woods and finishes. You'll find choosing at Barker Bros. most satisfactory in all ways—including price.

—SCREENS—three panel; 5 ft. high; weathered oak, fumed oak, golden oak and mahogany; filled with burlap; Holiday value at $6.50

—Three-panel wardrobe screens in any finish; filled with burlap; Holiday value at......$8.00

—Couch Covers and Pillows always desirable

French Velour Couch Covers—Beautiful Oriental patterns; copies from silk Oriental rugs; 5 feet by 9 feet; noteworthy values at $11.50 and $15

500 Sofa Pillows—Several shapes and styles; will average 24 inches square; floss filled and covered with damasks, tapestries and velours; made in our own workrooms in best possible manner; exceptional Holiday value at, each $2.00

Fine Brocaded Table Runners and Pillow Covers—Beautiful soft colorings that can be used with any class of furnishings; prices up from $3.00

Velours, Tapestries and Galloons—An extensive line; materials just now in demand for making up scarfs and pillows for Christmas gifts.

—Blankets and Comforts of "Quality" for Gifts!

Blankets for gift purposes are always a happy thought. Our immense stock of all wool blankets includes a diversity of designs, all soft, warm and fleecy, invitingly patterned and warmly hued. The following items are especially good buying opportunities for Christmas shoppers.

WHITE WOOL BLANKETS — just enough cotton to prevent shrinkage in washing; very dainty borders in pink or blue; an ideal gift for some-one; price $3.75

ALL WOOL BLANKETS—lovely warm, gray and white block design; thick and soft; full size; a delight to any one who is fastidious about their bedding; priced for Holiday shopping at only...... $5.25

ALL WOOL BLANKETS—one of our most attractive and most popular styles; light, large and very warm; plaid patterns in yellow and brown; tan and white; black and white; brown and white, and one or two other developments; price only $6.50

—A New Gas Range or Heater for the Home!

—Buy the wife a new gas range—perhaps this is a necessity she's long wanted. Make her happy this Christmas. Here's an inexpensive range of more than ordinary value for the price—

Vulcan Gas Range — built of much heavier materials than is usual; this one has a large oven and is a guaranteed baker; recommended for its economy in the consumption of gas. Regular $21.00 value; special Holiday offering at $19.00

Fit Your Fireplace with a Reliable Gas Heater!

—This one pictured above is odorless and highly efficient; pleasing in design—simple, yet beautiful. Has cast iron cone in center with opening front. We offer several types of these at a special discount of 25 per cent. this week, which also includes connecting with your fireplace—

War Rumors and Christmas Reflections

Editorial.

By Alfred Noyes, English Poet and Peace Advocate.

There are two sides to every important subject. "THE FOLLY OF THE HAGUE," by Admiral Mahan, which appeared in a recent issue of the SEMI-MONTHLY MAGAZINE, created a great deal of comment on both sides of the Atlantic, and a reply to it by Mr. Noyes is a condensed study of the war problem from the standpoint of a Pacificist. It is a wonderful plea for Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men.

Bringing the Fairies to Broadway

A Story.

By Marie Louise Van Saanen.

Illustrations by C. Emerson.

This is not merely a story exquisitely told—it is a Christmas story woven about a man who hated the world, hated people and hated things—and a little child who led him—a child whose short life of seven years had always been gray, but whose wholesome sweetness worked a remarkable change in an old demon. If ever characters seemed able to step from the very lines—flesh and blood realities—they are little Amelia and the crazy old wood carver. It is a story to be read leisurely, and it is splendidly illustrated.

The Mad Miss Maturin

A Story.

By Robert Barr.

Illustrations by T. Victor Hall.

There is a little different twist to Lord Stranleigh's adventures in America in this issue. This most eligible man—nobleman—in modern fiction is called upon more than once to match his wits with Miss Maturin. The story is brimful of simple, unforced humor, and the breezy dialogues are refreshing. There is also an undercurrent of seriousness that makes it a well-balanced tale.

The Accusing Coin

A Christmas Poem.

By Edwin Markham.

This Christmas Parable by a Poet who stands among the highest on Parnassus is not only beautiful from a literary point of view, but carries and preaches a sermon to be remembered and taken to heart.

Eggs in the Vaudeville Basket

An Article.

By George M. Cohan.

What becomes of the actors who disappear? and other questions concerning the stage are often asked and left unanswered. Mr. Cohan, the popular actor and playwright, throws some sidelights on them in his interesting article.

The atmosphere surrounding the cover design is decidedly a holiday one. The mishap of the man who is trimming a Christmas tree is so cleverly handled by the artist—Charles A. MacLellan—that the good-natured laugh comes easily at his consternation.

GRAY HAIR TURNS ITS NATURAL COLOR AFTER APPLYING SAGE TEA

Mixed With Sulphur it Darkens Beautifully and Takes Off Dandruff.

Almost every one knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own but it's usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's" which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is the best remedy for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and to stop falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a well-known downtown druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This requires but a few minutes, by turning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever. KING GEORGE AN ABSTAINER.

Once in a While He Sips Rum to Please the Sailors, But Right Away He Makes a Wry Face.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 15.—An amusing story is being told in London society just now about a new adventure of King George. Recently His Majesty was entertained by a certain noble sportsman who wished to do the thing well, and so in the smoking-room set forth an array of spirits of the most varied character, and cheerfully asked His Majesty which drink he preferred.

The King examined the selection with interest, and then remarked: "I suppose this is your family medicine chest; but I do not think I need trouble it, thank you."

As a matter of fact, the King has a great dislike for spirits of any kind, and when he has taken his quantum of rum, to please the sailors on board ship, he has found it hard work to avoid pulling a wry face. In everyday life he is almost a teetotaler, and a single glass of light wine is as much as he ever cares to take. Mineral water is the King's favorite beverage, and now and then he takes a glass of light beer.

Queen Mary is equally strict when she goes on a visit anywhere. For instance, not long ago at a house party at which Queen Mary was present a performance of "movies" was given of which Her Majesty did not approve. In the future, any hostess who intends having a performance of motion pictures during a royal visit is to be told she will have to make arrangements that will insure no risk of royal frowns.

DOES AWAY WITH GLOVES.

French Surgeon Discovers an Antiseptic Varnish for Protective Purposes During Operations.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

DIJON (France) Nov. 22.—Dr. Dubard announces the discovery of a method of antisepticizing the hands with the use of rubber gloves in surgery.

His method is to use an antiseptic isolating varnish. After washing his hands with soap and carefully dehydrating them with alcohol, he places them in a mixture of a juniper-berry essence and an alcoholic solution of menthol. The rapid evaporation of this bath leaves an isolating antiseptic varnish. It is asserted that this varnish, submitted to bacteriological tests, is shown to afford the same security as gloves, besides allowing complete freedom of movement.

SAYS CHINESE BROADENING.

Christians Welcome at Peking, Declares Missionary.

Even Coolies Showing Signs of Enlightenment.

Great Improvements Being Made in the Prisons.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

PEKING, Nov. 15.—"Members of the Christian community are now free as never before to enter into all forms of activities and to make their influence felt in social life in Peking," says J. S. Burgess, one of the young Princeton men who are conducting one Y.M.C.A. for Chinese and another for the soldiers of the various legation guards in this capital.

Mr. Burgess has been devoting himself especially to social work among the Chinese. He has, as a result, acquired much knowledge of unusual conditions in the prisons, insane asylums and poor-houses in Peking. At the same time he has great hopes of the Chinese becoming more and more active in bettering conditions among their own people. He thinks, too, that the new liberty of ideas which the Republic has brought about will increase the number of Christian converts more rapidly than heretofore. Out of a membership of 400, the Chinese Y.M.C.A. in Peking has at present but thirty acknowledged Christians. One reason is that the converts made by missionaries have generally come from the poorer classes, and many of these Christians are unable to spare from their earnings the annual dues of $3 a year for membership.

As a result of his investigations Mr. Burgess says there are 25,000 rickshaw coolies in Peking, and that many of them not only provide for themselves, but also for families of two or three persons on an income of from ten to fifteen coppers, worth less than half the value of the same number of American cents, per day. "A brief study of twenty of these men," says Mr. Burgess in a report just compiled, "revealed the fact that they are not so grossly ignorant and hopeless as might be supposed. A good proportion of them can read, and are open to the influence of easy Chinese literature.

"There are thousands of apprentices and employees in the large stores who are virtually slaves, working from fourteen to eighteen hours a day with no wholesome recreation and no chance for education. These men are not allowed to leave the store. Modern industry has as yet scarcely shown its head in Peking, but now is the time to create public opinion which will result in the enactment of laws making impossible those conditions already existing in the factories of Osaka and Shanghai. In Osaka thousands of women, lured in from the country on false premises, are forced to work incredible hours on starvation pay, sleeping in crowded and unsanitary buildings under blankets that are never for an hour without a user.

"That there is ignorance of the grossest kind among the lower classes in Peking and a vast field for education along the very simplest lines is evident. A coolie who was attending the Social Service Club night school asked me whether America really was a place, or whether it was vague like heaven, and added, 'What do you think? They say the world is round. Anyone can see it isn't.' The rickshaw coolie's idea of a republic was that Yuan Shih-kai had become Emperor. But perhaps this shows signs of astuteness rather than ignorance.

"Long training to consider bodily exercise as ignoble, and many wise precepts about the student who burns the midnight oil have brought about a class of students for the most part physically weak, among whom tuberculosis and eye trouble are common.

"The westerner is struck with the emptiness of the lives of the poor and of the rich alike, and the apparent lack of development of the play instinct. The coolie's ideal of a good time is to go home and do nothing. When a student of the College of Languages was asked what he did when he wanted to enjoy himself he replied, 'I eat. This is my fifth meal today.'

"The lack of wholesome amusements naturally results in participation in unwholesome amusements. Five years ago there was not a pool-room in Peking. There are now a dozen of them. Gambling and drinking are common in such places.

"The theater, never a place of high moral influence, is in some cases introducing modern drama, with orchestra, curtains, and realistic acting and speaking. Since the revolution for the first time actresses have found a place in the city. We are told by one of the police department that there has been marked increase of open immorality since the revolution. The convening of Parliament was also coincident with an unusual sale of girls into slavery from impoverished Manchu families.

"The sudden change of this nation into a republic has brought in a host of new and totally misunderstood western ideas about the supposedly modern relations of men and women. This has been noted even in mission schools. Of a pleasant summer evening numbers of unchaperoned young men and women could be seen strolling about the groves of the Temple of Heaven, arm in arm. For China such a thing was utterly unheard of a few months ago."

Mr. Burgess declares also that the prisons range from "heaven to hell." There is a "model prison" in Peking that compares favorably with the prisons of Europe and America, and might be an inducement for many of the homeless, who lose their [illegible] and sometimes their lives by freezing in the streets of this city in winter, to commit crimes in order to be sent there. But, as a policeman explained to him, the prisoner cannot tell which jail he will be condemned to occupy.

Mr. Burgess is trying to enlist the co-operation of the Chinese wherever possible in his work. He says he has been advised that some definite scheme in hand, Yuan Shih Kai himself will heartily co-operate in a plan of enlightenment. Mr. Burgess proposes that all the public halls in the city, the theaters and schools, as well as the foreign missions, shall be thrown open to a campaign of popular education, with public speakers on the platforms.

Gifts He Denied His Own Family—Extremely Close in Money Matters.

"We cannot make bargains for blisses
Nor catch them like fishes in nets;
And sometimes the thing our life misses
Helps more than the thing which it gets."

It is the man who is so extremely close in money matters that his own family would not think of asking him for presents who is usually most prodigal in bestowing gifts elsewhere. His wife may ask authoritatively for cash for a new bonnet, arousing in him a spirit of antagonism, which causes him angrily to refuse. He is right sorry for it an hour afterward. He cashes a check for a hundred dollars for her at his bank, intending to put it at her plate at the table during dinner time to surprise her.

He is scarcely seated at his desk 'ere a comely young woman requests an audience with him. She has a very impressive manner. Her mission is to interest him in the heathen Chinee. She pleads the cause so eloquently and earnestly for a small donation of cash that he is actually talked into handing the young lady a bill as his gift to the noble cause. There is so much less for his wife's bonnet, but he is not called upon to assist the heathen Chinee every day. He is hardly settled down to work over his ledgers 'ere a committee of ladies is ushered into his presence. They wish to see him in the interest of the Christmas tree fund for the city waifs. They hope to engage a large hall in which to give a turkey dinner and to distribute the gifts. It means a considerable outlay of cash. Their plan must fall through unless the public-spirited business men will give money to buy the gifts for the children, and of course to pay the incidental expenses. As the spokeswoman is the wife of the man who is about to tide him over a little business difficulty, he concludes it would not be diplomacy on his part to decline. Twenty-five dollars would help, she suggests. It would be very unwise for him to make a demurrer. Another sum from the amount for his wife's bonnet changes hands. He no sooner settles down to business again with a scowl on his face than the phone at his elbow rings.

That sweet voice can only belong to a young girl. That instant he recognizes it as that of the clever young lady of whom he purchases his gloves and neckties at a downtown haberdashery. She tells him of a church fair at which there is a voting contest as to the most popular girl who has succeeded in selling the most tickets. The fund is to be used to pay off the amount due on their library. She would be so grateful if he would buy a dozen tickets of her; she had just that many left. Every one she knew had kindly contributed, she added.

The neckties he wears are handmade by that girl's deft fingers. No one else could please his fastidious taste. He could not refuse; so crushing back a sigh he promises to send her the cash. Turning to his mail unexpectedly, the first letter he picks up is from his brother's widow. She writes him a plaintive letter, hinting that she would like to bring her little brood of children to his home for Christmas dinner. She hadn't money for that luxury at home. She was always obliged to confide in him that Tommy's toes were sticking out of his shoes, Sarah's elbow was out of her coat. It was a positive shame to allow a tall child like Ruth to wear last year's short dress, which didn't begin to cover her knees, she said. "The children heard that you have an automobile and are just crazy to spend a week with 'Unc,'" she wrote. In desperate haste he called a district messenger, rushing off a [illegible] bill to the widow in dis-

He draws a dozen tickets from his pocket, declaring they were sent him to distribute among his friends; but that his family comes in first. When a man is close in money matters with his family there is usually excellent reasons for it. A wife would have much compassion, even with a close husband, if she knew of the many instances wherein he was obliged to make gifts outside of his own family.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

CHRISTIANIA, Nov. 23.—A girl student at Christiania University has just managed to outwit her rival by a clever ruse and to win a scholarship for $500.

The two actors in the comedy are Herr Horlund and Froken Procope, both poor but honest scholars, and when, after a preliminary competition, they discovered that they alone remained to compete in the final trial of mental strength, they worked with tenfold zeal. Froken Procope was the more anxious of the two, and, a true daughter of Eve, sought a sure path to success by a womanly stratagem, based on the well-known leanings to economy of Norwegian professors.

During one of the excursions arranged by the heads of the university a party of students were compelled to wait at a wayside railroad depot for a train. Everyone, with the exception of Froken Procope, ordered beer, but the girl declared that she was half-famished, and Herr Norlund, who was secretly in love with his talented rival, offered to bring her some refreshment.

The girl persisted that she would prefer a dinner, but shyly added that she did not care to dine alone. Her secret suitor fell readily into the trap, and proposed that the two should dine together. Accordingly, two dinners were ordered at a cost of 74 cents.

Herr Norlund and the girl were finishing their meal when the warning bell rang and the professor in charge of the party began to assemble his flock. The absence of the two students was immediately noted, and the professor was astonished to learn that so poor a student as Herr Norlund was entertaining a girl student to a "sumptuous dinner." Later he gave such color to the incident that the council decided that a man who spent money on a dinner while his companions contented themselves with beer was not worthy of a scholarship. The prize went therefore to Froken Procope.

Having gained her end, the girl was generous. Perceiving the concealed affection which had guided the mistaken action of the young man, she proceeded to hint at marriage. Herr Norlund was overjoyed, seized his opportunity, and the two have just been united.

DOCTORS' TIT FOR TAT.

Irish and English Medical Men Are on the Outs, Mainly on Account of Politics.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

DUBLIN, Nov. 22.—The spirit of fraternity that bound Irish and English medical men together for so many years has now reached a straining point.

There have been indications for some time past that there is a disposition on the part of the British Medical Association to boycott Irish doctors applying for official appointments in hospitals and somewhat similar institutions in Great Britain. This is said to be the outcome of the action of Irish doctors who were resident in England and who were chiefly responsible for defeating the campaign of the Medical Association against the working of the insurance act. Many Irishmen who were members of the association resigned because they felt that its committee was prompted more by political motives than by a desire to advance the professional interests of its members.

Now comes the turn of the association to pay back Irish medical men for revolting in what they considered to be, first, the interests of their country. They saw that the defeat of the insurance act meant the defeat of the government, and the consequent abandonment of home rule. The penalty they have now to pay is the non-recognition of the degrees of the Irish College of Physicians and Surgeons by many of the English hospitals and medical missions.

MAXINE ELLIOTT AS HOSTESS.

The American Actress Tells Her English Guests of Her Success With Seventy Cows.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Maxine Elliott, the American beauty who plays Potiphar's wife in Sir Herbert Tree's play, "Joseph and His Brethren," at His Majesty's Theater in London, has entertained a number of the smartest people at her estate at Bushey this month.

Her week-end parties there are becoming famous. The popular hostess provides her guests with golf, tennis, and automobiles, and regales them with enthusiastic descriptions of her experiences as an amateur farmer, for she maintains a herd of seventy cows.

Another of Miss Elliott's pre-occupations is her sympathetic interest in the votes for women movement, which is also actively supported by her sister, Lady Forbes-Robertson.

Miss Elliott has always been a social success in England and few actresses are more warmly welcomed in aristocratic circles. As Mrs. Nat Goodwin she entertained largely at Claridge's Hotel and at a well-appointed house in Portland Place. She used to be on particularly good terms with the Duchess of Sutherland, and the Duchess of Marlborough was often seen about with her. She has been to Trentham with the Sutherlands, to Dalmeny, to Warwick Castle and to Blenheim.

This is Guaranteed to Stop Your Cough

This plan makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer an ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, though never successfully. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Stopped Night Sweats and Banished Cough

If you are suffering with a continued cough, cold or Lung Trouble which does not yield to any treatment, it might be of the greatest value to you to investigate what Eckman's Alterative, a medicine for the Throat and Lungs, has accomplished for many similar sufferers. Many who have investigated and used it have voluntarily declared that it was the means of saving their lives. Read this case:—

"Gentlemen: For four years I was troubled with a cough, which gradually became worse. I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my disease Lung Trouble. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polytechnic Hospital. They also confirmed my trouble, and I was ordered away for treatment. My nephew would not allow me to go until I had tried Eckman's Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief, night sweats ceased, pain in the breast relieved, cough became loose and easy, fever left me, and I commneed getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now, and have been for twelve years."

NOSE AND HEAD STOPPED UP FROM COLD OR CATARRH, OPEN AT ONCE

"My Cleaning, Healing Balm Instantly Clears Nose, Head and Throat — Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges —Dull Headache Goes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely" Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear. Agent, Sun Drug Co.—[Advertisement.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Despondent" writes: "I am 42 years old and until two years ago I was very strong and vigorous. Gradually I began to fail, and now I am trembling, nervous, weak, timid, despondent, and life has lost its brightness and pleasures for me. I think I need medicine for my nerves."

Answer: At your age many are afflicted as you are, and the very best treatment for such conditions is 3-grain cadomene tablets, packed in sealed tubes, with full directions. It is a tonic restorative treatment of very great effectiveness in overcoming the depleted, worn-out nervous system.

Mr. B. D. asks: "Is it safe to reduce one's weight? I weigh 240 pounds and would like to reduce at least 40 pounds. What is a safe, harmless remedy?"

Answer: Obtain of any well-stocked druggist a tube of 5-grain arbolone tablets and take as per directions accompanying. These tablets are very easy to take and quite reliable for obesity or goitre.

"Miss K." writes: "Could you publish a remedy for liver and kidney trouble and the usual diseases that arise from that source? I am troubled with dizzy spells, dark spots before my eyes, and also with rheumatism."

Answer: If you will get 3-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets,) and take according to directions, you will not only be relieved, but if you continue the use of these tablets you will be gradually relieved of all the troubles you mention. They will purify the blood and also overcome your rheumatism.

"Worried"—Your child can be easily corrected of bedwetting by using tincture cubebs, 1 dram; tincture rhus-aromatic, 2 drams, and comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz. Give him 10 to 15 drops in water before each meal. This is equally good for older people.

"Mrs. L. C." writes: "Our family of five all are afflicted with catarrh. A friend told me that your prescription cured her and her child. Please tell me what to use."

Answer: I have found in my long experience that there is nothing superior to antiseptic vilane powder when used according to the directions which are to be found in each 2 or 8-ounce box. Try it and you will be delighted.

"Hannah" writes: "I would like to get something that would make my hair soft and fluffy. My hair is greasy and I can do nothing to keep the oil out of it."

Answer: To take the surplus oil out of the hair and keep it soft and fluffy, get a 4-oz. jar of plain yellow minyol and use it regularly. This will stop itching scalp and dandruff and make the hair grow, and you will not be bothered with stringy, straggling locks.

"Louise" writes: "I do not weigh enough for my height. I am dull and lifeless and have frequent headaches. Please advise what will help me."

Answer: Your condition is due to the lack of red blood corpuscles. I can prescribe nothing better than 3-grain hyponuclane tablets, which can be purchased at any up-to-date drug store in sealed cartons with full directions. These tablets will cause the body to assimilate the fatty elements of food and thus give you strength and added color to the skin. Your weight will increase and you will not be troubled with headache. These are recommended by physicians and if taken according to directions you will surely gain flesh.

"Troubled Miss G." writes: "Every winter I am troubled with severe attacks of rheumatism which sometimes keeps me in bed for weeks. Please advise something for me."

Answer: My favorite prescription for rheumatism, and one that I know has relieved thousands of people, is made by mixing: iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, ½ oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla, 5 ozs. Take one teaspoonful at meal time and at bed time and you will soon be well.

"Annette" writes: "I have been greatly annoyed lately by coughing and a tickling sensation in the throat and hoarseness after singing. My bronchial tubes are affected also."

Answer: You can be very easily relieved of this bronchial trouble by using essence mentho-laxene. This relieves quickly and certainly brings about a cure by its tonic and laxative action and therefore is superior to ordinary preparations, which only relieve. You can feel the medicine working on the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, giving a feeling of freshness and strength to the entire system. Purchase a 2½-oz. package of essence mentho-laxene and make according to the directions on bottle and take eight to ten doses daily and you will soon be cured of your trouble.

Mrs. B. T. writes: "I suffer much with indigestion, heavy feeling in stomach, bloating, belching, etc."

Answer: For indigestion, dyspepsia and such symptoms as you mention, I advise the use of tablets, triopeptine, packed in sealed cartons with full directions. They prove very effective.—[Advertisement.

Dramatic Reviews.

of the best that has been seen on the Empress stage in many months.

Hippodrome.

"Double Crossed" is the significant title of the great playlet which will be one of the seven big headline attractions at the Hippodrome next week, beginning with the Monday matinee.

A cast of seven clever people is required, and the story is tense and thrilling throughout. Critics in other cities have pronounced "Double Crossed" "a real vaudeville gem."

Quite as thrilling but from another viewpoint, will be the Four Musical Aereal Lesters, who come with a unique offering which is daring, picturesque and classy.

Then too, there will be Le Noir's Marionettes, which never fail to delight grown-ups as well as the kiddies. It is really a wonderful act, showing almost uncanny skill of construction and manipulation.

Regina Reed and her pickaninnies are sure to be a big hit.

One of the biggest features of the new bill promises to be Henri Kubelik, the eccentric Hungarian violinist. The name Kubelik is synonymous with musical perfection, and lovers of the violin will have a treat seldom afforded in this or any other city.

The bill would not be complete without Abram and Johns, and they will present a real chunk of the uncultured West. It is called "The Sheriff's Heart," and is one of Harry Cotrell's best playlets. Presented by Abram and Johns, it is certain to receive a vivid, convincing portrayal.

De Van and Flint, lately with Elsie Janis, will appear and, in addition, three of those splendid photo plays, which have added not a little to the ever growing fame of the Hippodrome.

Woodley Theater.

Not content with already having secured in C. Percival Garratt one of the most wonderful organists in the world, to operate the huge multiple organ, which is the great, melodious feature of his playhouse, Manager Woodley announces that he has captured as an alternative player, beginning today, none other than H. H. Pike of Boston, who like Garratt, has a world-wide reputation.

"The finest instrument in the world can be hampered by incompetent handling, and in the case of my multiple organ, only the greatest players in the world can get out of it its most wonderful possibilities. Hence, I have scoured the country to get a man to give Mr. Garratt much needed reliefs, and was lucky enough to catch one of the best in the country."

The two men have entered into a friendly competition, with the result that some superb musical bills are in preparation, which cannot fail to come as a delight and a revelation to all music lovers.

In the meantime, the selecting of the newest and best pictures is a matter to which Manager Woodley is devoting his personal attention, and the new Mutual and Keystone attractions billed for the first of this week are certain to prove a genuine pleasure to all picturegoers.

One of the new films features Mabel Norman known as the loveliest comedienne in the moving picture world.

Clune's.

Patrons of Clune's Broadway Theater will have an unusual offering placed before them next week, as "The Wreck," a gigantic three-reel railroad drama, made by the Vitagraph Company at great expense, will be shown as the headliner of a big bill of motion pictures, illustrated songs and vaudeville.

An actual collision between a runaway engine and a fast limited train takes place in the picture with great gripping scenes of the damage and confusion and terror-stricken passengers. From start to finish it abounds in thrills and has been pronounced by competent critics to be the last word in motiographic realism.

Another big feature will be actual fighting scenes from the Mexican war, made in Juarez. These are to be shown exclusively at Clune's.

Patrons who laughed over the "Wall Street Wail" will be delighted with a new cartoon picture in this series, "Colonel Heeza in Africa."

Morosco.

Last night saw the farewell performance of Kitty Gordon and the Morosco Producing Company in "Alma, Where Do You Live?" and this week the Broadway playhouse will be dark for the first time since its opening nearly one year ago.

One week from tomorrow night, Monday, December 15, the Morosco will reopen when G. M. Anderson's Gaiety Theater Musical Comedy Company will inaugurate their season of high-class musical productions with the presentation of their tremendously successful production of "The Candy Shop."

The sale of seats for the opening of the Gaiety company will begin at the Morosco box office tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. and the box office will remain open throughout the week from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. in order to allow the holders of season reservations to re-engage their season seats and also for the regular sale of seats for which there is already a heavy demand.

The Gaiety company is headed by the famous musical comedy stars, William Rock and Maud Fulton, while Mr. Anderson also has in his organization, which numbers nearly 100 people, such well-known artists as Al Shean, Gene Luneska and a score of others of equal worth, with a big beauty chorus of forty stunning girls, who came direct from Broadway, New York, for the production of "The Candy Shop" in San Francisco.

It will be the policy of Mr. Anderson's companies to present to local theatergoers at a dollar scale of prices even better musical comedy entertainment than the eastern managers can provide at double the scale of prices and, when the presentation of "The Candy Shop" comes to a close, another big organization will move into the Morosco with another elaborate musical play.

"Little Women."

Pretty romance and incidents of simple home life are happily blended in William A. Brady's "Little Women," which will be the attraction at the Majestic Theater the week of December 15. "Little Women," in its book form, is one of the most important and most popular works in American literature. It was written by Louisa M. Alcott, one of that famous galaxy of New England writers, who taught the world not only how to think but also how to live. Their creed was daily life dominated by plain living and high thinking.

Usually a play carries but one love story, or two at the most. "Little Women" carries four. The action of the play revolves around the affairs of four young women, all of whom marry happily except one. Beth, who dies. Jo, who writes stories for the magazines and has a hard time of it trying to sell them, marries a learned, whole-souled German professor. Meg marries a somewhat unhandsome, but manly man, and we see, in the course of the play, the triumph of that love in twins. Amy, who aspired to be a great artist, but who finally came to realize that her ambition was hopeless, marries Laurie, who first loved Jo.

The work of dramatizing "Little Women" was done by Marian de Forest, and it is generally conceded that she succeeded in turning out a wonderful piece of work, for this four-ply weave of love in a play is no easy thing. Miss de Forest has lavished a lot of tender care on the episodes of the book, and by so doing has managed to retain all the sweet gaiety and innate happiness that has made "Little Women" so tremendously popular all these years.

Mantell Coming.

When Robert B. Mantell appears at the Majestic Theater the week of December 29 the feature of his repertorie will be a massive production of "King John," in eleven scenes. When the tragedian proposed to take "King John" on tour this season, his drama-wise friends shook their heads. But "King John's" success so far on the tour has been phenomenal, surpassing even Mr. Mantell's hopes and utterly confounding the prophets of woe.

Never had been a classic play produced that has received such splendid press notices by the critics. "King John" not only pleased the critics but the public and the result is that Mr. Mantell has had to give "King John" three times a week instead of once.

Monday, December 29, "King John;" Tuesday, December 30, "Hamlet;" Wednesday matinee, "Merchant of Venice;" Wednesday night, "Macbeth;" Thursday, January 1, "King Lear;" Friday, January 2, "King John;" Saturday matinee, "King John," and Saturday night, "Richard III."

Tally's Broadway.

"The Sea Wolf," Jack London's famous story, will make its appearance in photoplay form at Tally's Broadway Theater for one week commencing tomorrow matinee. Picture "fans" will hail this announcement with much joy as Mr. Tally has been promising to show this feature for some time. It is booked for but one week and from the interest taken in it the week should be a record-breaker.

Advance notices have all spoken well of the picture. It is contained in seven full reels and the cost of production was very heavy. One scene, showing the sinking of a ferry bat, probably marks a new record in money spent for a single scene. Jack London has been so widely read and his characters are such real, red blood types that a visualization of his most noteworthy novel will be an unusual treat.

His readers will not be disappointed in the actors who portray the difficult roles. Exact types have been selected and the result is most satisfying to the imagination. "The Sea Wolf" is a fine picture and goes well with the other fine pictures which have built up the enviable reputation of Tally's Broadway Theater.

Mozart.

The Mozart Theater, under new management, presents for the week commencing Sunday, December 7, "Ben Hur" in beautiful colored pictures with a thirty-minute descriptive talk by Prof. C. C. Kanagan. The regular run of educational and travel motion pictures will be given before and after the presentation of "Ben Hur." The announcement is made by the manager that hereafter the Mozart will show the world's best in travelogues with some special feature added each week to the regular programme.

Germany's New Ship Canal.

[Consular Report:] Permission has been granted to Muhlheim-Ruhr by the German Department of Rivers and Harbors to build a ship canal from Huhlheim to the Rhine; estimated cost, $2,114,000. The canal is to be 147 feet wide, with a mean depth of thirteen feet, and will be capable of floating 1700-ton barges. The harbor at Muhlheim will cost $714,000, and as the canal crosses seven railroad lines, it will cost about $357,000 for bridges.

This canal will bring Muhlheim in direct competition with the harbor at Duisburg-Ruhrort. On the right bank of the Ruhr, near the Muhlheim-Broich Railroad, a special harbor will be built for the Friedrich-Wilhelm-Hutte. Suitable loading and unloading stations will be built; also Building lots will be sold for factory and business sites, all having railroad connection and many both water and railroad facilities. The canal should be ready for traffic in 1916.

MRS. WILLIAM BAILEY LAMAR.

Wife of Judge Lamar of Monticello, Jefferson County, Florida, Who Is Among the Charming Hostesses in the Residential Set at Washington.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

Mrs. William Bailey Lamar.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Lamar is a familiar name in the social annals of the national capital and glancing through its written pages, it seems a rare occurrence when a representative of the family has not figured. Certainly not for the past twenty or thirty years. Judge William Bailey Lamar and his attractive young wife are welcome additions to the circle composed of former officials for whom the lure of the city is irresistible. They were here for six years, beginning with the Fifty-eighth Congress, when the judge then serving as Attorney-General of his State was sent to the lower house. After serving in the Sixtieth Congress, Judge Lamar became affiliated with large legal interests in Atlanta, Ga., and resided there until two years ago, when he and Mrs. Lamar returned to Washington, which will hereafter be their winter home.

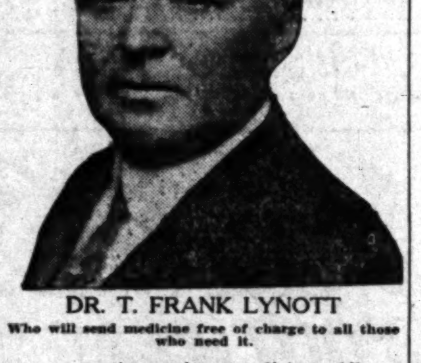
I Will Stake This Medicine Against Your Time

A Few Days Will be Sufficient to Prove its Value in Your Disease

A few minutes of your time for a few days and I will demonstrate to you, without expense to yourself, that I have a medicine that drives Uric Acid poison from the system and by so doing conquers kidney trouble, bladder trouble and rheumatism. I don't ask you to take my word for it, but simply want you to let me send you some of this medicine so that you can use it personally.

I am trying to convince sufferers from these diseases that I have something far better than the usual run of remedies, treatments and such things, and the only way I can demonstrate that fact is to go to the expense of compounding the medicine and sending it out free of charge. This I am glad to do for any sufferer who will take the time to write me. Understand, I will not send you a valueless "sample, proof or test treatment," nor will I send you a package of medicine and say that you can use some of it and pay for the rest, but I will send you a supply free of charge and you will not be asked to pay for this gift nor will you be under any obligations.

All I want to know is that you have a disease for which my medicine is intended, as it is not a "cure-all," and I give herewith some of the leading symptoms of kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles. If you notice one or more of these symptoms you need this medicine, and I will be glad to send you some of it if you will write me the numbers of the symptoms you have, give your age, and your name and address. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 5239 Deagan Building, Chicago, Ill. You promise me nothing; you pay me nothing for it. All I ask, so there shall be no mistake, is that you send me the numbers of your symptoms or a description in your own words, and that you take the medicine according to the directions I send you. It is my way of getting publicity for my medicine so that it will become widely known.



DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT

Who will send medicine free of charge to all those who need it.

You will agree when you have used it that it dissolves and drives out uric acid poison. It tones the kidneys so that they work in harmony with the bladder. It strengthens the bladder so that frequent desire to urinate and other urinary disorders are banished. It stops rheumatic aches and pains. It dissolves uric acid crystals so that back and muscles no longer ache and crooked joints yield to its healing action. It reconstructs the blood and nerves so that you soon feel healthier and stronger, sleep better and eat better and have energy throughout the day. It does all this, and yet contains nothing injurious and is absolutely vouched for according to law.

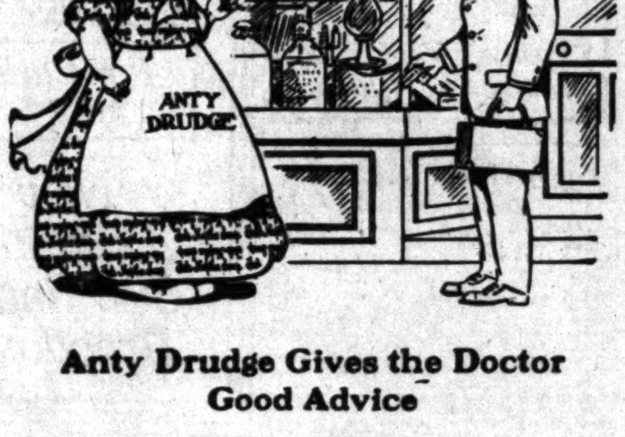
Sufferers from these dreadful and dangerous diseases can surely afford to spend a few minutes a day for a few days to demonstrate to their own satisfaction if they are curable, especially when you consider no expense is involved, and I willingly give you my time and my medicine. All any fair-minded afflicted person wants to know is if a certain thing will relieve HIM or HER, and here is an opportunity to find out without cost, obligation or important loss of time. THESE FEW DAYS may be the turning point in your life.

These are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Nervousness, loss of flesh.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Weak, watery blood.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7 General debility, weakness, dizziness.
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Sciatic rheumatism.
10—Constipation or liver trouble.
11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the neck or head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
18—Acute rheumatism.

All who are interested enough to write me for the free medicine will also receive a copy of my large illustrated medical book which describes these diseases thoroughly. It is the largest book of the kind ever written for free distribution, and a new edition is just being printed. I will also write you a letter of instructions and medical advice that should be of great help to you; but in order to do this I must know that you need my medicine. Write me the numbers of the symptoms that trouble you, and your age, and I will promptly carry out my promises. Show an inclination to get well and write me, and I will gladly send you a supply free.

Fels-Naptha Soap is an all-the-year soap. It is the every-kind-of-cleaning soap, too.



Anty Drudge Gives the Doctor Good Advice

Doctor—"Anty Drudge, a patient of mine told me the other day that you knew a cure for tired-out women. I wish you'd tell me what it is."

Anty Drudge—"It's something you wouldn't recommend, I'm afraid. If you'd tell all your women patients to use Fels-Naptha Soap for their housecleaning and washing these hot days, you wouldn't have so much to do. You can use Fels-Naptha Soap the year round as a prescription for overworked women."

There is nothing that won't look better if washed with Fels-Naptha Soap. Every woman who uses it feels better, and has more time for pleasure. It is the soap that works in cool or lukewarm water, that dissolves the dirt, instead of leaving it for you to rub out; that makes your clothes look snowy white without boiling them to pieces; that saves your back, your hands, your time.

On hot days, it makes it possible for you to do your washing and at the same time let your fire go out if you want to. It takes the dirt and grease off your dishes, and makes your glass and silver shine. It cleans all things in cool water, too.

Follow the directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.

WILHELMINA TO VISIT ENGLAND.

King George Succeeds in Getting the Dutch Queen's Acceptance Where His Father Failed.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 22.—English society is looking forward with a great deal of curiosity and interest to a visit from the Queen of Holland, whose matrimonial infelicities and expressions of strong character and prejudice have done little to make her a favorite with smart people. King Edward invited her to Great Britain several times, but her attacks of ill-health always prevented her accepting his offer, and it has now been left to King George to succeed where his illustrious father failed.

It is exactly twenty years since Queen Wilhelmina was in England. Her last appearance was in 1893, when she was entertained with her mother by Queen Victoria and was given a civic reception at the Mansion House in London. There has been no Dutch state visit, however, within living memory. It is necessary to go back to the early '80's to recall a similar event. At that period Queen Wilhelmina's father, King William III., was present at Windsor at the marriage of the late Duke of Albany, but his Majesty was unable to accept a Guildhall invitation on that occasion, owing to the death of a relative.

As a child Queen Wilhelmina saw a good deal of England and she was taught by Miss Winter, an English governess. Miss Winter's many good stories of her little charge include the following: Wilhelmina had to draw a map of Europe, and in her sketch she made Holland very large and the British Isles very small. "But I can't see the British Isles," said the governess. "Oh, no," said Wilhelmina; "they are hidden by the British fog."

Queen Mary has just had a Dutch garden formed at Buckingham Palace and this will probably interest Queen Wilhelmina to a considerable degree. Queen Mary, however, is devoted to bulbs of every description and some thousands of these are now to be planted at her London residence to bloom next spring. The site selected for this is directly beneath the windows of her private apartments on the garden front of the Palace.

A Thirst for Knowledge.

[Tit-Bits:] The phrenologist frowned. Then he went carefully once more over the bumps of the man in the chair. "Highly intelligent," he repeated—"highly intelligent. But I must warn you, sir. You have a very inquiring mind, and your thirst for knowledge is insatiable. This large bump running across the back of your head means that you are inclined to be curious even to the point of recklessness." "I know it," answered the man in the chair, sadly. "I got that bump by sticking my head through the bars at the hotel lift to see if the lift was coming up—and the beastly thing was coming down."

IF KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LEAD OR YOUR BACK HURTS, TAKE SALTS.

We eat too much meat, which clogs Kidneys, and they need a flushing occasionally.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications. Agents, Sun Drug Company.—[Advertisement.

Geo. H. Mayr:
I received Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and took the same with most pleasing and surprising results. As I was most impatient to continue the treatment, I got my local druggist to obtain your remedy from San Francisco. My trouble has been principally gastritis, with gas around my heart so bad at times I thought I was going to die. I was afraid to eat, altho hungry, anything starchy affecting my heart seriously by generating gas. My wife is also taking your remedy with pleasing results. Most gratefully yours,

Terrible Sufferer for 10 Years. Had "Suffered a Thousand Deaths."

Geo. H. Mayr:
I have been a terrible sufferer for the past 10 years. Not one doctor could tell me what the trouble was. I have a weak liver and I would vomit every morning and my stomach would bloat up like a balloon. I never could wear corsets. Seven years ago one of our doctors said that the catarrh had gone all through my system. His medicine nearly killed me. I left for Los Angeles and doctored there and still kept on with the same spells. I have suffered a thousand deaths, so I will tell you now what Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy did for me. (She described at length here how one dose worked). I think it would be a Godsend if it were on the market here. I thank you many times. Fanny Klankenk,

Sick 6 Years—Now Feels Like a Different Person.

George H. Mayr:
Your Stomach Remedy has helped me wonderfully. I thought I had dyspepsia or indigestion. I have been sick off and on for six years. The first year I had it I went to see four doctors and took their treatment, which helped me for only a short time. One of those doctors said I had chronic catarrh of the Stomach or dyspepsia and that he would have to use the stomach pump on me, which scared me so badly I would not go near him again. The last year my stomach has been getting worse, continual gas, particularly at night, so bad I could not sleep, but sit up in bed the greater part of the night. My husband learned of your Wonderful Remedy through a friend of his. This man works for the United Railways here. The day after taking it I felt like a different person. I feel that it will cure me, as it has helped me so much already. Yours truly,

The Bend in the River Catches the Drift

Here are the pictures of our two sovereign California Remedies—FRUITOLA AND TRAXO. This is just the way they will look when you see them on the druggist's shelf or counter. We put these pictures here for your protection, because our remedies are so good and efficient that we have imitators. We want you to get the original and genuine preparations, and when the medicine you buy is put up like the above pictures, you will know that you have the genuine article. Take no imitation or substitute.

HOW many times have you noticed that the bend of a river always catches and is piled high with drift material of one kind and another. This is characteristic of every water system. And it is equally true of the human digestive system. It transpires that there is an angle—a bend in the intestinal canal just at the point where the vermiform appendix is attached.

As in case of the River of Water this bend has a natural tendency to catch and hold more or less of the drift or fetid matter of the human system. Constant pressure from the flow of food matter brings a pressure at this bend or angle, which gradually forces small particles of food or waste or seeds into the appendix. Fermentation followed by inflammation sets in. Appendicitis and operation, and far too often death follows.

Do you not know that every word of this is true? But why not remove the cause? Why should there be any drift, sediment, fermentation and disease? Why not remove the trouble just as soon as you receive the first danger signal?

This will come to you in the form of cramps, indigestion, biliousness, torpid liver, etc.

Then act. Act quickly and sanely. Call to your relief these sovereign twin remedies pure fruit and vegetable compounds. They will disintegrate, break up, soften and carry away the last vestige of fetid waste matter. They will also soothe and strengthen the digestive organs by enlivening the muscles and mucous lining of the stomach and intestines. This will bring about a perfect digestion and assimilation of food, and you will be well and stay well. It is simple, we will admit, but it is true.

FRUITOLA and TRAXO

The testimony of hundreds upon hundreds who have tried it and therefore know, will be found in our little book at the drug store, or mailed direct upon request.

These preparations are sold by nearly all druggists. If you don't find them at your drug store, write us direct and we will see that you are supplied.

Classified Liners.

The Classified Rates. The rate for inserting an ad. in The Daily Times is 1c per word each insertion; minimum charge, 25c; except under the following classifications, the rate for which is 2c per word daily, 2½c per word Sunday, minimum charge 30c daily, 35c Sunday: "Society Meetings," "Personals," "Special Notices," "Church Notices, Miscellaneous," "Stocks and Bonds," "Money to Loan, Salary and Chattels," "Physicians," "Medical," "Detectives," "Sanatoriums" and "Baths and Massage."

Minimum space for classified advertisements of more than one insertion, 14 words.

Sunday real estate advertisements, to be classified properly, must be in The Times office before 8 o'clock Friday night. Other classified "Wants," "To Lets," etc., received over counter or by telephone until 11 p.m. Saturday. Ads. received after that hour for each division will be inserted under heading "Too Late to Classify." Rate 1½c per word.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds 100,000 copies, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the five other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements. Ring up The Times, Main 8200, Home 10391, any time of day or night, and secure prompt and careful service.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for error of any kind occurring in telephoned advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one time.

Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times in payment for "liners," as no mistakes can be rectified without them.

The Times will not accept phone or verbal orders to discontinue or change "till forbid" advertisements.

ONE-TIME NOTICES—

[This classification is especially intended to cover advertisements wherein the ELEMENT OF TIMELINESS is an essential feature, such as urgent notices of all kinds, assessment, dividend and company-meeting notices, fraternal-society notices (funeral notices excepted,) special bargain offers, with notices calling attention to advertisements in some other part of the paper, and all events to occur on any specified early date named. No standing advertisements accepted for this classification.]

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY — HERETOfore we did a wholesale and retail business. It has come to our notice recently that injustices have been practiced upon us by certain dealers, so we have decided as a retributive measure, to let down the bars separating wholesale and retail and sell at wholesale prices to everybody, so that NOW and HENCEFORTH YOU can buy from us AS CHEAPLY as ANY DEALER. Our motto in future to be, ONE PRICE (THE WHOLESALE PRICE) TO ALL.

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,

NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION.

STUDIO PARLORS, 539½ S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 30 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, investments, changes, talents, environments, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES of these events for the FUTURE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Schaumann-Heink, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Baron Rothschild, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Sembrich, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED work must not be classed with other readers. Do not waste money on the idiotic advice of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychists—those doing dishonest work.

PROF. ALTHOUSE also gives expert PALM READINGS with each astrological reading.

DR. J. A. LARSON writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory I have ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and RELIABLE of any reader in the United States." Readings given by mail, also.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and in HAND reading has brought him a LARGE and SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention given. STRICT PRIVACY. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years of experience can product. HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE solicited.

Daily and evenings; Sunday, 10 to 3.
STUDIO PARLORS, 539½ S. BROADWAY.

MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, England, may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of healt hand domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

STILL AFTER SUSPECTS.

Sheriff and His Men Seeking the Car Bandit and Murderer—No Real Clews.

Sheriff Hammel and several of his deputies returned to the city late yesterday afternoon after investigating several reports sent to his office by outside officers.

"I have nothing new on the case," said the sheriff. "We look into every suspicious circumstance reported to us and have examined a number of suspected persons. The murderer may be hiding in this city or he may be far away. Personally, I think he has got away from this county and possibly in Mexico. However, I do not like to make positive assertion, as the developments of a few hours might entirely change my opinion."

All the deputies are taking turns in going on scouting expeditions and several have had little sleep during the past five days. The sheriff, the District Attorney's men and the Chief of Police are cooperating in the manhunt.

Desertion Charge.

William Hinge and Lulu Huston, who came here together from Nelson, Neb., a few days ago, were arrested at Seventh and San Pedro streets yesterday, on charges pending in their home State. Nebraska police say Hinge is guilty of wife desertion.

Injured by Auto.

Fred Opitz of Ivy Park was run down and injured last night by an automobile, driven by Attorney Paul Schenck. Opitz was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where he was found to have sustained a compound fracture of the right leg.

Muse Immortal.

TESTIMONIAL TO COMPOSER.

ITALIANS OF CITY ARRANGE HONOR FOR LEONCAVALLO.

Director's Own Production of "Zaza" to Be Instrument of Demonstrating Public's Appreciation of Masterpiece—All-Star Cast to Sing Roles.

Italian of the city have arranged to give the great Italian composer and director, Leoncavallo, a testimonial at the Auditorium tomorrow night when the Grand Opera Company, of which he is the head, will present the composer's own production, "Zaza."

The company has been presenting operatic masterpieces in a manner that has greatly pleased music lovers here, and Leoncavallo has made a great many personal friends, in addition to admirers.

The composer has been so charmed with the musical atmosphere and natural attractiveness here that he has promised to write a special opera for this city when he returns to Italy.

Leoncavallo has selected an all-star cast to sing his masterpiece tomorrow night.

Carmen Melis will be heard as Zaza; nature has plentifully endowed her. She is a great actress as well as singer fair of face and figure; an ideal heroine for this bewildering French story.

The baritone, Montesanto, is a singer of more than usual prominence, big in stature as well as voice; a fine actor. He should loom large in operatic history in this country.

Luca Botta, the brilliant lyric tenor, will sing Dufresne; Fanny Anitua, a capable mezzo-soprano, a comedienne of note, will be heard as Anaide; Luisa Cecchetti as Floriana; Brilli as Bussy, the journalist.

This will positively be the last opportunity to pay tribute to these Italian song birds, and it is to be hoped that a crowded audience will greet them in their farewell to Los Angeles on Monday evening.

Nationalfest.

SWEDES WILL RAISE FUND.

PLAN IS TO AUGMENT LARGE SUM RAISED ABROAD.

Thirty Thousand Dollars Will Be Spent in Welcoming Fellow-Countrymen Who Will Visit This Continent in 1915—Concert Last Night.

A chorus of 100 voices from the choirs of the Swedish churches of the city, augmented by soloists, both vocal and instrumental, rendered a fine programme last night in the auditorium of the new Manual Arts High School, corner Forty-second street and Vermont avenue. The purpose of the entertainment was to raise an auxiliary fund to be expended in 1915 in entertaining visitors from Sweden and Swedish-Americans who will come to the Panama-Pacific fair. The large auditorium was filled.

The Swedish government has appropriated 300,000 crowns, or about $200,000, and the Swedes in America have pledged themselves to raise an additional $30,000. The Swedish residents of this city are co-operating with the Swedish National Society in the enterprise. The building the Swedish government will erect will be on two acres of ground already selected, and will be of an architectural type peculiar to that country.

Another feature in raising the auxiliary fund which has been adopted is the selling of a special stamp, 1,000,000 of which have been distributed, Los Angeles receiving 30,000. The stamps are to be attached to the backs of letters and Christmas packages, similar to Red Cross stamps.

Vice-Consul Gottlieb Eckdahl presided last night and made a short address, explaining the purpose for which money is being raised. The orchestra of the Manual Arts High assisted. Rev. E. V. Hedberg, pastor of the Swedish Baptist Church; Rev. F. O. Kling of the Swedish Congregational Church, Rev. G. Lindstrom of the Swedish Methodist, and Rev. Edward Nelander of the Swedish Lutheran Church, delivered short addresses during the course of the programme, dwelling on the fair of 1915 and its relation to the Swedes in Los Angeles, in America at large, in the home land, and on the patriotism of Swedish residents.

Last night's entertainment was the first time that advantage has been taken of the opportunity offered under the new law throwing public school buildings open to the public for evening entertainments.

ADOPT SALOON RULES.

Licensed Liquor Dealers Voluntarily Regulate The Trade at Anaheim.

ANAHEIM, Dec. 6.—Voluntarily and without solicitation the licensed liquor dealers of this city have adopted a set of rules governing the operation of their places of business. This movement has been brought about at the instigation of the Knights of the Royal Arch, an organization of some thirteen years standing on the Pacific Coast.

The local lodge has been active at all times in eliminating the ill-effects of the use of liquor in general and the intemperate use of it in particular. A few of the new rules to go into effect immediately are:

To close one hour earlier than provided for in the city ordinance;—10:45 o'clock on nights except Saturday, when the regular closing hour will continue.

To forbid all dice games and other gambling in any licensed liquor establishment.

To remove all curtains from windows and doors so as to permit views of the entire establishment at all times.

To remove all chairs and tables from the establishment with the exception of office.

Order to regulate treating system; bartenders not to treat or be treated while on duty behind the bar.

These are but a few of the many rules in the new order of things, and comes without pressure from an alien source.

ATTACKS IBSEN.

Sudermann and d'Annunzio Also Criticised by Art Authority Before University Students.

Prof. George Lansing Raymond, veteran poet and author, has publicly declared Ibsen, Sudermann and d'Annunzio as being out of the pale of art.

To the graduate students of the University of Southern California, who were tendered a reception by President Bovard and the faculty, Prof. Raymond spoke on "The Importance of Form in Art and Poetry."

"Art is necessarily related to life," he said, "as interpreting nature, to get the most beautiful and sane out of nature. Morbid creatures depicted by such pseudo-scientific investigators as Ibsen are not descriptive of the normal or ideal man. All art should raise us to the ideal, or it does not serve its end."

Meanest Man.

BRUTE BANDIT FELLS WOMAN.

VICTIM'S PLUCK AND QUICK WIT SAVE PURSE.

Halted in Lonely Highway by Armed Thug, She Drops Money Down Her Sleeve as Her Hands Obey Order to Go Up—Search for Loot Fails.

Quick wit and pluck saved Miss Camille Boyd of No. 1131 Santee street her purse and contents last night, but cost her brutal treatment at the hands of a highwayman.

Detectives and Sheriff's officers are scouring the city today in an attempt to find the man who halted her at Tenth and Santee streets, and, after failing to find loot, felled her with a blow from his fist.

Friends of the victim formed a posse after word of the occurence had spread over the neighborhood, and a crowd of men and boys searched the high and biways of the district, determined to lynch the bandit.

Miss Boyd was passing a vacant lot when the masked figure of a medium-sized man stepped from behind a telegraph pole and gave her the order to throw up her hands.

"The first thing I thought of," the girl declared later, "was of saving $18 I had in my purse, and in trying to work out a rapid solution of the problem I had no time to get frightened or scream.

"As I raised my hands I let the purse slip toward the sleeve of my coat. And as I felt the cold clasp against my wrist I let the chain free and the purse dropped down my sleeve. This all happened in a few seconds.

"The robber asked me if I had any rings or money and I told him I had not. He said he would search me and that if I lowered my hands or cried out he would kill me. His fingers went through my pockets swiftly enough, but he found nothing. I had not spoken to him.

"As he finished he cursed and struck me. I fell and that is all I remember, for some pedestrians came along and found me."

Detectives procured a good description of the bandit from her and developments are anticipated today.

PERSONALS.

A. Carnegie Ross, British Consul-General at San Francisco, and Mrs. Ross arrived at the Alexandria yesterday for a stay of several days. Here on business in connection with his office, he had a number of callers yesterday.

Lieut.-Gov. William P. O'Neill of Indiana registered at the Alexandria yesterday morning and left immediately for one of the beaches. He is on the way back to Indianapolis from San Francisco, where he selected a site for the Indiana exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Sweet have returned from a trip abroad and have taken a suite at the Alexandria for the winter.

L. H. Filip, a rancher of Yuma, who was at the Hollenbeck yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Filip, has a valuable collection of Indian relics which he assembled in Arizona and New Mexico. He had the articles on display in his room. He will send the collection to a friend in New York.

J. E. Blake, a cattle dealer of San Luis Obispo, who was at the Hollenbeck yesterday, is preparing to go on a cattle-buying excursion to Arizona and New Mexico. He and several friends expect to buy several thousand head of cattle, which will be shipped to California.

Dr. Addison Bybee of Livermore was one of the guests at the Westminster yesterday.

These were among the guests at the Angelus yesterday: F. B. Remington, a land promoter of Benton, and his father, A. E. Remington, of Springfield, Mass., who is on the way home; Dr. C. A. Clark of Mono Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stewart, tourists from Denver.

The arrivals at the Hayward yesterday included the following: L. J. Allen, a merchant of San Diego; P. S. Thompson, a dry goods manufacturer of New York; George T. Gosling, a distiller of Philadelphia; William Lagomarisano, a merchant of Oxnard, and A. P. Rutherford, a dry goods manufacturer of Detroit.

John Barron, general agent of the Union Pacific freight department, of Chicago, and Mrs. Barron left yesterday for home after spending a month at Long Beach.

ORANGE GROWER DIES.

CLAREMONT, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] J. W. Cooper, a well known orange grower of Claremont, died today at his residence, "Rosemont," this city. He was 64 years of age and had resided here with his brother, C. C. Cooper, for ten years. Until recently he was president of the El Camino Citrus Association and had a host of friends throughout Southern California. He is survived by one brother, C. C. Cooper, of Claremont, and one sister, Mrs. E. T. Trueblood, of St. Louis, Mo., who were both here at the time of his death. The funeral will be held from the Cooper residence tomorrow, Sunday at 2 p.m. Rev. J. L. Matthews of Banning, his former pastor when a resident of Salem, Ind., will officiate, assisted by Rev. Henry Kingman of Claremont. Interment will be in Pomona Cemetery.

Tempered.

FAIR MILLINERS AND A SOLOMON.

TWO WOMEN, A JUDGE, LAWYERS AND A CLOCK.

Wise Magistrate Foresees and Forestalls Feminine Wrangle Which Threatened Half Holiday in Court and Everybody Leaves Smiling.

Never was Police Judge Frederickson's court so filled with onlookers before yesterday. It was a day of feminine dispute.

Miss Pauline Reeves, keeper of a fashionable millinery, and Mrs. Lucille Simpson, designing milliner, were present to have decision given as to whether or not Mrs. Simpson was guilty of having disturbed the peace of Miss Reeves's shop.

Miss Pauline Reeves thought she was. Mrs. Lucille Simpson thought she was not.

Each was accompanied by an attorney. Mrs. Simpson was further escorted by three detectives, a trio alleged to have been her beaux when the complaint was first made.

With the appearance of the contestants Police Judge Frederickson cast an inquisitive eye at the clock, crossed his feet, smiled and signaled for the battle to be on.

Miss Reeves, demure and unnerved by the courtroom excitement, told of her attempt to get Mrs. Simpson to leave her shop without trouble. The policeman testified that he had gone to No. 326 West Sixth street, and had heard loud talking. The attorney argued, the judge smiled.

Forty minutes passed. Twelve o'clock came. Lunch was waiting, and Saturday afternoon is a half-holiday in the courts. Police Judge Frederickson cast a wary eye at the meek keeper of the time.

Then he called both women before him.

"Come, now, you girls," he said, "let us talk this over. Now, you are both handsome, both too good looking to fuss, and neither of you is unkindly. After all, there is not much to trouble about. It isn't worth one frown on either of you. Mrs. Simpson, you will stay away from Miss Pauline's shop hereafter, won't you?"

Mrs. Simpson said she would.

It was because Mrs. Simpson had insisted on going there with the detectives as escort that the complaint was made. Mrs. Simpson claims a contract for her services. Miss Reeves declares Mrs. Simpson is no longer working for her. Mrs. Simpson had been advised by the attorney to appear at the shop each day that she might validate her contract. So she came with a detective.

"Now, Miss Pauline," said the judge, "everything will be all right; no more loud talking will occur and Mrs. Simpson won't come near the place. Don't you think everything will be all right?"

Miss Pauline smiled demurely and assented. Mrs. Simpson smiled gaily and assented. Judge Frederickson smiled merrily, and made the records. Stripped of judicial verbiage, his decision was that affairs were a draw.

And as all left court, the keeper of the time over the door tinkled out twelve strokes.

Miss Reeves started out, and smiled at the judge. "Solomon!" she said.

Mrs. Simpson cheerfully started away. She looked at the judge. "Solomon!" she said.

And the judge got up, saw the hands of the clock clasped at the noon hour, and winked at it.

"Solomon!" he said.

CHAFFEY HIGH CELEBRATES.

Ontario Mayor Assists—Lodge Elects Officers—Surprise Wedding. Drop in Temperature Harmless.

ONTARIO, Dec. 6.—The victory of the Chaffey High School football team squad in capturing the championship of Southern California was celebrated with a rousing banquet in the administration building at the High School last evening.

There were present members of the Board of Education, officers of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce and city officials. Principal M. E. Hill, in the absence of Coach "Dutch" Shutt, acted as toastmaster, and talks were not only heard from the outside guests, but from members of the team as well.

Mayor W. A. Freemire, Crombie Allen, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, and E. C. Harwood, president of the Board of Education, were among the speakers.

Ontario lodge F. and A.M. held its annual election of officers last night at the Masonic Temple. The following were chosen: K. D. Blaikie, Worshipful Master; W. J. Campbell, Senior Warden; W. H. Gorbett, Junior Warden; J. G. Beesley, Treasurer; R. O. Brackenridge, Secretary.

Miss Frances Willard Lewis and Clyde Allan Meacham took a large number of their friends by surprise when they suddenly appeared before a Christian Endeavor gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lewis last evening, and were married by the Rev. Winthrop Allison, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

This morning's minimum temperature was 35 degrees and ranchers believe that the threatened cold spell has passed for the present. Only once during the week did the thermometer reach the freezing point, and then not sufficiently low to cause any damage.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the San Antonio-avenue school is to hold its last meeting of the year on Monday afternoon in the music room of the school. An especially good programme has been provided.

HUNTERS FIND LONE SKELETON.

Victim Had Fought Fierce Battle Behind Wall.

Mogollon Mountain Trapper Dies in His Own Trap.

Big Sum to Be Expended on Gila County Highways.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

CLIFTON (Ariz.) Dec. 5.—Another tragedy has been uncovered in the lonely Bluve River section, for years a resort of outlaws who found a secure hiding place in its fastnesses. A couple of Clifton men, who just returned from a hunting trip through the Blue River district, report that they found, behind a roughly-built stone wall, the skeleton of a man, who had fought desperately before a fatal bullet came. Nearby were the remnants of a saddle, but no other possible clew toward identification. It is probable that the last stand of the unknown within his crude fort was made at a later date than Indian times and it is surmised that he was a traveler, whose arms and property were wanted by Mexican outlaws.

In the lower Mogollon mountains, east of this city, a few days ago was found the body of a trapper, who had met death in the grip of one of his own traps. The man had passed the ranch of Ab Alexander and had promised to return in a few days for supplies. After five days had passed, Alexander started to hunt him up. The trapper's horse was found tied to a tree and about dead from lack of water and food. Nearby was found the frozen body of the man himself gripped at the wrist in the powerful jaws of a steel bear trap. It was evident that he had made a fierce struggle to free himself, but he could neither pry open the jaws of the trap nor free the anchor that held it. It is probable that several days and nights elapsed before he succumbed. The man's name is unknown and he could not be identified by any papers carried.

SHOOTS A MEXICAN.

Saturday night at Morenci, Ramon Rurias shot and instantly killed another Mexican, Francisco Baldez, in the course of a dispute over the right to escort a girl home from a moving picture show. Rurias has been apprehended and is being held in Clifton for trial.

An odd situation developed at Morenci last week, when local peace officers were threatened with arrest for theft. The alleged offense was in permitting prisoners in the local lock-up to steal coal from the Morenci Club. In justification it is urged that the prinsoners were freezing to death and that the county had made no provision whatever for fuel. Hence it was thought not out of the way to take a few lumps of coal from a public-spirited organization.

As the result of late elections held in Klondyke, Bonita and Stanley Butte precincts, Graham county now is completely "dry." This result has been reached mainly through the efforts of the Mormon Church, which is taking a very general stand for prohibition throughout the State.

TO IMPROVE GILA ROADS.

BIG SUM TO BE SPENT.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Dec. 5.—Over $50,000 will be spent early in the coming year on the roads of Gila county. Of this $10,000 will be used on the Globe-Roosevelt highway, and nearly as much on the road from Globe to San Carlos. The work will be done under State Engineer Lemar Cobb, with the use of convict labor, which will save, it is estimated, about 50 per cent. of the cost.

L. R. Ferguson, chief road engineer of the Association of Cement Manufacturers, and R. J. Wegg, engineer of the Bureau of Standards, Washington, have inspected the Roosevelt dam and its concrete work to ascertain what effect alkaline water has upon cement construction. At a number of points inspected in other reclamation projects this effect was very noticeable, but no damage whatever could be found at Roosevelt that could be traced to alkali. Mr. Ferguson has strongly recommended that a permanent concrete road be built between Globe and Roosevelt. This could be done for not over $12,000 a mile and would almost eliminate expenses of upkeep.

AIDED BY APACHES.

Teddy Tetzlaff and L. A. Irish had a narrow escape from death Tuesday when their 120-horse-power automobile was caught in the quicksands of the Gila River at San Carlos, southeast of Globe. They had been told that the river was fordable and had started to rush through the stream at high speed. In the center of the stream a log was struck, Mr. Irish was thrown out and the machine began to settle into the quaking sands. Apache Indians came to the rescue with a half dozen horses and, after hours of hard work and prior payment of $25, the redskins succeeded in dragging the giant racing machine out upon the shore. The United States government has appropriated $35,000 for bridging the Gila at this same ford.

City Marshal Pinyan has been exonerated from blame for the killing of Pablo Barraja, who was shot while resisting arrest and after firing three shots at the officer. The affair took place on Broad street in Globe and wound up a debauch of a party of Mexicans of which Barraja appeared to be the leader.

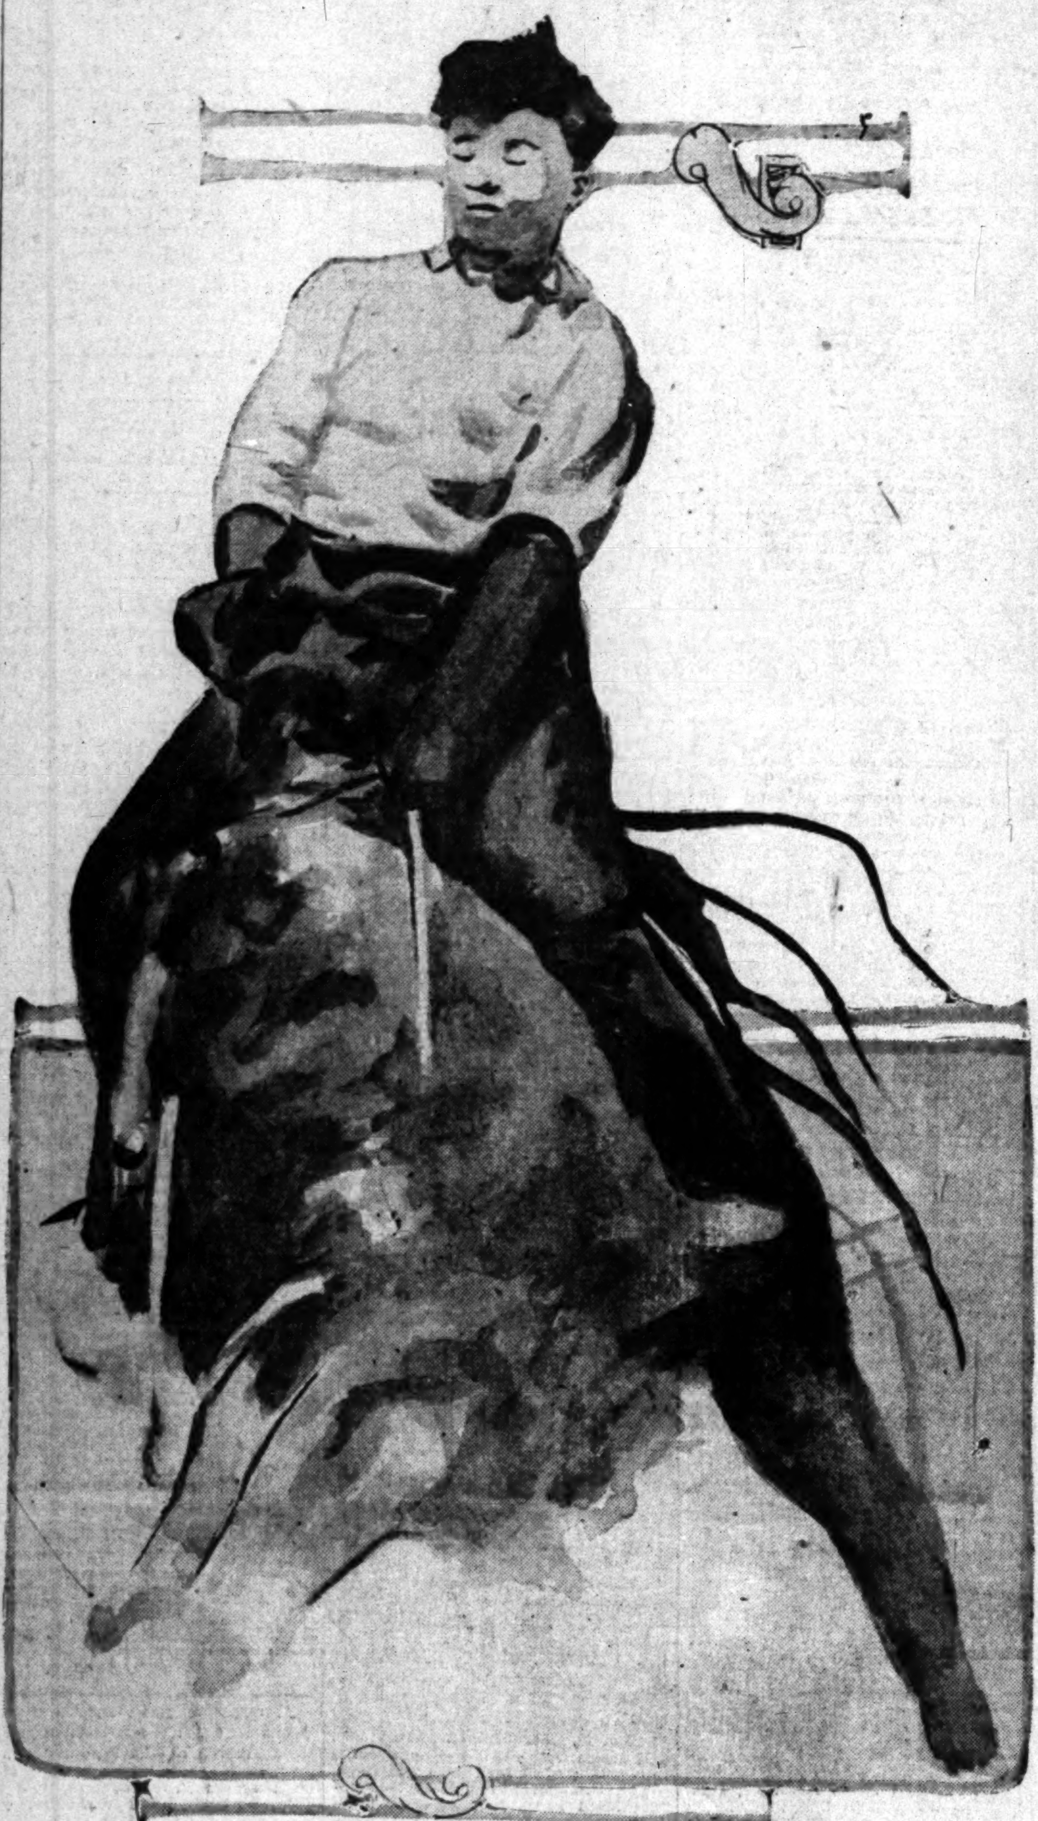
Sunday in this city occurred the death of Ralph Schofield, son of R. W. Schofield, superintendent of the Old Dominion Concentrator. Though only 21 years old he was married. His wife of a year is in hospital in Globe convalescing after a serious operation.

A contract has been awarded by the local High School board for the erection of a High School building, which is to cost $54,120.

Abandon Ship, Save Their Lives.

SEATTLE (Wash.) Dec. 6.—[By A. P. Day Wire.] The four-masted wooden schooner Aloha, from Fiji to Gray's Harbor, in ballast, encountered a violent storm off the Washington coast last Sunday and became unmanageable. Capt. A. Peterson and his crew of ten men abandoned the schooner and rowed to Destruction Island, where all are safe. The schooner is still afloat.

Mexican Gunman's Whereabouts Still a Mystery.



Rafael (Ralph) Lopez,

First authentic picture taken of the Utah desperado shows him on horseback in an attitude which emphasizes his daredevil nature. It was taken when Lopez was riding for a Wild West company at Salt Lake.

Elusive.

STILL COMBING LABYRINTH FOR SLAYER OF SIX MEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BINGHAM (Utah) Dec. 6.—Search of over half of the labyrinth of the Utah-Apex mine for Ralph Lopez, the Mexican gunman, was completed tonight without result. The probability that the slayer of six men had escaped grew as deputies appeared at the various tunnel mouths with the announcement that no sign of the desperado, dead or alive, had been found.

The poisonous gases forced into the mine for the purpose of asphyxiating Lopez, after he had killed two deputies in an underground battle a week ago, were cleared from all the passageways and tonight the search was continued in parts not yet explored.

A dispute between a posse of Bingham citizens and the Sheriffs arose today and for a time brought the search to a standstill. Sheriff Aljets of Toole county accused Dr. F. E. Straup, Mayor-elect of Bingham and others composing a searching party, of having pooled a bet of $1010 that Lopez would not be found, dead or alive, in the mine. As an outgrowth of this the Bingham men, who were most familiar with the mine, refused to re-enter until late today, when the disagreement was adjusted.

The removal of a cave-in in the upper workings showed that Lopez had not taken refuge in the stopes behind it as had been thought. More than 200 miners who were thrown out of employment when the mine was closed in order to fill it with gas, returned to work in the lower levels today.

The Master Medium

The following figures, which show the direction in which the wind blows in the local advertising field, should be a source not only of interest, but of profit to local advertisers.

During November The Times printed 96,771 inches of paid advertising, which is 16,307 inches more than its nearest local morning contemporary, and 56,893 inches more than its second nearest local morning contemporary.

The combined total volume of advertising printed in November in the morning and evening one "scent" papers, fathered by the alleged "Society for Civic Betterment, was 10,586 inches LESS than that printed in The Times alone during the same month.

The Times completely overwhelms and submerges every other newspaper in Los Angeles in the volume of advertising printed every month in the year, and its performance in November is customary and not unusual.

The ability of The Times to regularly print a much greater volume of advertising than any other newspaper in the world is the outgrowth of its permanent, far-reaching home circulation, which is greater in quantity and better in quality than that of any other local newspaper, and is the logical sequence of printing a newspaper so complete in every detail that no man or woman in this field can afford to do without it.

If you have any doubts as to the purchasing power of The Times' circulation—of its influence with the buying classes in this splendid field—study the following tabulation:

Advertising in Los Angeles Newspapers in November, 1913.

FIRST, THE TIMES	96,771
Second, Morning Newspaper	80,464
Third, Morning Newspaper	39,878

"MONNA VANNA" IN BOSTON.

Music Drama by Fevrier From the Play by Maeterlinck Is Produced in The Hub.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, Dec. 6.—"Monna Vanna," a music drama by Fevrier, from the play by Maeterlinck, was produced for the first time in America at the operahouse here last night.

The acting hinges on a siege of Pisa by the Florentines under Prinzivalle in the fifteenth century. Monna Vanna, wife of Prince Guido of Pisa, willing to sacrifice her honor to save her city, meets Prinzivalle at night and discovers that he is a childhood playmate, who has resorted to this strategem in order to see her again. Pisa is saved by reinforcements and Vanna takes Prinzivalle into the city for his own protection. Guida misunderstands the situation and Prinzivalle's nobility of character. The swift march of events and passions brings Vanna to a realization of her own heart and she abandons Guido for Prinzivalle.

Mary Garden appeared as Monna Vanna; Vanni Marcoux as Guido, and Lucien Muratore as Prinzivalle. Others in the cast were Paola Ludicker, Louis Deru, Jeska Swartz, Merz, Alban Grand and Taddeo Wronski. Andre Caplet conducted.

"STOP PASSING OF SLUGGERS"—DOYLE

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Following the announcement by B. B. Johnson, president of the American League, inviting suggestions tending to improve the game, Jack Doyle, former National League umpire, and for three years battery partner of Amos Rusie, today suggested that the intentional passing of sluggers be eliminated by a new rule. Doyle suggests that it be made optional with the batter whether he accept a pass when the bases are loaded. When the pitcher deliberately shoots over four "waste" balls, Doyle suggests that the umpire should be vested with authority to make the pitcher put over at least one good one.

GUADALAJARA THREATENED.

Carranza's Revolt Is Said to Be Extending to the Second City of the Republic.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HERMOSILLO (Sonora) Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Telegraphic communication with the south having again been restored, it was reported today that an uprising had occurred in the city of Colima in favor of Gen. Carranza and that within a few days it is believed that the revolt will have extended as far east as Guadalajara, the second city in size in the Republic.

A number of mining men from camps in the State of Jalisco have arrived at the city of Tepic bringing news that the entire district is aflame with rebellion and that for the first time since the beginning of the war the Americans have been forced to leave their possessions and flee to the west coast.

The statement that the railroad had been cut forty miles east of Guadalajara, cutting off communications with the capital, is alleged to have compelled the American refugees to leave the disturbed district through San Marcos and over the old Spanish highway to Tepic.

Engineers' Mountain, a noted landmark, is reported to have been fortified by the Constitutionalists.

Should these reports be confiremd it is considered possible that Gen. Carranza will go south via the west coast rather than through Chihuahua as he first planned.

A general review of the army including 800 Yaquis took place this morning in front of Gen. Carranza's headquarters and the leader expressed himself as being perfectly satisfied with both men and munitions. Orders posted tonight indicate an important movement, but no inkling as to the real intentions of Gen. Carranza was given out.

Local Lodge Members of El Paso Take Edward Leach Across the Border as Part of the Entertainment and Show Him Some Real Live Revolutionists.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Grand Exalted Ruler Edward Leach of the Benevolent Order of Elks, crossed the borden this afternoon and met Gen. Benevedies, the grand and somewhat exalted ruler of the revolutionists in Juarez. The head of the Elks' lodge arrived here this morning to spend the day as the guest of the El Paso lodge. A part of the entertainment planned for him was the visit to the battle and bottle-scarred revolutionary town across the Rio Grande. As Pancho Villa, the brass collar of the revolution, was some place south of Sauz station doing the work of a section boss repairing the Mexican Central Line, Leach had to be content with meeting Gen. Benevdies, second in command.

He was shown the scene of the recent battl, where the executions were held and the Campo Santo, where the bodies of the opposition were buried in a heap. Mrs. Leach, who accompanied the Exalted Ruler to El Paso, was presented with a costly Mexican serap as a souvenir of her visit to the revolutionary zone.

Diminutive Fred Robinson, the Grand Secretary of the lodge, was also along and was officially dubbed "El Chiquito" (the little one) by the rebel soldiers in Juarez.

MILITANTS WANT REVENGE.

Renewed Activity of the Arson Squads in England Because of the Rearrest of Mrs. Pankhurst.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The campaign of revenge for the rearrest of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was continued by the militant suffragettes today. They had marked for destruction various exhibition buildings and grand stands in the race tracks in Lancashire where Premier Asquith is spending the week-end delivering a series of political speeches.

Two of the items on the militant programme were successfully carried out.

Arson squads burned down exhibition buildings at Liverpool and Manchester. Their third attempt, however, was unsuccessful. They were frightened away as they were preparing to set fire to the grand stand on Aintree race course.

EXETER JAIL SURROUNDED.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

EXETER (Eng.) Dec. 6.—Exeter Jail was surrounded today by militant suffragettes in anticipation of the removal or release of Mrs. Pankhurst. A number of automobiles were at hand, ready to give chase in case the prisoner should be taken to some other jail. It is understood that Mrs. Pankhurst cannot be forcibly fed owing to the condition of her heart. The police hope, however, to keep her in custody until after the demonstration in London, announced for tomorrow.

Bryan Sends Gunboat in Hot Haste and Envoys Will Follow to Investigate Alleged Transaction in Funds of Island Republic Said to Have Been Engineered by New York Politician and Some of His Henchmen.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Reports recently emanating from official sources have stated that the U.S.S. Dolphin, which sailed today for Santo Domingo, is being sent there in connection with the "observation" of elections to be held on December 15, ostensibly for the purpose of insuring fairness in the elections. It is stated upon reliable authority, however, that the State Department is confronted with a grave situation in the conduct of its relations with Santo Domingo.

It is learned that certain funds of the Dominican government, held temporarily in the custody of an official appointed by the President of the United States, have been transferred from the Bank of S. Mitchellena to the Banco Nacional without authority from Washington.

The American Minister to Santo Domingo, James Mark Sullivan, wrote to the Receiver-General of Customs, Walter Vick, authorizing him to make this transfer of funds. The owner of the Banco Nacional, S. M. Jarvis, was a friend of Mr. Sullivan before his appointment as Minister.

The American Minister's power to grant such authority lies solely with the officials of the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department. It was stated today at the Bureau of Insular Affairs that the transfer was not made upon order from the War Department.

It is understood that a cousin of the American Minister has been appointed to a lucrative position under the Dominican government.

BRYAN DECLINES TO TALK.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Bryan, declined to comment upon the Dominican situation. He was asked to do so after he had been informed that certain of the facts with regard to the transfer of Dominican funds were in possession of a newspaper.

It is understood that two officials of the Department of State are soon to leave for Santo Domingo. The officials decided upon for this mission are Hugh S. Gibson, formerly secretary of legation at Havana, Cuba, and Jordan Herbert Stabler of the Bureau of Latin-American affairs. The Minister from Santo Domingo, Senor Reynado, conferred with John Bassett Moore, counsellor of the State Department, for several hours today.

The Democratic party is likely to be brought to task through a Congressional investigation in the near future for the way things have been conducted in this Latin-American republic. When the Wilson administration came into power, about a dozen employees in the customs receivership of the republic, who were appointed by the former President of the United States, but paid by the Dominican government, were discharged and their places filled with Democratic political henchmen from this country. The Receiver-General of Customs for Santo Domingo, W. E. Pulliam, was replaced by Walter W. Vick of New Jersey, who had been secretary of the Wilson inauguration last March. The Dominican government asked that Mr. Pulliam be retained in office. The position pays about $9500 a year in salary and perquisites.

A DOMINICAN VIEW.

These tactics caused the Minister of Finance of Santo Domingo to remark to an American official that he could not see why the United States government had so strongly objected to the appointment by the Dominican government of political favorites to positions in the customs service when the United States government did precisely the same thing in the offices in the receivership which are under its control. The Minister of Finance remarked that there was only one difference in the methods of the American government and the Dominican government.

"When we reward political service we pay for it out of our own revenues, while you provide salaries for your own politicians out of our revenues."

This statement has been placed before a Republican Senator, who is expected to demand a Congressional investigation immediately after the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Sullivan was a New York attorney and a friend of S. M. Jarvis, to whose bank the receivership funds were transferred. The president of the Banco Nacional, F. J. R. [illegible], had stated in Santo Domingo, [illegible] before Mr. Sullivan's appointment that he knew who was going to be the next Minister to Santo Domingo and that his name ended in "N." He also boasted that he and his associates were going to have [illegible] connected with the Santo Domingo loan negotiations dismissed.

Mr. Sullivan was attorney for "Bald Jack" Rose in the Becker trial and had stumped Maine for Bryan.

"COUSIN TIM'S" VISIT.

One Timothy Sullivan, now well known in Santo Domingo, as "Cousin Tim," went down to the island to visit his cousin, the newly-appointed American Minister. Persons returned to New York from Santo Domingo who had gone down with this Sullivan, including officers of the steamship on which he sailed, stated that in his confidential moments Mr. Timothy Sullivan admitted to them that he was going down to get a $5000 job. He said that he had helped his cousin, the present Minister, through college and that now he was to be rewarded.

Timothy Sullivan arrived in Santo Domingo on October 4. On October 25, he began certain railroad construction work for the Dominican government.

ACT AND COMMENT.

For a season that has been generally regarded as dull, the latter part of 1913 has been unusually productive of big and significant real estate transactions. In fact, it may be questioned whether there has ever been another similar period in the history of Los Angeles and Southern California in which so many deals of first magnitude importance have been consummated as in the past five weeks. Though the market generally has been quiet, the public at large has in a period of a little over a month been given a most convincing demonstration of the fact that capital is not one whit dubious as to the real stability of values in this section.

Where "big money interests" do not fear to tread, the investing public at large, it is pretty safe to assume, need not fear to rush in, and that notwithstanding the temporarily gray aspect of things. (Come to think about it, such an adaptation of the old adage as is embodied in the last remark doesn't appear so very complimentary to the public, but the Fact and Comment man doesn't believe in starting anything he can't finish, so let it stand.) Candor in regard to certain unfortunate denouements of recent date in the local financial world would suggest that the situation with reference to the public and its spending money is too prone to the other way around—the small investors rushing in pell mell where men of means and real business acumen would never dream of straying.

But let's get back to the big real estate deals that have made November and the early part of December so memorable in the annals of Southland investments.

New Soil Empire.

Two, at least, of the transactions referred to are so fraught with significance for Los Angeles and Southern California that it is hard to come out and say that one or the other is of the greater or the less importance. The most recent of the two deals was the transfer early in the past week of a 45,000-acre tract of rich land in the northern end of the Imperial Valley. The sale was made for the Southern Pacific Railway Company to a strong syndicate of Los Angeles and Imperial Valley business men and involved a consideration of nearly $1,000,000. Announcement is made that the land is to be resold at once in parcels of from forty to 640 acres each and at so moderate an advance over the original purchase price that the immediate development of the entire holding is as good as assured. A water company, organized months ago for the purpose of giving irrigation facilities to the very district in which these lands lie, already has its main ditch nearly completed. An additional 45,000 acres, representing alternate sections interspersed among the sections of deeded land transferred to the syndicate, is now held by government entrymen. Ninety thousand acres of fertile soil, therefore, will soon be added to the agricultural domain of the Imperial Valley and to the cultivated back country of Los Angeles.

As an advertising feature for Southern California, the value of this development cannot be overestimated, even as its importance as a rich new inland empire of the Southland may in actuality in the ever-expanding not be overstated. Once this Northern Imperial district has been converted into the soil paradise that [illegible] and settlers will speedily make it, every traveler over the main line of the Southern Pacific will be permitted to glimpse the marvelous possibilities of the reclaimed Imperial Valley desert at his ease, as he is whisked by in a swift westbound train, instead of being compelled to make a special trip of inspection over branch routes to the heart of the American Nile country. Lying as it does well to the south of the present main line of travel, Imperial Valley, with its phenomenal development and unparalleled opportunities for investment, too often escapes the attention of the very tourist travelers Southern California wants to reach with its

All this will be changed when the wave of progress shall have swept northward to and beyond the Southern Pacific tracks.

Barrier Removed.

The sale of the 16,000-acre Palos Verdes ranch early in November constituted a sensation that will long be remembered in real estate circles. Because the ranch was bought by a syndicate composed of Frank A. Vanderlip, head of the National City Bank of New York and one of the financial giants of the country, together with other men of equal standing in the world of business, the deal assumed an almost national news interest. Although the plans of the new owners of the former Bixby holding have not been made public, it may be put down as a foregone conclusion that the property will be developed to the full extent of its almost limitless possibilities. The men who bought the ranch are the kind of men who do things and their announcement that they intend to spend an enormous sum of money in improvements only confirms what was made plainly evident in the very fact of the ranch purchase itself.

Direct information to the effect that the Vanderlip interests would not only be willing but pleased to provide rights of way for highways through the ranch property reached the Fact and Comment man yesterday afternoon from an indisputable source. This concession, withheld by the Bixby family in the face of an almost continuous agitation, gives to the public, practically for the asking, rights never before realizable and which literally represent the beginning of a new era in the Coast development of Southern California.

The city of Redondo Beach, once heralded as a coming great center of commerce and population, struck a stone wall in the form of the Palos Verdes ranch, which, as a barrier to the shore place's southward expansion could not have been more of an obstacle if it had been literally walled in with solid masonry. The fullest development of the Santa Monica Bay towns and of all the shore line from Venice southward to the very northern edge of the ranch has been made impossible on account of the impossibility of getting a direct coast highway down through the Palos Verdes property to the Los Angeles harbor district. More than fourteen miles of coast, starting at San Pedro and extending in a wide sweep to Redondo, has been absolutely shut off from Los Angeles and the rest of the world to the present day. It appears almost inconceivable that this great and sightly territory, with its wealth of undeveloped possibilities, should have been so isolated from a city of half a million souls separated from it by not a single natural barrier.

The cattle that ran the Bixby ranges have been sold off, the ranch

CITY HOLDINGS EXCHANGED FOR BEACH BLOCK.

Improvement at Windward Avenue and the Speedway in Venice Is Transferred for Pico Street and Burlington Avenue Sites and a Cash Balance.

Following the conclusion of ten days' negotiations, a real estate transaction involving an aggregate consideration of $150,000 was placed in escrow yesterday by Frank J. Houston, manager of the Pico-Washington-Vermont department of the California Land and Water Company, which concern represented both parties to the deal. The transfer was mostly of the nature of an exchange, involving valuable properties in this city and in the Santa Monica Bay district.

In the deal, Dr. John S. Hunt of Santa Monica transferred to Peter Campbell MacGregor of Los Angeles the northwest corner of Windward avenue and Speedway, in Venice, at a given valuation of $75,000. The site is 50x100 feet in size to an eighteen-foot alley and is improved with a three-story brick building containing two storerooms on the ground floor and thirty-six rooms above, these rooms being under lease to the Abbot Kinney Company and in use in connection with the St. Mark's Hotel.

MacGregor gave as part payment for the Venice holding the southeast corner of Pico street and Hobart boulevard, in this city, a site 105x160 feet in size, improved with a one-story brick building, and valued at a given figure of $50,000, together with the property at No. 657 South Burlington avenue. The latter holding is 50x150 feet in dimensions and is improved with a ten-room residence. Its value is given at $15,000. MacGregor paid the balance of $10,000 on the purchase price of the beach property in cash.

Los Angeles Hotel Man Buys Plot in Crown Hill District and Plans Large Apartments.

The early erection of a large apartment-house or apartment-hotel in the Crown Hill section is assured as the result of the purchase yesterday by John S. Mitchell, proprietor of the Hollenbeck Hotel, of a triangular piece of property at the southwest corner of Loma drive and West Second street. The holding is the home place of the seller, Mrs. Ione P. Davis, and is improved with an old ten-room residence that in its day was one of the attractive dwellings of the West Side. The consideration in the deal is given by Adam Dixon Warner, the broker in the transaction, at $12,000.

The plot has a frontage of 275 feet on Second street and of 195 feet on Loma drive. It is fifty feet wide at the rear. The entire piece is to be occupied by the projected apartment building. The property is a block away from the magnificent Mary Andrews Clark Memorial Home for Working Girls and is situated in a district that has been rapidly coming into demand for apartment-house sites.

WALNUT GROVES SOLD.

Sales in Whittier are reported by J. Howard Johnson of that place as follows: C. A. Landers to W. J. Wildman, ten acres walnuts, $11,000; J. D. Sievers to Mrs. Bertha Hickman, eight acres walnuts, $12,600; J. W. Woody to L. C. Montgomery, 25x140 feet on South Greenleaf avenue, $4500.

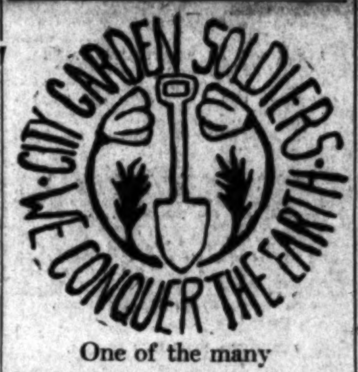
LITTLE POPPY BUTTON.

School Pupils Competing in Designing One for the Clean City Campaign Just Started.

"Button, button, who's got the button?"

That's the game. But not the regular old-fashioned game.

These youngsters are competing for the prize of acceptance of their button design for the clean city campaign which has been started in the schools in order that the city may have on her best dress in 1915.



One of the many

Clean-city button design entered in the contest.

Up at Olive-street school Miss Morse's special drawing class has been working during a fortnight to evolve a poppy button that will do credit to the schools, and to the "city garden soldiers," and dreams of curlymacues entwining yellow poppies have danced through their sleeping and waking hours. Some exceedingly clever and dainty designs are coming out of their backgrounds as a result, and the sketches will be submitted for final judgment to Frank Peltret, Clayton F. Palmer and Miss Mary Morse. The award will be made tomorrow.

Little Toyo Miyantake, as his name implies, is a Jap, and he's an artist to his finger tips. In common with all his countrymen he has a talent for draping one lone, lorn flower over the edge of a vase in a way to turn an American artist green with envy, and his sketch is among the best.

The buttons when made will be sold by the captains of the school clubs to those pupils who want to help clean up and beautify the city.

Those specially talented pupils who have the luck to belong to Miss Morse's class and compete for the prize are Verdalyn Pratt, Pauline Norton, Dewdrop Danielson, Ethel Cullington, George Ellwood, Albert Crisbie, Marjorie Phillips, Ellen Morrison, Vera Brown, Toyo Miyantake and John Peters.

CLUB TO BUILD.

Woman's Organization of Hollywood Plans Handsome Structure. To Be of Colonial Architecture.

At a recent meeting of the Woman's Club of Hollywood, the members of that body decided upon the early erection of a handsome clubhouse in a fashionable section of the beautiful northwest suburb. The organization, which is one of the most important and influential of its character in Los Angeles, owns a sightly lot at the corner of Hollywood boulevard and La Brea avenue, and on this it is proposed to build a handsome structure of colonial architecture. Plans for the clubhouse are now being drawn by Oliver P. Dennis and Henry Harwood Hewitt, a sketch prepared by these architects having already been approved by the Building Committee of the club.

The new building, say the members of the club, will cost about $20,000 and will be a credit to Hollywood and the city. The preliminary arrangements have largely been in charge of Mrs. M. M. Cason and Mrs. Rollin B. Lane, and it was announced yesterday by these ladies that the work would go ahead at once. Fifty new members who have been awaiting the decision of the Building Committee will, it is said, join the organization at once, now that ample provision for future growth has been assured. The club's site was purchased nine months ago for $4500 and is now valued at $10,000.

Fireproof and Modern.

FOR CORNER OF PICO AND MAIN.

Local Corporation Projects Fine Hostelry.

Structure Will Contain Two Hundred Rooms.

Construction Will Be Begun Early Next Year.

Work is to be begun early next year upon an eight-story fireproof hotel building projected by the Central and Pacific Improvement Corporation for the southwest corner of Pico and Main streets. Plans for the improvement are now being prepared by E. H. Dorr, of the architectural department of the corporation, and bids for the construction contracts are to be taken within the next few weeks. The hotel, it is announced, will cost about $350,000.

The hostelry will be of the most modern steel-frame type and will be handsomely faced with brick and terra cotta. It will have a frontage of 143 feet on Pico street and of 105 feet on Main. On the ground floor will be five storerooms, all facing on Main, the hotel lobby, a large dining-room and a beautifully-arranged palm room.

The next six stories will contain 200 guest rooms, each with a tile-finished bathroom containing both tub and shower facilities. The corridors throughout will have marble wainscoting. The eighth story, rising from the center of the building, will contain the ballroom.

Every room in the hotel will have an outside exposure. The structure will look upon a wide alley to the west. A wide, deep court, rising above the second-floor level will front on Pico street. The floor of this court will be turned into an open-air terrace for the use of the guests. This arrangement will constitute one of the many attractive features of the hostelry.

The hotel will be the fifth structure erected by the Central and Pacific Corporation on South Main street. The corporation owns extensive property interests on and adjacent to Main and has for its principal purpose the improvement of that thoroughfare. It has also extensive plans for improvements in the vicinity of Praeger Park, which is one of the organization's most valuable possessions and through which Broadway and probably Olive street will be extended during the next few months.

The hotel at Pico and Main streets has been under consideration for a year or more, but has heretofore been held up, pending a return of better business conditions. The corporation officials believe that the time will be ripe for the improvement early next year and are laying their plans accordingly.

APARTMENTS LEASED.

Third and Bixel Building Rented for Ten-Year Term—Tenant Found for Southwest Improvement.

Whilton, Hahn and Bishop, hotel brokers, report leasing to Joseph B. Alexander, the Bernard apartments, southwest corner Third and Bixel streets, for a term of ten years, at a total rental of approximately $45,000. The Bernard is a three-story building of fifty rooms. Alexander pays the seller a given price of $5000 for the furniture.

To Mrs. Della Reimers of Los Angeles, a ten-year lease has been given on the bungalow apartment just completed at the southeast corner of Thirty-fifth and Figueroa streets. The house contains forty rooms, two, three and four-room apartments. J. P. Partch is the lessor.

WILL MARKET RANCH.

The Patterson Ranch Company of Oxnard, which owns a 5700-acre tract in Ventura county, adjoining the town of Oxnard and fronting for more than three miles on the ocean, has decided to place that property on the market in tracts of from thirty to fifty acres in size. The lands are now under cultivation, being planted to beans, beets, lemons and deciduous fruits. The ranch was formerly owned by J. D. Patterson and adjoins the place of former Senator Thomas R. Bard. The H. W. Wright Land Company will have the Los Angeles selling agency for the ranch.

WEST END TRANSFERS.

The McCarthy Company reports sales in its tracts in the Westlake-Wilshire district as follows: Corner Wilton place and Elmwood avenue to F. L. Young, who will build a $6,000 residence, consideration $3000; lots on Elmwood avenue near Ridgewood to Mrs. Rebbeca T. Archer, $2300; corner Ridgewood avenue and Elmwood avenue to Howard G. O'Hara, $3000; lot on El Molino near West Eighth street to George W. Jepson, $3000; two lots on Mariposa near West Ninth to Norman A. Mackinnan, $8000.

VICTOR VALLEY SALES.

W. A. Hudson, manager of the Victor Valley department of the California Land and Water Company reports the transfer of more than 2000 acres in the Victor Valley as follows: To E. G. B. Garner, 480 acres; to J. F. White, 160 acres; to Dr. R. W. Miller, 480 acres; to John Geeks, 320 acres; to E. L. Reed, 80 acres, and to H. L. Cornish, for the Farm Lands Purchasing Company, 640 acres.

SIXTEENTH AND FLOWER.

W. I. Hollingsworth & Co., report the sale for R. M. Wallace to B. O. Miller and William J. Rice of the northwest corner of Sixteenth and Flower streets. The lot, 50x150 feet in size is improved with a two-story flat building and a two-story dwelling. The property was purchased for an investment at a given price of $40,000.

Bitter-sweets

Do you know the joy of building a home? Do you know even the greater joy of planning it?

Have you had the greatest joy of all—a perfect home, built to your order without extras and without mistakes?

Rule-of-thumb building is about over, even with the most modest homes.

Yet architects plan houses with too little space for beds and tables, doors opening the wrong way, and closets that are a nuisance.

Let us show you how to avoid the bitter-sweets of building a home—the extras and mistakes.

You have several to choose from, and each one a beauty.

Manzanita Heights is not an ordinary home building subdivision, but a beautiful little park on rolling ground out Hollywood way.

Take any car out of Hill-street Station, 12 minutes' ride to De Frees street, toward Hollywood; 5-cent fare; car every three minutes—the big red kind.

Mr. Dudley is custodian—lives there. Mr. Packard, if telephoned at this office, will call for you with automobile at any time.

You are under no obligation. We want you to tell your friends about these bungalows.

Easy terms if you want to buy. Pay like you would rent. You save the landlord's profit.

TWO CLOSE-IN BARGAINS.
EACH
$7500.

FINE COLONIAL HOME
$7900.
THERE ARE TWO REASONS FOR THIS NINE-ROOM HOME BEING A BARGAIN:
FIRST: IT IS OFFERED WAY BELOW DUPLICATION VALUE, BECAUSE THE OWNERS ARE MOST ANXIOUS TO SELL QUICKLY, AND IT IS LOCATED ON A BIG, SIGHTLY LOT, BUT A FEW BLOCKS FROM WESTLAKE PARK.
SECOND: IT IS ONE OF THE HANDSOMEST AND MOST ARTISTIC HOMES WE CAN OFFER YOU. CAREFULLY BUILT, PERFECTLY PLANNED—IT IS IN PURELY COLONIAL DESIGN, AND NO ONE CAN SEE IT WITHOUT BEING CHARMED WITH IT THROUGHOUT. THE APPOINTMENTS LACK NOTHING — FURNACE, MAID'S APARTMENT, AUTOMATIC WATER HEATER, TWO BATHS, ALL HARDWOOD FLOORS, BEAUTIFULLY LARGE AND SUNNY ROOMS EVERYWHERE.
SEE IT: THAT'S ALL!

SOMETHING WORTH WHILE.
$10,500.
ONE BLOCK FROM WILSHIRE BOULEVARD AND WILTON PLACE! A THOROUGHLY DOWN-TO-THE-MINUTE NINE-ROOM HOUSE. LOWER FLOOR, WITH ALL PERUVIAN AND JUANA COSTA MAHOGANY FINISH, CONSISTS OF RECEPTION HALL, LIVING-ROOM, DEN, DINING-ROOM AND DOMESTIC QUARTERS; KITCHEN IN WHITE ENAMEL, WITH TILED SINK BOARD AND SOLID WHITE TILE BACK. UPPER FLOOR CONSISTS OF FIVE BEAUTIFUL BEDROOMS, DRESSING-ROOM, IMMENSE CLOSETS, AND TILED BATH. FINE SCREEN PORCH, LAUNDRY, BASEMENT WITH FURNACE AND AUTOMATIC WATER HEATER. THIS IS A SPLENDID HOUSE, AND THE BEST FOR THE MONEY IN TOWN.

WEST END HOME.
$11,000.
REDUCED FROM $13,000.
THINK OF IT! BRAND-NEW ELEVEN-ROOM HOME, LOCATED ON ONE OF THE HIGHEST LOTS IN A SPLENDID RESTRICTED NEIGHBORHOOD, CAN BE BOUGHT AT THE ABOVE DISCOUNT. WHY? BECAUSE THE OWNER NEEDS THE MONEY. HIS LOSS YOUR GAIN.
THE EXTERIOR PRESENTS A MOST UNIQUE APPEARANCE—HERRING-BONE BRICK FOR THE FIRST STORY, WITH INVERTED TILE AND PLASTER ABOVE. SOMETHING DIFFERENT! INTERIOR FINISH IS IN THE SELECTED HARDWOODS, SUCH AS PERUVIAN MAHOGANY AND OAK. THE DINING-ROOM IS EXQUISITE IN OLD IVORY. FIVE FINE BEDCHAMBERS AND TWO BATHS OCCUPY THE SECOND FLOOR. MAID'S ROOM AND BATH ON THE FIRST. THIS PRICE INCLUDES FURNACE, LAWN, AUTOMATIC HEATER AND FINE GARAGE. LOT 60x150. IF YOU ARE LOOKING FOR A HOME THAT IS BUILT RIGHT AND GUARANTEED, LET US SHOW YOU THIS PLACE. $2000 WILL HANDLE.

BEST BUY WEST OF WESTLAKE PARK.
$12,500.
AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY TO SECURE A REALLY TRULY HOME OF TWELVE ROOMS ON GRAMERCY DRIVE, OVERLOOKING THE ENTIRE WILSHIRE DISTRICT AND WITH A MAGNIFICENT VIEW OF THE MOUNTAINS. THE JUANA COSTA MAHOGANY, OAK AND BIRCH HAVE BEEN ESPECIALLY SELECTED FOR THIS HOUSE; THE FINISH IS SUPERB, AND THE SILK TAPESTRY WALL COVERINGS AND THE HAND DECORATIONS ARE EQUALLY APPEALING. ALL THE SLEEPING-ROOMS ARE PARTICULARLY WELL LIGHTED AND THE THREE BATHS LACK NOTHING IN DETAILS. WITH A SAVINGS-BANK LOAN OF $7000 NOW AGAINST THE PROPERTY, $2500 CASH WILL BE NECESSARY, AND IF YOU WANT TO WALK RIGHT IN, $1000 WILL PURCHASE FURNITURE WORTH DOUBLE. ON A LARGE LOT, WITH DOUBLE GARAGE. THE PLACE IS WELL WORTH $15,000; AND IT HAS BEEN OCCUPIED BUT SIXTY DAYS. AN OPPORTUNITY NOT TO BE OVERLOOKED!

BARGAIN EXTRAORDINARY!
FOR SOME TIME PAST WE HAVE BEEN ADVERTISING ONE OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL HOMES IN THE ENTIRE WILSHIRE SECTION AT $25,000, AND WE CAN NOW DELIVER THIS SAME PROPERTY AT $22,000 IF TAKEN BEFORE TUESDAY NOON. We have been authorized to offer for three days only, one of the most beautiful high-class residences in the Wilshire district. This high-class home has never been offered to you or any one else for less than $35,000 cash, but owing to circumstances the owner is compelled to sacrifice this brand new and up-to-date, magnificent home, which has never been occupied. We can secure a loan of $12,500 for three years at 7 per cent., so this will give you some idea of the value we are offering you, so it only takes $10,000 cash to move into one of the swellest and most exclusive houses in the city. The house contains 12 beautifully decorated rooms, two tiled baths and a servant's bath; private telephone system and vacuum cleaner; living room, reception hall and large den large enough for billiard room, all finished in mahogany. Dining-room finished in oak and silk tapestry; breakfast room, kitchen and butler's pantry in cedar enameled in white.
The upstairs contains five large and beautifully decorated sleeping rooms; also sleeping porch. Rooms en suite and bath between. There is also a fine large cement basement, automatic heater and furnace. The lot is 75x130; elegant double garage and two sleeping rooms above. This property is located on one of the highest lots in the entire Wilshire district, just off of Wilshire boulevard. Now, if you are in the market for such a home as we have described, don't delay in calling us up. We cannot begin to describe the attractive features of this magnificent home, so you will have to see it for yourself, and be convinced that it is one of the greatest bargains ever shown in the Wilshire district.

FOR SALE—
I HAVE SHOWN THE MAN FROM MISSOURI.
I CAN SHOW YOU.
That from an investment standpoint or as a house site location Southwest Tract stands supreme. The location southwest, in the path of the city's greatest growth, both in population and building, assures the early buyer a continued steady rise in value.
In this section, distinguished by such high-class improvements as Manual Arts High School, Santa Barbara avenue fireproof grammar school, Exposition Park, fine boulevards and thoroughfares, I can offer you some very choice and attractive east and west front lots at $800 and up, on terms as low as $25 cash and $10 monthly. These lots are level and above the grade and have gas, electricity, both phones and high-class street improvements.
Excellent car service, 4 lines, 3-minute schedule. The view alone is worth the price of the lots and must be seen to be appreciated.
Auto at your service, or take "Vermont and Georgia" cars on Third or Hill sts., marked Santa Barbara and Arlington, and ride to end of line, or take "Hawthorne" cars south on Spring st., get off at Second ave., and see Mr. Clay at the tract office.

FINE RESIDENCE LOTS IN
ONEONTA PARK DISTRICT, ONLY $800.
You don't need to take my word that these lots are bargains. Investigate yourself. Beautiful location, adjacent to seven car lines, only twenty minutes out (soon will be fourteen,) good class of homes all around. 50x150, street work of best character done, gas, electricity, good water. Less than one block away lots are selling for over $2000. This is certainly an exceptional opportunity for some one to get a home site way below the market. I have only a few of them left, and am offering them at this ridiculous figure simply because I need the money. Easy terms can be arranged if desired. Phone me and I will show them to you. Costs you nothing to look.

THE BANK ACCOUNT OF THE
VAN NUYS-LANKERSHIM RANCHER.

Turn to the financial page and run your finger down the market report column—chickens, 30c a pound; turkeys, 32c a pound; ducks, 30c a pound. That's the reason for the happy smile on the Van Nuys-Lankershim rancher—that's the secret of his bank account.

Nearly a score of poultry ranches have been established upon these close-in lands during the past few months. One man with 2000 White Leghorns upon his 5 acres claims a profit of $3300 since beginning 11 months ago.

Another man is making a small fortune from raising Belgian hares. He is doing a wonderful business, the great hungry market of Los Angeles paying him big returns upon his investment.

FOR SALE—

SEE
VALENCIA HEIGHTS.
Selected from the best land of the E. J. Baldwin Estate.

In the midst of the San Gabriel Valley, which is the richest valley in the State. Don't buy where you will be isolated from the rest of the world. This land is right by Covina with all her splendid schools, churches and boulevards, and only 45 minutes from Los Angeles by electric flyers. It has long been proven to be ideal for growing oranges, lemons and avocados; it is also the last vacant land to be had at Covina. This property is subdivided into tracts of two and one-half acres up to twenty acres.

Our two and one-half acre tracts are bottom land and suitable for truck gardening, walnuts and oranges; WATER IS piped and the streets are graded. We would like to take you out to see it before it is all gone.

A considerable portion has been sold already. We are handling it on a small margin of profit and also on the easiest of terms.

Call for our booklet and arrange to go with us on one of our trips through the beautiful San Gabriel Valley.

Something New,
Something Different,
Something You Ought to Find Out About.
Something You Ought to Investigate for the Folks Back East.

We have started a New Community under conditions that are interesting to any person who wants a home in Southern California.

We have good land—straight east of Los Angeles, 48 miles—level, fertile; easy to till; no alkali. Dependable water rights, and a liberal allowance of water at moderate annual cost.

This is EXTRA GOOD OLIVE LAND; good peach land, too. The soil and irrigation conditions are favorable for producing good crops of tomatoes, melons, berries, peanuts, peas and other profitable crops between the rows of growing trees. Staple markets for these products.

To lay a good foundation for the Exposition Year, we want to get some good families prosperously established on this land before March 1, 1914. We have put the price of land (water rights included) at least $100 lower per acre than any other land of similar advantages we know about—only $250 an acre—$250 an acre—$250 an acre.

The terms, for first buyers, are very easy. We are making some special arrangements besides to make it easier, and pleasanter and more sure for the man of small means to make a good start.

Everything about it is FIRST-CLASS. The way to find out is to come in and ask questions. The way to make sure is to go see for yourselves. It's a short trip.

FOR SALE—
Country property in the vicinity of San Diego can be purchased at very attractive prices, in fact, I believe it is cheaper now than it ever will be again. Prices are perhaps two-thirds less than around Los Angeles, but this condition will not continue much longer. San Diego has a population of 80,000 and in a very few years should have several hundred thousand. I believe a visit here will confirm my judgment and my statements. I have for sale a large number of ranches, large and small, improved and unimproved, and suitable for the raising of everything grown in this wonderful climate. Three ranches are here submitted for your respectful consideration.

$60,000—This 2000-acre ranch is some fifty miles north and east of San Diego and near the main inland boulevard to Los Angeles. Owner claims about 1200 acres suitable for cultivation and for the growing of corn, grain, alfalfa and fruits of all kinds, including olives; in fact, everything. Perhaps some 600 acres now in cultivation. Substantial houses and outbuildings. Seven miles to railroad station, but only 2½ miles to proposed extension of Santa Fe now completed in part. Abundance of water available and the ranch is in fine condition. Groves of majestic live oaks and sycamores. A fine stock ranch and I do not know where you can duplicate the proposition. Favorable terms.

$6720—This mountain ranch is some forty-two miles east of San Diego and near fine county boulevard. Small house, good cement honey house, and large barn. Good well, with water at a depth of 14 feet and several springs. Good land for grain and fruits. Four and one-half miles from Potrero and only seven miles from station on San Diego and Arizona Railroad, now in course of construction and now almost completed to this point. Live oaks scattered over place. Of course the advent of the new railroad will enhance the value of the land. Elevation 2200 feet and situation delightful.

$60,000—About 800 acres, twenty-three miles east of San Diego, with a fine boulevard all the way. Here is one of the most charming locations in all the world. Unsurpassed as a location for a productive ranch, country resort, or sanitarium. Wonderful climate and enchanting view. Consider soil of unsurpassed fertility, with abundance of water available. Ranch partly improved and can be made one of the most attractive estates in this country or any other. Easy terms.

FOR SALE—BUSY PEOPLE, TAKE NOTICE, IN ONE hour's time you can see State land now for sale. State land is now sold very cheap every month regardless of present value. We are helping some of all trades and professions buy big bargains at small prices from $25 to $100. We help you buy direct from officials. Choice locations now close in to good towns. These were taken years ago, when they had much choice. Special bargains now in several counties. Special list of State land in San Luis Obispo county. This contains many pieces, both large and small, 400 acres down to small pieces, with prices on each. San Luis Obispo county has fine "all year around" climate and valuable land. Remember, it pays us to suit you as well as we have others, some of whose references we will send you. We also refer to Dun and Bradstreet, and to banks. We offer to continue to work for you until January, 1916. We help busy people. Order now and in addition to our regular offer, we will send you the following the first part of the year. SPECIAL LIST OF ABOUT 300 PIECES ALL IN LOS ANGELES COUNTY now being prepared giving prices on each piece. Many of these in Los Angeles county are on or near car lines, and not far from center of all good towns in the county. We are searching out many valuable bargains. Only few investigate. This is YOUR opportunity. Make your investigations thorough and remember that two years from now, you will either be glad you got some bargains or sorry you didn't. It all depends on the judgment you show NOW. YOUR LAND IS WAITING FOR YOU. Get yours now. No second crop of land. No more land being made. Prices sure to advance. Write for free circulars or better now send $5 with order for lists in any three counties you mention and other lists later. FOR SALE—
AN ESTATE FIT FOR A PRINCE.
We are authorized to offer for a client who has recently come into a large property in Canada, and must leave to make his home there, one of the finest and most productive places in California.
The properties consist of 165 acres close to Sultana and Dinuba, in the Tulare county citrus and table grape district, one of the wealthiest and most prosperous sections of the entire State.
Every acre of the property is improved to the very highest degree into oranges, table grapes, and alfalfa.
The buildings, tools and equipment is absolutely of the best. There is nothing finer in the country.
The income this year, with a short crop in some of the varieties of grapes, was over $14,000.
Every indication points to bumper crops next year, and this place should produce $25,000.
In order to sell quickly, we offer this place as a whole for $68,250.
We can divide this place and also have a number of fine ten, twenty and forty-acre improved places in Fresno county, at splendid bargain prices.
See us for good Fresno bargains.

FOR SALE—
WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITY.
For Sale, cheap, most remarkable 70-acre income ranch, 20 miles of Los Angeles, foothills, toward San Fernando; frostless citrus land; finest soil; big offers made to lease for vegetables, on new boulevard; beautiful view over entire valley.

Most remarkable feature is water supply; 200 inches; $10,000 pumping plant and 10-inch double thick steel distributing system, just installed; no other water available for surrounding territory. Can sell water and net $12,000 per year; $5000 new implements, etc. Land in finest condition for development for any purpose. Will grow anything. Really the most desirable all-round property in the State.

Sale of water and alfalfa alone will pay 10 per cent. on $200,000, or can organize water company and sell one acre with wells for enough to pay for entire property, leaving land free. All water stock can be subscribed among adjoining land owners.

Will sell cheap or will take partners and develop for income; want offer; terms. Agents call for extra special arrangements. Owner, 235 DOUGLAS BLDG. A3128 or Main 14.

FOR SALE—
CALIFORNIA VALLEY LAND.
$17.50 PER ACRE—10,000 ACRES.
Superabundance Ditch Water, No Waste Land.
Corporation now forming to purchase this land. Heading this company are reliable and successful business men. It is fairly estimated that one good crop of hay or grain will more than pay the purchase price of the land. Believe we can show this to be the "best buy" in California. Near town and railroad. Subdivided, will net this company $25 profit above purchase price. Terms, $6 per acre cash, balance in two, three and four years at 6 per cent. This company will never be called upon to pay another dollar. Would like to meet a few persons who would be interested in taking not less than one-tenth interests. Will surely interest you. Have prospectus, pictures, maps and State reports which cannot be questioned. R. I. PIERCE, 415 S. Hill st.

FOR SALE—
We Need Men.
You Need a Farm.
Why Not Get Together?

We are developing a large tract of land near Earlimart, in Tulare county. The soil and the climate, and conditions are all favorable. Prices are low. The region is well settled up with a good class of people and has all railway and shipping facilities, towns, etc.

The character of the soil and the plentitude of water make it a very good alfalfa country. It is also a fine place for olives and deciduous fruits. General farming land for almost any sort of a crop.

We are prepared to make very easy terms to the right kind of settlers. Will naturally make easier terms to those who come now, when they are needed, than to those who delay. We also have some ways to make extra money open to those who come early.

Not away off somewhere, but right here near to the great growing metropolis of Southern California. We have prime level alfalfa land at $40, $50 and $60 per acre on terms of 10 per cent. cash and ten years to pay the balance. Investigate these 40 and 80-acre tracts where the land is absolutely free of alkali, adobe or hardpan. See the settlers now improving their holdings. Go with us there and back the same day on our daily excursions. Land adjoining ours now growing alfalfa and fruit. Water conditions unexcelled, lift but 15 to 25 feet. Now is the time to buy while prices and terms are low. Look to the future. Make your dollars do double duty. Office open evenings.

"IS THE CREAM OF"
Orange, lemon, avocado and walnut land subdivisions.

It is located in close proximity to the celebrated Whittier district, 16 miles east of Los Angeles, and it is being sold in planted and unplanted tracts of 5 acres and up.

There are approximately 175 acres of this property which was set out to Valencia oranges, Eureka lemons and March seedless grapefruit during the spring of 1913 by the owners of the property. The trees were furnished by Pollard Bros., and are the best that money could buy. They have had the best of care since they were planted by our force of orchard experts.

Now is the time to secure one of these young planted orchards at a cheap price as the prices on these young planted groves will be raised early in the year of 1914.

Buy where experienced orange and lemon orchardists are buying and you can't go wrong. We are confident that if you once see the property you will desire a portion of it for yourself. Trips to the tract daily. Call, phone or write for descriptive folder.

SAN LUIS OBISPO COUNTY—

FOR SALE—

BACK TO NATURE.

Back to the farm and contentment, back to the place where health reigns supreme and back to the place where eggs are not 65c a dozen. Back where we do not have to slave for every pound of butter and every pound of steak we consume. Back to the farm away from the noise and bustle of a large city and away from the care and worry of trying to make both ends meet. We want you to consider some 40 acres that we are offering with a full farming equipment. It is complete in every detail, house, barn and outhouses, and the soil the best nature can produce. Some cattle on the place. A good investment either for a home or future sale. Newspaper space cannot describe this place. We want you to come in and talk it over with us. It is worth much more than we are offering it for. Just stop to consider—$3000 will buy it on a basis of $500 down and the balance easy. Does it not appeal to you? Is it not a snap? Full details will be furnished you either by letter or personal call. Call on

A RARE OPPORTUNITY IN SAN DIEGO. Owner compelled to leave San Diego and has secured trust agreement for $65,000 on beautiful high-class subdivision. Its fame for location and superior advantages already widely advertised, it is in a class by itself, nor can it be surpassed. Many of the lots have been purchased by our leading citizens and they expect to build this winter. I will exchange this for any good property which will not require my personal attention, or will sell at sacrifice price. Terms can be obtained by responsible parties. Address Owner, V, box 128, TIMES OFFICE.

YOU KNOW SOMETHING OF THE TREMENDOUS growth of the concrete industry. The manufacture of cement products is an immensely profitable business. An opportunity never before presented is here offered to the investor desiring to associate with a company that is in the field with a sound, stable business that positively returns big profits on a volume of business only limited by the company's capacity. Can furnish working data and cold facts relative to the business in this territory. A sound proposition that will bear inspection. Do not answer unless you have $5000 cash. Reference required. Address Z, box 112, TIMES OFFICE.

THERE IS STILL AN OPPORTUNITY FOR A GOOD investment in a large local wholesale mercantile company. This company handles a class of merchandise that is considered necessities and does a business that exceeds $100,000 a month and needs more capital to handle the growing business. This company has a good earning record and has paid good dividends ever since it started in business several years ago. Dividends paid regularly each month. They want to increase their capital and if you are interested in making a good safe investment send your name and address to P. O. BOX 1432, Los Angeles, and you will be furnished with full information.

A LOCAL MANUFACTURING FIRM, OLD-ESTABlished and prospering, wants services of eastern man with experience and forcemanship ability along metal-working lines. $5000 cash would be an advantage in applicant's favor, but not an absolute necessity if mechanical experience can be proved. An opportunity is offered to develop a business already large and favorably known into a much more extensive and profitable business. Frankness as to experience and investing ability will bring corresponding frankness from advertiser. Address Z, box 203, TIMES OFFICE.

OUR ALFALFA LAND YIELDS MORE THAN $50 per acre, from seed crop cutting, besides other hay crops. We are preparing to seed 1000 acres more next spring. We have the finest land and water in America for alfalfa culture, and stock-raising. We own the land and water and desire to raise $25,000 for working capital, and are bringing out a land and cattle company to enable us to command working capital to enlarge our earning power. We are prepared to submit an offering that should yield dividends of 25 per cent., or more per year. There is no type of investment opportunity that we know of that offers equal safety and certainty of substantial results. If you have money that you desire to earn a substantial income, investigate this. Address Z, box 11, TIMES OFFICE.

A CONSERVATIVE CORPORATION TRANSACTING a highly profitable business on Broadway and having a good lease. We took over a well established business of years standing six years ago with practically no capital and have made good. The business is growing beyond our capital and as we have the refusal of a large proposition we will require more capital. Can use services of good clerical man or salesman able to invest a few thousand dollars; salaried position commensurate with your ability and qualifications if you can satisfy us or will consider capital without service. Address Z, box 42, TIMES OFFICE.

MONEY WANTED—

I want a loan of $4500, 3 years, at 7 per cent., on one of the finest flat buildings in the city. Building is just being completed, is 2-story 4-flat building. 4 rooms to each flat, with bath, hardwood floors, disappearing beds, the finest fixtures, the best exterior colonial design. Situated in the beautiful West Adams district. Cost of land and building $10,500. Insurance $7000. Income approximately $120 per month. T. M. PERRY, 611 S. Hill st. Home 10345; Broadway 2468.

WANTED—TO SELL $500 FIRST MORTGAGE ON unimproved business lot near bank corner, in Owensmouth. This is a 40 per cent. valuation, but more important is the fact that the mortgagor is worth $75,000 and his note is easily collectable aside from the security offered by the mortgage. I will discount this to make it pay 8 per cent. per annum for the main period of 2½ years. Why let your money lay idle? Let me prove to you that this is what I represent. No agents; no commission. R. W. CODDINGTON, 343 Douglas Bldg.

BOWIE AND HIS KNIFE.

Stirring Tragedies of Frontier Life—Sad Fate of the Brave American at the Alamo at Last.

BY MAJ. BEN C. TRUMAN.

There have been more different stories told of Col. James Bowie and his knife; of his duels so-called and other encounters; of his heroism at the Alamo and of his many other adventures, than of any other single person of our country. His birth, even, has been claimed by Maryland, Tennessee, Kentucky and Louisiana, and he has been severally registered as a duelist, a gamester, a renegrade and a scamp; as a soldier, a patriot and high-minded fellow. Intermittently for nearly 100 years the newspapers of the United States have entertained their readers with sketches of and incidents in the life of this famous character; and, while many of these have been more or less contradictory, as a mass there has been so much to agree upon that has come down from eyewitnesses and from other reliable sources, that the writer has experienced no trouble at last, after pursuing the subject for more than fifty years and often meeting scores of persons who (as men or boys) have remembered or claimed to have remembered the bloody drama which took place near Natchez, Miss., in August, 1827, in perfecting a narrative that may be rated as veritable and as authentic as it is possible to present.

A number of important facts may be briefly rendered, at the start, thus: That James Bowie was the youngest of three brothers, and was born in Maryland some time in 1790; that two of the boys and their father emigrated to Tennessee and Kentucky in 1798-9, and to Louisiana in 1802; that James had been fairly educated, and that he was not a renegade, nor a gamester, nor a duelist—never having fought a duel, according to the code—but that he was a brave soldier, a glorious patriot, and as high-minded as it was possible for a stirring frontiersman to have been amidst so many vicious and otherwise unenviable environments. It has been agreed that James Bowie never drank anything intoxicating, nor dissipated in any way; and that he had a soft, quiet voice, but that he was possessed of enormous physical strength, although never weighing rising 140 pounds; and all writers so far back as 1830-35 have also admitted that he was as lithe and quick as a wild cat and quite as game, and that he was held in dread by all the "hard cases" that traveled on the Mississippi River between St. Louis and New Orleans. His elder brother, Stephen, was also a fighter, but more conservative and less feared than James. Rezin P. Bowie, the actual inventor of the terrible weapon, also carried a chip on his shoulder as a badge of his readiness to fight.

When Louisiana became a State of the Union it was admitted under many peculiar conditions—one being that all French and Spanish land grants should be recognized by the United States as valid, wherever they could be established by the old colonial records, and it was this peculiar feature that created the Bowie knife and gave it a national notoriety, or renown. This same feature made conditional on other State admissions engendered thousands of acts of murder and perjury in other States than Louisiana during the last seventy-five years. But it frequently happened in the latter State that a planter who had taken up a large tract of land and fairly opened it out as a plantation would learn that it was claimed by some one under an old colonial grant.

James Bowie, who had been sent several times to Havana (where the old papers of the Spanish colony of Louisiana were kept) by Maryland and Pennsylvania capitalists and had caused careful transcripts of them to be made, was a very frequent claimant under these old laws, and in a majority of cases he or some member of his family was agent of th properties. It was these responsibilities that made the Bowies a family of fighters, as it did not require much further provocation at any time to precipitate a "personal encounter" as a "fight to the death," was euphoniously called. It is a noteworthy fact, from the time of the Louisiana purchase down to the present day, that a man will fight more desperately over a land trouble than from any other cause, and that more men have been killed in this way outside of the large cities than from all other provocations combined. All over the United States and particularly in California and Arizona, ever since their acquisition, wherever a man has been to the trouble of opening up an estate and expending more or less time and money and then found it claimed by someone else whom he had never seen or heard of, he has been generally pretty ready to fight without even considering whether hostile encounter would settle the question or not.

In consequence, therefore, James and his brothers had fought fourteen pitched battles in half a dozen years, in the last of which Rezin had seen James nearly cut off a man's head with a piece of broad sword. This was at a time when swords and knives and flintlock single barreled pistols were the only weapons used in settling disputes. And so this broken saber gave Rezin an idea; and he whittled from a shingle a model of a huge knife that he thought would be the proper weapon for the business so often in hand; and a Massachusetts blacksmith, named Blackman, at Shreveport, manufactured from a big file or rasp the first Bowie knife, which was afterwards improved upon and more highly polished and tempered by a Spanish cutler in New Orleans named Pedro Sanchez, who turned out a marvel of blade nine inches in length, with a handle of six inches—the entire implement measuring fifteen inches.

Rezin was greatly pleased with the perfected weapon, and at once resolved to present it to his brother, James, which he did in a few days afterward, saying:

"Here is a knife, James, that is strong and of admirable temper. It is more trustworthy in your hands than in mine. It is more trustworthy in the hands of a strong man like you than a pistol, for it will not snap. Crane and Wright are both your enemies; they are from Maryland, where our ancestors are buried; they are as brave as you are, but not so cool. They are both inferior in strength to yourself, and therefore, not your equal in a close fight. They are both dangerous, Wright the more so. Now, James, keep this knife always with you. It will be your best friend in a last resort, and many save your life. In fact, I am sure it will never fail you."

James accepted the beautiful savage blade, kissed it, and said to it: "We will be true to each other until death." He fought four fights with it before his first great battle on the Mississippi; he took it with him to Texas, and it was the one that was in his stiffening hand when, with six dead Mexicans about him, showing the evidence of his fatal skill, he was found dead at the Alamo. Bowie's method of using his knife was peculiar to himself, which showed his tremendous strength of wrist and arm and hand, even; for he did not hold it in his hand with the long point downward, but grasped the handle as a swordsman does the hilt of his sword. He never made any wild slashes or feints, but always struck at the neck of his man and aimed artistically for the jugular and seldom missed his coup.

I now come to James Bowie's first great fight with his new weapon, which was one of the most sanguinary affairs in the records of frontier strife, and spread fearful fame of the terrible knife and its redoubtable user. It was the outcome of a feud that had existed for two or three years between the Wrights, the Cranes and the Blanchards, and others, on the one side, and the Curreys, the Wells and the Bowies and adherents on the other side. It had been arranged that on August 17, 1824, Dr. Maddox of the Wright-Crane-Blanchard faction, was to meet Samuel Wells of the Currey-Wells-Bowie faction, in a duel, according to the code, on a sandbar immediately opposite Natchez; and it was agreed that no persons other than the principals and their seconds and surgeons were to be present; that Wright and Bowie, especially, were to keep away.

But Maj. Wright declared that, while he would not be present, he would not be far away; "for I have been informed," he added, "that Currey and Bowie and James Wells, will be present, armed to the teeth. Between Col. Crane and Gen. Currey there has long existed a feud that was intensified by the general shooting the colonel in the arm some few months ago. Col. Crane is to second my friend Maddox, and the general has threatened to again shoot the colonel on sight. So, you see, I feel it my duty as a friend and a pacificator to be not far away."

And Bowie said something of the same import to Gen. James Wells and Currey, adding: "I wouldn't believe Maj. Wright on his oath. He will be there as surely as the sun rises tomorrow; and I propose to be not far away in case emergent friendly service is required."

It was one of those genial, breezy August forenoons that may be often enjoyed among the cotton trees, which embroider the waters of the lower Mississippi; and, so, after the preliminaries had been arranged, and the combatants had fired twice at each other without effect, and the difficulty had been amicably adjusted, the entire dueling party retired a short distance from the meeting ground, and near a gurgling spring over shadowed by willows and cotton trees, sat down on some benches arranged for the accommodation of visitors. Brandy, champagne, and cigars had been brought from Natchez, and these were about to be indulged in amidst exuberant felicitation when Maj. Wright and others put in an appearance from one side of the island, and Bowie and his friends as quickly came toward the paternizing party from the other side.

Just as suddenly as a certain great Babylonian feast was once interrupted, the fraternizing picnic came to an end; and in less than twelve minutes, six ferocious gentlemen had been stretched out dead and fifteen others had been shockingly wounded. Currey opened the fight by advancing on Crance, his most deadly antagonist, exclaiming:

"Col. Crane, this is a good time to settle our difficulty!"

The two were armed with a brace of pistols, each, and were about to level them at each other, when a brother of Currey pulled the latter away and took a shot at Crane, which missed. In the meantime, Maj. Wright advanced on Bowie and put a bullet through his body and Crane fired at him and missed; and as Bowie staggered and partly fell, Wright and Crane closed in on the wounded one to finish him, when Crane was put out of the fight by a fatal bullet each from the pistol of Currey and James Wells. Just as Crane received these death-dealing bullets, he was in the act of drawing a small dagger-like sword from his cane, which Wright seized, and advanced on Bowie, who had recovered his feet and drawn his knife, and the two closed in on each other, when Wright plunged the cane clear to the handle into Bowie's body, but being of iron, it struck the breast bone and went round upon a rib. Then Bowie clenched Wright, and, falling, pulled his enemy down upon him; and, at last, being more powerful than Wright, had him at his mercy. In a moment the point of Bowie's savage implement had touched the heart of his antagonist. Bowie exclaiming:

"Your time has come, major, you must die!"

And thus ended the most famous encounter between men of rank and position in the annals of our country; for all of the killed and wounded belonged to good families and a number of them had served in high military and judicial positions.

Bowie's second and last great battle before his departure for Texas was at Natchez, in September, 1828. This was more ferocious than the other, if possible, and a majority of the combatants were of a more ordinary kind of men. Resin, it seems, had accepted a challenge from an aggrieved party of Alexandria, La., and the latter came to Natchez, accompanied by a score of Louisiana friends, "to see fair play," they said; and in an hour or so, James Bowie had rallied the same number of armed Mississippians "for the same purpose," Bowie said.

The news of the forthcoming meeting had spread so rapidly that thousands had gathered upon the heights of Natchez to witness the combat. The arrangements were that the principals should fire twice, if neither was hurt at the first shot, and then close in with knives. Each was armed with a brace of pistols, and a Bowie knife—for the knives were then for sale, made in Philadelphia, from a model taken to a cutler in that city by Resin. At the first fire, both parties escaped injury. But while Resin was waiting for the word for another fire, the Louisianian began to take aim and was shot dead by Bowie's second, who in turn was killed by the second of the dead Louisianian. Then James Bowie drove his knife into the surviving second, which dispatched him in an instant. Then the surgeons crossed blades, and the two crowds rushed at each other with pistols, dirks, knives and canes. James Bowie had a number of close combats, killing three men and receiving twenty odd wounds, which kept him at his hotel, between life and death, for nearly three months. At the end it was found that seven men had been killed outright, three mortally wounded, and eighteen otherwise injured.

James Bowie, accompanied by his brother, Rezin, emigrated to Texas a short time after this fight, and took part in the struggle against Mexico. He led a forlorn hope in the engagement near San Saba, in November, 1831, and was wounded near Nacogdoches and again at Concepcion during 1835. He attained the grade of colonel and commanded at Grass Fight on October 25, of the same year. In 1836 he was ordered to Bexar, and, later, joined Col. Travis and Davy Crockett at the Alamo, where he was slain.

Greece had her Thermopylae, from which only three persons escaped. The Alamo was the American Thermopylae, from whence only one woman and a negro boy came away alive. But no other ancient nor other modern Thermopylae had another trio of heroes like Bowie, Travis and Crockett. Patriotism has long profoundly mourned their fate, and their memory will bedew their graves with tears so long as human hearts are moved with emotions over noble and heroic deeds. James Bowie was not always so good an example for society as could have been wished, but he was one of the bravest of the brave, and he poured out the last drop of his true American blood while defending the infant settlements of Texas from savage destruction. And, therefore, he did not live in vain.

SCANDINAVIANS STUDY EUGENICS.

DENMARK, NORWAY AND SWEDEN PLAN MUTUAL LAWS.

Commission of Prominent Jurists Agrees that a Mentally Defective or Diseased Person May Not Marry Without Notifying the Other Party of the Disability.

[A. P. Correspondence to The Times.]

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 8.—Eugenics has been taken up as a study by a government commission composed of prominent jurists representing Denmark, Norway and Sweden with the object of introducing a mutual law regulating marriages and family rights. The Scandinavian countries are thus following the example of several American States in taking up the question of restricting the marriages of those who are physically or morally defective.

The commission, however, has not gone so far as was desired by the Danish, namely, demanding that people intending to marry in all cases should give certificates to the effect that they were not suffering from any disease of such a kind that marriage ought not to be entered into.

Sweden would not go so far, its representatives claiming that this would be too great a personal and economical demand to make; and it was argued that it would tend to increase the already existing reluctance to enter into matrimony.

The commission thereupon agreed to demand that all insane and mentally defective persons, as well as those suffering from certain sexual diseases and epilepsy may not marry unless the other party has been notified of the condition existing.

PROHIBITION LAW.

The law prohibiting the importation of intoxicating liquors into Iceland which has been in effect since January 1, 1912, has been so strictly applied that not a drop of alcohol has been brought into the country since then unless by smugglers and none has been produced there.

The law permits the selling of liquors already in stock until January 1, 1915, but on that date no more sales of strong drink will be allowed.

The price of the spirits still on sale has increased enormously and it is not now possible to obtain drinkable beer.

The total abstinence movement has made great strides in the island, in every district of which are lodges consisting of hundreds of members. In most cases hotels do not possess licenses for the sale of alcohol and in Reykjavik, the capital, strong drink can be bought only in one hotel.

There are still many opponents of prohibition and these work energetically against the application of the law, arguing that it means the restriction of personal liberty and that the treasury cannot dispense with the revenue on spirits. The prohibitionists hope to be able to bring about some modifications of the law.

POISON CAKES IN ELECTION.

Extraordinary Trick Has Just Been Unearthed in Caceres Province in Spain.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

MADRID, Nov. 8.—An extraordinary trick to win an election has just come to light at Caria, in the province of Caceres, Spain. Fourteen arrests have already been made in connection with the affair, which is said by the police to be based on a wide political plot.

Just before the polls closed the four notaries and eight returning officers were invited to partake of some cakes. After eating them they became violently ill, and had to leave the scrutiny room. During their absence, it is said, the ballot boxes were "stuffed."

The cakes were analyzed and found to be poisoned.

THE TIMES
QUALITY PREMIUM

Consists of 4 durable, high-grade and everlasting aluminum pieces, which can be converted into 12 separate and practical cooking utensils, as shown below. These aluminum pieces are absolutely sanitary! They contain no traces of iron or other base metals. They will not corrode or rust. This set will be placed with Times subscribers on a very liberal basis. For further particulars inquire of any Times Agent or communicate directly with The Times.

Local Stock Market Activities

By Jno. O. Knight.

Keen interest centers about the forthcoming annual statement of the Union Oil Company that will be out shortly after the first of the new year. Just what action will be taken in the matter of dividends has not yet been definitely decided. The practicability of making a disbursement of $2 a share has been discussed, also the issuance of some kind of scrip dividend, but it is generally considered unlikely at this time that any payment will be made.

The company has had the most prosperous year in its history and predictions are made that gross business will amount to over $20,000,000, and net earnings are expected to be in the neighborhood of $4,000,000, or at the rate of over 12 per cent. on the issued capital. Floating indebtedness of the company has been greatly reduced during the last six months and its financial condition much improved.

Sight should not be lost, however, of the fact that a large amount of money will be required under the provisions of the sinking fund for a retirement of bonds of the company May 1. This requirement probably will approximate $500,000 to be paid over to the trustee on the date mentioned for retirement of bonds by tender. The purchase of this large block of bonds in the manner prescribed is already having a strengthening effect upon the bonds of the company, and it would not be surprising if these sell much higher within the next few months.

Greater activity is noted in the municipal bond market at practically unchanged figures. Estates and trust companies are large buyers at present prices.

Huntington Land and Improvement Company notes issued in September on a 7% basis are now selling close to 6% basis. Part of the issue was in $100 denominations.

The recent issue of $2,000,000 common stock of the Southern California Edison Company was offered to stockholders at $85. A syndicate of eastern bankers underwrote the entire issue at a price only slightly lower than the figure mentioned.

Subject to confirmation and acceptance, we offer the following:

COMMERCIAL.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Weakness of the San Francisco butter market was reflected here yesterday in a decline of two cents in the quoted price of creamery extras. The local selling rate is still about one and one-half cents above the northern price, and it is possible that there will be a further falling off here, especially if more heavy shipments of foreign butter arrive. A large consignment reached San Francisco a few days ago, and this is the principal cause of the present weakness.

A large quantity of apples were received from Oregon. The principal varieties in the consignment were Winesaps, Baldwins and red-cheeked pippins. Winesaps were offered at $1.65 to $2.10, while the other two varieties were quoted at about $1.75. The fruit is moving very well, considering the high prices, and the market gives indications of strengthening when the holiday demand makes itself felt. Emperors and Malagas are the principal varieties of grapes. The former are very attractive and sell around $1.25 a box. Dried dates are easier, owing to the receipt of several considerable shipments.

Potato receipts were heavy, and the market maintains a rather easy tone. Quite a large shipment of sweet potatoes was reported in.

Eggs and cheese were unchanged.

Reported receipts were: Eggs, 136 cases; butter, 15,970 pounds; cheese, 365 pounds; potatoes, 4495 sacks; onions, 1898 sacks; sweet potatoes, 457 sacks; apples, 1932 boxes.

HARRY CHANDLER,
Assistant General Manager, The Times.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3d day of December, 1913.

[Seal] T. L. CHAPIN,

A. L. Dennis, being duly sworn, declares that he is and has been for twelve years Superintendent of Circulation of the Los Angeles Times; that the above detailed statement of circulation for the month of November, 1913, is correct, and shows the circulation of The Times for each day of the month named.

A. L. DENNIS,
Superintendent of Circulation, The Times.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3d day of December, 1913.

[Seal] T. L. CHAPIN,

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issue. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other newspaper.

GOOD WEATHER IN ARGENTINA.

IMPROVED CONDITIONS SWING MARKET TOWARD BEARS.

Prices Close Firm With Slight Amount of Liquidating Despite the Reaction in Wheat—Heaviness Develops in Provisions After Sharp Advance at the Start.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Harvest weather improving today in Argentina allowed the wheat market to swing a little toward the bear side. Prices closed firm, however, at the same as last night to ⅛ decline. Corn finished ⅛@¼ to ½@⅝ down, oats varying ¼ off to a like amount up, and provisions lower by 2½ to 7½. No great amount of realizing or liquidating attended the bearish reaction in wheat. Although corn was firm in the December option, while large shorts were covering at the beginning of the day, prices later declined all around. Sentiment regarding oats was decidedly unsettled. Heaviness developed in provisions after a sharp advance at the start.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

"Investment" Closes With Slight Loss—Union Oil Easier—Maricopa Northern Firmer.

Although it did not touch the "low" of the previous day, Los Angeles Investment stock revealed some weakness yesterday on the local exchange. The close was firm, however, at a net loss of 1½ points from Friday's final quotation. The market opened at $1.04½, and then the stock sold off to $1.01, after which it recovered. Twenty-three hundred shares changed hands. Amalgamated was again rather easy. Union [illegible] National Pacific sold at 5 cents. Maricopa Northern was stronger. California Hills showed slight improvement.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. — Following is range of quotations:

REHABILITATION OF THE RAILROADS.

[Atlanta Constitution:] In the fullness of time it begins to appear as though the railroads, heretofore given to carving "melons" for the benefit of speculators and financial "operators," may be about to cut a billion-dollar melon for the benefit of the whole people. Admittedly, the rehabilitation so drastically needed by the transportation system of America will cost a cool billion. Portions of that sum would percolate into every conceivable trade artery. Public sentiment and even the Interstate Commerce Commission seem shaping to make that rehabilitation possible.

A recent address made by Chairman E. E. Clark, of the commission, to the National Association of Railway Commissioners, is significant. He told his hearers that the railroads could not provide the transportation facilities asked of them, as to freight and passengers, unless their income was increased and their credit strengthened. This meant, he intimated, a general if small elevation of rates. He admitted prejudice against such policy, growing out of the past high financiering and abuses of the carriers. But he said that if the carriers are to be penalized for their past sins, the commerce of the whole nation would be made the victim.

No one doubts that the railroads of the whole country are in need of extensive standardization. Their equipment and facilities are entirely insufficient to meet the daily demands upon them, not to anticipate the future. It is conservatively estimated that at least $1,000,000,000 is required for this task, which cannot much longer with safety be delayed.

No one recognizes the situation more keenly than the average railroad head. But he knows also that it is impossible for the railroad to market bonds and securities so long as its income is, as at present, upon a problematic and fluctuating basis.

If the railroads could borrow the money they need, hypothecating their securities in return, the resulting enormous expenditures would flow into every commercial and industrial channel in America. The prosperity that now lacks a finishing touch because the railroads have, perforce, stayed out of the purchasing market would mount into unprecedented proportions. The country in general would begin to enjoy one of the most opulent eras in its history.

The public would not object to a modest increase in rates, if the increase were made uniform and if there were no indications of discrimination. The American people are slow to recognize a crisis when they meet one, and they are beginning to understand the folly of attempting to wreak punishment upon the railroad of today for the offenses of the railroad of yesterday.

Any hesitancy on the part of public sentiment is to be found in fear that these ancient sins may be repeated. The public wants to know that the huge treasure imperatively needed by the railroads will go to the laying of tracks, the purchasing of supplies and the replacement of equipment, not to thimble-rigging purposes, crushing competitors and huge "cut-on" dishouts. The people do not begrudge the railroads honest dividends. But they do not expect again to tolerate the distribution of what used to be the equivalent of piratical prize money.

Reliable evidence is at hand that an era of better understanding has been reached as between the railroads and the people. The former seem resolved on a more straightforward course. The latter have [illegible] the pretense of the political ghost dancers and the muck rakers. The Interstate Commerce Commission itself appears minded to ward off vicious practices, and to ask for a square deal for the railroads as well as the people. In view of this tantalizing situation, the railroads have an increasingly excellent chance to dispose of their securities upon fair terms, and to administer the proceeds strictly for the rehabilitation of which they stand so drastically in need.

In the process of rehabilitation will come huge sums to be expended will come an prosperity in every channel [illegible] the ensuing good times [illegible] all the splendid phenomena that characterized the flush seasons of [illegible] without the costly reaction [illegible] The country is too well [illegible] justify the fear of a repetition of disaster.

And a Dandy!

EASY FOR ANY BOY TO GET A COASTER.

It's swifter than a skyrocket.

"Babe" Gilford making a dash on a "Times Special" safety speed coaster.

THE BOYS of Los Angeles, in fact of all Southern California, are the livest, most up-to-date bunch of youngsters in the country. How do they prove it? Read on and find out.

Every boy with a drop of red blood in his body has a bug for automobiles, especially for speed cars. However, as it is beyond any small boy to own and run an automobile, he takes to the next best thing—a speed coaster. The competition among them for the fastest coaster, rages all the time and is as hot as any Phoenix race ever pulled off. Then again at this time of year every boy is looking forward to Christmas and wondering what his presents will be this year.

So, when The Times offered a special safety speed coaster to any boy for only a few hours' work among his friends every boy saw his chance to become one of the leaders in the coaster world and, at the same time, win himself a handsome Christmas present that probably his folks would not get him this year. Now, what do you think of any bunch of boys who will work to win their own Christmas present?

"THE TIMES" COASTER PLAN.

Every boy in Southern California who secures from his friends only six mail orders for The Midwinter Times will be given one of these speed coasters. The coaster is made of angle steel, has steel wheels roller bearings, right-hand brake, and a spring safety steering device. The weight is only thirteen pounds, but the carrying capacity is 300 pounds. This is a coaster that any boy can ride, one that will outwear any two other coasters, and has a speed limited only to the boy power. It is swifter than a skyrocket.

The Times Midwinter number is a special edition that will be published January 1, 1914. The price mailed to any point in the United States is only 15 cents a copy.

HUNDREDS WANT 'EM.

Hundreds of boys are now working for one of these handsome speed wagons and are turning in orders every day. Are you going to be in the live bunch? Are you going to win a Christmas present for yourself and then rank among the coaster leaders of your neighborhood? If you haven't already started to work, come in or write to The Times Coaster Department for illustrated circular and order blanks.

The writer was interrupted just then by some youngster phoning in to find out if a lady could give him more than ten orders at one time. You bet they can, boys, any one can give you as many orders as they want! Take all you can get!

Harry Webster broke the record Wednesday when he secured nineteen orders in an hour and a half.

WHEN BIG MEN TALK OF PANIC.

[Copyright, 1913, by C. M. Keys, New York.]

A great Jewish banker in New York, talking at a luncheon a little while ago, ventured the opinion that unless currency legislation, in proper form, goes on the statute books very soon, we "shall get into very difficult conditions in this country." It happened that this same banker in 1906 had made a speech in which he deplored the inflation of that year, and affirmed that unless conditions changed quickly we should have in this country "such a panic as will make all previous panics look like child's play."

The memory of the Wall street crowd, for anything evil or of dangerous import, is a very retentive memory. People who deal in large speculative undertakings in securities usually have long memories for matters like this. Therefore, the words of this banker ran quickly through the street. In their flight, of course, they gathered new meanings and by the time they had spread throughout the speculative market they had assumed the form of a direct statement that a financial panic would occur unless the administration of the currency bill is put into effect immediately.

The banker in this case made haste to correct the wrong impression that had been taken from his words and to state that in his judgment no immediate financial panic was in sight. The incident serves to illustrate the reason why men in high positions are slow to speak of panics. Sometimes, after one of our periodical disturbances, it transpires that in some quiet speech or letter or writing which circulated months before among the professional dealers of Wall street, the head of this bank, or of that trust company, or of that great private banking firm, had gone on record plainly to the effect that disaster was imminent. The public always wonders why it is that these men who saw so clearly what was going to happen did not spread their knowledge broadcast, so that the general public could shape its course accordingly and so that perhaps the catastrophe could have been avoided.

The fact in the matter is that when they feel the approach of financial danger in the market places, they are likely either to keep silent altogether or simply shape their own affairs to meet what they expect to come, or to confine their comment on the situation to people with whom they are immediately in touch. Almost a year before the panic of 1893 broke upon the world, an incident occurred that will illustrate fairly well the method of this inside exchange of opinion.

E. H. Harriman had become, at that time, a director of the Illinois Central, and was one of its influential directors. He was sick in bed when there came to him a record of a meeting of the board of that road in which a proposal had come up to appropriate a large sum of money for improvements and additions. Mr. Harriman wrote by hand, a little letter of two pages in which he expressed, in the strongest terms, his most determined conviction that it was no time to spend any money that did not have to be spent and that in his judgment the Illinois Central would have need for all the resources which it could command in the near future. That letter was not intended for public circulation and never did circulate publicly. It was, however, a clear enough expression of an established conviction in the mind of a financial expert with regard to conditions that were to follow.

Similarly, in the early spring of 1907 the chairman of one of the biggest banks in this country wrote a letter from Europe in which he warned both Mr. Harriman and his associates against carrying on the campaign of expansion and inflation which seemed to this banker to be under way. He expressed the conviction that the growing antagonism to capital and the growing difficulty of getting money would lead to a catastrophe. This was all in a private letter which has never been published.

If, by chance, either of these letters had become public property at the time they were written, they might well have served as warnings to the public of something evil to come, but it is very much more likely that they would have been seized upon by the speculative leaders and been made the occasion of a little speculative campaign for profits on the short side of the market, while the general public would have laughed at the sentiments expressed in them, would have pointed to the large amount of tonnage moving on the railroads, to the large bank clearings of the whole country, to the perfectly apparent agricultural prosperity at the time, and to many other matters, which are much easier to see than the signs that seemed so ominous to these two leaders of finance.

That is almost invariably the way of the public when it becomes interested in financial matters. The blueness and dejection of Wall street are always a puzzle to the general public, and the fulfillment of Wall street's expectations usually comes as a complete surprise to the outside public.

When big men talk in public about panic, the public generally believes that they want to precipitate a panic, or depression, or some other catastrophe. That is a curious belief that has some proper ground; but on the whole it is pretty safe to say that when the big financial men of today appear to take the public into their confidence to a certain extent with regard to future conditions, they are trying to tell the truth as they see it. In nine cases out of ten the opinions expressed are opinions that one may find quite prevalent in the downtown clubs, on the floor of the Stock Exchange, and in substantial banking circles in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia or Boston. It is not always safe to follow either the optimistic or pessimistic views expressed by leaders of finance, but it is safe at least to say that when strong men talk of evil to come, it is at least well to preserve an open mind on the subject and to look closely at conditions, as you see them, to see what you can discover for yourself that may have a bearing on your own business or on your financial situation.

CALLED A STUPID JOKE.

Dr. Felix Adler Says the Eugenic Faddists Lose Sight of the Element of Love in the Proposed Marriages.

[Chicago Record Herald:] The eugenic marriage, says a physician of note, is a joke. But, as Dr. Felix Adler has just shown in a vigorous lecture, the joke is a stupid and offensive one. The quacks who, in the name of science, social reform or what not, are proposing the application of stock farm methods to human beings need some instruction in the very elements of biological and social science.

The talk about eugenic marriages in half-baked or yellow "reform" circles tacitly proceeds on the theory that the human animal is nothing but an animal. It dwells on physical vigor and beauty, forgetting the mind, the heart, the spirit. To quote Dr. Adler again, the offspring of a strictly eugenic marriage may be mentally and morally defective. Nothing is more precious, more truly and profoundly eugenic than "the tender feeling which a young man and a young woman entertain toward each other." In the so-called eugenic marriage the tender feeling is treated as of no value whatever.

The scientific eugenists are extremely conservative. They advocate a few legal or extra-legal restrictions on marriage. They would prevent the multiplication of the criminal and diseased; they would protect the home by requiring certificates of freedom from certain taints; but they would not attempt to "improve the race" by stock farm mating. They know that love and sentiment are nature's finest eugenic safeguards. For the stupidities and degrading "jokes" of their uninvited followers they are not to be held responsible.

is in new hands and the wall is coming down. There is now no longer any doubt that the country's most wonderful scenic highway will soon skirt the bluffs above Malague Cove and Portuguese Bend and that the entire coast line from the mountains above Santa Monica to the international boundary line below San Diego will soon be linked into one great chain of substantial development. This great highway will be joined with others, radiating from travel arteries affording outlets into Los Angeles and other cities farther inland, until the one-time Bixby ranch will be as accessible as the San Fernando Valley or any other district that has been reclaimed from old-time conditions and put on the development map.

The Bryson Deal.

Several other important ranch deals made during the past five weeks have added to the sum of the acreage activities of this "quiet" period. The Val Verde ranch, a 545-acre property at Val Verde station, has passed into the possession of two Los Angeles men who expect to have it speedily settled with prosperous farmers on ten to forty-acre tracts. In both the Pomona and Riverside districts ranches of considerable size have been sold to developers in the past week. The Weston ranch of 550 acres, adjoining the Palos Verdes ranch on one hand and the thriving new industrial city of Torrance on the other, was sold last week to a syndicate that will at once proceed to develop the property for the market.

The Weston ranch itself figured in the recent transfer of the magnificent Bryson apartments at a given consideration of close to $1,000,000. The sale of the Bryson was in its way as significant in the field of city real estate as was the sale of the Palos Verdes ranch, or of the great Imperial tract, in the realm of acreage activity. Hugh W. Bryson, inspired, as he himself says, by frequently repeated comments in this column as to the great actual and potential value of frontage on and accessible to parks in a city growing as rapidly as is Los Angeles, began a year and a half ago the construction of the splendid improvement at Wilshire and Rampart, which bears his name. Bryson had already built one splendid apartment-house, the Rampart, at Sixth and Rampart, and he had demonstrated in the case of this, the first fireproof apartment building in the city, that Los Angeles was big enough and metropolitan enough to support the best and highest class improvements of this character that could be erected.

The Bryson apartment-house is the largest and finest structure of its kind west of New York. It has been a paying institution and the sale price just received for it is said to have been based strictly on its income possibilities. When he built the apartments Bryson operated on the theory that the one way for him to increase the value of his property and to make his investment bring him in the highest returns was to build the best that could be built, whereas so many who make improvements adhere to the idea that if they build the "taxpayers," others will come along and put up the substantial buildings, raising the value of all property alike. Some of the builders of "taxpayers" get sadly left, finding to their sorrow that they have contributed to the deterioration of their own property. Bryson's success with his own theory may briefly be described. Buying the site of the Bryson apartments at $200 a front foot, he saw its frontage value soar to $500 and over. It would be quite proper, in fact, to say that he made it climb to such a figure. Unimproved frontage in the same district has sold for over $500 a foot during the present year.

Add to the list of sales given, the transfer of the Woodward Hotel on West Eighth street for approximately $250,000 and the record of big deals is complete. As the man on the street might say, "Where did we get all that hard times stuff, anyway?" Are these days so very tame and dull, after all? And if the "big men" are so sure of real estate as an investment, why should the small investor hesitate? Los Angeles and Southern California are on the threshold of their greatest development. That which is to come will make the world-beating progress of the past dwindle by comparison. The men of means, the men who have developed and are developing the section, are getting ready for what they confidently believe will be the greatest and most prosperous era ever experienced by any city and section in the United States. Even before confidence has been entirely restored and many pessimists have wakened up this era is going to be at hand. Many observers whose opinion is to be relied upon declare that things are going to take an immediate and pronounced upward turn the moment the new year begins. It would be a mighty good thing if everybody would cheer up for a change.

Midwinter Number OF THE TIMES

OUT JANUARY 1, 1914

The Greatest Special Edition of a Newspaper Ever Published

Intensely interesting and beautifully illustrated, the forthcoming edition of the Midwinter Number of The Times will graphically describe and realistically picture the climatic charms and scenic grandeur of happy, sun-kissed Southern California, and will be redolent of the fragrance and beauty which here abound throughout the year.

Its five magazine parts, comprising 160 pages, will contain more authentic and trustworthy information about California; exploit its marvelous resources to a greater extent and describe more golden opportunities in every line of human endeavor than any other magazine ever offered to the public.

The achievements of the splendid men and women, who are building an empire in the Southwest, will be detailed and the unprecedented development and progress made by Southern California in commerce, manufacturing, science, art and civic growth will be enlarged upon.

This elaborate, comprehensive special edition will be invaluable to every resident of this commonwealth, and it will point the way to happiness and fortune to people in other sections of the country whose eyes are turned westward.

California cannot be advertised in a better or more effective way than by sending to out-of-town friends a copy of the forthcoming Midwinter Number of The Times, which in every respect will be the master product of American journalism.

REGULATIONS OF THE INCOME TAX

Printed Forms for Use of Revenue Collector.

Time Extended Whereby Use May Be Made of It.

Details to Be Followed by Those Involved.

Collector of Internal Revenue Carter yesterday received additional regulations governing some of the features of the income tax law that will be of immediate interest to those persons coming under the operation of the sections covered by the act.

The Collector has wired the Treasury Department for a supply of the forms necessary to carry into effect these regulations. Until the receipt of such forms, if the necessity for their immediate use occurs, copies of the forms required, with one exception, are on file at the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue, from which copies can be made if the parties cannot wait until the receipt of the forms from the Treasury Department.

One regulation just received extends until March 31, 1914, the requirement for the filling in on certificates of the numbers of the bonds of the corporations, the interest on which is covered by coupons presented for collection.

Another extends the time during which temporary form of certificate No. 1005 can be used from November 16, 1913, to January 15, 1914, so far as foreign holders of coupons and interest orders may be concerned.

OWNERSHIP CERTIFICATES.

Another regulation provides that certificates of ownership which are required to accompany coupons or orders for registered interest may be signed in the name of the owner of the bonds by duly authorized agents, said certificates to give the full name of both the owner and the authorized agent. If the person, firm or organization, to whom the certificate thus signed is presented for collection, is reasonably satisfied as to the identity and responsibility of the person signing as duly authorized agent, he or it shall stamp or write on the face of said certificate "Satisfied as to identity and responsibility of agent," giving name and address of person thus certifying, and said certificate may then be accepted by persons, firms or organizations to whom presented, without requiring further evidence as to authority of agent.

Individual members of a partnership are liable for the income tax upon their respective interests in the net earnings of said partnership and are required to include said earnings in their personal return. Partnership may file with the debtor corporation or withholding agent, a notice signed in the name of the partnership by a member thereof, claiming deduction of a specific amount on account of the legitimate expense (not including the personal or living expenses of the partners) incurred in conducting the business of said partnership, and upon receipt of said notice, said withholding agent shall not withhold, and shall not be held liable for the normal tax on the amount of income equal to the amount of the deduction claimed in said notice.

HOW THEY'RE FILED.

Foreign partnerships or firms, all the members of which are both citizens or subjects and residents of a foreign country, which are the owners of bonds and mortgages or deeds of trust or other similar obligations of corporations, joint-stock companies or associations and insurance companies doing business in the United States, may file with the debtor corporation or withholding agent, with their coupons or orders for registered interest, certificate and notice of ownership, setting forth the facts as non-residence and alienship, and the debtor or withholding agent shall not withhold any part of their said income.

Where a foreign partnership is composed of both non-resident foreigners and citizens of the United States, or foreigners resident in the United States or its possessions, the certificate of ownership shall show this fact, and the name and legal residence of each member of said partnership, who is a citizen of the United States or who is a foreigner residing in the United States or its possessions, shall be given on said certificate, and no part of said income shall be withheld by the paying agent.

It is also provided that guardians, trustees, executors, administrators, agents, receivers, conservators, and all persons, corporations or associations acting in any fiduciary capacity who hold in trust an estate of another person or persons, shall be designated the "source" for the purpose of collecting the income tax, and by filing a notice with other debtors or withholding agents, said fiduciary shall be exempt from having any income due to them as such, withheld for any income tax by any other debtor or withholding agent. Other debtors or withholding agents, upon receipt of this notice, shall refrain from withholding any part of such income from said fiduciary, and will not, in such case, be held liable for normal tax thereon.

ACCEPTED BY DEBTORS.

Another regulation provides that certificates of ownership, form 1000, as originally prescribed in Regulations of October 25, 1913, shall be accepted by debtors and withholding agents when properly filled in and signed by the owner of the bonds or his duly authorized agent, until December 10, 1913, and after that date only the amended form 1000, as prescribed by regulations, shall be accepted. Form 1000, original and amended, as it has been adapted to the use of guardians, trustees, executors, administrators, agents, receivers, conservators, and all persons, corporations or associations acting in a fiduciary capacity, when properly filled in and signed and giving the information required by the regulations, shall be accepted by debtors or withholding agents until regulations giving a prescribed form of certificates of ownership for fiduciary agents are issued, and for thirty days thereafter. Forms 1001, 1003, and 1004, as they have been adapted to the use of foreign organizations and foreign partnerships, when properly filled in and signed and giving the information required by regulations, shall be accepted by debtors or withholding agents until regulations giving a prescribed form of certificate of ownership for foreign organizations and foreign partnerships are issued, and for thirty days thereafter.

LICENSES TO COLLECT.

Applications of banks and other collecting agents for license to collect, deal in or realize on coupons, checks and bills of exchange representing income from taxable foreign sources when approved by the collector of internal revenue for the district in which such applicant resides, shall be deemed a sufficient compliance with the statute until such licenses shall have been regularly issued.

Another regulation provides that responsible banks, bankers, and collecting agents receiving coupons for collection with certificate of ownership attached, may either present the coupons with the attached certificate to the debtor or withholding agent for collection, or at the option of the collecting agent the certificates above referred to may be detached and forwarded direct to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, provided such bank, banker or collecting agent shall thereupon substitute for said owner's certificate and attach to said coupons, a certificate signed by said bank, banker or collecting agent, to which said coupons may have been first presented for collection.

Whittier.

FIELD REVEALS MARKED GROWTH.

EMORY WELLS WILL BOOST THIS YEAR'S OUTPUT.

Fullerton-Whittier Field Will Show Twenty-eight Per Cent. Increase in Production This Year. Yield to Be Nearly Ten Million Barrels.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

WHITTIER, Dec. 5.—An increase of about 28 per cent. in the production of the Whittier-Fullerton district will be revealed this year. This is remarkable considering how large the output of the district was the beginning of this year, and it is more remarkable still when the fact is taken into considerable that this increase is largely due to the production developed in one single division.

The particular section referred to is the Coyote Hills, all of which territory is now practically controlled by the Standard Oil Company. The company now has a production in the hills, since acquiring the Murphy Oil Company's holdings, of nearly 20,000 barrels daily. The oil is among the highest gravity in the field and yields unusually good returns when refined.

While the Standard's success has been the most spectacular in the field, there have been important increases in the yield of other divisions. La Habra Valley, during the early part of the year, showed remarkable increase in its output, while Brea Canyon's production has been considerably larger than last year.

The output of the Whittier-Fullerton district this year will be approximately 10,000,000 barrels, an increase of nearly 2,800,000 barrels over last year. There are seventy-two more wells producing than last year at this time.

DEVELOPMENT NOTES.

The Union Oil Company is getting a production of about 1500 to 2000 barrels of oil daily from its Graham and Loftus lease. The company is drilling several new wells on this lease, and one on the Hole lease.

The Standard Oil Company is building rigs for wells Nos. 11 and 12 on the Emory ranch, and is grading for No. 13. Several strings are running. The company will soon start work on the Murphy holding, which recently was acquired. It is understood that the drilling requirements are rather stiff in this instance.

The Petroleum Company's wells on the Gilman lease are yielding an aggregate of about 750 barrels daily production. The company has well No. 5 cemented, and is deepening No. 1, on the Nenno lease.

NOONDAY MEETINGS.

Y.M.C.A. "Bigger Man" Campaign to Be Carried to Great Industrial Plants Here.

The "Bigger Man" campaign, which is being conducted by the Y.M.C.A. in many of the large industrial plants throughout the city, took on a much broader aspect yesterday, with the announcement of J. E. Berry, Y.M.C.A. industrial secretary, that more than fifty noonday meetings will be held during the month of December.

The "Bigger Man" campaign has been quietly under way for several months. It consists in educational work among the men of the large industrial concerns where noonday gatherings of employees are addressed by well-known speakers on subjects that will aid the men in their daily toil, arouse their ambitions for better things and assist them in realizing their newly-awakened ambitions.

During November thirty-three meetings were held and these were attended by 1382 men. The campaign is meeting with gratifying success and is receiving the hearty support of employers.

CONVICT QUACK HEALER.

State Wins Prosecution Against Prisoner Charged With Having Practiced Medicine Without License

One conviction for quackery was recorded in Police Court yesterday when W. J. Poll was fined $100 by Police Judge Williams on the charge of having practiced medicine without a license.

Inspector Somner of the State Medical Board, arrested Poll September 27. Attorneys for the defendant filed notice that they will appeal from the decision.

M. M. Winchell, accused of a similar complaint, succeeded in getting a disagreement of the jury in Police Judge White's court yesterday, and his case was set for retrial on January 15. The jury was discharged.

Winchell claims to be a cancer specialist.

SELLS TO ENGINEER.

For a given consideration of $13,500, M. K. Rodgers, a retired mining engineer from Seattle, last week purchased from the Braly-Janss Investment Company one of the most attractive of the unimproved building sites in Brentwood Park. The sale was made by J. Albert Campbell, resident agent of the fashionable seaward subdivision. The plot sold is 300 feet square, being equivalent in size to twelve ordinary city lots, and it is the intention of the purchaser to build a handsome home surrounded by beautifully laid out grounds. Representatives of the Braly-Janss Company announce that several fine homes are to be erected in Brentwood Park during the coming year.

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER

For a non-combatant in partisan politics, Dave Evans hasn't got anything on some of the other distinguished Democrats who were supposed to be helping in the last campaign, according to some of the dissenters to the Evans brand of "reform;" and it may be said with some degree of certainty that some of them have a better alibi than has the obstreperous chairman of the County Civil Service Commission. Notwithstanding the announcement that Evans was not and is not a member of the Democratic County Central Committee, there can be no gainsaying the fact that Evans was appointed a member of the Speakers' Committee, as well as a member of the Campaign Committee of One Hundred; and if he ever resigned from the latter committee the fact was kept a profound secret. Like many other ambitious job-chasers, Evans is now evidently intent on keeping his Democratic record straight, but not too strong; and he is producing a letter addressed to Chief Ham Cotton in which he begged to be excused from service on the Speakers' Committee, but volunteered to serve in any other capacity.

That Evans was an active partisan in the last campaign is also indicated in a letter that he wrote to Dave Fulwider, who a little more than a year ago was fluttering about Los Angeles endeavoring to give an imitation of acting like a real Democratic boss. While in such a delirium, Fulwider chased himself all over the community making arrangements for one Wilyum Chennings Bryan to come here. Fulwider even went so far as to arrange for the "Peerless One's" stump speech at Agricultural Park; and when the eventful occasion had eventuated, Mr. Evans was so elated and inspired by the Bryan effusions that he sat himself down and indited a letter to Fulwider actually thanking him for having favored him, the said Dave Evans, with a front seat at the Bryan gabfest. And forthwith, it is only reasonable to assume, Dave Evans pulled up his breeches, gave his galluses an extra hitch or two, and then went to Ham Cotton to help fight the common enemy—br'r'r'r'r. In those tempestuous days if anyone had had the temerity to charge Dave Evans with not fighting till the last retreat was sounded by the Democratic chieftain, he would have denounced the charger as a base calumniator. But then, at the time in mind, Mr. Evans was not preaching "civil service reform."

Ah! Ha! Two Democratic candidates for State-wide consideration broke into Los Angeles and other Southern California cities the past week, seeking whom they might devour. Both were out for votes; both were working with Democratic secrecy, so that before either had been here long enough to breathe, every little boss in the local Democracy was out trying to meet or panhandle them. The first to arrive was Col. Tom Griffin, the fire-eater from Stanislaus county, who has mustered sufficient courage to go after the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. Griffin called upon only a few of his friends and talked over and about as much of the situation as they could find signs of. The Stanislaus Bourbon is richer in cash than any other one of his political kind in his part of the State, and consequently he can see no good reason why he shouldn't be permitted to be a United States Senator if he wants to be. The answer, of course, is Phelan, Raker and Tarpey among the Democrats; Knowland, Shortridge, Gage and Alden Anderson among the Republicans, and Rowell and Heney among the Bull Moosers. Whether Griffin made any headway while here I have not learned. At any rate he escaped without getting his name mentioned in the newspapers.

Fred Hall dropped in from Bakersfield on Tuesday morning, and half an hour after his arrival at the Alexandria Hotel his rooms were crowded with Democrats who are professing to believe that the Kern county man is the one best chance they have of ousting Gov. Johnson.

Tim Spellacy is home again. He has been in Washington and has seen everybody and everything back there worth seeing, simply that he may have the ineffable pleasure of greeting his brother Peter as postmaster in the not dim and distant future. As usual in such cases, "everything is all right;" meaning that Tim believes that he has this job tucked safely away for formal delivery a couple of months hence. He admits that he found some of the "big guns" saying a kindly word for the candidacies of Rinehart and Mesmer; with an occasional whisper for Tyree, Topham and Kallmeyer; but, otherwise, the Spellacy barque is floating along to the shore of ultimate success with scarcely a ripple of real opposition to contend with.

The postmastership fight is the real battle for supremacy between Spellacy and the special committee of thirty-three Democrats representing the County Committee. Chairman Cotton has received several letters from Postmaster-General Burleson which makes Hamilton feel encouraged over the prospects for Rinehart's appointments. The friends of Mesmer are confident that his services to the party as well as his business standing in this city, will stand him well in hand. The Rinehart advocates propose carrying the battle to the last ditch, wherever that may be. I gather that Lorin A. Handley is the bete noir in the case, and that they will continue their fight on him. Handley is charged with using the official letterhead of the Board of Public Works upon which to write to Postmaster-General Burleson an attack upon Chairman Cotton's committee and upon Rinehart—or maybe it was in his indorsement of Carter and Elliott that he put his best sheet forward to show the P. M. General that he is some "punkins" in this neck o' the woods.

Supervisor Butler may look for opposition to his re-election next year, for Tobe Harris has passed out the word that he believes he is better qualified for this county position than the incumbent. Tobe says he proposes to make a house-to-house campaign, lining up the "ladies and gents" without regard to race, creed or previous condition of servitude. All that he will ask is that each and all of them favor him with just one vote. He will attend to the rest of the programme.

A bit of cheer reached the local Democrats the past week, with the announcement that Internal Revenue Collector Carter is having a joblot of his working force removed from the harrowing protective safeguard of civil service regulations. The Treasury Department has made some shifts that will mean openings for hungry Democrats. One Republican, however, has been given a little the best of the new deal, inasmuch as Collector Carter has advanced his official position. But whether this is permanent advancement, or whether Jim is merely on the gang-plank walking out to the deep sea of political oblivion, is fathoms too deep at this time to decide.

Now comes one James H. Campbell, dean of the law school of the University of Santa Clara, who is willing to flirt with the Democratic nomination for Governor. It behooveth me not to guarantee the list of aspiring Bourbons, but it is an indisputable fact that never before in California were there so many citizens ready to sacrifice themselves upon the Democratic altar with the Governorship luring them to the holocaust. Today the list reads as follows: Fred H. Hall of Bakersfield, State Senator John B. Sanford of Mendocino county, State Senator Archibald E. Campbell of San Luis Obispo, Congressman John E. Raker of Modoc county, Congressman William Kettner of San Diego county, ex-State Senator Reginald F. Del Valle of Los Angeles, Thomas O. Toland of Los Angeles, and Ventura, M. F. Tarpey of Fresno, Sidney McM. Van Wyck of San Francisco, and a few who are "mentioned."

Brightening chances of Republican success in the Senatorial fight is arousing deep interest in the northern section of the State. Among those most prominently spoken of in this connection at this time are Frank Short of Fresno, Samuel M. Shortridge of San Francisco, Congressman E. A. Hayes of San Jose, Congressman Joseph R. Knowland of Alameda, ex-Congressman James C. Needham of Modesto and W. R. Davis of Oakland. Friends of Congressman Knowland are looking over the situation, and it may be the occasion of no surprise if the popular Alamedan decides to make the fight against Heney and Rowell. There is no mistaking Knowland's popularity in the northern part of California, and he is not without friends in this part of the State. His four or five terms in Congress have given him an experience that must be acknowledged as a valuable political asset.

The Oakland Tribune is the latest among the northern newspapers to recognize the political strength of Dist.-Atty. Fredericks, and to mention him as the man who would give a good account of himself if he becomes the Republican standard-bearer in the next Governorship fight. Capt. Fredericks's name is attracting widespread attention, and the opinion is plainly growing that he can have the nomination almost for the asking if he decides to make the race.

Putting the sign of approval upon candidates for whatever Federal jobs are left in this vicinity was the self-imposed task of the Democratic Committee of Thirty-three at its formal meeting last Tuesday night. Isidore Dockweiler was the bright and illuminating incident of the gathering and he told the committeemen all about Washington and the big chiefs who preside at the job counters. He also delighted the members by informing them that since he visited the Cabinet officials they have a new and holier opinion of the County Executive Committee of the local Democracy. He didn't tell them anything special in reference to Atty.-Gen. McReynolds, for his feelings in that direction are regarded as perambulating without articulation. However, take it from Isidore, that the county committee is "in right" at last with the national administration. And in proof of this claim, Chairman Cotton has been receiving letters from Secretary Lane and Postmaster-General Burleson assuring him of their most distinguished consideration. This Lane letter is apt to stir up all the aspirants for the local Land Office appointments for Registrar and Receiver. The "Big Thirty-three" are to decide on these two plums at a meeting that has been called for next Tuesday night. There are almost a score of candidates, and about half of this number are residents of Los Angeles. Linn of San Diego is regarded in some circles as having the inside track on the Registrarship unless Attorney Dodson of the same city beats him to it. A Lincoln Smyser of this city is also regarded as well up in the running, as also is John D. Roche, at present an official of the Department of Public Works. So far as local gossip goes, Alex Mitchell of Verdugo is credited with being nearest the Receivership job. Probably the next important appointment to be made will cover one of these offices, as the term of the incumbent expires this month, and the other appointment is due some time next March.

MYSTERIOUS PERSECUTION OF DOWNTOWN DENTIST.

Prisoner Arrested in Connection With Threats Denies Complicity. Nervous Doctor Has to Keep Standing Order With Painter to Make Regular Morning Erasures.

The door to Dentist W. A. Hutchason's office, No. 326½ South Broadway, will no longer be painted daily.

Joseph Zavenz was arrested yesterday in the act of attaching a magnet to the telephone wires outside the dentist's office so the telephone would not ring. The arrest exposed a condition astounding to the police.

For three months, Dentist Hutchason has been persecuted daily by some one. He did not know who it was. First came a theatening letter. It informed the dentist that he would soon be dead. A few days later the threat was repeated.

Then came a daily assault on the place. On the white walls leading to the office, great signs would be printed during the night, "Tomorrow you die" and "Beware, your fate is sealed."

Hutchason hid the warnings by sending a new coating of paint over the walls.

Then the miscreants attacked the door. They printed hideous figures and terrible messages on it. Each morning the dentist would have the door repainted.

It became so matter of fact that a standing order was given a painter to go to the office each morning and repaint the door. Whenever the dentist's customers came they were always warned to look out for paint.

One morning the usual threat was varied by a huge rock suspended from the knob of the door. On the rock was written: "Soon this will kill you with one blow."

Dentist Hutchason became nervous. Recently he went to Fresno to open a branch office. He has been gone but a few days. When Zayenz was arrested, the correct address of Hutchason's new office in Fresno was found, as was much data connected with his life.

Zayenz says he is a carpenter employed in Eagle Rock. He disclaims the messages and the persecution, but he cannot tell why he was cutting the telephone connection.

The police believe the man was persecuting Hutchason that he might get some money from him if the dentist became sufficiently alarmed.

Hutchason says Zayenz came to him several months ago for some dental work, that the work was done, and the bill paid under amiable condition. Zayenz makes the same statement.

The case is a complete mystery.

XXXIIIRD YEAR. SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 7, 1913. LETTERS: { Fact and Romance, Pictures and Text.

BEST IN CHRISTMAS LITERATURE, BEST TO BUY, BEST TO READ.

Year's Doings in Literature.

BY WARWICK JAMES PRICE.

ASK the "Man-in-the-Street" what has happened of literary interest during 1913, and the chances are he'll not be able to get much farther than that Caine's "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" is being banned in so many libraries that its sale is multiplied fourfold; that George Harvey sold "Harper's Weekly" to Norman Hapgood; that the poetic Hoosier Riley had a birthday, to celebrate which they closed the Indianapolis schools for a week, and that literary stock is booming generally because Ambassadors and Ministers are in demand, and "writin' fellows are getting the best of it." Pressed to look abroad, the gentleman in question will first recall that old England has a new Laureate, then that there was a big stir when some Browning letters were sold at a five-figure price, and possibly he will add, as indirectly pertinent, that China has a new alphabet.

One need not say that such happenings as there are no more than the sparks thrown off from the [illegible] of really worth-while events of literary art—no more actually indicative of the course of the twelvemonth in the field of letters than that certain books bound in a woman's skin have been sold at a Paris auction, or that, again in the French capital, they have set going a "Poet's Bank," planned to aid struggling artists of all kinds [illegible] from over the first hard [illegible] of their battle for recognition.

POETIC STOCK RISES.

The last-mentioned "entry" on the calendar of the days and weeks, however, is not entirely unindicative of the general trend of the times, for 1913 has stood witness to a noticeable growth in the "dear public's" regard for poetry. No one name in this regard, for instance, is written more clearly than that of John Masefield, the Englishman who, after leading a roving, Whitmanesque youth on land and water, made his appearance in print a year ago and who has now established himself firmly as one to be reckoned with. If there is something of what Stephen Phillips calls "the violence of power" in the writer's earlier "Widow of Bye Street" and "The Everlasting Mercy," yet there is high poetic value in the more recent "Salt Water Ballads" and "A Mainsail Haul," and the reading public has bought so generously of both these volumes and of Alfred Noyes's "Tales of the Mermaid Tavern" that there can be no just question but that a good market does today exist for the long-bejoked poet (provided, of course, he is authentic. So much cannot yet be safely declared of a certain engineer's fitter down in London-town, one John Helston, whose short poems were given a good deal of prominence in the British reviews last spring; but of Noyes and Masefield one may be certain they have "arrived," and literature is that much the richer.

In this same connection it is to be set to paper that the Parisian symbolists have chosen to themselves a new "Prince of Poets," latest in the succession which reads back through Leon Dierx and Stephen Mallarme to Verlaine's self. Paul Fort, now [illegible] and crowned, is a young man wholly of the present day, in which again he stands elbow-to-elbow with the two Englishmen mentioned, or with such a versemaking newcomer in our own land as William Rose Benet, who has just produced in his "Merchants of Cathy" work of genuine promise.

AS TO "BEST SELLERS."

All of this increase in our attention to poesy would seem to be part and parcel of a proportionate decrease in the demand for fiction. In 1892 more than 24 per cent. of the books issued in America were "just stories;" last year this proportion had fallen to less than 10 per cent. Still, with a tidy 2290 of these titles indicating novels or short-story collections, there still appears a certain premiership in our affection for this form of letters, and by so much the more difficult is it to give a list of "best" fiction for the twelvemonth. To essay the task purely from the critical point of view is to tempt the Scylla of personal opinion; to approach it from the lists of "best sellers," as compiled week by week, is to venture close to the Charybdis of the fickle judgment of a proverbially thoughtless populace. To take both outlooks seems the only way to solve the riddle.

William Stanley Braithwaite, whose critical dicta are well regarded, gives this as his estimate of the best fifteen novels of 1913:

"The Happy Warrior," A. S. M. Hutchinson.
"The Combined Maze," May Sinclair.
"The Journey's End," Romain Rolland.
"Comrade Yetta," Albert Edwards.
"'Twixt Land and Sea," Joseph Conrad.
"In Accordance With the Evidence," Oliver Onions.
"Major Revelly," Daniel C. Goodman.
"Widdecombe Fair," Eden Phillpotts.
"Stella Maris," W. J. Locke.
"Wilsam," S. C. Nethersole.
"V. V.'s Eyes," Henry S. Harrison.
"Inside the Cup," Winston Churchill.
"The Catfish," Charles Marriott.
"The Amateur Gentleman," Jeffery Farnol.
"The Ghostship and Other Stories," Richard Middleton.

Exactly a third of these books (numbers 1, 9, 11, 12 and 14 on the list) are included in the fifteen titles arrived at by compiling the "best sellers" of the year, as periodically announced in the literary magazines. Such a list reads as follows:

"Inside the Cup," Winston Churchill.
"V. V.'s Eyes," Henry S. Harrison.
"The Happy Warrior," A. S. M. Hutchinson.
"The Judgment House," Sir Gilbert Parker.
"The Old Adam," Arnold Bennett.
"The Woman Thou Gavest Me," Hall Caine.
"Stella Maris," W. J. Locke.
"Laddie," Gene Stratton-Porter.
"The Mating of Lydia," Mrs. Humphry Ward.
"The Amateur Gentleman," Jeffrey Farnol.
"The Heart of the Hills," John Fox, Jr.
"Virginia," Ellen Glasgow.
"Pollyanna," Eleanor H. Porter.
"Westways," S. Weir Mitchell.
"Bendish," Maurice Hewlett.

The two last titles undoubtedly would have ranked well up the list had they not appeared so recently, for they are "running strong," albeit handicapped by such early starts as Hutchinson's (who got under way in January) and Churchill's; his direct attack upon "churchianity" came out last May.

What the first seven books are [illegible] only be suggested by the known fact that the eighth ("Laddie") [illegible] comfortably turned the [illegible] mark.

TWENTY TITLES OF WORTH.

Within the broad and not too definite confines of the "non-fiction" publications of the year a round score of titles must be set down as comprising at once those new books most in demand at the libraries and over store counters and, as well, those of what now appear considerable permanent worth. "Germany and the Germans" will be there; the late Price Collier's pleasantly "personalized" work on the Kaiser's country and James Bryce's scholarly and yet unfinished "University and Historical Addresses;" also the "Joyous Gard" of the always entertaining A. C. Benson, and probably that somewhat remarkable volume from Gerald Stanley Lee, "Crowds," in which this apostle of a new individualism visualizes the world as a crowd in which Tom, Dick and Harry struggle for recognition only to find their hands and [illegible] last by all about them.

[illegible] than fifteen of the total titles of this sort are to be classed as biographical or autobiographical. For even in the "Small Boy and Some Others," by Henry James, and Jack London's sensational "John Barleycorn" there is no little put to paper of the life of the man behind the pen. The other baker's dozen may be thus indicated, though relative popularity can be little more than suggested [illegible]:

"My Past," Countess Marie Larisch.
"Tolstoi's Letters to His Wife" (edited.)
"Letters and Recollections of Alexander Agassiz" (edited.)
"The Autobiography of Admiral Dewey."
"My Autobiography," Madame Judith.
"The Life of John Bright," G. M. Trevelyan.
"The Wallet of Time," William Winter.
"The Married Life of Queen Victoria," Charles Jerrold.
"The Letters of William Vaughn Moody" (edited.)
"The Diary of Lady Shelley."
"Scott's Last Expedition; From His Journal."
"Life and Letters of George Gordon Meade."
"Early Memories," Henry Cabot Lodge.

The twentieth of the "non-fiction" books is one as yet but little heard of on this side of the Atlantic, yet one destined to be highly regarded, if the unqualified opinions of the clearest-headed English critics may be accepted. The "Sirenica" of W. Compton Leith, we read in practically all the great London reviews, shows such a master of prose style that one must go back to Pater to find equal in artistry and enchantment. As a sample of this unbroken paean of praise this may be quoted (from the hard-to-please Athenaeum:)

His rhetoric is stately and dignified, his diction is rich in melody and color, his thought glows with the reflection of that inner ecstacy of passion in which all genuine literature finds its source. We have come upon no book in several years (with the possible exception of Francis Thompson's essay on Shelley) which seems to us more akin to genius—which carries on more worthily the splendid tradition of English prose.

THE SENSATIONAL SIDE.

The initial two entries on the list last given, together with Hall Caine's nothing-if-not-spectacular story (sixth in order of demand among the novels) form a trio of distinct sensations. "My Past" quite failed to convince the world that the Countess Larisch had really solved the mystery of Meyerling, but it certainly included enough salacious high court gossip to insure itself a welcome in these days of tango steps and diaphanous gowns. "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" was boomed by exactly the same tendency to say a deal about matters usually not so much as referred to in polite society. Of course, it falls considerably short of being as "bad" as one might think it, from all the discussion that has centered around its lurid covers; but it's as bad as need be—"and then some!" A dozen libraries have barred it from their shelves, though it has not yet reached that acme of sensationalized advertisement, being publicly burned.

This particular form of literary anachronism has, however, been vouchsafed both the new Tolstoi letters and sturdy old "Tom Jones!" That Russia, herself an anachronism, should legally order an auto da fe for the former was less surprising than regrettable, nor can any occidental reader find in the whole 656 epistles which the venerable Count Leo directed to his wife any last warrant for the accusation that they attacked the Old Testament. But that Fielding's famous novel should have met this hangman's fate, and at a town presumably so enlightened as the English Doncaster, is not less than amazing. Gibbon declared "Tom Jones" an "exquisite picture of human manners," and literary historians galore have ranked it not only first among its author's productions, but high among the English novels of any day and time. But the Doncasterians evidently think in terms of Cotton Mather.

Now, had Emperor Wilhelm disliked the book, it would have been different. For the German autocrat proved his censorship capacity this year beyond all question when he prohibited the sale within his warlike land of a volume by one Lamazus entitled "The Human Slaughterhouse." Surely the horrors of modern warfare have seldom, if ever, been so vividly set forth, and the disposal of some 100,000 copies of the book before the imperial interdict went forth may be supposed to be not without effect.

Yet another pair of censorship items are to be chronicled. Breslau, in Germany, again (though this time the action came not from its royal overlord,) last June set the seal of its diminutive aldermanic disapproval on Hauptman's epic drama, written at their request, to have been produced at the year's centenary festivities—because, forsooth, it happened to picture Napoleon the Great as great as he was, with a consequent diminuendo in what had been expected to be a rapturous hymn in adulation of the third Frederick Wilhelm. And in England "The Flute of Sardonyx" was withdrawn immediately after publication, all because the critic, James Douglass, pointed out so exactly wherein the little volume of poems would outrage taste and decency "in a way that has never been tolerated in our literature, even at its lowest and basest period of corruption."

LOVE LETTERS AND "FINDS."

It may be that these eight "sensations" should be written ten, and due addition made of the Sotheby sales of the Browning love letters and a volume of Burns's manuscripts; certainly the "tight little, right little island" was immensely vexed at both transactions. What made matters worse was that in each case the treasures were brought over here, so that to the pain of losing such sacred mementoes of great ones dead and gone was added the humiliation of proof that Americans were more ready to pay the price for them than "loyal" Britishers. The Browning letters, disposed of in May, realized $32,750, with nearly $97,000 more paid for some of their manuscripts, personal books and similar relics, including what the catalogue described as "a silver shell-shaped reliquary with central double-glazed case containing a lock of John Milton's hair and a lock of the hair of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, with engraved inscriptions." After this the $25,000 said to have been the figure at which the Liverpool Atheneum allowed two volumes of Bobbie Burns's handwriting to cross the broad seas seems rather small, but the storm of protest, with so potent a protestant as Lord Rosebery's self in its van, was anything but that.

A not dissimilar controversy has centered about four recently-unearthed and published letters from Charlotte Bronte to her one-time Brussels professor, Heger. Do they prove "a consuming adoration," or do they merely denote platonically affectionate regard from pupil to teacher? Presumably the latter, if such a Bronte expert and enthusiast as Clement Shorter is to be credited; but none the less the argument still rises and falls, with another entry as certainly made on 1913's literary ledger.

An interesting quartette of other "finds" of the twelvemonth are a hitherto unsuspected drama of Turgenieff's, untitled; a novel of the same great Russian's which he had named "Capt. Rubnof;" another copy (for only one had heretofore been known) of the contemporary account of the events upon which Browning's magnificent "The Ring and the Book" was founded, and Gen. Wolfe's own copy of Gray's "Elegy in a Country Churchyard," from which the soldier declaimed that historic night as he threaded the shadows over the St. Lawrence on his way to death and fame.

IN LIGHTER VEIN.

These discoveries do not include a tremendous number of anti-Shakespearean sort made since last January by the tireless members of the Bacon cult. They had a 352nd annual dinner only the other evening, at which several reports were listened to and applauded, that queer person, Sir E. Dunning-Lawrence, distinguishing himself by asserting that Lord Verulam wrote not only "The Faerie Queene," but "Don Quixote," too. But this goes not far enough. An enterprising Oxfordian has adduced simply unanswerable proof that the thirty-odd dramas occasionally attributed to Will of Stratford were really the product of the versatile Shawian pen. Here is the proof, cryptographic (of course) and final!

It all added to the gaiety of nations any way. As did also those March rules for Fenografy System, with a vocabulary promised "when the people ar redy," which came from the Simplified Spelling Board. Chaos and echo are to be caos and eco now. We must have nack and forgive for knack and forgive. Telefone and fonograf, of course. Worthy old famous degenerates into famus, which looks more ridiculous than hansum. No wonder we are all urged not to "be ances."

HONORS FOR PRIVATE AUTHORS.

President Wilson has sounded a distinct note in the literary harmony of the passing months. Six of his foremost diplomatic appointments have come either from the realm of what this same present Chief Executive himself once termed "mere literature"—as Henry Van Dyke and Thomas Nelson Page, who have been sent over to Holland and Italy, respectively—or from those fields of journalism and education so intimately cognate with literature: Walter Page, from The World's Work to the Court of St. James; Jacob Gould Schurman, from Cornell to Athens; Professor Maurice Egan to Copenhagen, and Dr. Paul Reinsch to Peking. It obviously is a day when the builders of books are appreciated in high quarters. "Peter Pan" Barrie thinks so, too. He became a baronet last June, by grace of George, fifth of the name.

SHIFTS IN THE FOURTH ESTATE.

The changes which the year has brought to magazinedom are unusually numerous. Uncle Remus Magazine has become Pullitzer's. Both Harper's Bazar and the almost historic Weekly have been sold. The Howlands have left the Outlook in favor of the rejuvenated Independent. Even the Century has been affected, for Mr. Yard, journalist and publisher, has succeeded Editor Johnson, who may be said to have graduated summa cum laude from that alma mater, after sharing her joys and sorrows for two score years. In all of which shifts and makeshifts the general public was doubtless most interested in that which carried the time-honored Harper's Weekly across the line into that hilariously Progressive camp which Norman Hapgood, late of Collier's, is just now presiding.

"Overweighted"

Women have not only come unto their own, but practically into all that there is. Among other things they have captured the world of letters. And the allegory of Mr. W. H. Walker, done in water colors and now on exhibition at the Walker Galleries, London, represents the plight that mere man is in since the "new" woman—the charming, intellectual, persistent and insistent woman of the Twentieth Century has taken possession of the earth. In literature men are compelled to fight almost ungallantly for their laurels against Edith Wharton, Ellen Key, Mrs. Humphrey Ward, Mary Johnston, Mary Austin and thousands upon thousands of others who, as in the artist's picture, carry their pen at the point of their sword.

Secrets of Panama History.

PANAMA: THE CREATION, DESTRUCTION AND RESURRECTION. By M. Philippe Bunau-Varilla. Constable & Co., London.

STARTLING STATEMENTS.

M. BUNAU-VARILLA'S notable book opens with the following remarkable and startling statement:

"This book is a testimonial before the tribunal of history. Its aim is to explain how that great conception of French genius, the junction of the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, was snatched from her; and that the solution of the problem of the opening of a free strait between the two oceans was her work and hers alone.

"To trace the secret mechanism of this event one must go back a century.

"In 1803, Bonaparte, as First Consul, sold to the United States for the sum of $12,000,000 the immense territory of Louisiana. Before this acquisition the American Republic owned only 827,844 square miles. The area of Louisiana was then 1,171,931 square miles, but she was bound to annex to herself, sooner or later, another 921,916 square miles in her irresistible expansion toward the Pacific. Mexico was too weak to stand in her way.

"Why did we thus aban[illegible] sevenths of the territory hel[illegible] United States today? We acte[illegible] cause England, our implacable [illegible] at that time, was about to seize Lo[illegible]ana. We were then powerless on sea, and could not defend our Ame[illegible]can empire.

"One hundred and one years later, in 1904, all that we had created at Panama was sold to America [illegible]000,000. It was the same bargain [illegible] again. This time our [illegible] was caused, not by an [illegible] abroad. It was the work of [illegible] whom we were harbor[illegible] our own midst and who now thrust this great enterprise into a mo[illegible] which there was no rescue possible.

"The ruin of this [illegible] undertaking was part of [illegible] designed to overthrow [illegible] existing [illegible]ernment."

Th[illegible] Bunau-Varilla [illegible] his very [illegible] which [illegible] the [illegible] of all efforts [illegible] French to [illegible] nal, the attempts to enlist the [illegible] government's help, the fight agai[illegible] States that insisted on constructing a waterway through Nicaragua, the reason for and the manner in which the Panama revolution against the Colombian authority was developed, and he claims with bald and candid confidence and in great detail that the canal was at last built through his own efforts, saying: "Had I not kept a vigilant guard, the Panama Canal would have been lost to humanity."

M. Bunau-Varilla, as an engineer, became identified with the work on the canal when the De Lesseps Company was attempting to duplicate the success at Suez. At the age of 26 he was the engineer in supreme charge of the canal, doing, as he says, the work that had formerly been assigned to three engineers.

He insists that it was financial and political difficulties that wrecked the De Lessep's Company; that the problem of constructing the canal did not baffle the French engineers, and that the American engineers have followed his plans, aided by money which was lacking for him, to a successful culmination. He further makes the astonishing statement that the French machinery abandoned on the isthmus, which the United States has utilized, has been found more efficient than the modern equipment employed by this nation. He says: "Our dredges, although abandoned for nearly twenty years, were put to work near those ordered by the Americans. Their results stupefied their new proprietors, they furnished far greater results in excavation than the new ones, and at a much lower unit cost."

He further claims that "the steam shovels would have failed if, like the French, the Americans had had to work for years in the slippery, soft and sliding dirt in a country where the rainy season lasts two-thirds of a year." Diagrams are also furnished to show that the French had excavated almost one half of the total amount of dirt necessary to be taken out at the Culebra Cut.

HISTORY OF CANAL PROJECTS.

In 1524 Cortez wrote to his monarch, Charles the Fifth, that he desired above all things to find an "open strait joining with the other sea."

Subsequently, in the sixteenth century, the idea of building a canal was discussed but Phillip the Second "forbade any modification of what God had created."

While Americans were considering the Nicaraguan route "in the Panama region, on the other hand, a French company had received, as far back as 1836, a concession for the establishment of roads, railways or a canal across the Isthmus. This company was at work for several years. . . . In 1847 it is again to a French company that the concession for establishing a railroad is granted."

The success of the Suez Canal, with the rise in the value of shares from $85 in 1871 to $250 in 1880, inspired another syndicate with the hope that a simillar achievement might be accomplished at Panama with even more profit. Ferdinand de Lesseps, the builder of the Suez, and then aged 73, was unwillingly persuaded to become the president of the company because of the high regard the entire French nation had for him—it would be easier to raise money.

De Lesseps was not an engineer. He was a promoter and had less respect than was profitable for engineers, frequently taking the opinions of "practical" business men, and rejected the plan which was twenty-seven years later to be adopted by the Americans.

From the first De Lesseps had difficulty in raising the funds desired, but a sufficient amount was secured to begin work, and M. Dingler was placed in charge of the canal in 1883.

TROUBLES ON THE ISTHMUS.

Bunau-Varilla's opinion, as expressed time and time again, is illustrated in the following criticism of Dingler: "His ideas as to what machines were necessary were correct, except as regards the plant which was to be combined with the great floating dredges of the Chagres Valley. He hoped to use pumps to transport the output of the dredges to the dumping grounds, but this system was not successful. That was M. Dingler's great technical error. The error might have been easily repaired, but when I urged this, neither the Panama Canal Company nor the contractors who employed the dredges, would listen. Both collapsed, probably owing to their refusal to accept what was to me obvious."

Speaking of the yellow fever, he says: "Death was constantly gathering in its harvest all about me. Some fathoms from my house at Colon ships were anchored in the company's harbor without a single soul on board. All the crew had died. I still recall twelve English sailors in full uniform whom I saw assemble before the doctor's office. They were asking for tickets of admission to the hospital. Eight days afterwards they all had died. Some (of the new arrivals on the isthmus) bore on their faces the obvious mark of terror. I often took note of their names to see how they would stand the trial. Without exception they were dead within three months, if they had not fled the isthmus. For every eighty employees who survived six months on the isthmus, one could say that twenty died."

Two engineers came to assist with [illegible] work, and "the same hearse took [illegible] to their resting place . . . . [illegible] who fell was immediately re[illegible]ced [illegible] another, and the battle [illegible] however hard death struck, [illegible] actions of a rebel[illegible] and [illegible]stile nature."

[illegible]ardi[illegible] work, Bunau-Varilla [illegible] assumed the general management of the company scarcely two months after I had completed my [illegible] year. Far from feeling [illegible] down by this new responsibility the burden positively relieved [illegible] Now [illegible] my own [illegible] master . . . . I pro[illegible] excavation of [illegible] per month from [illegible] January, 188[illegible] These figures [illegible] slightly [illegible] and these re[illegible] three months: [illegible] March, [illegible] by the [illegible] cubic yards in [illegible] The total excavation by the United States in ten years has been 212,504,000 cubic yards.—Ed.]

For his work, and while still in charge, Bunau-Varilla was signally honored. Of it, he says: "For the first time, I believe, since the creation of the Legion d'Honneur by Napoleon the First, an engineer of the Corps des Ponts et Chaussees was proposed for the Cross of the Legion of Honor three years after he had left the Technical Academy."

He was succeeded by another engineer, Boyer, and sailed for France after recovering from an attack of fever. Boyer died before Bunau-Varilla arrived in Paris. Boyer's last words were, "Do not abandon Panama."

PRESENT CANAL TEMPORARY?

Under the heading, "The Present Lock Canal Is Merely Temporary," the author says: "The lock canal now nearly complete . . . . is only a provisory canal. The United States admitted the idea of a provisory canal at the very last hour. . . . The idea of permanence, with which they associated their conception of a lock canal, inflicted upon them the dangerous obligation of trying to make it perfect from the start. This entailed absurdly exaggerated expenses and enormous delays. Both were unnecessary, if the idea of gradual improvement, by dredging had been understood by the projectors. It was this that foolishly paralyzed all possibility of refloating the canal undertaking in France. It cost America $200,000,000,000 of unnecessary expense and four years of unnecessary delay. But this is relatively immaterial, for the United States is rich enough to pay for their error, and the navigation of the world will repay it to America."

Bunau-Varilla cherishes the belief that the canal will ultimately be developed into a sea-level waterway and the locks dispensed with.

DE LESSEPS COMPANY.

The de Lesseps Company failed December 14, 1888. Funds could not be raised, and it had become a political issue, when a bill was proposed in the Chamber of Deputies authorizing the Panama Canal Company to postpone payments for three months. Bitterly he speaks of the enemies who "hoped by ruining 600,000 French families (who had invested in the company) to overflow the government." The auther devotes pages and even chapters to "exposing" his enemies and explaining their calumnies.

The failure of the company caused a terrific sensation. De Lesseps was a disgraced man; his son, Charles de Lesseps, vice-president of the company, was convicted of bribery and sentenced to a year in prison. The Minister of Justice determined to convict the officers of the company of having violated the law, saying: "The prosecuting magistrates will have done their duty, and if they do not succeed in convincing the courts, they will have at least enlightened public opinion." But it was impossible to discover a breach of the law.

ASKED AID OF RUSSIA.

In 1892 Bunau-Varilla wrote a book—"Panama, the Past, the Present and the Future"—and attempted to resuscitate the canal project by subscriptions in France. He failed. In 1893 he attempted to enlist Russian aid, and found that the Czar was favorable as well as Casimir-Perier, Premier of France, as well as Burdeau, Minister of Finance. But eight months later Alexander of Russia was dead, Burdeau was dead, and Casimir-Perier was politically dead.

The New Panama Company was organized in 1904, "composed of honorable men, but men ignorant of the work to be accomplished and entirely devoid of enthusiasm." The new

The Stalwart Federalist.

GREAT STATESMAN.

HARRISON GRAY OTIS. By Samuel Eliot Morison. Houghton, Mifflin Company, Boston. (Two volumes.)

THE ordinary history of any period is a sort of pen-and-ink sketch of the events as they transpired. Biography is an etching of these events. The life of Harrison Gray Otis—he of the last century—is eminently worthy of a lengthy chronicle.

He was born ten years before the Revolutionary War; he became active in politics before he was 25, and was a commanding figure in national affairs after the slavery question had become the issue of the hour. In reviewing that long and notable life, Mr. Morison has, perhaps intentionally, written one of the most intimate histories of those stirring times that we have ever seen, and one of the most pleasing features of the author's work is that the book is not cluttered with trivial incidents; everything is vital, and seems that it would be missed if any of it had been omitted.

Otis was not ambitious, but at the age of 22 his brilliant and effective oratory had attracted the complimentary attention of so captious a critic as John Quincy Adams, and he was soon lifted by popular demand into public life rather than by fighting his way to political honor. He had a keen sense of right and wrong—though we now see that he was frequently wrong in some of his policies—and was always ready to pick up any gauntlet for duty's sake.

POLITICAL ACTIVITY.

The author thinks that the most fortunate thing that could have happened for "Harry Otis," as he was affectionately known to his friends, was the bankruptcy of his father. Thrown up against the world while still a young man, as a result of the ruinous war for the freedom of the country which wrecked hundreds of prosperous families, he was compelled to develop his talents. After undertaking the study of law, he made an excellent success, chiefly because he worked night and day, and was soon recognized as the forensic champion of the Federalist party, and took his place in the nation's affairs while the capital was still at Philadelphia.

Otis was responsible for the repeal of the law permitting imprisonment for debt; he encouraged and assisted in increasing and in training American soldiers, and was responsible for the arming and building of American ships. During the time of the Napoleonic wars, when France was threatening the United States, he bitterly denounced the Frenchmen of Europe and the Frenchmen of this country, for reports like the following were constantly being circulated and believed: "President Adams was informed anonymously that the Frenchmen in Philadelphia were planning on May 9, 1798, the day of a national fast, to destroy Philadelphia by fire and massacre the inhabitants."

Otis was Congressman, refused the Governorship of Massachusetts, became Senator, then served for fifteen years in the State Legislature, during which time he forced the reform of the judiciary, was afterwards reelected to the United States Senate, and later was Mayor of Boston.

At no time in his career after entering Congress was he out of political life. He was a loyal and militant Federalist. "It was known that he was frequently conducted to a high mountain-top by leaders of the Jeffersonian party and shown visions of great offices and honors that might be his if he would become one of them. But Otis was not the man to renounce truth and right as he saw them for worldly advantage."

BELIEVED IN THE UNION.

He opposed the Louisiana Purchase, believing that the United States would be better off by having the Mississippi as the western boundary. He was no champion of State's rights, and believed that nothing could "justify the obloquy of wishing to promote a separation of the States." He was opposed to declaring war against England in 1812, because he thought the United States had infinitely more cause to fight France, and the Federalist party was willing and ready to assist in taking up arms against Napoleon.

He did not disbelieve in slavery, but opposed its extension, as he frankly admitted, for political reasons. William Lloyd Garrison bitterly attacked Otis with a sort of ferocious vulgarity that was shocking and offensive. As a United States Senator, Otis voted for the Missouri Compromise.

ADVOCATED PRISON REFORM.

The last public office held by Otis was the Mayoralty of Boston. In his inaugural address he struck the note for prison reform by "recommending immediate measures for segregation of the insane and the hardened criminals" from the youthful and the first offenders. He barred the cows from the Boston Common, where they had been privileged to graze since Boston appeared on the map, and it was said he did so because of protests from timid members of the fair sex who appealed to his gallantry to relieve their fears.

Until a few days before his death he retained control of his faculties and took a keen interest in the affairs of his country and city. He died October 28, 1848, leaving a namesake in the Buckeye State, now a Californian.

Mr. Morison admits in the preface to his book that he is a descendant of Harrison Gray Otis, but adds that he sees no reason why that should prevent his writing a fair and authentic biography. That kinship did not. The book has no semblance of bias; he mentions the faults and merits of his illustrious forebear with candor; and the reward for much study and research work among the documents bearing on that period is one of the most complete biographies we have ever seen.

Essays and Science.

THE BELOVED ESSAYIST.

THE SUMMIT OF THE YEARS. By John Burroughs. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

ANOTHER volume of essays has come from the well-beloved John Burroughs, who views life from "The Summit of the Years" and says: "I am in love with this world; by my constitution I have nestled lovingly in it. It has been my home. It has been my point of outlook into the universe. I have not bruised myself against it, nor tried to use it ignobly. I have tilled its soil; I have gathered its harvests; I have waited upon its seasons, and always have I reaped what I have sown."

And it is of nature—the birds, the woodchucks, the flowers and of science and scientists that he writes this time; as usual, and there is never a tiresome phrase in the whole of it, unless we don't believe that animals have minds and don't want Mr. Burroughs to convince us!

Mr. Burroughs stands almost alone as an essayist. Others may write more brilliant, dazzling, metaphysical treatises, but he always stands close to nature, speaks mildly and avoids a controversy, seeking to explain rather than to convince. That is why he is one of the most beloved of the writers in America.

LONDON ESSAYS.

LOITERER'S HARVEST. By E. V. Lucas. Macmillan Company, New York.

THE essays which make up the "Loiterer's Harvest" are too intimate with London to be widely appreciated in the United States. Most of them have previously appeared in such English publications as "Punch"—a magazine that always bewilders the typical American, for feeling that he should laugh over the contents he is distraught to find something that will irritate his risibles, and only succeed in irritating his temper.

Mr. Lucas deals with old sights of London, old people of London, and some modern ones. In a whimsical way he touches on many subjects, such as landmarks that are disappearing; the association of Thackeray with Punch; the fact that Wordsworth, after delivering poetic protests against the encroachments of the railroads in the Lake district, at last invested some of his own good money in railroad securities; Tom Girtin, the painter, of whom it is reported that Turner said "Had Girtin lived I would have starved," with comments now and then on poets, cartoonists and actresses.

To an Englishman isolated in the wilderness of American literature, and dumfounded by American humor, the little volume will undoubtedly prove a benefactor.

MEDLEY OF OBSERVATIONS.

A PREFACE TO POLITICS. By Walter Lippmann. Mitchell Kennerly, New York.

A SERIES of essays make up "A Preface to Politics," and they are such essays as might well have been written by a precocious schoolboy. The style is excellent, sentences and expressions unique, but the thought is a rehash of observations that have filled the editorial columns of the papers for the past three years. There is nothing new; evils and follies are pointed out, but no solution offered; a hammer is wielded, but pounds no wedge. The book sounds very much as though Mr. Lippmann did not have as much to say as he thought when he began to write—and why it is men will insist on writing and printing essays and serious books without having an original thought is beyond comprehension.

The first sentence tells us that "Politics does not exist for the sake of demonstrating the superior righteousness of anybody," and then follows an exposition on the fact that honest men have bitter differences. Under the chapter on "Taboo" we are informed of the folly of attempting to reform by legislation—of placing the "taboo" on evils.

Different statesmen are analyzed: Wilson is held to be made of a little more cultured stuff than the fabric of the American people; Bryan is "too simple" to be a great statesman; Roosevelt is about the highest ideal of what the American statesman should be. Many fine persons hold just those same opinions, but to express them is no excuse for writing a book. And it is the same with all the other subjects taken up: The report of the Chicago Vice Commission, Mr. Lippmann tells us, didn't get at the basic principle of the thing—he tells us that, but doesn't elucidate just what the basic principle is.

He quotes and refers to innumerable authors and historians with no particular aptness; he finds fault with Socialism, reforms, vindicates Tammany Hall existence as logical, while deploring its evil, and tells us that there were honest men in the southern armies, as well as in the northern, when the Civil War was fought.

MICROBES, WICKED AND GOOD.

OUR FRIENDS AND OUR FOES OF THE INVISIBLE WORLD. By Harvey Henry, A.B., A.M. Neale Publishing Company, New York.

THE above is a scientific book for people who are not, and has nothing to do with spiritualism. Microbes are classified; our invisible friends and enemies exposed, and technicalities are smoothed over for the layman.

A special chapter is devoted to "Eat Clean Food," where, among other things, the author places a ban on raw oysters, saying that they contain typhoid germs, and also condemns other raw meats not so commonly consumed, as the so-called "luscious fruit of the sea." Another chapter is also taken up with "Cremate the Dead," showing the dangers that communities endure where graveyards are tolerated.

LOVE THE SOLUTION.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE. By John Haynes Holmes. (The Art of Life Series.) B. W. Huebsch, New York.

THE book is far more broad than may reasonably be expected from a minister, for Dr. Holmes is the pastor of the Church of the Messiah, New York, and in discussing marriage and divorce he views the subject in its effect on society rather than from the standpoint of divine ordination.

"Love being the basic principle of marriage, it should be dissolved legally when the moral relation is terminated," is the gist of his argument.

However, he shoots off in the far realms of metaphysics in saying: "The true marriage is nothing more or less than a union of souls in the spirit of perfect love; and when this spirit is absent, or is adulterated by an admixture of some other moral element, the marriage is just to that extent so much the less a true marriage."

Just what is meant by the "union of souls in the spirit of perfect love" is not always plain. There never was an infatuated pair before the altar of Hymen that did not think that such an union was being effected—and yet many of them have ultimately landed in the divorce court.

In conclusion Dr. Holmes expresses his belief that the intelligence of the individuals—instincts, he calls it—must solve the question for each husband and wife. "Love," he says, "is our final resource, and I for one have no fear that it will ever wholly fail."

Mrs. Humphrey Ward,

Whose latest book, "The Coryston Family," shows woman's improper place and deals with the ban of the church against divorce.

BARBARISM ADVANCING.

THE WRECK. By Henry Clay Hansbrough. Neale Publishing Company, New York.

STARTLING us with the statement in the preface that "in the name of Progress we have been going to barbarism," Mr. Hansbrough proceeds to review the circumstances that brought about the disruption of the Republican party. If "The Wreck" had appeared before the last Presidential election we could understand its purpose. Coming at this time it seems to have none beyond expressing the author's opinions on certain questions which are no longer vital. As a Congressman, as a one-time supporter of Theodore Roosevelt, Mr. Hansbrough is entitled to a hearing, and the facts he sets forth are in the main a resume of all that we heard during the last national campaign. Mr. Roosevelt's connection with the harvester trust the reasons for his close affection for Mr. Perkins, his part in aiding in the crushing of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company (per instructions of Mr. Morgan,) and his quick change of policies to suit personal exigencies are dealt with fully and explicitly. If Mr. Roosevelt is an innocent man he now has a golden opportunity to grow rich through a libel suit—and judging from the manner in which he resented the allegation of drunkenness he is rather sensitive about his honor. If he reads "The Wreck" he will be forcibly informed as to what some other people think of him.

THE ARTIST AS MODEL.

THE PORTRAITS AND CARICATURES OF JAMES McNEILL WHISTLER. By A. E. Gallatin. John Lane, New York.

MR. GALLATIN has issued another edition of the exquisite brochure dealing with Whistler as he saw himself and as others saw him, the latest edition containing several hitherto unpublished portraits of that peculiar, almost savage and not wholly unlovable genius who kept the artistic world in a kettle of boiling water for almost a decade.

Oscar Wilde accused him of spelling art with a capital "I," so strong, seemingly, was his vanity. Yet when Whistler amused himself painting his own features he failed in doing justice to his picturesque features.

The little volume presented to the public by Mr. Gallatin is such as collectors delight in gathering for the pleasure of possession; it is one of those rare books that are only saved from being priceless because they are not limited to the potentialities of a capitalist's purse.

BATTLING FOR PEACE.

WAR AND WASTE. By David Starr Jordan. Doubleday, Page & Co., Garden City, N. Y.

WITHOUT discussing the merit of his contention, we present the substance of Mr. Jordan's argument, which is well worth considering: The strongest of the race are the first victims of war, leaving the propagation to inferiors.

He says: "Rome fell, because the old Roman stock was for the most part banished or exterminated." The decadence of Greece is cited as the result of internecine wars that slaughtered the fittest of the race; he blames the deficiencies of the European masses onto the Napoleonic campaigns which took toll with four million lives; he points to Virginia, Louisiana and the Carolinas as modern instances of the effect of war, alleging that the backwardness of industry and art in those States is due to the perishing of the strong men during the rebellion.

Another phase of his argument has to do with taxation. He declares the preparations for war as well as when it is being waged increase the cost of living. He estimates that $4,000,000,000 are spent annually on military affairs and that as all of the money is raised by taxes the taxpayers are just that much poorer.

The worst foe of peace, according to his idea, is the armament trust which makes an enormous amount of money securing contracts from the different nations, and no sooner is there talk of universal pacification than the armament trust stirs up a war scare.

ANCIENT ANIMALS.

A HISTORY OF LAND MAMMALS IN THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE. By William B. Scott. Macmillan Company, New York.

UNTIL a very few years ago practically none of us knew that larger beasts than roam the jungles of Africa and Asia once claimed the United States as their stamping ground.

Mr. Scott, who has degrees from Heidelberg, Harvard, Oxford and other universities, and who is the professor of geology and paleontology at Princeton, has been conducting, since 1876, investigations to determine the nature of the early mammals on the western hemisphere.

The present volume is the most comprehensive that has ever been written on the subject and while not unintelligible to the layman, is not to be taken for "light reading." The book is abundantly illustrated, and many pictures are given of the animals restored to what scientists believe was their natural appearance.

The tar pool at the Rancho La Brea, near Los Angeles, in which have been preserved the remains and bones of animals since the Pleistocene formation, is mentioned as having furnished inestimable service to the scientists.

"JE RECONTE."

PARIS NIGHTS AND OTHER IMPRESSIONS OF PLACES AND PEOPLE. By Arnold Bennett. George H. Doran Company, New York.

"THE HOMER OF FIVE TOWNS" (as some worthy satirist has styled Mr. Bennett) is getting frisky. He has plunged into essays for one thing and he has learned—how strange!—to hate critics, for doesn't he speak of being in a particularly happy mood and say that he was as cheerful as if he had shot a critic without getting caught?

All of the while that Mr. Bennett was spending his evenings in Paris he seems to have been in deadly fear lest he should have a good time. He also seems apprehensive lest some obtuse readers should imagine that he did, and so, with painstaking care, he complains against the French by innuendo, epithet, ridicule and good, straightforward journalistic English. He intimates that the French regarded him as a "barbarian." The French are known to be accurate judges of character.

Mr. Bennett tells of visiting the Varieties Theater. It was a horrible experience. Why, "instead of uplifting by a foretaste of light and magnificence as the entrance to a theater should, it depressed by its neglected squalour, . . . It had become vile. . . . We came to a very narrow, low, foul, semi-circular tunnel which was occupied by hags and harpies with pink bows in their hair." Mr. Bennett found so much filth in the theater that he had only cynicism for the show.

On another night he visited the "principal cafe of the Montparnasse quarter" and found "the girls inelegant and blousy; the men, inept in their narrow shrewdness; both equally naive, conceited, uncorrupted and uncorruptible, they were absolutely incapable of appreciating the refined and corrupt decadence, the stylistic charm, the exquisite tradition of the civilization at which they foolishly stared, as at a peep-show."

Mr. Bennett finally leaves Paris, tells us what he thinks of the Alps (suggesting no improvements, however,) and returns to England. At once there is a great change—he is almost, and remember that "almost" for Arnold Bennett is a great way—happy. There is where his friskiness develops. He jibes England and, in fact, jumps around like a toreador thrusting bandilleros into Johnny Bull. He refuses to see why so sensible a people as the English should be obsessed with sports, and vows that football is a more popular game than cricket! That alone proves Mr. Bennett is laboring to be funny.

However, after getting a fortnight's good sleep, he again ventures abroad—that is, he visits the Isle of Man, and tells us about the dullness of the island boarding-house. He tells us all his troubles and laments that no sociable companions could keep him company.

Arnold Bennett has written a book that logically has no excuse on earth for being in print, and yet almost grudgingly we are compelled to admit that it is interesting. Interesting in spite of the fact that it deals with himself, how he views other people, what the scenery looks like to him—he tells everything and it is all about himself. And yet it is clever, it is interesting and artistic. His descriptions are photographic—not for accuracy, perhaps, but for clearness. There is something about his writings, all of his writings, that repels, and yet there is something more, something stronger, that attracts: He has the charm of being brilliantly tedious.

WISE ADVISE FOR AUTHORS.

THE PUBLISHER. By Robert Sterling Yard. Houghton, Mifflin Company, Boston and New York.

PRICK up your ears, ye knights of the pen, and listen. A publisher hath opened his lips, and perchance there will be some valuable secret let slip by which you shall have him forever on the hip. He that hath ears let him hear: Robert Sterling Yard, publisher of books, and editor of the Century Magazine, has spoken. He owns up that the publisher is "a shrewd, keen-witted, far-sighted, many-sided business man, he is an enthusiastic cultivator of literature for its own sake, he is an ardent encourager and helper of artistic effort for the sake of the man that he is; he is at times a preacher, at times a self-sacrificing teacher, and many times—at heart always, perhaps—a gay gambler, keenly enjoying the winning and accepting the outrageous fortune with a grin. If the burden of odds is against him, and the margin of possible gain one that a plain business man would dismiss as ridiculous, what's the difference? To him alone the game is worth a gross of candles."

The chapter on publisher and author is indeed photographic. The aching heart of the would-be poet is held up to the public gaze—as gently as possible, to be sure. And we ought to be thankful that humor, with her saving grace, treads so closely upon the heels of tragedy. Some facts concerning the business end of the first book, as compared with the established seller, are also set forth. Mr. Yard has quite a bit to say, too, about the literary agent. But the present reviewer can vouch for the fact that what he says is not quite accurate concerning the uncertainties of the continued favor of the agent with both author and publisher, having knowledge of a literary bureau in New York conducted for some time at great financial profit, and selling out its name and clientage at a round figure. Publishers sent clients to this bureau. Publishers and magazines sent to this bureau for short stories, articles and serials. Well-known and unknown authors alike patronized this thriving literary press. There was more work on hand than could be attended to. What was the secret of it? The making of the very best kind of a reputation, and the living up to it—of never making promises to clients which could not be fulfilled. One does not need to make such promises in order to secure success, if he has the mental equipment for his business. Mr. Yard's statement, therefore, that "the literary agent does not thrive in America upon commissions from American authors," can be easily disproved.

Mr. Yard cautions the author to pursue his career as a business as well as an art. "Art for art's sake is an excellent motto for a great genius, a great protagonist or a dilettante with an income; but art for business' sake accomplishes the progress of the world." There you have it in a nutshell, Mr. Author.

ECHOES OF THE WAR.

REMINISCENCES OF A REBEL. By Wayland Fuller Dunaway, D.D. Neale Publishing Company, New York.

THE "Reminiscences of A Rebel" is another of those vivid chronicles told by a man who served through the furious War of the Rebellion. Dr. Dunaway was formerly captain of a Virginia regiment and served where the bullets flew thickest. The book is not so full of personal episodes as of the movements of the armies and the strategy of Mars's game. It is written almost without adjectives—being a remarkably unbiased story of the part the author and the armies concerned played.

Sir Gilbert Parker.

His latest novel, "The Judgment House," has been one of the season's "best sellers."

SCHOOLMASTER POLITICS.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE. By Hiram Bingham. Yale University Press, New Haven, Conn.

THIS is a volume calculated to dazzle the reader by its ready exploitation of figures, statistics and jingoistic press articles, and to carry the hoi polloi with it because of a certain amount of brilliancy in the handling of its subject matter, and the setting forth as fact certain misleading statements containing the modicum of truth which gives the author his opportunity. Mr. Bingham characterises the Monroe doctrine as "an obsolete shibboleth." He claims that it was incipiently an error when President James Monroe, "under the influence of his able Secretary of State, John Quincy Adams, first enunciated it, and that it has led to mistakes throughout every administration that has followed, down to the present time, in the conduct of our country's foreign policy. The author states that all Latin-America is in a state of resentment toward the United States because of this policy; that the southern republics feel that it is an insult to their dignity, and that because of it other foreign nations are given preference in mercantile and other matters over the "Yanki." He cites the fact that the majority of the foreign vessels that touch South American ports are under every flag—particularly those of Germany and Japan—excepting the Stars and Stripes. They come, he asserts, where the American flag has never been unfurled. But he does not state that the majority of these merchantmen, flying foreign flags, are in truth really American vessels, which have been registered in foreign ports because of exorbitant rates and other almost impossible difficulties imposed by our own government before the American merchantman may operate.

The author states that there is a little concealed hostility among Argentina, Brazil, Chili and others of the South American republics toward us because of certain episodes which were made possible in the name of the Monroe doctrine. The Spanish-American War—in which Porto Rico and the Philippines became American possessions—farther back the California and Texas matters, the settling of certain disputes about boundaries, and finally, the transaction which made the Panama Canal a possibility, and helped to rid fever-ridden zones of their dangers—for these and many more sins which Mr. Bingham lays to the Monroe Doctrine he brands us as "un-American." He triumphantly points to the exportation of meat and wheat from Argentina exceeding our own exportations—presumably as a point of superiority—without mention of the fact of our infinitely greater population, which might argue that we need meat and wheat at home to a degree that it is not needed in Argentina, and a good many other points in economics that must be considered in making comparisons.

We will finish by repeating the assertion of many who have spent years in the southern republics, that the American citizen or official is there treated with a distinction all his own, and that the Latin-American realizes in full measure the protection that the Monroe Doctrine has been to the life of his country.

ADMISSIONS OF GREATNESS.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT: AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY. Macmillan Company, New York.

ALMOST anything that Mr. Roosevelt writes is interesting. Even his messages to Congress made delightful reading and his autobiography does not fall short of expectations—that is, as a piece of literature. There are many things that he hurriedly passes over, as for instance, the recent campaign with the Progressive party, and there are many things that he dwelt on at great length, as the part he played in the Spanish War.

Mr. Roosevelt has very frankly admitted that he was a wonderful and great man in each of the many activities that he identified himself with since leaving the cradle. The book is more like a political document than a fair attempt to tell all about himself. Out of respect for the intelligence of his readers he should at least have admitted once or twice that he was in the wrong on some one of the innumerable matters that came to his attention and on which he expressed positive opinions and took decided actions. But not so.

Mr. Roosevelt admits that Senator Platt made him Governor of New York, but adds that he made things so warm for Senator Platt that the boss was anxious to make him vice-President to get rid of him as Governor. Mr. Roosevelt also explains that he allowed the steel trust to absorb the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company to prevent a panic, and to quiet the market.

He praises himself, Perkins, Heney, [illegible], and a few others of the "faithful," but sneers at Mr. Taft, uses the appendix to wallop President Wilson, and goes into elaborate detail to explain that as President he did not "usurp power . . . but greatly broadened the use of Executive power."

The book is interesting. It is well written and profusely illustrated, but there never was a human being who could be so utterly good, righteous, humane and godlike as Theodore Roosevelt has represented himself to have been since that far-distant day when as a youngster he bit his little [illegible]. That, and that bite alone was the only wrong thing he ever did—by his own tacit admission.

SHADOWS OF CALIFORNIA.

THE OLD SPANISH MISSIONS OF CALIFORNIA. By Paul Elder. Paul Elder, San Francisco.

THE history of the old Spanish missions in California has at last been written in a book that does them justice. Complete, beautifully illustrated, and done into print to please the connoisseur, the volume is the finest on the subject that has been published.

Mr. Elder makes no claim for credit in personal research or original opinion. So much of value has been written during the past few years that he has collected the choicest and placed it in a book that will insure their preservation. Eighty-eight illustrations are presented, all of them representing the best of photographic art.

The following incident is related in connection with the San Gabriel Mission: "On the tenth of August Father Pedro Cambon and Father Angel Somera, guarded by ten soldiers, with muleteers and beasts requisite to carry the necessaries, set out from San Diego and traveled northerly by the same route as the former expedition to Monterey had gone. After traveling about forty leagues they arrived at a river called Temblores; and while they were in the act of examining the ground in order to fix a proper site for the mission, a multitude of Indians, all armed and headed by two captains, presented themselves, setting up horrid yells and seeming determined to oppose the establishment of the mission. The fathers, fearing that war would ensue, took out a piece of cloth with the image of Our Lady de los Dolores and held it up to the view of the barbarians. This was no sooner done than the whole were quiet, being subdued by the sight of this most precious image" they threw their arms on the ground and acknowledged themselves as ready to serve the fathers in any way.

Twenty-one missions—those white shrines cast upon the fertile land by the Holy Church—are given a place in the history, and all are presented with interesting and romantic detail.

THE PULSE OF MUSIC.

SYMPHONIES AND THEIR MEANING. By Philip H. Goepp. J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

PHILIP H. GOEPP'S "Symphonies and Their Meaning" is a critical work on one phase of music, singularly appropriate to our present needs at the opening of the orchestral concert season. This volume—the third of a series—completes the whole survey of classical symphonies.

Because modern symphonic composition has somewhat fallen in esteem, predictions of its decadence are frequently heard. But since symphonies may well be compared to epics in literature it is but natural that they should follow the same rule that other method of utterance and has had its eras of expression and of favor.

In his quite impartial work Philip Goepp deals with those symphonies that seem to him types representing national musical tendencies of the present day rather than individual [illegible].

In a volume of 356 pages it would have been impossible to have included all the symphonies that have shown the tendencies of every country. While some names that personal taste would like to have seen included—Chausson in France, [illegible] in Russia, Foote in America—are missing, the chief agents in the development of the modern symphony are given place, their works treated with clearness and sympathetic understanding, in a manner helpful to the musical student.

[illegible], Liszt, Saint-Saens, Cesar [illegible] D'Indy, Debussy, Tschaikowsky, [illegible], Bruckner and Strauss are given prominent and well-deserved parts in the development of the modern symphony, together with [illegible] and Martucci representing Italian influence. An interesting and well-prepared chapter deals with "Symphonies in America," citing Hadley's "Symphony No. 3, B [illegible]," Loeffler's "The Devil's [illegible]" and compositions by Gustave [illegible] and Chadwick.

TO THE STUDIOUS.

STUDY OF LITERATURE. By F. H. Pearson. [illegible] & Co., Chicago.

THERE is nothing pretentious in Mr. Pearson's book. It was written to help the student judge literature, and ably written. To the one who is curious to find out why works of certain authors are [illegible] and others are ignored, it is Strindberg: Genius or Lunatic?

THE PARADOX.

AUGUST STRINDBERG. By L. Lind-Af-Hageby. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

STRINDBERG—the savage dreamer, the iconoclastic idealist, the misogamistic victim of gyneolatry, the religious fanatic, the scornful eater of sacrament, the scientist who first of all men found carbon in sulphur, the last of the alchemists to search for the philosopher's stone, the heavy-treading giant who wrecked the theological conventions of Sweden, the ethereal spiritualist who reached from his death bed to pick up a Bible and died with the words: "This alone is right"—that same Strindberg continues still to be the puzzling mystery that mortal analysists cannot fathom. "Was he genius or lunatic?" they ask. He came near being both at the same time.

Strindberg wrote 115 novels and dramas, and not one-fifth of the number is familiar to English readers. Most of them have not been translated. They are what Mr. Comstock calls "shocking." During his lifetime he taught many different doctrines and lived them all. He was at one time a coarse sensualist; again he was a spiritual mystic. He never repented, he never reformed. He simply changed.

All of his women are horrible creatures. He had nothing pleasant for them. They were either immoral, avaricious, unscrupulous, weak, or pitiless—sometimes all of that—and yet he married three times, was divorced each time, and had innumerable affairs of the heart. He scorned women in his stories and succumbed to the first feminine smile that greeted him.

Strindberg wrote play after play during his younger days without getting one accepted. He went on the stage ambitious to be an actor, but insisted on having a leading role or nothing. He starved and caroused; studied medicine and wrote dramas.

His childhood and youth is pathetically described in "The Bondwoman's Son," the first of a series of autobiographical novels which terminates in "Alone," where, in mature age, he is wrapped in mystical visions. The other novels in the series are "Fermentation Time," "In the Red Room" and "The Author." His school life was such that he regarded it as preparation for the torture of hell. And yet he was a marvelous student. He learned languages easily, he could paint, he knew music, and he was a deep student of science.

Strindberg loved alcohol, although he was not a drunkard, and on several occasions when he became disheartened by perpetual disappointment, he would announce to his friends that soon he was to kill himself. And they, with the wisdom born of experience, would propose a parting drink and in the orgy that followed Strindberg forgot all disappointments.

He had a rebellious contempt for current morals and respectability, and in book after book made onslaught against conventional religion. Once he was tried for sacrilege, his books were confiscated, ministers thundered against him, but stronger and stronger grew his influence. His dramas were so tragic, so horrible in doctrine and theme that managers would not present them, and he was compelled to build a theater of his own.

At one time he was seized with an insane belief that all persons were plotting against his life, and for months lived in terror. At length the spell passed and he returned to Sweden to find himself suddenly grown popular. Shortly before his death, (May, 1912,) a great demonstration was held in his honor, a parade passed before his house on his birthday and cheers for him rang against the welkin, and that night managers vied with each other in presenting his plays.

All of those things, the author, Mr. Lind-Af-Hageby, has presented with interesting detail. His book is a study of the man and his work, and no effort is made to classify him according to the manner of the literary entomologists. The author naturally believes that Strindberg was a great man, but fails to be partisan in presenting the unwholesome side of his life.

"Yes, do you send me a book . . . not a bargain book bought from a haberdasher, but a beautiful book, a book to caress—peculiar, distinctive, individual: a book that hath first caught your eye and then pleased your fancy; written by an author with a tender whim, all right out of his heart. We will read it together in the gloaming, and when the gathering dusk doth blur the page, we'll sit with hearts too full for speech and think it over."
—[Dorothy Wordsworth to Coleridge.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY.

THE MOTHER AND THE CHILD. By Norman Barnesby. Mitchell Kennerley, New York.

DR. BARNESBY'S book was written to instruct. He is without fads, and advances sane reasoning to cover the matter considered. He calls attention to a fact that seems to have been lost sight of in many homes, that is that motherhood is perfectly natural. He explains the care needed and the exercise that would be beneficial for the expectant mother and deals with the care of the child from the time of its birth until it has become a youngster—that is, 3 or 4 years old.

His good right hand is raised against amateur nurses for babies, and he fixes the responsibility for many of the ills that come to babies on the meddling and officiousness of nurses who do not know their business.

A large part of the book is taken up with a discussion of children's diseases, and a chapter is devoted to eugenics.

He calls attention to the fact that children are greatly affected by their environments and insists that only the most beautiful pictures should be allowed on the walls—but not until the young ones are old enough to recognize their beauty, and that at all times the child should be surrounded with comfort and beauty.

TERRIBLE MEN.

LOUIS XI AND CHARLES THE BOLD. By Lieut.-Col. Andrew C. P. Haggard. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.

Col. Haggard, a brother of Rider Haggard, the novelist, has presented the story of two of the greatest scoundrels who ever lived with a historian's accuracy. There is no occasion for using fiction in dealing with Louis, the able hypocrite, or Charles, the cruelly treacherous, unless one wishes to say something good of them. About the only compliment that may be paid to either of them is that they hated each other.

Louis began his career by attempting to overturn the throne of his father, Charles VII, whom Joan of Arc had rescued from oblivion and crowned. Being defeated, the Dauphin had taken refuge in Burgundy with the father of Charles.

When Louis became king upon the death of his father he entered in upon a series of plots that never ceased until his death, and by means of which, with bribery, he united France. Burgundy was almost a rival kingdom, and Charles was a ferocious and skillfull warrior, but diplomatically he was no match for "Universal Spider," as Louis was known.

Louis would not fight a battle unless he had to fight; he preferred to bribe traitors, to make treaties that could be broken, and to evade actual warfare by every means possible, but with all of that he was no coward. He worked himself into many tight places and out again, as when he visited Charles and was made a prisoner, despite the promises of that fellow. Louis made a treaty that pleased the gullible Charles and escaped.

Col. Haggard takes up those points in this place, gives interesting details to enliven the chapters. He begins by presenting the conditions in France when Louis and Charles were born, and follows their long and bitter struggle until the death of Charles on a bridge over the Moselle, and the death of Louis a few years later after he had accomplished his worthy purposes by unscrupulous means—he had unified France.

The George H. Doran Company has added to its Popular Art Gift Book series: "The Snow Queen, and Other Stories"—Hans Anderson; Shakespeare's Comedy of "As You Like It," "The Merchant of Venice," "The Chimes" and "A Christmas Carol." The object has been to present beautiful books at popular prices.

Books are not made for furniture, but there is nothing else that so beautifully furnishes a house . . . Give us a house furnished with books rather than furniture.
—[Henry Ward Beecher.

Religion in the Pillory.

THE BIBLE DOUBTED.

THE INSIDE OF THE CUP. By Winston Churchill. The Macmillan Company, New York.

HERE is the text about which Mr. Churchill's novel is written: "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess."

The surprising thing is that a novel, or any other book, which attacks religion with the arguments used should attract attention. It seems passing strange that critics should hail it as an "epoch-making" book, one of the leading magazines even going so far as to rate its importance with that of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It deals with the literal acceptance of the Bible, doubts the virginity of Mary and calls attention to the hypocrisy of wealthy parishioners, and attempts an analysis of the so-called waning influence of the church.

Hegel almost a hundred years ago, Renan, almost fifty years ago, and Ingersoll a generation ago raised more convincing doubts than Mr. Churchill and nobody has made any particular fuss over it since. The arguments in "The Inside of the Cup" are old, archaic. The conscience of the public seems to have just awakened to the fact that it can't be comfortable and blindly trust the Lord, and so Mr. Churchill puts religion in the pillory and all of us good Christians are expected to take sides in a melee to see whether or not the author is right. In the meantime the book is selling at the rate of 2000 copies per day in New York alone. It is one of the dullest books that we have ever read. Only the superb art of Mr. Churchill keeps it from being dry as a tract on baptism by Alexander Campbell.

It deals with an Episcopalian minister's alleged awakening to the realization that the Bible is not infallible, that there is a reasonable doubt as to who was the father of Christ, that hypocrites make good church members, that the poor don't want religion preached to them, that it is not right for people to live together after they cease to love—a heretical belief for an Episcopalian.

The story begins by bringing Hodder to St. John's because he is supposed to be ultra-conservative. He deplores the poverty of the big city (obviously Chicago;) suddenly realized that decorous families seek his church because it is fashionable; then comes Alison Parr, the daughter of the multi-millionaire parishioner and Miss Parr is also forcefully unconventional and something of an anarchist. The arguments that she makes are only fit for fiction. Mr. Churchill is plainly in love with her character, and the weakness of the book is apparent in the speeches that she makes, for she plainly is the mouthpiece of the author. Hodder permits himself to be greatly astonished at her keen analysis when she says that had her family lived during the time of Christ, they would have thought Him a [illegible] person.

Mr. Churchill's book is written on the premise that religion today is supported by hypocrites. He blames the church for not solving the great problems of poverty, almost blames it for not accepting Socialism. He is for the gospel of individualism—freedom and all that sort of thing, which is well enough, but by no means offers a solution to all the trouble for which the church is held more or less responsible. As for a literal, figurative or intermediary interpretation of the Bible—that is a matter of faith and if any person chooses to believe that the whale swallowed Jonah, that the sun stopped for Josiah, or that Jesus was born of a Virgin mother I fail to see why that disqualifies such a person from respect. It is a matter of faith; five generations ago all of our fathers believed it. Most of us do not. And the reasons for not believing, as before remarked, have been extant for over thirty years, and the world plodded along. Now comes Mr. Churchill with some of those reasons rehashed and done into a novel and the country—people, papers and pulpits—promptly grow frenzied reading and discussing it.

The Rev. Mr. Hodder starts out by refusing to officiate at the marriage of a girl who has been divorced. He winds up by telling the woman whom he loves—Alison—that it is wrong to live together without loving. He starts out by believing that the goodness of philanthropy consists in the size of the gift, and winds up by believing that it consists in the effect of the gift—a theory even worse than the former for obviously the donor cannot guarantee the spirit in which recipients of favors receive them.

Mr. Churchill's viewpoint, as expressed by Alison when she and Hodder discuss their coming marriage ("I don't feel that we really need the marriage service, since God has already joined us together") shows the all the error, all of the mistake and misunderstanding in the book is in—though the conscious effort is made to have it so—on the part of religion. The sincerity of the author is not questioned; no one would write so [illegible] a book if he were not feverish in sincerity, but the arguments are not strong. Religion as a whole is not as the author has described it and the Episcopalians, the most orthodox of the Protestant creeds, at whom the book is aimed, make up a very small portion of the population so that it would not be so very significant a matter if Mr. Churchill's book were true.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

Wanton ugliness is intolerable at all times; it is execrable when inflicted on children. The books that are given them should be filled with sweet, joyful stories and illustrated by pleasant, beautiful pictures. "Moral points" have no place in books for children; such things should be left for philosophers who need them. The child, if it is a normal, healthful, promising youngster will break every moral lesson heaped on it just to assert its independence. Let the story be enjoyable, natural—fairy tales are the most natural of all—let the visions be rare and sparkling for such things make children happy. There was once a time when grotesque, frightful, hideous creatures in picture books were considered the proper things with which to entertain. The grown-up idiots, usually their parents, took pleasure in seeing the little ones frightened by the ugly visage of the "gian that Jack killed," or "the old witch," or other useless characters. There is no need to make such things beautiful, but there is no need of creating them after the imagery of man in the throes of insanity.

"Our Old Nursery Rhymes," by Alfred Moffat. Published by David McKay, Philadelphia.

One of the prettiest books of the year for children. The bars of the nursery rhymes are arranged for children; the illustrations are beautiful—the credit therefore belonging to H. Willebeek Le Mair.

"Ballads of the Be-Ba-Boes," by D. K. Stevens. Published by Houghton-Mifflin Company, New York.

Therein are contained the musical chronicles of a peculiar little people whose rotund bodies have no legs, but their faces have a sweet and lovable countenance. They visit the world and have many pictures to show the "sights they saw."

"Little Wars," by H. G. Wells. Published by Small, Maynard & Co., Boston.

The above book outlines a game for boys. It has over twenty illustrations of miniature battlefields and many other drawings. The game has an element of science—similar to checkers, and may be played by groups on a side.

"The Capers of Benjy and Barbie," by Agnes McClelland Daulton. Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York.

The story of children is always interesting. This too is an interesting story, written for children. It deals with the "adventures" and experiences of two little tots who are like all other tots and, having an amazingly good time with the commonplace things which we grown-ups disdain to notice.

"The Railroad Book," by E. Boyd Smith. Published by Houghton-Mifflin Company, New York.

Bob and Betty take a trip on the train and have a great time. There are many pictures in color by the author, and faithful chronicles of all that happens as they come West.

Bdwy. 1995. 1026 Union Oil Bldg.

MOTHER GOOSE IN HOLLAND. Illustrated by May Audubon Post. George W. Jacobs & Co.

Mother Goose rhymes—always new, for they are among the things that never grow old—fill the volume accompanied by delightful pictures done in black and white by Miss Post.

THIS YEAR'S BOOK FOR BOYS. (Collected Stories.) George H. Doran, New York (American publishers for Hodder & Stoughton.)

The book is beautifully illustrated in color, and contains the best stories by many prominent writers for boys.

YOUNG AMERICA PAINTING BOOK. (Copyrighted by Platt & Peck Company.)

This is something entirely new. A book with colors attached which the reader may spread out to suit the fancy, and if the illustrations are not pleasing only the artist can do the blaming.

CHILDREN'S STORIES THAT NEVER GROW OLD. Illustrated by John R. Neill. Reilly & Britton Company, Chicago.

These are stories for little folk such as you and I and all the rest of the grown-up world read and loved in the days gone by. "Little Red Riding Hood," "Cinderella," "Dick Whittington and His Cat" and, "bestest" of all, "Jack and the Bean Stalk."

HUBBARD DE LUXE.

THE COMPLETE WRITINGS OF ELBERT HUBBARD. The Roycroft Shop, East Aurora, N. Y.

BREATHES there a man who ever put a pen to paper and did not roast Elbert Hubbard? Perhaps. If so, he deserves a medal for being greater than he who taketh a city—not for withholding his derogatory opinion, but for controlling his impulses.

Hubbard has been called a poseur, a demagogue, a mercenary scribbler, a hack de luxe and a lot of other things which fit him. But the fact still remains that at some time in our lives we all liked him more or less. Hubbard steals ideas by the armful and laughs when he gets caught, but doesn't he polish them up and sell them to the public, and doesn't the public enjoy them? And if Hubbard hadn't stole them the public would probably never have heard of them.

Elbert Hubbard is an entertaining writer and with all of his weaknesses he has done much good, little, if any wrong. He was at one time a great stimulant to a large class; he gave things to think about—no matter where he got the things, he gave them to the public. More than any other man he deserves credit for causing the average reader to be familiar with the names and lives of great and famous persons to whose homes he made "little journeys." These pamphlets were tremendously popular for a period of several years. They were a sort of sugar-coated information pill that were worth many times the money. Of course, no one who knows much about the subject of which Hubbard writes wants to read his version. That is the reason he suffers from almost national ingratitude: He interested people in things of which they knew nothing, they studied and found how little Hubbard knew, and so developed a supercilious contempt for his writings.

His "complete writings" will be interesting curiosities of any well-appointed library. They perhaps represent the greatest amount that was ever written on superficial knowledge—and what is a justification for it all of it is well written.

THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

TOBY. By Elizabeth B. [illegible]

TOBY is a dog. And the author has told one of the finest animal stories that has come into print for many, many days. They are always good stories to tell if one knows how, and "Black Beauty" is as valuable today as it was a decade or more ago when we were all anxious to read it.

The story has the doubtful merit of being true. It has the more positive merit of being extremely well written and interesting. It deals with Toby from babyhood (when she came as a gift to a sick lady) to death some fifteen years later.

HUNTING BIG SEA GAME.

A YEAR WITH A WHALER. By Walter Noble Burns. Outing Publishing Company, New York.

THE realm of the imagination has been plundered until authors are beginning to tell the truth. Why the truth should have any [illegible] an interesting story is not plain to some of us. The only thing is that in telling the truth one tells of personal experiences, experiences so varied, so remarkable that the reader could not picture them. Mr. Burns seemed to realize that and shipped as a "greenhorn" on a whaler for a year and collected experiences which he has placed between the covers of the book.

It is a remarkable story—not at all spectacular, but interesting, [illegible] in detail the happenings, [illegible] pleasure of the life experienced. Those of us who look at the [illegible] breath of vision cannot fail to appreciate the chronicles of one who buffeted the waves, played tag with icebergs, shot walrus and chased whales for the privilege of being himself and of coming back to civilization to tell us about it.

ly in love with her character, and the weakness of the book is apparent in the speeches that she makes, for she plainly is the mouthpiece of the author. Hodder permits himself to be greatly astonished at her keen analysis when she says that had her father lived during the time of Christ, he would have thought Him a seditious person.

Mr. Churchill's book is written on the premise that religion today is supported by hypocrites. He blames the church for not solving the great problems of poverty, almost blames it for not accepting Socialism. His is the gospel of individualism—freedom and all that sort of thing, which is well enough, but by no means offers a solution to all the trouble for which the church is held more or less responsible. As for a literal, figurative or intermediary interpretation of the Bible—that is a matter of faith and if a person chooses to believe that the whale swallowed Jonah, that the sun stopped for Josiah, or that Jesus was born of a Virgin mother I fail to see why that disqualifies such a person from respect. It is a matter of faith; five generations ago all of our fathers believed it. Most of us do not. All the reasons for not believing, as before remarked, have been extant for over thirty years, and the world plodded along. Now comes Mr. Churchill with some of those reasons rehashed and done into a novel and the country—people, papers and pulpit—promptly grow frenzied reading and discussing it.

The Rev. Mr. Hodder starts out by refusing to officiate at the marriage of a girl who has been divorced. He winds up by telling the woman whom he loves—Alison—that it is wrong to live together without loving. He starts out by believing that the goodness of philanthropy consists in the size of the gift, and winds up by believing that it consists in the effect of the gift—a theory even worse than the former for obviously the donor cannot guarantee the spirit in which recipients of favors receive them.

Mr. Churchill's viewpoint, as expressed by Alison when she and Hodder discuss their coming marriage ("I don't feel that we really need the marriage service, since God has already joined us together") shows that all the error, all of the mistakes and misunderstanding in the book is not—though the conscious effort is made to have it so—on the part of religion. The sincerity of the author is not questioned; no one would write so dreary a book if he were not feverish with sincerity, but the arguments are not strong. Religion as a whole is not as the author has described it and the Episcopalians, the most orthodox of the Protestant creeds, at whom the book is aimed, make up a very small portion of the population so that it would not be so very significant a matter if Mr. Churchill's book were true.

as you and I and all the rest of the grown-up world read and loved in the days gone by. "Little Red Riding Hood," "Cinderella," "Dick Whittington and His Cat" and, "bestest" of all, "Jack and the Bean Stalk."

Books of Poetry and Drama.

LUST DEFENDED.

APHRODITE AND OTHER POEMS. By John Helston. The Macmillan Company, New York.

GENIUS is much like an exotic flower that springs forth, a prodigy of color, among the drab and poisonous wilds of a jungle. Chatterton died a poor, starved youth; Keats was a stable boy and Bobby Burns was a plowman—John Helston, a year ago, was an engineer's mate with horny hands. Now he stands among the classical living poets, and he is the champion and defender of lust!

"Aphrodite at Leatherhead" is not exactly the sort of a poem that one would expect to see win sudden popularity although it has a "Venus and Adonis" situation to make it immortal.

First, let us consider the answer that the poet made to those who accused him of impurity in "Aphrodite." He says:

"[illegible] desire degraded is a thing
[illegible] might bring a very god to shame;
[illegible] love is lovelier for its lust; as [illegible]
[illegible] not makes a harlot of, the [illegible]

. . . .

[illegible] who requites the spirit of his [illegible]
[illegible] ignominy—sends that spirit forth
[illegible] shameful death, not joyous peace and strife
[illegible] help make harlots while he robs his wife."

The poet goes for a stroll and suddenly comes upon the goddess of love who is praised by the birds and served by the flowers:

"All these did praise her of their own accord,
While all around was heard,
[illegible] foam-gales tender over day and night,
The mystery of love's most precious word,
[illegible]'s foam-flung 'Aphrodite.'
All white she was, but as the foam of May [illegible] on apple orchards under [illegible]"

The poet says that those who [illegible]—

"[illegible] dreams, wherein a woman plays her part,
Where mingled in some supreme [illegible],
[illegible] blood accelerates the heart of God
Who has loved greatly has more greatly lived
Than those for whom is life a market place."

The poet addresses the radiant goddess and she answers him, and, the pagan that he is! Mr. Helston [illegible] conventions with these satiric lines:

. . . .

"And I went to her: We were all alone;
And very real and near my lady smiled,
And very far away had all things gone
With love's own lonely landscapes reconciled
[illegible] hardly. Now a shade of April [illegible]
[illegible] murmur through the kisses of the sun
[illegible] our coming, and a choir of birds
[illegible] all at once old Hymen's morning hymn . . .
I did not see there any Cherubim
With flaming swords, or flaming fiddlesticks,
To frighten folk away with firework tricks,
And all the snakes were silent that were there
Save those soft golden ones—my lady's hair."

The poet and the goddess spend many hours in love-making and then he awakes from his dream, hears the whistle of a train and forthwith rises and sets out along the dusty road toward London town.

Helston has the poet's gift of expression, but he has the novice's habit of capitalizing words for emphasis in a manner that insults the intelligence of his readers.

THE SAILOR'S SONGSTER.

SALT WATER BALLADS. John Masefield. The Macmillan Company, New York.

STRONG and fresh as the ocean breezes are the poems by John Masefield. They sing:

"Not of the princes and prelates with periwigged charioteers,
Riding triumphantly laurelled to lap the fat of the years—
Rather the scorned—the rejected—the men hemmed in with the spears."

Masefield shot out of obscurity almost in a night. But not by the work of a night. He lived the rough life of the sailors, he mingled with them on the wharfs and drank their rum in the taverns some twenty years ago and wrote the poems and ballads that now come to us. Why he should have waited so long before seeking publicity none know, except that with the modesty of genius he shunned the gaze of other men.

Every line, every phrase of his poems is strong, and most of it written in the rough dialect of the seaman. This is a tense bit of description from "One of the Bo'sun's Yarns:"

"And a week or so of dippin' around in a wind from outer hell,
With a fathom or more of broken sea at large in the forrad well,
Till our boats were bashed and bust and broke and gone to Davy Jones,
And then come white Atlantic fog as chilled us to the bones."

This from "Sea-Fever:"

"I must go down to the sea again, to the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by,
And the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the white sail shaking,
And a gray mist on the sea's face and a gray dawn breaking."

"A Song at Parting" is not without a gruesome quality, but it has a strong appeal. This is from it:

"I have lived my life: I have spilt the wine that God the Maker gave,
So carry me up to the lonely hill and lay me in the grave,
And cover me with cleanly mould and old and lichened stones,
In a place where ever the cry of the wind shall thrill my sleepy bones."

Masefield has that in his verse which cannot be simulated; an earnestness that comes with conviction; and he sings the sad music of the commonplace.

THE DEATH OF FEAR.

THE FALL OF THE UG. By Rufus Steele. John Howell, San Francisco.

IN THE shadows of the great Sequoias on the banks of the Russian River, attended by the witchery of music and enhanced by a myriad lights, "The Fall of Ug" was presented by the Bohemian Club of San Francisco a few months ago. The grove play offers a solemn occasion; it is an unconscious reversion to that anterior period when awesome spectacles were presented to the sacred god. That clubmen should do more to perpetuate the pure classic drama than any other one organization in the United States is a paradox.

Without reservation let it be said that "The Fall of Ug" is a fine play. It was written for the Bohemian grove, and may not well be adapted to the stage, but the book stands, and parts of it swing far out into the excellent; its symbolism is beautiful, and so perfect as to have no need of mysticism—that cloak of mediocrity.

Roughly the plot deals with the worship of a huge stone idol, Ug. Every year one out of several of the bravest youths in the land are chosen as a sacrifice to placate the ferocious god with whom mortals have made a compact so that Ug will but lightly sink his beak into the hearts of men. The story goes that if ever Ug is defied by one unafraid that he will be tumbled from his place where he bars the path to heaven. The Prince is chosen as the next victim. Aroused by Trip, the fairy, he defies Ug, and the monster falls. Heaven is opened to mankind.

The Prince is left to muse on his woeful situation while the priests and others go out to feast, and the Jester (who has been meddling with a wine bottle,) wobbles in and sings his song, of which this is the chorus:

"So fill up the bowl to the brim;
Let the flagon not balk at the rim.
The man who will sip
With a smirk of the lip
Is a man from whose hand
The good cup may well slip;
But the man who will swig hard we will bless—
He has lived and knows life is a mess,
He drinks if he dies for it,
Dying, he cries for it,
This be his prize for it—
Sweet forgetfulness!"

Trip, to prove to the Prince that Ug is harmless, flies to the shoulder of the monster and draws a suckling dove from a nest between the beak of Ug and, tossing the bird into the air and watching it fly away.

The priests return to offer up their sacrifice; the Prince breaks from their hands and springing aloft to the top of a rock ledge near-by, makes his prayer to heaven:

"O, God of Truth, where points the redwood hands,
Thy promise be established now in me!
Thy kingdom comes; Thy thunders vanquish fear;
Thy will is done; Thy lightnings rend fear's form;
Thy word unbars the path that leads to Thee;
Thy crystal dawn enwraps the reborn world,
And lights men's famished eyes to know Thy face!"

Furiously the thunders roll, the lightning strikes from the skies. Ug is seen to crumble and fall, and celestial beings are seen advancing down the path, beckoning to the men of the earth.

CLASSIC DRAMA.

MR. RICE is the most classic of the American dramatists; he does not truckle to the mob nor palliate the gallery gods; he writes with vividness and technic and seems to choose his plots because of their dramatic possibilities rather than to make people wonder what he meant. It is becoming fashionable to write dramas that need interpreting, and also fashionable for the author to refuse to do the interpreting.

"Porzia" sweeps us back to the days of Bruno, who is the friend of Rizzio Di Rossi, the husband of Porzia. Rizzio is inclined to heresy, and his brother, Oslo, being in love with Porzia, has him seized by the officers of the Inquisition and carried away just as the nuptial services are being finished.

Rizzio whispers to Porzia that he may be able to bribe the guards to allow him to return for a few minutes at midnight. Oslo sends word to Porzia that Rizzio is sure to come—and then he (Oslo) goes to her bed saying that if God allows him to do it that there will be nothing wrong in it.

A year passes, Porzia gives birth to a child which she detests even though believing that it is Rizzio's. Oslo tells her the truth and begs her to come to him; she is so horrified that she is taken desperately ill. Rizzio, in the meantime, is released from prison. He returns and learning of the child, which has died, believes that Porzia has been false.

The situation is finally cleared up by Porzia, who, talking in her sleep, reviews the circumstances of the midnight meeting when Rizzio was taken to prison. Rizzio gathers Porzia into his arms and no tragedy follows.

MUSE WOOER.

VESTIGIA. By Algernon Sydney Logan. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.

SUCH books are chiefly the reasons for the general belief that all of the good poets died long ago.

We can understand why, after a man wins greatness and dies, his boyhood rhapsodies are collected and published, but we cannot understand why one who has neither won fame nor even recognition should insert into a book of poems verse that has no other merit than that it was written by one too young to know better. Poetry is not judged by the age of the author.

In the poems of his more mature days Mr. Logan pays little attention to the technique of versification without having the radiance that wins pardon for his carelessness.

BRIGHT BEAMS OF VERSE.

MINIONS OF THE MOON. By Madison Cawein. Stewart & Kidd Company, Cincinnati.

THIS is a simple little volume of pleasing verse about fairies, flowers, clouds and sunshine.

This exquisite picture is taken from "Wood Dreams:"

"About the time when bluebells swing
Their elfin belfries for the bee
And in the fragrant house of spring
Wild music moves; and fantasy
Sits weaving webs of witchery:
And beauty's self in silence leans
Above the brook, and through her hair
Behold her face reflected there
And wonders what the vision means—
About the time when bluebells swing."

This is from "Rose and Redbird:"

"I had the strangest dream last night:
I dreamed the poppies, red and white,
That overrun the flower bed,
Changed to wee women, white and red,
Who, jeweled with the twinkling wet,
Joined hands and danced a minuet."

The volume is cleverly illustrated with fantastic pictures and contains about sixty poems.

LEGEND IN VERSE.

THE TOILING OF FELIX. By Henry Van Dyke. Scribner's, New York.

HENRY VAN DYKE is a poet. More than a half dozen years ago he wrote an "Ode to Music." Almost every one with poetic longings in their heart who has read the poem has wished they might have "thought of it first." In a beautiful edition we now have another poem from Dr. Van Dyke, whose poems, short stories and essays are, to use a feminine expression, "sweet," gracious and, what is not so rare as it used to be, cultured. All that perhaps sounds like a sissified expression of admiration, but while brutality and coarseness may sometimes have its place, likewise there is a welcome for those who can do their work without it.

The poem is based on the sayings of Jesus as recorded on a leaf of papyrus, written during the second or third century, recently discovered. The legend begins:

"Brother-in-men who look for Jesus, long to see him close and clear,
Hearken to the tale of Felix, how he found the Master near.
Born in Egypt, 'neath the shadows of the crumbling gods of night,
He forsook the ancient darkness, turned his young heart toward the light."

Felix seeks the Lord and goes forth to Egypt, and there a hermit reveals to him a saying of Christ, which is "Raise the stone, and thou shalt find me; cleave the wood, there am I."

With that Felix goes forth to labor.

"Every mason in the quarry, every builder on the shore,
Every chopper in the palm grove, every raftsman at the oar,
Hewing wood and drawing water, splitting stones and cleaving sod,
All the dusty ranks of labor, in the regiment of God."

In doing his duty and earning his bread Felix comes to the realization that he has come closer to Christ than he could in any other way.

"Envoy" tells us:

"The legend of Felix is ended, the toiling of Felix is done;
The master has paid him his wages, the goal of his journey is won."

PASSIONATE VERSE.

LOVE AND LIBERATION. By John Hall Wheelock. Sherman, French & Co., Boston.

"LOVE AND LIBERATION" is a a strong title for poetry. It sounds more like the name of some new novel from Ellen Key. Being passionate verse it has to be of exceptional high quality to keep from stumbling into the ludicrous. Almost anyone can write narrative poetry; with practice anyone can do the philosophic stuff, but when it comes to the fine frenzy of love the ambitious rhymester must wing his fancy toward the Pleiades and yet, unlike Icarus, keep far enough away from the sun (the sun "means realism" in this little symbolism) not to have his feathers singed. Most poets who want to sing of "love and liberation" would put their muse in a harem skirt or a diaphanous gown—they would be altogether too vulgar.

Mr. Wheelock is a better poet than he think he is, else he would not confine his efforts to the musical little jingles. He has used the narrow meter of three and four feet to write beautiful lyrics, which is well enough for a time, but continued through a volume makes the reader think of the old Saxon poets who considered alliteration and acrostic as the height of versification. I can recall but three great poems that have ever been written in jingle meter: Hood's "Bridge of Sighs" and Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Goal" and Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner." To write in the three feet stanzas is like running a race in hobbles—it may be done, but not so gracefully as when a wider stride is allowed.

"The night with her myriad tapers
Hung high in the heaven's height
Is lit for our bridal chamber,
A chamber for our delight.
Till the last torch flicker and vanish,
Come, let us dwell evermore,
Love-drunken, sleepless and weary,
Till daylight unbar the door!"

Contrast those lines with these:

"You have given me life,
You have given me joy,
You have given me peace
No sorrow can destroy."

That sort of stuff is not poetry. Those, I undertake to say, are the worst four lines in Mr. Wheelock's volume. There is too much the same sort that could be eliminated without being missed, for one who can write like this should not have freshman verse in his works:

"Night looked forth from the tower of morning
O'er the flowery lands,
She took the young and sickle moon
For a scimitar in her hands,
And drove the stars along the sky
Like little wanton foes—
She saw not t'was her lover the sun
Who slew them as he rose."

Even the imperfection of the seventh line fails to spoil the picture.

LIFE ANALYZED.

POEMS AND BALLADS. By Hermann Hagedorn. The Macmillan Company, New York.

MR. HAGEDORN'S more pretentious poems are good, yet far inferior to the excellent little gems of verse even he is apt to fail to appreciate. Long poems are most frequently poor in spots, and while all of Mr. Hagedorn's is qualifiedly good, this, from "Broadway," is splendid:

"How like the stars are these white, nameless faces!
These far innumerable burning coals!
This pale process out of stellar spaces,
This milky way of souls!
Each in his own bright nebulae enfurled,
Each face, dear God, a world!"

That is one of the finest bits of verse we have seen from a contemporary.

This is taken from "Death and the Lord:"

"Death touched the winter's arm, and spoke:
'Faith, yo! are pleasing in my sight.
A thousand of this beggar-folk
Knocked at my iron gate last night.'"

This comes from "Music at Twilight:"

"Twilight, and now the day
Ends as the day began—
Purple and gold for the heart,
Stars for the soul of man.
Dusk saw the toil begin,
Dusk sees the toil fulfilled—
Now let there be music and song
Till the fevered blood be stilled.
Not passionate thunders of sound,
Nor statelier measures sage,
But the melodies borne on the lips
Of children from age to age."

Mr. Hagedorn writes with care; his meter is closely guarded and best of all he puts thought, deep, comprehensive thought into his verse.

ALASKAN POETRY.

THE MEN WHO BLAZE THE TRAIL. By Sam C. Dunham. Barse & Hopkins, New York.

THE introduction was written by Joaquin Miller shortly before his death, and among other complimentary things, says of Mr. Dunham: "His book shall live. . . . His work is clean. Bret Harte and many others, in dealing with these mighty modern Argonauts, have seen fit to sail, too often, very close to forbidden lands in literature. But Sam C. Dunham's work is entirely clean. It is strong and the most truthful poetry I ever read."

The expectations aroused by so stirring an introduction are not fulfilled. A good poet is not always a good judge of poetry—especially of the poetry of his friends—and with Joaquin Miller friendship came first of all things. He also styled Dunham as "The Poet Laureate of Alaska," which is preposterous as long as we have the work of Robert W. Service.

Dunham's work is strong, perhaps vital to those who have led the life he describes, but it is not remarkable poetry. The best in the volume is "The Goldsmith of Nome," which is the name of the richest creek in the Nome district because of a large rock on the top of a nearby mountain that resembles an anvil.

The Goldsmith speaks:

"Here I wrought throughout the ages,
By the silent, tideless sea,
Beating out my golden ingots
For the empire yet to be—
Watched the mighty strife of nature,
Heard the glacial millstones grind,
Marked the rise and fall of nations,
Timed the progress of mankind."

There runs throughout the volume an element of sincerity that is rare even in poetry. That quality may be accounted for by the fact that most of the verses were written in Alaska while the author was tending to official duties and experiencing all that is described.

STUDY OF LITERATURE.

THE GREATEST BOOKS IN THE WORLD. By Laura Spencer Porter. Houghton-Mifflin Company, New York.

ONLY once in a thousand years, it seems, does an able critic like Pater or Taine rise to notice, judge literature with discrimination, commit themselves to definite opinions and leave the world squabbling as to their accuracy. Such men are valuable; we may often think them wrong, but they are never uninteresting, and their efforts are beneficial. Laura Spencer Porter has undertaken a large task in discussing "The Greatest Books in the World," and her selection is rather unexpected. She does not defend her choice, but, woman-like, merely takes it for granted that such must be the case, and writes an interesting book, of especial value to the student who has not advanced far enough to scan the peaks of literature for himself. There is little that is new, being rather a favorable analysis for the benefit of the uninitiated.

The greatest books, in the author's opinion, are "The Odyssey," "The Divine Comedy," "Faust," "The Arabian Nights," "The Pilgrim's Progress," "The Book of Job" and "Don Quixote." Her classification would readily provoke a quarrel if bickerings and controversies were not out of fashion, for the champions of Plato, Sophocles, Spenser, Milton, Shakespeare and numerable others will not take kindly to seeing Bunyan and Goethe ranking their favorites.

There is nothing dogmatic in the studies of the author; it has obviously been her purpose to benefit rather than to convert, and in that she has succeeded admirably.

HANDBOOK OF CLASSICS.

THE BOOK OF THE EPIC. By H. A. Guerber. J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

THE epic treasures of all the ages have been gathered into one convenient volume by Mr. Guerber, who has long been recognized as an interesting and accurate authority on the mythology and legends of many lands. Naturally, the poems (William Morris said that each great epic was a Bible) have been condensed, and have lost their native radiance by the translation into laconic prose, but Mr. Guerber is the first to give all of the great epics in scenario, and, with no other aim than to give a luminous and accurate condensation, he has written what we believe will be recognized as the standard book on the subject for many years to come.

The value of Mr. Guerber's work may be better appreciated through the words of Hamilton Wright Mabie, who said: "It is in this vast, dim region of myth and legend the sources of literature of modern times are hidden, and it is only by returning to them, by constant remembrance that they drain a vast region of vital human experience, that the origin and early direction of that literature can be recalled."

The following epics, among others, are included: Greek, "Iliad" (Odyssey;) Latin, "Aeneid;" French, "The Song of Roland; Spanish, "The Cid;" Portuguese, "The Lusiad;" Italian, "Divine Comedy," "Jerusalem Delivered;" British, "Beowulf," "The Arthurian Cycle," "Faerie Queene," "Paradise Lost," "Paradise Regained;" German, "The Nibelungenlied;" Scandinavian, "Volsunga Saga;" Russian, "The Kelevala;" Indian, "The Ramayana," "The Mahabharata." Also are included the songs of the Balkans, Hebrews, Arabians, Chinese, Japanese and Americans.

The life—culture, habits, hopes and ambitions—of a people is always expressed in its poetry. In assembling the great poems of all the nations, one is privileged to look through a kaleidoscope of literature and see the changing fancies, fears, honor and courage that have been reflected from the different people of the different lands.

Love's Holy Hour

By Neander P. Cook.

Perhaps no book of recent years equals this powerful drama of an ideal marriage. The wooing of the almost saintly Beatrice is every woman's hope. Not less touching is the story of Leonore, the bride's mother, an uncrowned heroine with whom every mother weeps in secret when she tells of the pangs she feels in giving her daughter into another's keeping. And in the shadow stands Ragni, the outcast, victim of her lover's unfaithfulness, truly heroic in her suffering. Unique and pathetic, yet charming is Eunice, the unwooed and the unkissed. It is a strong book, refreshingly unlike any other, but still so sweet and delightful that it is the ideal gift book for young or old. Its appeal is universal. It will always be treasured. New edition 50c. On sale at Stratford & Green's, 642-644 S. Main St.

MARRIAGE MINUS LOVE.

THE WOMAN THOU GAVEST ME. By Hall Caine. J. P. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

HALL CAINE doesn't care what he writes about as long as he can develop unforeseen complications, compromise his characters and keep the reader guessing. From a financial standpoint it pays. But literature long ago became a trade where mechanics might be applied to fiction. "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" is a mechanical novel. With a foundation of a gross improbability he has built up a story that deals with a married woman's love for some one who is not her husband.

Mary O'Neill, the "leading lady," but by no means a heronie, tells her own story. As the child of an invalid mother and brutal father, she lived on the island of Ellan. Her youth is pathetic. No one loves her and no one gives her a kind word excepting the priest and Martin Conrad, who becomes her playmate.

All that is very good and offers possibilities. But the next move made by the author shows that his skill was less than his desire. While Mary admits that she knows the full significance of marriage she complacently allows her father to marry her to a disreputable young lord, and immediately after the wedding makes a noisy scene about the marital relations, rejects all advances on the part of her husband, and finally makes him promise to leave her alone until she learns to love him.

Mary soon throws herself headlong into the arms of a lover, a manly character, caught in the web of circumstances.

It seems highly probable that any woman who would make all the fuss and commotion that Mary did after her marriage because she did not love her husband, would, after acknowledging that she knew what marriage stood for, have something strenuous to say about it before the wedding ceremony.

Hall Caine is essentially dramatic. He forces his gripping situations irrespective of their probabilities and apparently to heighten the "discussible" qualities of his book, has been coarse and vulgar. But "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" presents no deep problem of life—it is an entertaining story for those who have callous sensibilities, but it deals with weak folk.

A NOVEL OF STRENGTH.

THE JUDGMENT HOUSE. By Sir Gilbert Parker. Scribner's Sons, New York.

THE average person reading the ordinary novel feels competent to write one as good. The average person can do it—that accounts for the ever-increasing production of the ordinary novel. Reading "The Judgment House" one can understand something of what current literature would be like to have in it art, delicacy and strength. Every line shows the master's hand, every chapter shows the dramatist's skill. Perhaps it is not a great novel; that is, only by comparison with the ordinary novels of the day—they are so very small.

The reason that the market is swamped with novels is because so few of them have had preparation, have been thought out, have been written by persons who have taken the pains to educate themselves. They are written by avaricious scribblers instead of by men of letters. "The Judgment House" was written by one who took pride in his work; that is why it is a colossal among Lilliputians.

The story deals with the Boer War. Rudyard Byng, strong, honest and generous, has made his fortune on the Rand, a fortune of three million pounds. He meets Jasmine, who is pledged to Ian Stafford, a young diplomat. She is wealthy herself, but she marries the millionaire. Stafford goes away and works for three years on a diplomatic problem that, if successful, will allow England to invade the Transvaal without European interference. Stafford returns; he meets Jasmine and she is piqued that he seems to care nothing for her—just like a woman! Stafford is one of Byng's best friends, and Stafford and Byng's wife renew their friendship—she helps him with the diplomatic negotiations and he succeeds. They are again desperately in love. The ordinary novelist would make Stafford a cad and a cur, and Jasmine a married demimonde to accomplish that, but there is where Sir Gilbert shows himself a master among hacks. Stafford is a man, and he remains a man, and does a man's work. Jasmine—well, Jasmine is not noble, sometimes she is hardly loveable, and once or twice she is scarcely forgivable.

Around those two strong men and the love of that woman the story is told. Many, many other characters enter in. The dramatic situations come frequently and are tense. The "logical ending" is never in sight until it comes, and it doesn't come with a crash that takes the breath away, but with a conviction that it would not be otherwise, although it was hardly expected. When the war breaks out all of the characters are drawn to South Africa, and there amid the roar of cannons, the groans of the dying and the cheers of the victorious, the great problem is settled in "The Judgment House"—a hospital near the battlefield.

WOMAN'S IMPROPER PLACE.

THE CORYSTON FAMILY. By Mrs. Humphry Ward. Harper & Bros., New York.

MRS. WARD frequently writes with a finesse that defeats her ends. As a writer of novels she possesses the most delicate art of any living writer, and her work is so finished that frequently many people fail to comprehend the force of her argument.

In "The Coryston Family" two themes of vital interest to modern ethics are intertwined. One has to do with the improper sphere of woman and the other deals with the ban of the church against remarriage of divorced persons.

The story opens with Lady Coryston in complete control of one of England's largest estates, since her husband left all of the property to her instead of to his eldest son, and the mother attempts to mould the destinies of her three boys, Herbert, the eldest; Arthur, her pet, and James, the philosopher, as well as of Marcia, the beautiful daughter.

Coryston (Herbert) becomes a Socialist and links his fortune with the Liberal party which, in the eyes of his mother, is execrable. As punishment she transfers the estate, which is his by right of descent, to Arthur. Coryston, acting always as he believes to be right and ultimately developing a contempt for Socialism because of its demagoguery, makes the life of his mother miserable by becoming an agitator on her own estate and stirring the tenants to demand "their rights."

Mrs. Ward has shown how much happier, how much more successful would Lady Coryston's life have been had she not meddled with politics and the affairs of men, and has drawn a sad picture of the punishment inflicted by the church on hapless individuals. But the story is told with such skill, such masterful delineation of character that the events glide along without shocking the reader into a realization of their significance.

FUN IN A HOSPITAL.

THE WHITE LINEN NURSE. By Eleanor Hallowell Abbott. The Century Company.

WHEN Mrs. Abbott wrote "The Sick-a-Bed Lady" and "Molly Make-Believe," she doomed herself to be judged critically the remainder of her days. These two books were so unique, so sparkling with delicious phrases and incidents that we have been spoiled, and Mrs. Abbott must equal her highest marks or fail to please.

"The White Linen Nurse" seems a trifle affected, a conscious reaching out for the radiance that was Molly's. Had anyone else written it, perhaps it would not seem so—but when an athlete vaults the bar 6 feet 4 inches high, we don't care to watch him jump only 6 feet, which is a mighty good jump for some people.

The story is too good to be told, and besides, the telling of it would rob the book of all its charm, for it is not so full of the "crinkly" and "curly" words and expressions that are linked to Mrs. Abbott's name. It deals with life in a hospital; there is the Senior Surgeon, the White Linen Nurse and several others of minor importance, but the Senior Surgeon would be an unlovable old curmudgeon if he ever crept outside of fiction.

Mrs. Abbott's husband is a physician, and thereby she is able to get an insight into the sickrooms, hospitals, nature of physicians. Notwithstanding the source of her information, nurses of New York have helped fill the columns of many papers with protests "that nurses don't act like that."

THE FORCED MARRIAGE.

THE TRAIL OF YESTERDAY. By Charles Alden Seltzer. Outing Publishing Company, New York.

MR. SELTZER has written a galloping western story with a mystery as a magnet to draw the reader's curiosity to the end. If the reader chances to be a woman it is highly probable that she will at once jump to the last chapter to find out what it is all about, for why should a cowboy want to marry a girl the first time he sees her for no other reason than that he believes her to be the daughter of a man whom he hates?

The hero of "The Trail to Yesterday" not only wants to marry her but does, and the girl lives with her father while blood-curdling incidents crowd the pages. The story is full of action, and ends comparatively happily, for she is not the daughter of the "villain"—except by adoption.

THE ART OF SPEAKING.

THE MAKING OF AN ORATION. By Clark Mills Brink. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.

MR. BRINK has presented a textbook on the noble art of speaking in public. The oration is analyzed, discussed thoroughly and many famous ones are included as models. Many politicians who take the "stump" for the good of the nation would do well to commit it to memory.

Oratory as an art is rapidly deteriorating or may be said to have already deteriorated in throughout the world. Citizens are no longer convinced through their ears, but through their eyes and from the products of the publishers. However, Mr. Brink has picked up a subject that should be of more interest than it is, and deserves the attention of other persons than valedictorians and members of high school debating societies.

A NOVEL AND A HALF.

THE VALLEY OF THE MOON. By Jack London. The Macmillan Company, New York.

JACK LONDON appears to have no comprehensive appreciation of his own work. He doesn't seem to be able to distinguish between mediocrity and genius in himself, for if he could "The Valley of the Moon" would be almost a half shorter and one of the forceful, photographic novels of the year.

Billy, the gentlemanly prize-fighter, and Saxon, the laundry girl, are married. Their characters are well sustained, they seem natural, they have our sympathy and the author has our appreciation until the apology for all the hardships thrust on Billy and Saxon is made in the form of a restitution that is asininely romantic.

Billy is a teamster at Oakland. A strike is called. He goes out. Later a furious battle between the "scabs" and strikers takes place in Saxon's front yard. The description of the battle is great, and Saxon is justly horrified. She makes up her mind that she and Billy must leave Oakland, go away, any place—"to the valley of the moon."

The story logically ends when they trudge out of the city of bloodshed, where they have suffered so much. But no—Mr. London takes them to Carmel-by-the-Sea, where literary folk make a great to-do over the ex-prizefighter and his wife; he has them wander around and be welcomed by educated farmers who discuss socialism at a great length, and finally he allows Billy and Saxon to find a mountain of the very clay that is needed to make bricks, and they are "rich forever after."

Up until the time Billy and Saxon go on their pilgrimage, the book is masterful. The author discusses the rights of "scabs" and the rights of strikers with a lack of bias, with an exchange of reason and an understanding of viewpoint that is admirable. There is nothing preachy or platitudinous about it—not until Mr. London seems determined to reward his characters for all the misery that he has put them through and sends them tramping toward the "Valley of the Moon."

WEAKNESS OF AMBITION.

DOWN AMONG MEN. By Will Levington Comfort. George H. Doran Company, New York.

SOME day Will Levington Comfort will write a great novel. He has already written good ones. He has a vitality that is conspicuously lacking among novelists, and writes with a drive and a swing that augurs big things.

"Down Among Men" shows his strength. One of these days he will be able to hide his preachments more successfully. The first few chapters of this novel are splendid; the descriptions are vivid, intense, and just as we get settled to enjoy the rarity of a really good book, up pops a series of sermons disguised in dialogue and woven around the sickly plot of a man and a woman who, for some unaccountable reason, have a tedious time understanding each other.

As with Mr. Comfort's other rather popular book—"Routledge Rides Alone"—the story deals in part with war correspondents. Mr. Comfort knows the life well; he was a "cub" at the front when the Japanese and Russians played their little game for a kingdom by the sea.

The story opens with John Morning, free lance war correspondent in the Philippines. He finds a knife that another correspondent thinks has been taken from his belongings. Five years later in Japan the story is told that Morning stole the knife. He is shunned, until Duke Fallows takes the young man under his wing and they cross and join the Russian army. After the battle of Liaoyang, Morning makes a desperate race to gain the coast, has numerous escapes, beats down frightful hardships in his determination to get back to the States with his "big story." He wins, and becomes the idol of the house.

Morning soon finds that his popularity is dying out. He has met Betty Berry shortly after landing at San Francisco and meets her again in New York. He doesn't know what to do with himself—he loves the woman and loves alcohol, and between the two he has tortuous times, Fallows taking a small part in the scheme of things.

Two-thirds of the book is taken up with their troubles; here and there brilliant flashes appear, but the promise of merit made in the first few chapters is not kept. Mr. Comfort has tried to preach a sermon. After various vicissitudes, correspondence and psychological analysis, Betty travels to Morning and they understand at last. What they didn't understand before is hardly explained.

"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR."

THE PRICE OF PLACE. By Samuel G. Blythe. George H. Doran Company, New York.

THE book above mentioned is a good political novel, with accent on the "good." It has been complimented in the highest terms by President Wilson, Secretary Daniels and others of the administration. Less, I fancy, because of its literary merits than because it deals with grafting Republicans. If Taft had been re-elected it would probably have dealt with grafting Democrats.

Anyone reading the book and not knowing the author's name, and yet being familiar with his work, would never suspect Samuel Blythe. It might have been written under his supervision but the style is not his—unless he has two styles, one of which is without the other's humor, its flashes of brilliancy and paradox. "The Price of Place" lacks those things that we find in the author's sketches and articles. However, the man who wrote the book knows politics.

James Marsh is elected to Congress by the boss of Morgansville. Marsh has an ambitious wife who, like so many other women, want social honors "because it will help her husband." Marsh would be honest if he had a guardian to keep him from being the other way; the guardian is lacking; his wife needs money; Wall-street bankers give him "tips" on the stock exchange—he wins. The boss who has elected him gets into trouble, Marsh becomes boss himself; runs for the Senate and allows himself to be elected although he knows the Legislature is bribed.

In due course of time he makes a "pile of money" and begins to think that he will turn honest and do what his manhood bids him do—but he doesn't. He finds that he has been "bought and paid for" and he continues faithful to the grafting, selfish, iniquitous Republican party. No wonder President Wilson likes the books—also Secretary Daniels.

A wee bit of a love story runs through the plot, in which Mrs. Marsh attempts to marry off her daughter to some high bidder. But bidders are lacking, Dorothy is independent, and Mrs. Marsh finds that Tom Darlington is not such a bad fellow after all.

ACTRESS IN FICTION.

JOAN THURSDAY. By Louis Joseph Vance. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

JOAN is a very common young lady who makes a remarkable success on the stage; she is heartless, unmoral as a savage, and not blessed with the capacity for gratitude.

In the beginning her home life is miserable, her job as a shopgirl unendurable, and she seeks relief by going onto the stage. If all girls experienced the difficulties in pursuing a histrionic career that beset Joan I am sure that managers would have to resort to the Elizabethan manner of dressing boys for feminine parts. However, when things look the worst John Matthias, a successful playwright, takes compassion on Joan, gives her his room and so impresses her by his gallantry that she offers her body and soul to him.

Matthias is still suffering from the effect of a jilting given him by another, and offers to marry Joan, but is called away on a business trip for some time. Joan, with her lover out of sight, puts him out of mind, accepts an offer to return to the stage, doesn't seem to object when the fellows make love to her, and at last wins all that heart desires.

Authors seem to think that a good book can't be written without making the heroes and heroines succeed, when we know that in real life it is the failures that try the souls and bring forth the qualities of greatness.

"Joan Thursday" is Mr. Vance's best book. He usually writes adventures that pant with speed and excitement, but in this book he has shown a style and a studiousness that has previously been lacking.

INDISCRETION REWARDED.

AFTER ALL. By Mary Cholmondeley. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

IT IS natural that Annette Georges should do indiscreet things in "After All," because she is the offspring of a mesalliance. When the man she loves marries another it is natural that she should want to jump into the Seine; and when Dick Le Geyt offers to take her off with him to Fontainebleau it is natural that she should go. They share the same room as though it were quite the proper thing.

Le Geyt is not a bad sort of a fellow. He is just about as honorable as the average man with plenty of money and nothing in particular to do except to follow the racing game. At Fontainebleau he is taken sick, and at a lucid moment makes a will. Annette is one of the witnesses.

Annette goes to a little English village to live with her aunts, and there meets Roger. Roger is a heavy, slow-moving, slow-thing, honest fellow who happens to be a cousin of Le Geyt, and who also happens to fall in love with Annette. However, Le Geyt dies, the will comes to light, and Annette, because of her signature, is placed in a rather delicate situation. But after all her indiscretion is rewarded with that which women in fiction hold dearer than all else—love.

Miss Cholmondeley has decided opinions, purely feminine opinions, on matters of ethics and morality and she expresses them emphatically. The description of the village life is very good, and many characters, quaint incidents, including Lady Louisa's effort to keep her children from growing up, heighten the interest of the book, which has for its motif the growth, development and generosity of Annette.

PECULIAR HEROINE.

PIPPIN. By Evelyn Van Buren. The Century Company, New York.

THE difference between a good novel and a poor one is in the use of adjectives and adverbs. To call Pippin all the many things that she is would be to present her as a repulsive little guttersnipe; but there is where the art of Miss Van Buren twines the threads of the narrative about a sordid, unpromising plot and makes a charming story of it.

When Miss Lawrence leaves Goshen, Indiana, to win fame on the London stage she has more hope and ambition than finance, and the difficulties make her long for the little Hoosier city and the young Hoosier man whom she had no business to refuse. Miss Lawrence is wandering through a park when Pippin appears on the scene, picks her pocket, and also comes to the rescue of the actress when she faints. Pippin takes the American girl under her wing, writes to the lover across the seas, nurses Miss Lawrence and proves to the reader in spite of the author that she, Pippin, is by far the best character in the book (even though she does sometimes drink rather heavily.)

STORY OF CHINESE LIFE.

SUE CHUC. By D. R. C. The Goodyear Book Concern, New York.

UNDER the disguise of three initials is presented a story of Chinese life as seen in San Francisco. "D. R. C." has written several books. The publishers give out that the reason for enonymity is that the author wants the books to stand on "their own merit." That is a habit that books have and the modest precautions of the author avails nothing—not even the rousing up of curiosity.

Sue Chuc is a slave girl, better born that most people suspect, and later becomes a nurse through the efforts of a Dr. Fun, who knows little about his ancestry, but has learned to work hard. Dr. Fun secures her freedom, and later marries her. The story is peculiar, has no noticeable sensations and makes haste over points upon which the average reader would care for a little more detail.

SOUTHERN FICTION.

THE HUSBAND IN TEXAS. By Ella Harley. The Neale Publishing Company, New York.

A SWEET, tender story of the South is all that "The Husband in Texas" is. It handles no problems, has no protruding purpose, is well written, with a neat little surprise tucked away for the last chapters. The book is wound around "Sonny" and David, and a Mrs. Guill who came to care for the babies and who gets letters from her alleged husband in Texas.

The novel is one that fits into the listless mood when entertainment and not mental gymnastics is desirable. The character of "Sonny" is well sustained, and as he is a funny little mite with a great understanding, there are many interesting, rather than exciting, situations.

LAWLESS SAN FRANCISCO?

THE GRINGOES. By B. M. Bower. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

B. M. BOWER, being a woman who writes wild and woolly stories about the Far West, thinks a bad man must be wholly bad, and that a city with a few noisy criminals in it is an "ugly, moiling center of savagery."

"The Gringoes" is a lively story, with much blood and a little thunder. It pictures the San Francisco of the days of '49 as the place where blood ran freely through the streets, and vigilantes went about hanging people against whom any one of them had a personal grievance. To one who does not know anything about San Francisco, or California, the book might prove interesting, despite its glaring conflict with the history of the early days.

The description of ranch life, with which the author has shown herself in former books to be familiar, is excellent.

"WHEN DREAMS," ETC.

"THE LOVELY LADY" is different from anything that Mary Austin has written. It is a quaint story, one of the dreamy, idealic, half-sad tales with the reward for all the heartaches and disappointments waiting to be showered upon the hero in the last chapter.

Peter as a boy dreams of the "lovely lady" and a house with shining walls. He visits the richest man in the village and asks him how to make money. Then Peter goes to the city and battles with fortune, but always he cherishes his dream of the "lovely lady," and while he makes money he continues his search for the lady. Several women come and pass, and when he has grown well up in years he plans to marry a beautiful and cultured woman, who suddenly turns on him, saying that she doesn't love him and won't marry him.

Broken-hearted and disheartened Peter goes to Venice. He is now almost 42 years, and in his heart knows that the chance of finding "the lovely lady" is rather slender. But lo! he sees her. She is a young maiden rich with beauty, and the daughter of the old man to whom Peter went many years before to learn how to make money.

That is about all there is to the plot—but the author has told the story much better than we have. It is simply charming.

YOUTH'S ORDEALS.

RICHARD FURLONG. By E. Temple Thurston. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

MR. THURSTON is a charming writer. He never labors in the throes of a great moral, and does all of his preaching between the lines, as is proper for novelists to do. He can make the finest romance out of the simplest facts, and can write a gripping story without threatening to injure his hero by so much as having one hair plucked from his head. Ordinarily the hero must be juggled between life and death—the reader with the firm foreknowledge that the Hero is safe and sound, must be excited by the perilous situation into which Mr. Hero gets himself. Mr. Thurston does nothing so strenuous; he selects the byways and quiet paths and can work a climax without the menace of bloodshed.

With twelve pounds in his pocket and with eighteen years of experience for ballast, Richard Furlong goes to London cherishing the hope that the magazines will buy his drawings. He cheerfully faces starvation, and merrily goes about. His sweetheart, who has waited for him to win fame and fortune, tires and marries another while Dicky is taken under the wing of a young woman who ill deserves the tragedy that follows.

That is the barest outline of the plot, and fails to do justice to the exquisite touches of the author.

DISREPUTABLE CHARACTERS.

GREEN CHALK. By Doris Somerville. John Lane Company, New York.

OSCAR WILDE said there was no such thing as a "good" or a "bad" book—that it was either well written or poorly written. "Green Chalk" is the sort of a book that he might have written had he thought of the plot. Of course, he would have done better, for now that a renaissance of popularity has made him one of the demi-gods of literature we must not say that any living person can equal or even approach him. That is the way we have of expressing an appreciation of dead people.

"Green Chalk" is not an excellent book. It was written by an excellent author. The plot is morbid, sordid and unpleasant—but the story is told by one who could well afford to search out better themes.

George Stein is a dilettante in art. He discovers Philip Lenormand, a poor painter who does nothing but paint one girl with red hair and green eyes in many poses. He has seen the girl for a moment and loved her ever since. Stein bargains with the painter, and agrees to take care of him if he—Lenormand—will sign Stein's name to all of the pictures and pose as a secretary.

A girl—the one with red hair and green eyes—falls in love with George Stein's pictures and marries him. Complication results—and Doris Somerville has handled it with skill and much delicacy considering the situations that are developed.

The book sparkles with epigrams, some of which are original. [illegible], an artist's model, and Lady [illegible] Yorke are two interesting and altogether proper characters. Both of them and Lenormand find the morals of Claudia Dale—the girl with red hair and green eyes—annoying, but the author skillfully remains non-committal on that point.

The name "Green Chalk" is taken from the first remark that Claudia hears from Lenormand, who asks for green chalk to color the eyes of his beloved face.

It seems regrettable that one who can write so well as Doris Somerville does not take characters less offensive. There is not a respectable person named between the covers.

A SLEUTH IN FICTION.

THE REMARKABLE ADVENTURES OF CHRISTOPHER POE. By Robert [illegible]. Browne & Co., Chicago.

CHRISTOPHER POE doesn't use such old-fangled deduction methods as Sherlock Holmes; he rejects the synthesis of Bacon and guesses—always guessing right.

A bank was robbed; Poe visits the scene; at once telegraphed from Boston, where the robbery took place, to his friend at New York to look out for the opium joints and look out for a pale-faced Englishman. Poe goes to New York, puts on a disguise (always he puts on a disguise which "Old Sleuth" in the days when we read forbidden dime novels hid in geographies in school,) goes to an opium den and at once finds his man.

That is one of the stories told about the adventures of Christopher Poe, and the others are similar. Poe is always on the job, despite the fact that he is a New York banker. He loves to catch criminals and wear disguises, and the way he can guess beats anything that has appeared in recent fiction.

The book is exciting enough if the reader is not of exacting taste and cares nothing about having his credulity imposed upon.

"GOOD FOR THE SOUL."

CONFESSIONS OF A DEBUTANTE. Houghton-Mifflin Company, Boston.

THIS book is exactly what the author intends it to be, the confessions of a debutante to her mother.

The letters are bright, bubbling over with youth, and it is quite evident that Peggy is having a most enjoyable time with her first ball and her first game of auction bridge. It would be interesting to read her confessions after her second or third season, but the pleasure the reader will have to forgo, for Peggy is wooed and won on the last page. The letters are cleverly illustrated in black and white.

Living Over Again

his youthful enthusiasms William Dean Howells visited Spain, and the result is a new book called "Familiar Spanish Travels." Howells wanders about the Spain of today, but back of it all is the history of its romantic past. If you ever heard that Howells was the "dean of American literature" do not let that make you think his new book is for the elect. It's a live, human book for you. And there's splendid humor in it, more than in the books which are called popular.

THE HOUSE OF HAPPINESS
A live cricket is the red-headed Cricket, full of freckles and fun. You will find him in a new book called "The House of Happiness." The book has a man in it and a girl, too, and some Southerners who'll soon be friends of yours. Kate Langley Bosher tells us about them, and she knows.

THE IRON TRAIL
Next time you build a bridge it will save time if you get Murray O'Neil, a builder and something more—in Rex Beach's new novel, "The Iron Trail." This is O'Neil's story. He's no handsome dashing hero, but a tall, heavy man of forty, with slightly graying temples and the facial marks of strenuous endeavor. But he can love and fight and build. The story certainly is Alaska.

England's Ambitious Poet

PARNASSUS TROPHIES.

[illegible] POEMS. By Alfred Noyes. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.

POETS are judged by moods rather than by logic. Some day a genius may arise who will give us logarithms with which to compute poetic excellence. At present we must depend on our opinions. The expressed opinion of many critics in England and some in America is that Alfred Noyes is the greatest living poet. Many people forget that Kipling is not dead, and some insist that Kipling never wrote poetry! One might as well compare G. K. Chesterton and Maurice Maeterlinck as Noyes and Kipling—in fact, it would be better to make such a comparison, for Maeterlinck is mystical and Chesterton is baffling, so neither may always be understood.

Noyes may not be the greatest, but he is the most ambitious of the living poets. He has ideals; he treats his muse as a queen, not as a paramour—that is, he writes with delicacy and refinement and shuns the vulgarisms that Kipling, among others, uses so effectively. Noyes has written two long poems in the past few years that strengthen his claim to preeminence among the living poets. "Drake" is an ambitious epic, and "Tales of the Mermaid Tavern" (brought out this year,) is one of the most charming narrative and lyrical compositions since Tennyson. Swinburne was, of course, a greater poet than Noyes, but Swinburne did not write in the same vein, and Tennyson did.

MERMAID TAKES BEST.

"Drake" lacks the virility, the elements of action and Homeric grandeur that we are entitled to expect. The blank verse meter is not suited to bring out the vivid descriptions of which we know it to be capable. It is not gripping, overwhelming.

But the Mermaid Tales are different and are far better. The manner in which the poet describes how time slips and he chances to find himself back at the Mermaid is almost without an artistic parallel. He walks down Fleet street the same as you might, passes the Tavern, where [illegible]

[illegible] Knew by rote
[illegible]eath, sun-bubbles in the worn [illegible] paint
[illegible] door and shutters."

He notices the one that he scratched away some 300 years before:

[illegible] through the dream,
[illegible] I stood and listened, came [illegible]ound
[illegible]ing wine-cups, then a deep-[illegible] song
[illegible] the old timbers of the Mermaid [illegible]
[illegible] as a galleon shakes in a gale of wind
[illegible] she rolls glorying through the [illegible]-sea."

Then suddenly down the street comes a figure dressed in the costume of the sixteenth century, who brushes by the poet and enters the tavern. It was Sir Walter Raleigh! The poet follows him within and there are Will Shakespeare, Ben Johnson, Kit Marlowe, Lyly, Peele, Lodge and others of that famous galaxy.

We listen to their conversation, we hear their songs, we may almost drink their wine, and the poet brings so tense a feeling of intimacy that it seems we are reading an Elizabethan Boswell, who stood, note-book in hand, and caught the merry flow of wit and verse.

Francis Bacon one night paid a visit to the Mermaid and as he stood straddled before the fire,

"He said to Shakespeare, in a voice that gripped
The Mermaid Tavern like an Arctic frost:
'There are no poets in this age of ours,
Not to compare with Plautus. They are all
Dead, the men that were famous in old days.'
'Why, so they are,' said Will. The humming stopped.
I saw poor Spenser, a shy, gentle soul,
With haunted eyes like starlit forest pools,
Smuggling his cantos under his cloak again."

Such incidents, exquisitely told, fill the tales, and also there are catchy songs, of which this of one verse, from "Black Bill's Honeymoon:"

"Now, they that go down to the sea in ships,
Though piracy be their trade,
For all that they pray not much with their lips
They know where the storms are made:
With the stars above and the sharks below,
They need not parson or clerk;
But our bo'sun Bill was an atheist still,
Except—sometimes—in the dark!"

At last, years later, Ben Jonson sits alone and chants:

"Marlowe is dead, and Greene is in his grave,
And sweet Will Shakespeare long ago is gone!
Our ocean-shepherd sleeps beneath the wave;
Robin is dead, and Marlowe in his grave.
Why should I stay to chant an idle stave,
And in my Mermaid Tavern drink alone?"

The "Tales of the Mermaid Tavern" are the finest poems that Noyes has written, and they are worthy of a great poet; that subtle something, that indefinable distinction that marks the classic is upon them.

Other poems worthy of more than passing attention are "The Flower of Old Japan," a lyrical fantasy; "Sherwood," a drama woven around Robin Hood, and "The Progress of Love," which is an excellent illustration to show that Noyes had best leave mystical verse alone.

One of the best of his short poems is "The Highwayman," which describes how the innkeeper's daughter, who loved him, shot herself that he might be warned of an ambush which the soldiers had prepared. Another is "The Island Hawk," which celebrates the first launching of His Majesty's aerial navy.

The Nobel Prize Winner.

SIMPLICITY REWARDED

(1) THE GARDENER; (2) SADHANA; (3) THE CRESCENT MOON. Three books by Rabindranath Tagore. The Macmillan Company, New York.

WHEN the Nobel committee placed the laurel wreath on the brow of Tagore simplicity was rewarded. His poems are the simplest things we have ever seen; they are without dramatics, without narrative, without adjectives. But in England the magazines seem unable to praise him too highly. The Westminster Gazette says: "His poems are of the very stuff of imagination and yet gay and vivid, with a fresh and delicious fancy; their beauty is as delicate as the reflection of the color of a flower."

The reflection of the color of a flower offers a shade so delicate that the average person may not be censured for not having a full appreciation of its asthetic beauties. In "The Crescent Moon" Tagore has a poem called "The Beginning" which is delicate and beautiful—one of the very, very few things of his worthy of those lavish words:

"Where have I come from, where did you pick me up?" the baby asked its mother.

"She answered half crying, half laughing and clasping the baby to her breast, 'You were hidden in my heart as its desire, my darling. You were in the dolls of my childhood's games; and when with the clay I made the image of my god every morning, I made and unmade you then. You were enshrined with our household deity, in his worship I worshiped you. In all my hopes and my loves, in my life, in the life of my mother you have lived. In the lap of the deathless Spirit who rules our homes you have been nursed for ages. When in girlhood my heart was opening its petals, you hovered as a fragrance about it. Your tender softness bloomed in my youthful limbs, like a glow in the sky before the sunrise. . . . . You have floated down the stream of the world's life and at last you have stranded on my heart."

The London Bookman says: "His genius must indeed be the mouthpiece of a national aspiration and philosophy to have moved so profoundly a country as vast as his."

The "Sadhana" is a series of lectures on the religion of India, many of which were delivered before Oxford University and some before Harvard. It is only to be expected that he is a profound scholar in his own religion, and his lectures possess a rational quality so seldom found when Hindus discuss religion. But it was for poetry that he received the Nobel prize.

"The Gardener" has practically nothing to recommend it; its verse is without music, imagery or deep thought. "The Crescent Moon" is much the better, it is filled with child-poems, but we must insist that they lack what even the staid old Athenaeum (London) has called "trance-like beauty."

The "Indian Magazine and Reviewer" is reckless enough to declare Tagore's work to be "the essence of all poetry of East and West alike, the language of the soul."

When anyone begins discussing the "language of the soul" there are some few of us who plead a lack of sophistication and a kinship to Undine. Spenser, Keats, Shelley and Poe have expressed rare thoughts of delicate beauty in the simple language of the English and wrote nothing that looks or sounds like Tagore.

The most remarkable thing about Tagore's poetry is that he has been able to write it in English. We don't expect to be honored in such a manner by a Hindu, and it seems that admiration has been won more by a freakish performance than by sublimity of expression.

This is from "Sympathy:"

"If I were only a little puppy, not your baby mother dear, would you say 'No' to me if I tried to eat from your dish? Would you drive me off, saying to me, 'Get away, you naughty little puppy?' Then go, mother, go! I will never come to you when you call me, and never let you feed me any more."

This is from "The Judge:"

"Say of him what you please, but I know my child's failings. I do not love him because he is good, but because he is my little child. How should you know how dear he can be when you try to weigh his merits against his faults? . . . I alone have a right to blame and punish, for he only may chastise who loves."

And yet the Daily News (London) says of those poems: "They reveal a poet of undeniable authority and a spiritual influence singularly in touch with modern thought and modern needs."

Even our own sober and serious North American Review falls under the hypnotic influence of Tagore and talks nonsense about "The Crescent Moon" as follows: "In the poems of this mystic the world appears no longer in its brutality, its vehemence, its swift yet dense fluidity; it is seized in the very moment of its passing and fixed in the clarity and stillness of his vision." Such a criticism is even more mystical than the poems.

A TRIANGULAR AFFAIR.

[illegible]. By Juliet G. Sager. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.

ACTOR folk must have a horrid time of it, else novelists write about something of which they know nothing. Miss Sager is not particularly attracted to the delineation of pleasing characters if we are to judge by the assortment set forth in "Anne, Actress." A large part of the book is taken up in revealing the destructive side of the stage—that is, the side behind the drops, where heartaches, jealousies, hatreds and ambitions are perpetually at [illegible]

Anne is a successful stock actress. She has much experience and a child who, for convenience sake, is left in the Far West with relatives while Anne makes a living for the two of them in Brooklyn. At last she gets an attractive offer from a Broadway manager who offers to give her the lead in a new play by a young and promising playwright. The acquaintanceship with the playwright leads to a love affair, though he is many years her junior.

All at once and unexpectedly there comes from the Far West the [illegible]-year-old child of Anne, who has also, unknown to her mother, been on the stage, and whose reason for coming to New York is to gain personal assistance in winning fame behind the footlights.

The playwright, with the consistency common to young men, quickly transfers his affections from the mother to the daughter, assists the latter into a minor position with the company and aids her gradually to supplant the mother from the leading role and takes the star part unto herself. Anne generously coaches her daughter and assists her to win fame, and the mother eases her longing for love by marrying a gentleman approximately her own age.

The book is perhaps as well written as so disagreeable a story can be.

ENGLISH STORY.

VALENTINE. By Grant Richards. Houghton, Mifflin Company, Boston.

THE hero has plenty of money and nothing to do. His father is a prominent London architect, and though the son begs for an opening in business, it is denied, and the young man puts in his time with golf and a flirtation now and then. He loves an American girl at sight and flies the channel in an aeroplane to keep an appointment with her. The hero is described as "typically English."

Suddenly the father dies and Valentine finds the plans drawn for a great building, and discovers a flaw in them that will make the structure a public menace. However, a faithful employee has also seen the flaw and corrected it, so that there is no danger that the building will tumble down.

Valentine now sets himself to build [illegible] and to get the proper person into it.

The plot is thin, but Mr. Richards [illegible] situations and byplay that [illegible] the book and keeps it from being uninteresting.

WAYWARD FANCIES.

WHITE WITCH. By Muriel Buchanan. Brentano's, New York.

"White Witch" was written for no other purpose than to bring in the dollars to the author, that much is clear, and the customary [illegible] by the author lack in [illegible] taste. The plot is shame-[illegible] imperfect. Maxmilian, Prince [illegible], plans to marry Elleen, [illegible] of the wealthy Count [illegible]. He doesn't love and doesn't [illegible] to, but upon visiting her family, becomes enamored with her sister, Marie, whom he calls "White Witch."

The brother of Maxmilian loves Marie and she returns the affection. [illegible] weds Marie; Elleen [illegible] to Maxmilian that she does not care for him, and goes off with his brother.

Later Maxmilian has cause to believe that Marie's husband is infatuated with another woman, and stands ready to appropriate "White Witch" unto himself. However, the husband seeks out Maxmilian, vows that he loves none other than his wife, and the Prince withdraws gallantly.

The style is poor and the story scarcely worth the telling.

ROLLICKING HUMOR.

HONK AND HORACE. By Emmet F. Harte. Reilly & Britton Company, Chicago.

"HONK and Horace" or "Trimming the Tropics" is the sort of a book that appeals to those with distended risibles and who enjoy having them tickled with a scrubbing brush. The situations presented are undoubtedly comical; the language is original and the book taken as a whole is funny. Honk and Horace go a-seeking their fortune to Honduras, and have many exciting moments, never failing to express their opinions in a broad, exaggerated fashion that brings the smile.

The ship they sail on is designated as "A wallowing hog of a scow;" when the skipper swears he breaks the looking-glass; when lost in the jungle and hard pressed for food a monkey is killed which Horace refuses to eat because of the resemblance to a former schoolmate, and so the merry loquaciousness rambles along from cover to cover.

MANNISH HEROINE.

MADCAP. By George Gibbs. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

QUITE naturally we expect the heroine of a novel who bears the title of "Madcap" to have a contempt for the conventions, and in this we are not disappointed, nor are we particularly pleased.

Hermia Challoner is a young heiress who delights in sports, including those practiced only by men. One day her flying machine breaks a wing and she is forced to accept the hospitality of an artist who has little use for wealth and society. She succeeds, however, in overriding his prejudices and awakening his interest, and a delightful and quite innocent trip into Vagabondia is the result.

Just at this stage of the game, Olga Tcherny, a born coquette, decides to capture the artist for herself, by fair means, if possible, though the method does not concern her greatly. She succeeds in making things rather uncomfortable for Madcap and the artist. Love, however, overcomes all obstacles and so—they lived happily ever afterwards.

SNAKES AND WOMEN.

FASCINATION. By Cecil Champain Lowis. John Lane Company, New York.

A WOMAN who possesses the fatal gift of charming is always an interesting study, but when she happens to be a snake-charmer as well, it behooves one to be a trifle wary.

Mr. Cavisham, who has made anthropometry his hobby for years, decides to go to Central Burma with his wife and daughter in the pursuit of his hobby. There he meets for the first time the typical snake charmers of India and is hypnotized, or fascinated, call it what you will, by Ma Kin, one of the band. His fascination almost costs him his life — but he gains no new knowledge.

While all this is going on, his wife, many years his junior, is trying the European art of fascination upon an English officer. A careful reading of the book will show that her methods are similar to those practiced by Ma Kin.

The author has succeeded in creating the atmosphere of India, but the story is not a pleasing one.

FOR CHILDREN—ALL AGES.

THE VOYAGE OF THE HOPPERGRASS. By Edmund L. Pearson. Macmillan Company, New York.

PROPERLY "The Voyage of the Hoppergrass" belongs in the juvenile department, but it is a story for children of all ages, built on the plan that the adventures of youngsters are interesting.

The Hoppergrass puts out with a small crew, "Daddles" is rescued and rewards the boys with a gigantic pirate story and a tale of buried treasures, for which they all go hunting. "Daddles," a young man with a sense of humor, loses what money he has in the search, and then the adventures begin in earnest. The group is arrested as burglars and locked up with a young fellow who has been guilty of playing a banjo after 10 o'clock p.m. in the small village where the constable wields the pitchfork for a sceptre.

One of the lads goes in search for the Hoppergrass, which has sailed, and wanders onto an island where a "gold company" is operating. The "company" has a plan for extracting gold from the ocean and stock is sold. The boy learns the secret, exposes the fraud and has many difficulties in making his escape.

The book is full of merriment, and carries those of us who played similar pranks in days gone by back to the time when the heart was light and the feet bare.

CHILDHOOD DAYS.

THE GOLDEN ROAD. By L. M. Montgomery. L. C. Page & Co.

TO HAVE a new book by the author of "Anne of Green Gables" usually means an easy chair by the grate fire and a sigh first of contentment and then a bit of sadness because the end comes all too soon.

It matters not how long ago since last we walked on the golden road—we will live again in its memories as we read this book. Every character in it is alive, from sweet Cecily, who resolves on New Year's eve to believe only one-half of what she hears, the best half, to little Sara Ray, who resolves not to be jealous of other girls who have been sick, because it makes them important. Then there's the story girl's resolution not to be vexed when people interrupt her story telling, and Felix resolves to taboo apples for fear of becoming fat.

In "Our Magazine," which this fun-loving group edit each month, the happenings of the King family are set forth, and such delightful nonsense as it is.

While the book treats of young people barely 15 years old, yet the love story of the Awkward Man and Alice, as told by the story girl, will linger in the memory of young and old.

Miss Montgomery has the gift of description, and in none of her books is it more evident than in this one, where

"Life was a rose-lipped comrade
With purple flowers dripping from her fingers."

HELPLESS MAN.

A MESALLIANCE. By Katharine Tynan. Duffield & Co., New York.

THE conventions have been bowled over so frequently of late years that perhaps we should no longer pay attention to the way in which they are knocked about. Miss Tynan extends a knock-out punch to several in her new novel, "A Mesalliance," wherein a mere man is fought for by a widow and a maid.

The widow of Ralph Brotherton's cousin invites him to Littlecombe, a beautiful country place, and she monopolizes the scenery. A lovely young girl enters the lists against the widow for the admiration of Ralph, but experience counts in love making as well as other things. Ralph is placed in a peculiar situation, and impresses one as either being doomed or as a helpless sort of a creature. Complications follow at the rate of several per chapter, and there is nothing conventional in the treatment they received.

"A Mesalliance" shows that the

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

THE DESIRE OF THE MOTH. By Maxwell Gray. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

INTENSELY romantic, with the romanticism of poetry, regalia, moonlight, love, mystery and a brave man and a pretty woman. The author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland" has given us a new novel that is "something different," but much like the books that were being written forty years ago. As literature never grows old it is not uncomplimentary to say that of a book—forty years from now it may be. Beatrice is the heroine. She goes from England to Italy and falls in love with a nobleman. A villain, a foxy villain makes all the trouble possible, but after innumerable events and more or less complicated situations the wedding bells jingle merrily.

The book is a trifle wearisome. It is long, very long, and Blanche, the mother of Beatrice, is such a dear, perfect little wife that like an abundance of sugar plums she cloys. She announces that women should stay at home, wear pretty clothes and elevate their husband's minds. And there is nothing so annoying in fiction as an ideal, perpetually gracious woman.

Ronald Leith, the husband of Blanche and father of Beatrice, is a strong character whose generosity is unaffected even when his ambition is tumbled down.

THE TRAGIC HUMORIST.

(1) COBB'S BILL OF FARE; (2) THE ESCAPE OF MR. TRIMM. (Two books.) By Irving Cobb. George H Doran, New York.

WE have a suspicion that Irving Cobb used humor as a wedge to win a reputation so that he might write stories he knew were worth while. He won laurels as a humorist and recently he has been turning out short tragedies that are excellent.

His humor, as expressed in the "Bill of Fare" does not always appear spontaneous. At times it is like a heart-sick comedian straining to get a laugh out of a cold audience. However, a few expressions like this enlivened the pages: "English plum pudding is not a food; it's a missile, and when eaten it is a deadly concealed weapon."

Some of his serious stories are masterpieces. "The Belled Buzzard" ("The Escape of Mr. Trimm" comprising short stories,) contains one of the most perfect plots and endings that has appeared since Poe. That is a big compliment, but unfortunately does not apply to all of the stories, as many of them—"To the Editor of the Sun," for instance—are woefully lacking in the "punch."

"Up a Side Street" is gruesome, and the end is obvious long before it arrives. A man and a woman murder the husband who stood in the way of their affection. Concealed together in a room their love is soon dissipated, and knowing they cannot escape together, each secretly resolves to kill the other. The man poisons a glass of champagne. The woman jabs him through the eye with a hat pin and drinks the champagne.

"The Escape of Mr. Trimm" deals with a defaulting banker, who escapes handcuffed through the medium of a train wreck while being taken to prison and at last surrenders to the police.

A writer of good tragedies is missing from the American world of letters. Mr. Cobb, we believe, could easily win that eminent distinction by forsaking the silly goddess of mirth and worshiping at the shrine of Melpomene.

MYSTICISM IN FICTION.

JEWELS IN BRASS. Jittie B. Horlick. Brentano's, New York.

IF ONLY we could put aside the veil that hides the past from our eyes! In the realm of fiction we may go with the author to the opium den somewhere round about the London Docks where lives Soko, clairvoyant, fortune-teller, soothsayer. No one knows who or what he is. We only know that under the influence of opium he can see strange pictures in some people's eyes—pictures of the past, the very far past, the immediate past, and the future.

A scientist takes to him a child of 4, and in her eyes he sees the love life of the wondrously-beautiful Cyra, queen of dancers, and of Prince Tanga, the ruler of the Island of Atlantis. From him we learn why and how Prince Tanga lost his "twin-soul"—yet only for this one life.

"And when the great flood had come and passed, the mighty civilization of Atlantis was, to the eyes of men, as if it had never been."

From here on the author takes up the life of Antonia, the little 4-year-old girl, in whose eyes Soko has seen so much.

The book is attractive and the author has handled the theory of reincarnation entertainingly.

author has labored carefully to write an exceptionally fine book; there is evidence of skill and planning—but it is impossible to make a beautiful statue out of sandstone, and it is not possible to make a very fine book out of the plot Miss Tynan selected.

SLANG AT WHITE HEAT.

BLISTER JONES. By John Taintor Foote. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

AMBROSE BIERCE once took up his knotted bludgeon to smite those who mistreated the English language. Fortunately for many, many writers the savage Mr. Bierce soon tired of his role and retired to be supported by pessimistic royalties. Were he still in arms, Mr. Foote would probably get a literary clouting for his use of slang.

"Blister Jones" is a slangy story; it has new slang in it and many an exciting moment. Blister is a horse trainer and many is the episode that claims his attention. He knows more ways of expressing thought without the aid of words in polite usage than any character that has tripped down the vale of literature since Chimmie Fadden, or McFadden, or whoever he was. (Such is fame—once he was all the rage!)

The volume is made of many stories concerning the same leading personage, who tried everything from the track to the stage, but is always associated with horses. It would really seem that the aforesaid personage had missed a college education or lost it. Magnates are "maggots;" dollars are "bucks;" "sees" is "cops," and some people refuse to think that the flagrant abuse of simple language is an addition to humor.

MYSTERIES AND LOVE.

AND THEN CAME JEAN. By Robert Alexander Wason. Small, Maynard & Co., Boston.

"AND Then Came Jean" was written to please. It does. Many of the situations seem a trifle exaggerated, as when Grandma makes $10,000 gambling on the stock market with but $25 for capital, but the book is charming, much of it is humorous, and all of it is interesting. A great number of characters are handled, all of them residing at Benlo, Ind. Henry Ham is a young lawyer whom everyone is determined shall make a failure just to see their own prognostications vindicated; Jean is a wild, beautiful young woman who lives in a mysterious house guarded by Zulus; Grandma Trotwood is a darling aged 85, whose sharp tongue obeys a tender heart; Nate Shipley is a peaceful lawbreaker, who helps Henry Ham as the exigencies demand—and there are many other characters almost as delightful.

The story at first deals largely with pranks that Henry Ham and his kid brothers get into, and then comes Jean floating through the fields and the story turns its attention to the wooing of the strange, sweet, wise woman. For a side line, Henry Ham is determined to build a power-generating plant for the uplifting of Benlo and the gratifications of Mammon. He nearly bankrupts all of his friends, but strange things happen and "all's well that ends well."

Mr. Wason is a clever author; his style is excellent, and his plot made to gratify and satisfy the reader.

LITERATURE AND LOVE.

THE DOMINANT PASSION. By Marguerite Bryant. Duffield & Co., New York.

MARGUERITE BRYANT is a woman with something to tell, and she knows how to make you see it. It is a little venturesome to let a story run into 464 pages of close print—so close that it is somewhat trying to the eyes. There is sure to be the introduction of interminable detail, which is likely to detract from the main issue of the story. Marguerite Bryant's "interminable detail" is not in the nature of landscape description—although there is enough of this to lend tone, color and solidity to the setting. But she gives many pages to the analysis of character. In fact, without these analyses the story could not be what it is; and the author has the good grace to confine them to her important characters, for the most part.

Her principal character is Honor, a young authoress full of ideals, who writes stories of men and women more as they ought to be than as they are. The other "leads" are Andrea, an artist, who cannot see life save through "pictures," and is utterly submerged in selfishness; Lawrence, his son, a musical genius and victim of his father's selfishness; and Anthony, scientist, who has discovered a cure for the dread disease pellagra, and finds his life work among its victims in Italy. Honor also has a life work, which she is unable to pursue unless she is in the stimulating atmosphere of her own England. When she and Anthony marry the struggle commences between her love for her husband and her loyalty to her work. With Anthony it is scarcely a struggle. The obligation of lifting suffering humanity is upon his soul, and he must fulfill it. But when Honor leaves him and goes back to England to finish her book, the light of his life goes out.

Andrea, in the meantime, has been throwing a selfish, rather a sinister influence into the affairs of husband and wife. His subtle suggestions help to bring about the separation and to sustain it. He finds that he can work better with his high-minded, noble "picture," Honor, on the wall. And he realizes that she can produce better work when separated from love and happiness. Absorbed in her work, her dream recedes further and further from her; and mistaken pride in both husband and wife widens the breach. But never once does Anthony distrust Honor in her intimate friendship with Andrea. And, in fact, the bond holds its own on a purely artistic plane, although Andrea is not insensible to a deeper longing. His son, Lawrence, who so well understands his father's selfishness and reverences Honor, resents the friendship and silently plays watchdog. Andrea finishes by bringing a species of ruin to the lives of all; but the logic is carried out by this very ruin falling upon himself and crushing his own genius. How out of the fragments the lives of the wronged ones are gathered up, is the main interest of the book.

One cannot but feel that the author's self is somewhat personified in the splendid girl, Honor, who is an inspiration and an uplift to all with whom she comes in contact simply because she is Honor. And such things as the author pictures are unusual or impossible only to those who have not lived in the realm of the artist laborer.

And books, we know,
Are a substantial world, both pure and good.
Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
Our pastime and our happiness will grow.

"WHEN DREAMS," ETC.

"THE LOVELY LADY" is different from anything that Mary Austin has written. It is a quaint story, one of the dreamy, idealic, half-sad tales with the reward for all the heartaches and disappointments waiting to be showered upon the hero in the last chapters.

Peter as a boy dreams of the "lovely lady" and a house with shining walls. He visits the richest man in the village and asks him how to make money. Then Peter goes to the city and battles with fortune, but always he cherishes his dream of the "lovely lady," and while he makes money he continues his search for the ideal. Several women come and pass, and when he has grown well up in years he plans to marry a beautiful and cultured woman, who suddenly turns on him, saying that she doesn't love and won't marry him.

Broken-hearted and disheartened, Peter goes to Venice. He is now aged 42 years, and in his heart knows that the chance of finding "the lovely lady" is rather slender. But lo! he sees her. She is a young maiden, rich with beauty, and the daughter of the old man to whom Peter went many years before to learn how to make money.

That is about all there is to the plot—but the author has told the story much better than we have. It is really charming.

YOUTH'S ORDEALS.

RICHARD FURLONG. By E. Temple Thurston. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

MR. THURSTON is a charming writer. He never labors in the throes of a great moral, and does all of his preaching between the lines, as is proper for novelists to do. He can make the finest romances out of the simplest facts, and can write a gripping story without threatening to injure his hero by so much as having one hair plucked from his head. Ordinarily the hero must be juggled between life and death—the reader, with the firm foreknowledge that Mr. Hero is safe and sound, must be excited by the perilous situation into which Mr. Hero gets himself. Mr. Thurston does nothing so strenuous; he selects the byways and quiet parks, and can work a climax without the menace of bloodshed.

With twelve pounds in his pocket and with eighteen years of experience for ballast, Richard Furlong goes to London cherishing the hope that the magazines will buy his drawings. He cheerfully faces starvation, and merrily goes about. His sweetheart, who has waited for him to win fame and fortune, tires and marries another; while Dicky is taken under the wing of a young woman who ill deserves the tragedy that follows.

That is the barest outline of the plot, and fails to do justice to the exquisite touches of the author.

DISREPUTABLE CHARACTERS.

GREEN CHALK. By Doris Somerville. John Lane Company, New York.

OSCAR WILDE said there was no such thing as a "good" or a "bad" book—that it was either well written or poorly written. "Green Chalk" is the sort of a book that he might have written had he thought of the plot. Of course, he would have done better, for now that a renaissance of popularity has made him one of the demi-gods of literature we must not say that any living person can equal or even approach him. That is the way we have of expressing an appreciation of dead people.

"Green Chalk" is not an excellent book. It was written by an excellent author. The plot is morbid, unreal and unpleasant—but the story is told by one who could well afford to search out better themes.

George Stein is a dilettante in art. He discovers Philip Lenormand, a poor painter who does nothing but one girl with red hair and green eyes in many poses. He has seen the girl for a moment and loved her ever since. Stein bargains with the painter, and agrees to take care of him if he—Lenormand—will sign Stein's name to all of the pictures and pose as a secretary.

A girl—the one with red hair and green eyes—falls in love with George Stein's pictures and marries him. Complication result—and Doris Somerville has handled it with skill and much delicacy considering the situations that are developed.

The book sparkles with epigrams, some of which are original. Susanne, an artist's model, and Lady Grace Yorke are two interesting and not altogether proper characters. Both of them and Lenormand find the morals of Claudia Dale—the girl with red hair and green eyes—annoying, but the author skillfully remains non-commital on that point.

The name "Green Chalk" is taken from the first remark that Stein hears from Lenormand, who calls for green chalk to color the eyes of his beloved face.

It seems regrettable that one who can write so well as Doris Somerville does not take characters less offensive. There is not a respectable person named between the covers.

A SLEUTH IN FICTION.

THE REMARKABLE ADVENTURES OF CHRISTOPHER POE. By Robert Carlton Brown. Browne & Co., Chicago.

CHRISTOPHER POE doesn't use such old-fangled deduction methods as Sherlock Holmes; he rejects the synthesis of Bacon and guesses—always guessing right.

A bank was robbed; Poe visits the scene; at once telegraphed from Boston, where the robbery took place, to his friend at New York to visit the opium joints and look out for a pale-faced Englishman. Poe also goes to New York, puts on a disguise (always he puts on a disguise like "Old Sleuth" in the days when we read forbidden dime novels behind geographies in school,) goes to an opium den and at once finds his man.

That is one of the stories told about the adventures of Christopher Poe, and the others are similar. Poe is always on the job, despite the fact that he is a New York banker. He loves to catch criminals and wear disguises, and the way he can guess beats anything that has appeared in recent fiction.

The book is exciting enough if the reader is not of exacting tastes and cares nothing about having his credulity imposed upon.

"GOOD FOR THE SOUL."

CONFESSIONS OF A DEBUTANTE. (Anonymous) Houghton-Mifflin Company, Boston.

THIS book is exactly what its title intends it to be, the confessions of a debutante to her mother.

The letters are bright, bubbling over with youth, and it is quite evident that Peggy is having a most exciting time with her first ball and her first game of auction bridge. It would be interesting to read her confessions after her second or third season, but this pleasure the reader will have to forego, for Peggy is wooed and won ere the last page. The letters are cleverly illustrated in black and white.

England's Ambitious Poet

PARNASSUS TROPHIES.

COLLECTED POEMS. By Alfred Noyes. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.

POETS are judged by moods rather than by logic. Some day a genius may arise who will give us literary logarithms with which to compute poetic excellence. At present we must depend on our opinions. The expressed opinion of many critics in England and some in America is that Alfred Noyes is the greatest living poet. Many people forget that Kipling is not yet dead, and some insist that Kipling never wrote poetry! One might as well compare G. K. Chesterton and Maurice Maeterlinck as Noyes and Kipling—in fact, it would be better to make such a comparison, for Maeterlinck is mystical and Chesterton is baffling, so neither may always be understood.

Noyes may not be the greatest, but he is the most ambitious of the living poets. He has ideals; he treats his muse as a queen, not as a paramour—that is, he writes with delicacy and refinement and shuns the coarseness that Kipling, among others, uses so effectively. Noyes has written two long poems in the past two years that strengthen his claim to pre-eminence among the living poets. "Drake" is an ambitious epic, and "Tales of the Mermaid Tavern" (brought out this year,) is one of the most charming narrative and lyrical compositions since Tennyson. Swinburne was, of course, a greater poet than Noyes, but Swinburne did not write in the same vein, and Tennyson did.

MERMAID TAKES BEST.

"Drake" lacks the virility, the [illegible] of action and Homeric [illegible] that we are entitled to expect. The blank verse meter is not suited to bring out the vivid descriptions of which we know it to be capable; it is not gripping, overwhelming.

But the Mermaid Tales are different and are far better. The manner in which the poet describes how time [illegible] and he chances to find himself [illegible] at the Mermaid is almost without an artistic parallel. He walks down Fleet street the same as you or I might, passes the Tavern, where

". . . Knew by rote
The smooth, sun-bubbles in the worn green paint
Upon the door and shutters."

He then notices the one that he himself scratched away some 300 years before:

"And, through the dream,
Even as I stood and listened, came a sound
Of clashing wine-cups, then a deep-voiced song
Shook the old timbers of the Mermaid Inn
Like as a galleon shakes in a gale of wind
When she rolls glorying through the ocean-sea."

Then suddenly down the street came a figure dressed in the costume of the sixteenth century, who brushes by the poet and enters the tavern. It was Sir Walter Raleigh! The poet follows him within and there was Will Shakespeare, Ben Johnson, Kit Marlowe, Lyly, Peele, Lodge and others of that famous galaxy.

We listen to their conversation, we hear their songs, we may almost drink their wine, and the poet brings so tense a feeling of intimacy that it seems we are reading an Elizabethan Boswell, who stood, note-book in hand, and caught the merry flow of wit and verse.

Francis Bacon one night paid a visit to the Mermaid and as he stood straddled before the fire,

"He said to Shakespeare, in a voice that gripped
The Mermaid Tavern like an Arctic frost:
'There are no poets in this age of ours,
Not to compare with Plautus. They are all
Dead, the men that were famous in old days.'
'Why, so they are,' said Will. The humming stopped.
I saw poor Spenser, a shy, gentle soul,
With haunted eyes like starlit forest pools,
Smuggling his cantos under his cloak again."

Such incidents, exquisitely told, fill the tales, and also there are catchy songs, of which this of one verse, from "Black Bill's Honeymoon:"

"Now, they that go down to the sea in ships,
Though piracy be their trade,
For all that they pray not much with their lips
They know where the storms are made:
With the stars above and the sharks below,
They need not parson or clerk;
But our bo'sun Bill was an atheist still,
Except—sometimes—in the dark!"

At last, years later, Ben Jonson sits alone and chants:

"Marlowe is dead, and Greene is in his grave,
And sweet Will Shakespeare long ago is gone!
Our ocean-shepherd sleeps beneath the wave;
Robin is dead, and Marlowe in his grave.
Why should I stay to chant an idle stave,
And in my Mermaid Tavern drink alone?"

The "Tales of the Mermaid Tavern" are the finest poems that Noyes has written, and they are worthy of a great poet; that subtle something, that indefinable distinction that marks the classic is upon them.

Other poems worthy of more than passing attention are "The Flower of Old Japan," a lyrical fantasy; "Sherwood," a drama woven around Robin Hood, and "The Progress of Love," which is an excellent illustration to show that Noyes had best leave mystical verse alone.

One of the best of his short poems is "The Highwayman," which describes how the innkeeper's daughter, who loved him, shot herself that he might be warned of an ambush which the soldiers had prepared. Another is "The Island Hawk," which celebrates the first launching of His Majesty's aerial navy.

A TRIANGULAR AFFAIR.

ANNE, ACTRESS. By Juliet G. Sager. Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York.

ACTOR folk must have a horrid time of it, else novelists write about something of which they know nothing. Miss Sager is not particularly attracted to the delineation of pleasing characters if we are to judge by the assortment set forth in "Anne, Actress." A large part of the book is taken up in revealing the unattractive side of the stage—that is, the side behind the drops, where heartaches, jealousies, hatreds and ambitions are perpetually at [illegible]

Anne is a successful stock actress. She has much experience and a child who, for convenience sake, is kept in the Far West with relatives while Anne makes a living for the two of them in Brooklyn. At last Anne gets an attractive offer from a Broadway manager who offers to give her the lead in a new play by a young and promising playwright. An acquaintanceship with the playwright leads to a love affair, though he is many years her junior.

Then all at once and unexpected there comes from the Far West the 18-year-old child of Anne, who has also, unknown to her mother, gone on the stage, and whose reason for coming to New York is to gain personal assistance in winning fame before the footlights.

The playwright, with the consistency common to young men, quickly transfers his affections from the mother to the daughter, assists the latter into a minor position with the company and aids her gradually to oust the mother from the leading role and takes the star part unto herself. Anne generously coaches her daughter and assists her to win fame, while the mother eases her longing for love by marrying a gentleman approximately her own age.

The book is perhaps as well written as so disagreeable a story can be.

ENGLISH STORY.

[illegible]. By Grant Richards. Houghton, Mifflin Company, Boston.

THE hero has plenty of money and nothing to do. His father is a prominent London architect, and when the son begs for an opening in the business, it is denied, and the [illegible] puts in his time with [illegible] and a flirtation now and then. He loves an American girl at [illegible] and flies the channel in an aeroplane to keep an appointment with her. The hero is described as "typically English."

Suddenly the father dies and Valentine finds the plans drawn for a great building, and discovers a flaw in them that will make the structure a public menace. However, a faithful employee has also seen the flaw and corrected it, so that there is no danger that the building will tumble.

Valentine now sets himself to build [illegible] and to get the proper person [illegible] it.

The plot is thin, but Mr. Richards [illegible] situations and byplay that [illegible] the book and keeps it from being uninteresting.

WAYWARD FANCIES.

WHITE WITCH. By Marie Buchanan. Brentano's, New York.

"White Witch" was written for [illegible] other purpose than to bring in [illegible] dollars to the author, that [illegible] is not clear, and the custom[illegible] to by the author lack in [illegible]. The plot is shame-[illegible] imperfect. Maxmilian, Prince [illegible], plans to marry Eileen, daughter of the wealthy Count [illegible]. He doesn't love and doesn't [illegible] to, but upon visiting her family [illegible] enamored with her sister Marie, whom he calls "White Witch."

[illegible] brother of Maxmilian loves [illegible] and she returns the affection. [illegible] weds Marie; Eileen [illegible] to Maxmilian that she does not care for him, and goes off with his brother.

Later Maxmilian has cause to believe that Marie's husband is infatuated with another woman, and stands ready to appropriate "White Witch" unto himself. However, the husband seeks out Maxmilian, vows that he loves none other than his wife, and the Prince withdraws gallantly.

The style is poor and the story scarcely worth the telling.

ROLLICKING HUMOR.

HONK AND HORACE. By Emmet F. Harte. Reilly & Britton Company, Chicago.

"HONK and Horace" or "Trimming the Tropics" is the sort of a book that appeals to those with distended risibles and who enjoy having them tickled with a scrubbing brush. The situations presented are undoubtedly comical; the language is original and the book taken as a whole is funny. Honk and Horace go a-seeking their fortune to Honduras, and have many exciting moments, never failing to express their opinions in a broad, exaggerated fashion that brings the smile.

The ship they sail on is designated as "A wallowing hog of a scow;" when the skipper swears he breaks the looking-glass; when lost in the jungle and hard pressed for food a monkey is killed which Horace refuses to eat because of the resemblance to a former schoolmate, and so the merry loquaciousness rambles along from cover to cover.

MANNISH HEROINE.

MADCAP. By George Gibbs. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

QUITE naturally we expect the heroine of a novel who bears the title of "Madcap" to have a contempt for the conventions, and in this we are not disappointed, nor are we particularly pleased.

Hermia Challoner is a young heiress who delights in sports, including those practiced only by men. One day her flying machine breaks a wing and she is forced to accept the hospitality of an artist who has little use for wealth and society. She succeeds, however, in overriding his prejudices and awakening his interest, and a delightful and quite innocent trip into Vagabondia is the result.

Just at this stage of the game, Olga Tcherny, a born coquette, decides to capture the artist for herself, by fair means, if possible, though the method does not concern her greatly. She succeeds in making things rather uncomfortable for Madcap and the artist. Love, however, overcomes all obstacles and so—they lived happily ever afterwards.

SNAKES AND WOMEN.

FASCINATION. By Cecil Champain Lowis. John Lane Company, New York.

A WOMAN who possesses the fatal gift of charming is always an interesting study, but when she happens to be a snake-charmer as well, it behooves one to be a trifle wary.

Mr. Cavisham, who has made anthropometry his hobby for years, decides to go to Central Burma with his wife and daughter in the pursuit of his hobby. There he meets for the first time the typical snake charmers of India and is hypnotized, or fascinated, call it what you will, by Ma Kin, one of the band. His fascination almost costs him his life — but he gains no new knowledge.

While all this is going on, his wife, many years his junior, is trying the European art of fascination upon an English officer. A careful reading of the book will show that her methods are similar to those practiced by Ma Kin.

The author has succeeded in creating the atmosphere of India, but the story is not a pleasing one.

The Nobel Prize Winner.

SIMPLICITY REWARDED

(1) THE GARDENER; (2) SADHANA; (3) THE CRESCENT MOON. Three books by Rabindranath Tagore. The Macmillan Company, New York.

WHEN the Nobel committee placed the laurel wreath on the brow of Tagore simplicity was rewarded. His poems are the simplest things we have ever seen; they are without dramatics, without narrative, without adjectives. But in England the magazines seem unable to praise him too highly. The Westminster Gazette says: "His poems are of the very stuff of imagination and yet gay and vivid, with a fresh and delicious fancy; their beauty is as delicate as the reflection of the color of a flower."

The reflection of the color of a flower offers a shade so delicate that the average person may not be censured for not having a full appreciation of its asthetic beauties. In "The Crescent Moon" Tagore has a poem called "The Beginning" which is delicate and beautiful—one of the very, very few things of his worthy of those lavish words:

"Where have I come from, where did you pick me up?" the baby asked its mother.

"She answered half crying, half laughing and clasping the baby to her breast, 'You were hidden in my heart as its desire, my darling. You were in the dolls of my childhood's games; and when with the clay I made the image of my god every morning, I made and unmade you then. You were enshrined with our household deity, in his worship I worshiped you. In all my hopes and my loves, in my life, in the life of my mother you have lived. In the lap of the deathless Spirit who rules our homes you have been nursed for ages. When in girlhood my heart was opening its petals, you hovered as a fragrance about it. Your tender softness bloomed in my youthful limbs, like a glow in the sky before the sunrise. . . . . You have floated down the stream of the world's life and at last you have stranded on my heart."

The London Bookman says: "His genius must indeed be the mouthpiece of a national aspiration and philosophy to have moved so profoundly a country as vast as his."

The "Sadhana" is a series of lectures on the religion of India, many of which were delivered before Oxford University and some before Harvard. It is only to be expected that he is a profound scholar in his own religion, and his lectures possess a rational quality so seldom found when Hindus discuss religion. But it was for poetry that he received the Nobel prize.

"The Gardener" has practically nothing to recommend it; its verse is without music, imagery or deep thought. "The Crescent Moon" is much the better, it is filled with child-poems, but we must insist that they lack what even the staid old Athenaeum (London) has called "trance-like beauty."

The "Indian Magazine and Reviewer" is reckless enough to declare Tagore's work to be "the essence of all poetry of East and West alike, the language of the soul."

When anyone begins discussing the "language of the soul" there are some few of us who plead a lack of sophistication and a kinship to Undine. Spenser, Keats, Shelley and Poe have expressed rare thoughts of delicate beauty in the simple language of the English and wrote nothing that looks or sounds like Tagore.

The most remarkable thing about Tagore's poetry is that he has been able to write it in English. We don't expect to be honored in such a manner by a Hindu, and it seems that admiration has been won more by a freakish performance than by sublimity of expression.

This is from "Sympathy:"

"If I were only a little puppy, not your baby mother dear, would you say 'No' to me if I tried to eat from your dish? Would you drive me off, saying to me, 'Get away, you naughty little puppy?' Then go, mother, go! I will never come to you when you call me, and never let you feed me any more."

This is from "The Judge:"

"Say of him what you please, but I know my child's failings. I do not love him because he is good, but because he is my little child. How should you know how dear he can be when you try to weigh his merits against his faults? . . . I alone have a right to blame and punish, for he only may chastise who loves."

And yet the Daily News (London) says of those poems: "They reveal a poet of undeniable authority and a spiritual influence singularly in touch with modern thought and modern needs."

Even our own sober and serious North American Review falls under the hypnotic influence of Tagore and talks nonsense about "The Crescent Moon" as follows: "In the poems of this mystic the world appears no longer in its brutality, its vehemence, its swift yet dense fluidity; it is seized in the very moment of its passing and fixed in the clarity and stillness of his vision." Such a criticism is even more mystical than the poems.

FOR CHILDREN—ALL AGES.

THE VOYAGE OF THE HOPPERGRASS. By Edmund L. Pearson. Macmillan Company, New York.

PROPERLY "The Voyage of the Hoppergrass" belongs in the juvenile department, but it is a story for children of all ages, built on the plan that the adventures of youngsters are interesting.

The Hoppregrass puts out with a small crew, "Daddles" is rescued and rewards the boys with a gigantic pirate story and a tale of buried treasures, for which they all go hunting. "Daddles," a young man with a sense of humor, loses what money he has in the search, and then the adventures begin in earnest. The group is arrested as burglars and locked up with a young fellow who has been guilty of playing a banjo after 10 o'clock p.m. in the small village where the constable wields the pitchfork for a sceptre.

One of the lads goes in search for the Hoppergrass, which has sailed, and wanders onto an island where a "gold company" is operating. The "company" has a plan for extracting gold from the ocean and stock is sold. The boy learns the secret, exposes the fraud and has many difficulties in making his escape.

The book is full of merriment, and carries those of us who played similar pranks in days gone by back to the time when the heart was light and the feet bare.

CHILDHOOD DAYS.

THE GOLDEN ROAD. By L. M. Montgomery. L. C. Page & Co.

TO HAVE a new book by the author of "Anne of Green Gables" usually means an easy chair by the grate fire and a sigh first of contentment and then a bit of sadness because the end comes all too soon.

It matters not how long ago since last we walked on the golden road—we will live again in its memories as we read this book. Every character in it is alive, from sweet Cecily, who resolves on New Year's eve to believe only one-half of what she hears, the best half, to little Sara Ray, who resolves not to be jealous of other girls who have been sick, because it makes them important. Then there's the story girl's resolution not to be vexed when people interrupt her story telling, and Felix resolves to taboo apples for fear of becoming fat.

In "Our Magazine," which this fun-loving group edit each month, the happenings of the King family are set forth, and such delightful nonsense as it is.

While the book treats of young people barely 15 years old, yet the love story of the Awkward Man and Alice, as told by the story girl, will linger in the memory of young and old.

Miss Montgomery has the gift of description, and in none of her books is it more evident than in this one, where

"Life was a rose-lipped comrade
With purple flowers dripping from her fingers."

HELPLESS MAN.

A MESALLIANCE. By Katharine Tynan. Duffield & Co., New York.

THE conventions have been bowled over so frequently of late years that perhaps we should no longer pay attention to the way in which they are knocked about. Miss Tynan extends a knock-out punch to several in her new novel, "A Mesalliance," wherein a mere man is fought for by a widow and a maid.

The widow of Ralph Bretherton's cousin invites him to Littlecombe, a beautiful country place, and she monopolizes the scenery. A lovely young girl enters the lists against the widow for the admiration of Ralph, but experience counts in love making as well as other things. Ralph is placed in a peculiar situation, and impresses one as either being doomed or as a helpless sort of a creature. Complications follow at the rate of several per chapter, and there is nothing conventional in the treatment they received.

"A Mesalliance" shows that the author has labored carefully to write an exceptionally fine book; there is evidence of skill and planning—but it is impossible to make a beautiful statue out of sandstone, and it is not possible to make a very fine book out of the plot Miss Tynan selected.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

THE DESIRE OF THE MOTH. By Maxwell Gray. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

INTENSELY romantic, with the romanticism of poetry, regalia, moonlight, love, mystery and a brave man and a pretty woman. The author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland" has given us a new novel that is "something different," but much like the books that were being written forty years ago. As literature never grows old it is not uncomplimentary to say that of a book—forty years from now it may be. Beatrice is the heroine. She goes from England to Italy and falls in love with a nobleman. A villain, a foxy villain makes all the trouble possible, but after innumerable events and more or less complicated situations the wedding bells jingle merrily.

The book is a trifle wearisome. It is long, very long, and Blanche, the mother of Beatrice, is such a dear, perfect little wife that like an abundance of sugar plums she cloys. She announces that women should stay at home, wear pretty clothes and elevate their husband's minds. And there is nothing so annoying in fiction as an ideal, perpetually gracious woman.

Ronald Leith, the husband of Blanche and father of Beatrice, is a strong character whose generosity is unaffected even when his ambition is tumbled down.

THE TRAGIC HUMORIST.

(1) COBB'S BILL OF FARE; (2) THE ESCAPE OF MR. TRIMM. (Two books.) By Irving Cobb. George H Doran, New York.

WE have a suspicion that Irving Cobb used humor as a wedge to win a reputation so that he might write stories he knew were worth while. He won laurels as a humorist and recently he has been turning out short tragedies that are excellent.

His humor, as expressed in the "Bill of Fare" does not always appear spontaneous. At times it is like a heart-sick comedian straining to get a laugh out of a cold audience. However, a few expressions like this enlivened the pages: "English plum pudding is not a food; it's a missile, and when eaten it is a deadly concealed weapon."

Some of his serious stories are masterpieces. "The Belled Buzzard" ("The Escape of Mr. Trimm" comprising short stories,) contains one of the most perfect plots and endings that has appeared since Poe. That is a big compliment, but unfortunately does not apply to all of the stories, as many of them—"To the Editor of the Sun," for instance—are woefully lacking in the "punch."

"Up a Side Street" is grewsome, and the end is obvious long before it arrives. A man and a woman murder the husband who stood in the way of their affection. Concealed together in a room their love is soon dissipated, and knowing they cannot escape together, each secretly resolves to kill the other. The man poisons a glass of champagne. The woman jabs him through the eye with a hat pin and drinks the champagne.

"The Escape of Mr. Trimm" deals with a defaulting banker, who escapes handcuffed through the medium of a train wreck while being taken to prison and at last surrenders to the police.

A writer of good tragedies is missing from the American world of letters. Mr. Cobb, we believe, could easily win that eminent distinction by forsaking the silly goddess of mirth and worshiping at the shrine of Melpomene.

MYSTICISM IN FICTION.

JEWELS IN BRASS. Nittie B. Horlick. Brentano's, New York.

IF ONLY we could put aside the veil that hides the past from our eyes! In the realm of fiction we may go with the author to the opium den somewhere round about the London Docks where lives Soko, clairvoyant, fortune-teller, soothsayer. No one knows who or what he is. We only know that under the influence of opium he can see strange pictures in some people's eyes—pictures of the past, the very far past, the immediate past, and the future.

A scientist takes to him a child of 4, and in her eyes he sees the love life of the wondrously-beautiful Cyra, queen of dancers, and of Prince Tanga, the ruler of the Island of Atlantis. From him we learn why and how Prince Tanga lost his "twin-soul"—yet only for this one life.

"And when the great flood had come and passed, the mighty civilization of Atlantis was, to the eyes of men, as if it had never been."

From here on the author takes up the life of Antonia, the little 4-year-old girl, in whose eyes Soko has seen so much.

The book is attractive and the author has handled the theory of reincarnation entertainingly.

SLANG AT WHITE HEAT.

AMBROSE BIERCE once took up his knotted bludgeon to smite those who mistreated the English language. Fortunately for many, many writers the savage Mr. Bierce soon tired of his role and retired to be supported by pessimistic royalties. Were he still in arms, Mr. Foote would probably get a literary clouting for his use of slang.

"Blister Jones" is a slangy story; it has new slang in it and many an exciting moment. Blister is a horse trainer and many is the episode that claims his attention. He knows more ways of expressing thought without the aid of words in polite usage than any character that has tripped down the vale of literature since Chimmie Fadden, or McFadden, or whoever he was. (Such is fame—once he was all the rage!)

The volume is made of many stories concerning the same leading personage, who tried everything from the track to the stage, but is always associated with horses. It would really seem that the aforesaid personage had missed a college education or lost it. Magnates are "maggots;" dollars are "bucks;" "sees" is "cops," and some people refuse to think that the flagrant abuse of simple language is an addition to humor.

MYSTERIES AND LOVE.

AND THEN CAME JEAN. By Robert Alexander Wason. Small, Maynard & Co., Boston.

"AND Then Came Jean" was written to please. It does. Many of the situations seem a trifle exaggerated, as when Grandma makes $10,000 gambling on the stock market with but $25 for capital, but the book is charming, much of it is humorous, and all of it is interesting. A great number of characters are handled, all of them residing at Benlo, Ind. Henry Ham is a young lawyer whom everyone is determined shall make a failure just to see their own prognostications vindicated; Jean is a wild, beautiful young woman who lives in a mysterious house guarded by Zulus; Grandma Trotwood is a darling aged 85, whose sharp tongue obeys a tender heart; Nate Shipley is a peaceful lawbreaker, who helps Henry Ham as the exigencies demand—and there are many other characters almost as delightful.

The story at first deals largely with pranks that Henry Ham and his kid brothers get into, and then comes Jean floating through the fields and the story turns its attention to the wooing of the strange, sweet, wise woman. For a side line, Henry Ham is determined to build a power-generating plant for the uplifting of Benlo and the gratifications of Mammon. He nearly bankrupts all of his friends, but strange things happen and "all's well that ends well."

Mr. Wason is a clever author; his style is excellent, and his plot made to gratify and satisfy the reader.

LITERATURE AND LOVE.

THE DOMINANT PASSION. By Marguerite Bryant. Duffield & Co., New York.

MARGUERITE BRYANT is a woman with something to tell, and she knows how to make you see it. It is a little venturesome to let a story run into 466 pages of close print—so close that it is somewhat trying to the eyes. There is sure to be the introduction of interminable detail, which is likely to detract from the main issue of the story. Marguerite Bryant's "interminable detail" is not in the nature of landscape description—although there is enough of this to lend tone, color and solidity to the setting. But she gives many pages to the analysis of character. In fact, without these analyses the story could not be what it is; and the author has the good grace to confine them to her important characters, for the most part.

Her principal character is Honor, a young authoress full of ideals, who writes stories of men and women more as they ought to be than as they are. The other "leads" are Andrea, an artist, who cannot see life save through "pictures," and is utterly submerged in selfishness; Lawrence, his son, a musical genius and victim of his father's selfishness; and Anthony, scientist, who has discovered a cure for the dread disease pellagra, and finds his life work among its victims in Italy. Honor also has a life work, which she is unable to pursue unless she is in the stimulating atmosphere of her own England. When she and Anthony marry the struggle commences between her love for her husband and her loyalty to her work. With Anthony it is scarcely a struggle. The obligation of lifting suffering humanity is upon his soul, and he must fulfill it. But when Honor leaves him and goes back to England to finish her book, the light of his life goes out.

Andrea, in the meantime, has been throwing a selfish, rather a sinister influence into the affairs of husband and wife. His subtle suggestions help to bring about the separation and to sustain it. He finds that he can work better with his high-minded, noble "picture," Honor, on the wall. And he realizes that she can produce better work when separated from love and happiness. Absorbed in her work, her dream recedes further and further from her; and mistaken pride in both husband and wife widens the breach. But never once does Anthony distrust Honor in her intimate friendship with Andrea. And, in fact, the bond holds its own on a purely artistic plane, although Andrea is not insensible to a deeper longing. His son, Lawrence, who so well understands his father's selfishness and reverences Honor, resents the friendship and silently plays watchdog. Andrea finishes by bringing a species of ruin to the lives of all; but the logic is carried out by this very ruin falling upon himself and crushing his own genius. How out of the fragments the lives of the wronged ones are gathered up, is the main interest of the book.

One cannot but feel that the author's self is somewhat personified in the splendid girl, Honor, who is an inspiration and an uplift to all with whom she comes in contact simply because she is Honor. And such things as the author pictures are unusual or impossible only to those who have not lived in the realm of the artist laborer.

And books, we know,
Are a substantial world, both pure and good.
Round these, with tendrils strong as flesh and blood,
Our pastime and our happiness will grow.

Triumph of Exploration.

IN THE NAME OF SCIENCE.

ACROSS UNKNOWN SOUTH AMERICA. By A. Henry Savage-Landor. Little, Brown & Co., Boston. (Two volumes.)

NOT since Livingstone came out of the African jungles and wrote his remarkable description of that far country, hidden so long away from the light of civilization, has there been a book of exploration of equal importance to that which A. Henry Savage-Landor has written.

With a small band of native servants he pushed into the unknown regions of South America and in eighteen months covered 13,750 miles through trackless wildernesses, suffered from exposure, was endangered by strange adventures and threatened by starvation, and at last returned, to be substantially rewarded by the Brazilian government with a grant of approximately $20,000.

The book's value is greatly enhanced by photographs which the author took during the course of his journey, and the reader is brought face to face with savage men and women who were wholly unconscious that such persons as white men existed on the earth until confronted by the intrepid explorer.

Mr. Savage-Landor's difficulties began before his journey. He was unable to get reliable servants, and resorted to criminals who made up his party. They were a mutinous lot, quarreled among themselves and attempted to kill him.

The reward of the Brazilian government was small recompense for the beneficial services that had been performed for it, for the author brought back authentic reports on the fertility of the unknown country and gave direction whereby a large—and richer than now exists—rubber-growing district could be located and developed.

The trip extended through the unexplored region of Brazil, and through the unfrequented portions of Peru, Bolivia, Chile and the Argentine Republic, including the passage of the Andes.

His description of the savage tribes is especially absorbing. Regarding the Bororos, whom he found in the interior, the author says: "They frequently indulged in criminal practice in order to dispose of their young, either by strangulation at birth or soon after, or by drugging their women before the birth of the child. Eight days after birth they perforated the lower lip of male children and inserted a pendant, taking that opportunity to give a name to the child."

We are told that the women do most of the proposing; that the groom offered gifts to the bride's parents, which, if accepted, practically constituted the marriage ceremony. One of the favorite dishes is corn, chewed into a paste by the women, and filled in earthen pots with a little water added.

The book is filled with the most satisfying information. Even astronomical observations were taken at various points; the fauna is described; the habits and characteristics of the people even to their head measurements.

It is, we believe, one of the most complete accounts ever given by an explorer who has passed through an unknown country. The author is not unknown for his travels and daring and accuracy; he has penetrated many dark lands, but the trip through South America excels them all.

Secrets of Panama.

company indorsed Bunau-Varilla's book on Panama, but refused to enlist his personal services. The new company did absolutely nothing except keep silence until 1898 when it offered to sell the canal to the United States, where, because of the Oregon's long trip around South America to reach the fleet off Santiago the canal project was being discussed with enthusiasm.

POSTAGE STAMP ARGUMENT.

At that time everyone in America wanted the Nicaragua Canal built. Bunau-Varilla found that even the commission appointed by this government to investigate the merits of the Nicaragua and the Panama projects were disposed to recommend the former. All the newspapers were supporting the Nicaragua route, and Senators and Congressmen were openly in favor of it. He at once began a campaign, lectured, wrote and argued. One of his most forceful arguments was a postage stamp.

The Mont Pelee disaster had horrified the world. Bunau-Varilla all along insisted that volcanoes constantly threatened the proposed route in Nicaragua, and secured a Nicaraguan stamp which had for a design an active volcano. "Immediately after receiving the stamp, Senator Gallinger asked the Senate if it were reasonable to undertake this colossal work in a country which had taken as its emblem on its postage stamps a volcano in eruption."

The battle was won. The New French Company sold out for $40,000,000.

Now began trouble with the Colombian government. The United States refused to pay more than $10,000,000 indemnity, and Nicaragua had asked but $7,000,000. But Colombia insisted on $20,000,000, with an annual rental of $400,000, instead of $250,000, as offered. Bunau-Varilla had arranged with the Colombian President to accept the first demand, but he was removed from office and his successor was more greedy.

Seeing that there was nothing else to do, Bunau-Varilla advised Dr. Amador to lead a revolt in Panama against Colombia, and Mme. Bunau-Varilla at once began designing the flag that was later used by the new republic.

Bunau-Varilla explains that he knew as soon as Panama revolted, and Colombia began military operations, that the United States would intervene. That is exactly what happened, and Panama became an independent republic. Bunau-Varilla was appointed as Minister Plenipotentiary from Panama. Money for the republic was advanced by the J. P. Morgan Company, and shortly afterward the United States officially recognized the independence of Panama.

Bunau-Varilla signed the treaty with Secretary of State John Hay, representing the United States, that gave this country the Canal Zone. Panama seemed disinclined to ratify the treaty, and Bunau-Varilla sent the laconic warning, "You ratify or I resign."

M. Bunau-Varilla's book contains almost 600 pages. Under the heading of "Creation" he explains how the canal plans originated and were partially executed by the French; under the "Destruction" he devotes several chapters to the disasters of the French; under "Resurrection" he explains the fight against Nicaragua, the seccession of Panama and the triumph of the United States. Other chapters deal with the Panama tolls and the fortification of the Straits of Panama.

TRANSPLANTING THE TROPICS.

DATE GROWING IN THE OLD AND NEW WORLD. By Paul B. Popenoe. West India Gardens, Altadena, Cal.

By J. Smeaton Chase.

THE romance of California is not confined to the historical kind. There is romance on the natural side, and its most fascinating chapter is that which tells of the beginnings of some of our conspicuous agricultural successes. Among the long list of our fruits, many, and these the most valuable—the orange, the olive, the fig, and others—have been the occasion for an immense amount of patient, unrecorded, but deeply interesting work before they attained their present safe position. Latest of the band, and the one perhaps most attractive of all in its heretofore strict alliance with our conceptions of things oriental, tropical and strange, is the date, synonym for the luscious.

For years a small body of men, mostly experts of the bureau of plant industry, a branch of the Department of Agriculture, have been working at the problems of preparing for the entrance of the date into the noble family of American fruits. Experiment stations have been maintained at various desert points, where infants brought at great expense, from Arabia, North Africa, Mesopotamia, Persia, could be nursed and trained into Americans, and tested as to their value. For the past year or two we have noticed boxes of home-grown dates, packed like confectionery, displayed for sale as a novelty at alarming figures; and in the Coachella and Imperial valleys plantations of date palms on a considerable scale have been set out by far-sighted men who, as in every new industry, will reap the rich rewards that fall to the first in the field.

Now, opportunely, comes the first book on date culture. "Date Growing in the Old and New Worlds" is the title of a handsome volume of some 300 pages, by Paul B. Popenoe, published locally by the West India Gardens, Altadena, Cal. It embodies the results both of the experiments made in this country and also those of a very careful study of oriental methods, made by the author during two extended journeys through the date-growing countries of the Old World—journeys not entirely free from real adventure, though that is not touched upon in the volume. It is fully illustrated with forty full-page pictures, mostly from photographs made by the author; and, as showing the thoroughness with which he has carried out his work, it will probably be a surprise to the reader to find, following the fifteen chapters of detailed instructive matter, nearly 100 varieties of the date palm are dealt with—not merely listed, but described. Every reader will enjoy, too, incidentally, the glimpses into the cryptic oriental mind which we get through the many references and quotations from old Arabic and Persian writers. There are astounding instructions for the doing of impossible things, sententious statements of ludicrous beliefs, talismans involving tortoises, copper tablets, crabs' legs and a whole hotch-potch of Arabian Nights madness. Such things appealed to the author's sense of humor, and no doubt will to that of the reader, no less.

But these matters are, by the way; the purpose of the volume is the serious one of guiding the steps of those who have entered or think of entering, on this new and promising field of horticulture, one which promises a golden return, especially to the early birds. While to the careless man all instructions are useless, the author's judgment, and the book itself clearly show that the culture of the date offers no particular difficulties to one who goes to work with intelligence and teachableness combined. The experimental stage is past, and success is now no more doubtful with dates than with any other of our fruits, and the culture of a tree that bears early (at five or six years) produces heavily (say 100 pounds average per tree,) and flourishes for a century or more, will certainly attract a large number of progressive people. It is worthy of note that, while the area that at present can be safely classed as available for date growing is confined to the desert valleys of Southern California and Arizona, there is a good prospect that future experiments will result in the discovery of varieties that will be suitable to parts of the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys.

The book is on sale at book stores, or may be had from the West India Gardens, Altadena, Cal. (Price $2, postage 16 cents.)

DISASTROUS PROPHECY.

THE GATHERING STORM. By "A Rifleman." John Lane Company, New York.

AN anonymous author seldom deserves attention. But "The Gathering Storm" is different; it was written by a man whose every sentence shows study preception and conviction. The book deals with economics, and begins with the dawn of history, comes down to the present and casts a prediction of the future. It presents the most cold-blooded analysis of economic conditions that we have ever seen; its prophecy is disheartening—not seemingly pessimistic, but rather fatalistic.

The fallacy of many theories, including the Marxian, is set forth in simple, not bitter language, and then the author says: "The man who hires out his labor-power gives over for a recognized period the control of his labor-power to the organizing class. There is no philanthropy in the matter on either side. The man who hires out his labor does so simply and solely because he has got to do so or else starve or be sent to prison or the workhouse. And the employer hires out this labor-power simply and solely as a necessary commodity to help in the creation of other commodities."

His further arguments in that particular will undoubtedly seem brutal to the Socialists, but its accuracy cannot be denied: "The actual share of labor in the distribution of products is not determined by considerations of right and wrong, and not in the least by claims to this or that based upon an assumed divine ordinance, but simply and solely by the exchange-value of labor-power as a commodity as determined by the economic laws which determine the exchange-value of other products. The coal-miner who works a mine is, from an economic standpoint, just as much a commodity as the implements he uses or the pit-ponies, and the exchange-value is determined by precisely the same economic laws which fix the exchange value of his tools or of the labor-power of the pit-ponies."

The author believes that the "over-production" of the great industries throughout the world will be the basic cause of industrial upheavals, and says: "We are now at the commencement of an epoch of strenuous mental and physical activity as the process of industrial efficiency approaches its maximum development with ever-increasing momentum, an epoch which, whilst short in duration, must inevitably witness a more strenuous competition between rival groups of producers, a more furious trade-rivalry and more bitter racial antagonism between rival national groups than ever before in the world's history. We are on the threshold of an epoch of great wars, furious industrial upheavals, and prodigious all-round activity alike in industrial and military effort, the birth-throes in which will be born the brief but brilliant period of maturity, the last flicker of the creative energy of our civilization."

Right or wrong, it is a book to make the conscientious think; it strikes at the root of things and all of his arguments are with sane, analytical logic.

To give a book is to enrich the receiver permanently: to put into his or her possession something which leaves a residuum of pleasure long after the particular day on which it was received has been forgotten.
Hamilton W. Mabie.

A little library, growing larger every year, is an honorable part of a man's history. It is a man's duty to have books. A library is not a luxury, but one of the necessaries of life.

The Newest Fiction

The Valley of The Moon, $1.35
—By Jack London.
—A strong, virile story in London's best style.

The Tinder Box, $1.00
—By Maria Thompson Davis, author of the Melting of Molly. Just the kind of bright, cheerful story to send a friend at Christmas time.

The Iron Trail, $1.35
—By Rex Beach.
—Another Alaska novel in the author's usual happy, breezy style.

"Gold," $1.35
—By Stewart Edward White, author of "The Blazed Trail," "Rules of the Game," etc.
—A thrilling story of California in the days of '49.

At $1.25—Ring for Nancy, by Ford Madox Hueffer—a charming love story and a comedy farce in one—illustrated by F. Vaux Wilson.
At $1.35—Youth's Encounter, by Compton Mackenzie — a remarkable study of a boy—as intense and as powerful as "Carnival," by the same author.

At $1.50—The Quest of the Dream, by Edna Kingsley Wallace.
At $1.35—Round the Corner, by Gilbert Cannan—a literary work of the highest order.

At $1.00—The White Linen Nurse—by the author of "Molly Make-Believe," and just as charming.

At 10c—The Sunbonnet Series—by Uncle Milton—a treat for tiny tots. —One of the most novel lines of children's books ever invented; nothing better is produced to meet the demand for an inexpensive but artistic series.

The Gringos, $1.25
—By B. M. Bower, author of "Chip of the Flying U."
—A stirring story of adventure in the West.

The Coryston Family, $1.35
—By Mrs. Humphrey Ward.
—In which the author discusses the big questions in modern English life with the keen grasp and power found in her earlier books.

The Price of Place, $1.25
—By Samuel G. Blythe.
—A typical novel of the political works of present-day America.

The Poison Belt, $1.20
—By A. Conan Doyle.
—A blending of romance and science, making a story of unusual power and interest.

The Broken Halo, $1.35
—By Florence L. Barclay, author of "The Rosary"—and fully equal in charm and merit to that wonderfully popular story.

At $1.35—The Friendly Road, by David Grayson.
At $1.50—Heidi, by Johanna Spyri—illustrated in color by Charles Copeland.

At $1.00—Miss Keller is always interesting, and doubly so when she brings her clear mind to work out social problems. Here she writes for the condition of women, their higher education, economic problems, blindness and its prevention, etc. Much to the point, and engagingly said. Portrait frontispiece.

At $1.00—The Honorable Mr. Tawnish, by Jeffery Farnol—a very dainty volume.
At $1.40—Hagar, by Mary Johnson—the story of a woman's life in the present period of changing ideals and high hopes.

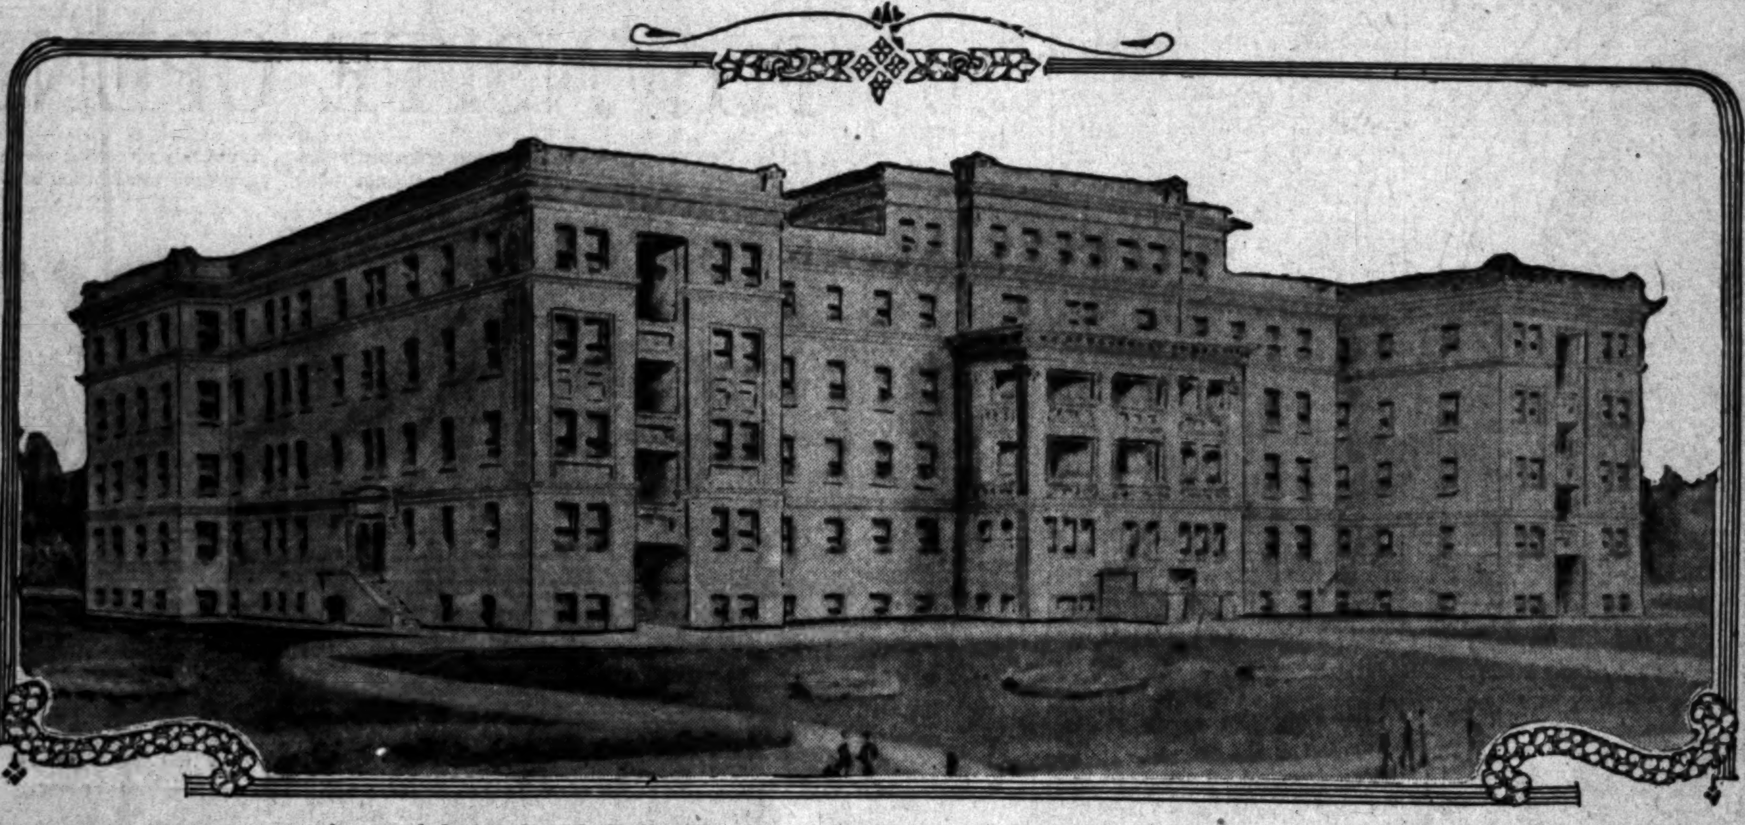
Modern Fireproof Institution Projected by Southland Church Body.



Accepted design for Methodist Hospital of Southern California, Garrett & Farrell, architects.

For the Sick.

PLANS SHAPING FOR HOSPITAL.

Methodist Institution to Be Started at Once.

Building Will Be of Modern Fireproof Type.

Grounds Are Like Beautiful Natural Park.

The approaching realization of the long-cherished ambition of the Methodists of Southern California to own and maintain a great modern institution for the care of the sick was marked by the recent completion of working plans for the splendid Methodist Hospital that is to be built on South Hope street, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets, in this city, and by a call upon contractors for construction bids last Wednesday. Architects Garrett & Farrell are now engaged in issuing plans and specifications to various bidders, and it is believed that the beginning of actual work upon the hospital building will not long be delayed.

For the present only the central portion of the hospital, a building 80x[illegible] feet in dimensions, will be erected. Eventually the plant is to have a total frontage of 250 feet, by a depth of more than 200 feet, but this will be after the two wings have been added. Plans are out for the entire building, which like the portion to be constructed now, will have a uniform height of five stories. The completed hospital will represent an outlay of $250,000, and will accommodate 250 patients.

The hospital will be of reinforced concrete construction and absolutely fireproof. It will be thoroughly modern in arrangement and appointment and will have an equipment as complete as that of any similar institution in the West.

The part of the hospital to be built at this time will cost approximately $100,000. The basement will contain commodious kitchens and dining-rooms, a chapel, laundry and sterilizing-rooms and storage space. The first floor will have a reception hall, a large reception-room and the administrative offices of the institution.

The men's ward will be located on the first floor, the women's ward on the second floor, the children's ward on the third story, and the maternity ward on the fourth floor. Each floor will also have private rooms, bathrooms, diet kitchens, storerooms and phone and chart rooms. The surgery department will be on the fifth floor, the entire floor being given over to surgical purposes. Provision is made for major and minor operating-rooms, an anaesthetic room, a sterilizing plant, an X-ray-room and a recovery-room.

The site of the new hospital is a plot of ground covered with gigantic pines, peppers, palms and eucalyptus. These trees, with broad stretches of lawn and a wealth of shrubbery, make of the grounds a beautiful natural park. The old Methodist Hospital, long since antiquated, is to be remodeled for use as a nurses' home.

It is the announced purpose of the Methodists to build and maintain a hospital where the best service and the highest medical skill will be available at a moderate price to those who are able to pay and in which free treatment and attention will be offered, in so far as is practicable and possible, to those in distress.

BAY CITY FAR BEHIND.

Los Angeles Has Record of Three Building Permits Issued for Every One in San Francisco.

Up to the beginning of December, Los Angeles had granted practically three times as many permits for new buildings as had been taken out in San Francisco during the same period. In the same time there had been expended here for construction work approximately $10,000,000 more than had gone into structural improvements in the Bay City.

With 447 permits granted during November for structures to cost in the aggregate $1,142,986, the San Francisco totals were brought up to 5197 permits and a valuation of $19,080,925 for the first eleven months of the year. The Los Angeles totals from January 1 to November 30, inclusively, were 15,389 permits and $29,484,970.

SOLD TO IOWAN.

Retired Capitalist From Hawkeye State Acquires Attractive and Unique Harvard Boulevard Home.

Negotiations have just been concluded by C. W. Williams of the Angeles Mesa Land Company for the sale to G. A. Vandermeuller, a retired capitalist of Iowa, of a handsome Japanese bungalow at No. 716 Harvard boulevard. Vandermeuller paid the seller, the Angeles Mesa Land Company, a reported consideration of $12,000 for the place.

The residence contains nine rooms and is in reality a two-story bungalow, sleeping-rooms being built on both the first and second floors. Juana Costa mahogany, with a piano finish, has been used in the interior. Two massive fireplaces at either end of the long living-room and den and unique built-in features make the home unusual. One of the features of the place is an enclosed patio and Japanese garden.

SELLS TO REALTY MAN.

C. A. Harshbarger, manager of the bungalow department of Robert Marsh & Co., reports the sale to C. A. Whitaker, a local realty man, of a bungalow at No. 3700 Third avenue, the consideration being given at $4200. Whitaker is said to have bought the property for a home.

"NILE COUNTRY" FREE FROM GENERAL DEPRESSION.

Fifty Lots Sold During Past Week in El Centro—Land Deals Numerous in Same Section—New Subdivision Will Be Placed on Market at Once.

EL CENTRO, Dec. 6.—El Centro city property sold by leaps and bounds last week, and if there is such a thing as a general depression in the realty field it has failed to effect the local market so far.

F. M. Barto, manager of the Farmers' Exchange, recently closed a deal for three business lots at $3500 each, another at $1000, and ten half-acre lots in the Cuyamaca tract for $700. In addition to this the Hermon Brothers, owners of the Cuyamaca tract, report the sale of eighteen lots, and the commencement of work on a number of bungalows. The Villa Farms tract, placed on the market at the same time as the Cuyamaca tract, is practically all sold, and Raymond Moore, manager of the Villa Farms Company, has let the contract for cement work on the new Sandalwood tract, preparatory to placing it on the market within the next few days. The Sandalwood tract is in the southern section of the city and will be subdivided into sixty and seventy-foot lots.

The first lot of the Sprouse-Cook resubdivision of city lots on State street was sold last week to W. M. Wyeth, Chicago, who will erect a $5000 white-pressed brick building at once. C. E. Sprouse has sold three State street lots adjoining the Masonic Temple on the east, and belonging to J. E. Cook, to I. W. Perkins of Los Angeles for $5000. Joseph Freidheim of Chicago recently purchased five lots from C. Krotz of the J. A. Delozier Company and contemplates building at once. Follis, Allen and La Porte have sold six lots at an average price of $500 each, while the Purcell & Sargent Land Co. announce the sale of five lots at an average of $650 each, thus making a total of something over fifty lots sold in the past week.

The activity is not confined to city property alone, however, as is shown by the sale of the A. D. Smith ranch of 160 acres east of Holtville by the H. M. Frasher Company to Dr. R. Snow for $20,000, and the sales by the Farmers' Exchange of sixty acres of alfalfa land north of Imperial for $9500, of 160 acres north of Seeley for $16,000, and of a twenty-acre tract adjoining the townsite of El Centro on the east, for $8800. This land will probably be placed on the market in the near future as another of El Centro's popular subdivisions.

The Purcell-Sargent Land Company brought a number of deals to a successful close last week, among which was the sale of the 320-acre ranch of W. P. Lockett, which lies just under the new east highline canal, to L. F. Seeley, for $9600. The company also sold the H. D. Main ranch of forty acres near Brawley to A. D. Taylor for $5400, as well as twenty acres near Heber, belonging to Fred Lynch, for $5000, in addition to twenty acres more belonging to the same owner, and in the same locality, which sold to R. C. Normandie for $4000.

MAUSOLEUM STARTED.

Imposing Edifice of Granite and Marble Under Way in Inglewood Park Cemetery Grounds.

Construction has been begun upon the imposing granite mausoleum that is to be erected by the California Mausoleum Company in the Inglewood Park Cemetery at Inglewood. William Crowell has the contract.

The structure, it is announced by those back of the project, will cost approximately $250,000, and will be one of the largest and finest edifices of its type in the United States. Two hundred and forty feet long, ninety feet in depth and forty feet high, the building will follow the Greek Ionic style. The walls will be of solid granite and the interior will be finished throughout in marble. All the metal work will be in bronze.

The mausoleum will be provided with over 1300 individual crypts, together with a number of family vaults. The wide corridors of the building will be lighted by windows set with cathedral glass.

ACTIVE MONTH.

Building Activities in Glendale During November Give No Hint of Slackness—Total for Year Large.

GLENDALE, Dec. 6.—If times are hard, that fact is not evidenced by the amount of building that is being done in this city. November was an active month, $52,079 in permits being issued during that period. The permits granted in this city during the present year amount to $642,553, and were let as follows: January, $84,050; February, $58,500; March, $65,050; April, $48,765; May, $68,760; June, $49,576; July, $58,260; August, $68,000; September, $51,465; October, $42,448; November, $52,079.

The building permits just granted here are for the Masonic Temple, No. 530 South Brand boulevard, $12,000; H. F. Beauchamp, bungalow, No. 1559 Salem street, $1800; Frank Thomas, bungalow, No. 200 Jackson street, $2000; Dave Carney, No. 508 South Louise, flats, $1500; I. H. Russell, bungalow, No. 341 North Maryland, $4000; Irene Harter, No. 114 South Kenwood, bungalow, $2000; A. D. Mills, bungalow, No. 1500 Vine street, $1625; P. E. Swanson, No. 120 South Howard, $1000; J. F. Stanford, No. 1449 Patterson, bungalow, $2000; A. F. Stoffell, No. 422 Louise street, $1000; S. A. Dixson, Sixth street and Verdugo road, bungalow, $1800; Carnegie Library, Fifth and Kenwood streets, $11,000; Annie J. Badger, Oak and Pacific, $1000; N. M. Hammond, No. 1461 Sixth street, residence, $1200; H. A. LaGros, Doran and Louise streets, dwelling, $2000.

A. E. Rudell has resigned as secretary of the Standard Building Investment Company to take a position with another corporation now being formed. W. H. Bissell has been elected to fill the position made vacant by Rudell.

Ready for Business.

CONTRACTS LET FOR NEW BLOCKS.

IMPORTANT BUILDINGS NOW GOING AHEAD.

Steel Frame of Sixth-Street Skyscraper Soon to Be Encased With Brick and Terra Cotta—New Telephone Structure Will Have Strong Foundation.

Three important construction contracts were awarded during the past week in this city, two of these being for class "A," fireproof structures. To the National Fireproofing Company was given the commission to handle the general contract on the fourteen-story steel frame structure that is being erected by the Building Owners' Company on Sixth street, between Hill and Olive. The contract calls for all the concrete work, fireproofing and brick and terra cotta work on the building. The structural steel work is now being done by the Baker Iron Works. The block will be 60x150 feet in size, and will cost approximately $400,000. Thornton Fitzhugh is the architect.

The contract for the construction of the new six-story steel-frame Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company building at No. 622 South Hill street has been awarded to the Willard Slater Company. The building has been designed to go to a height of eleven stories, and the foundations are to be made of a strength sufficient to support a structure of this size. The building will cover a ground area of 74x58 feet, and its construction is made imperative by the growth of the telephone company's business.

NEVADA'S PICTURESQUE SENATOR.

Key Pittman Tells How He Shot the White Horse Rapids While on His Way to the Gold Fields of Alaska—Made $30 a Day as a Wood-Chopper—Found a Mine and Sold it for $15,000—He Joined the Rush for Tonopah Later and That is the Reason He is Now a Senator.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

[Copyright by Harris & Ewing.]

Key Pittman,

The romantic Senator from Nevada.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The antlered head of an elk and the story that went with it caused Key Pittman to begin the stirring adventures, which, working in a romantic sequence, culminated in his election to the Senate from the State of Nevada.

Key Pittman lived in Mississippi—he was born in Vicksburg. His mother died when he was 8 years old; his father when he was 14. At 18, having been graduated at a Presbyterian university in Tennessee, he went to a cotton plantation, left him by his grandmother, to think matters over. His father had been a lawyer.

An obstinate case of malarial fever—the doctor thought it would end fatally—followed his journey into the country. The period of convalescence was passed in visits among his relatives. He saw the head of the elk in a magazine at the club in Tuscaloosa. Then he read the article. It was a hunting story and pertained to the new State of Washington.

So Key Pittman thought he would like to shoot elk and try his fortunes in the western country. A special act of the Legislature authorized his guardian to pay him all of his inheritance. No doubt the guardian and Key Pittman's kindred believed he would soon lose his patrimony, a belief that was vindicated by the facts soon after.

Then, as at present, Key Pittman was tall, slender and rather leisurely of manner. But there was a certain glint in his brown eyes which might have been interpreted by strangers as a caution against stormy weather. The glint remains, now that he is married, settled in life and a public character.

"I crossed the continent," Key Pittman told me, "with most of my capital hidden away in secret places on my person. I was very young and very unsophisticated and had no one to counsel me. Elk, posed in the woods waiting to be shot, was the only picture I saw. There was room in my head for no other. The practicalities of life, if I ever thought of them, were to wait until I came down from the Shuksan Mountains loaded with the horns and hides of my victims.

GETS INTO A TOUGH HOTEL.

"Seattle was reached in the gray of a noisy afternoon. A thousand hackmen, as I estimated the number, were bellowing at the edge of the station platform. I was confused and, not knowing what to do, waited until all the hacks had gone but one. 'This way, captain,' yelled the driver, 'for the St. Charles Hotel.' That particular name was highly respected in the South. It sounded like home, cheered my heart, and I handed over my valise and was slowly bumped two blocks down the street and into the toughest part of the city. The St. Charles, I noted at a glance, was a villainous looking establishment, but Seattle, I argued, was a new town and, besides, elk hunters could not expect all the refinements of civilization.

"I walked between male immigrants sleeping on the floor and female immigrants nursing their babies, also on the floor, and duly wrote my name in the register. Then I had a bite of supper. I have eaten better meals even on the trails of Alaska. But I was a sportsman and so I cut my food into cartridges and swallowed them without chewing. At bedtime a man was complaining to the clerk that he had been robbed that afternoon while sleeping.

"'Dere's a sign in every room,' the clerk shouted, 'denyin' all responsibility. You orter have left your money wid me.'

"I looked at the clerk and decided to be the custodian of my own valuables, at least for the time being. A disreputable-looking boy showed me upstairs and into a smallish room containing two beds and a table, on which a candle was burning. There was a man in one of the beds. He pretended to be asleep, but I saw him looking at me through a tunnel he had made of the clothing around his head. 'He's a robber,' I said to myself.

"After undressing I put a six-shooter under the pillows with considerable ostentation. I did not extinguish the candle. Once in bed, lying with my face toward the robber, I broke out in a cold sweat at the thought that I might fall asleep before morning. The robber had his eyes closed, but I knew he was playing 'possum.

"Thus the hours dragged until the candle went out, after which the situation seemed more dangerous than ever. I lay with my hand on the revolver, straining my eyes and ears for any suspicious movements on the part of the robber. I heard his bed squeak just before daylight and cocked my pistol.

MEETS THE ROBBER.

"But he remained on his own reservation and by and by I realized that he was dressing. He left the room very softly. 'He has gone,' I remarked to myself, 'after re-enforcements.' Therefore, I got up. Immigrants were still on the floor of the office. The clerk directed me to the barroom. After such a night I thought I required a stimulant. A man had his foot on the brass rail and had ordered something. 'Drink a little buttermilk with me,' I said, wanting to illustrate my sociability.

"'You hit the target at the first crack,' the stranger replied. He turned and I saw that he was a youngster like myself.

"'And I need a tonic,' he went on to say. 'I haven't closed my eyes since going to bed last night. I am a stranger here, and don't understand the inhabitants. Heaven pity Seattle if this is the best hotel in town.'

"'Who said it was the best' roared the barkeeper.

"'There were two beds in my room,' the young fellow continued, ignoring the barkeeper's question. 'I was dozing when a man came in and, pulling a gun a mile long from his valise, got into bed with it. So I lay awake watching and waiting to be murdered any minute.'

"'My friend,' I said, 'I am that man and I apologize. I am as green as grass and thought you were a robber.'

"We found a better hotel and went elk shooting together. On returning to Seattle, I sat down and seriously began to look into the future. I got all the boom literature printed about the Puget Sound region, studied it carefully, balanced one place against another and then bought the very worst pieces of property in all that country. In six months I hadn't a dollar.

DRIVEN TO ALASKA BY A PANIC.

"A southern lawyer, Judge August M. Moore, took me into his office and into his home and paid me a salary I would clerk for him during the day and he would quiz me at night in his library and talk to me about public questions. Moreover, he made me his partner after I had passed the bar examination and was licensed to practice. We moved to Mt. Vernon, in the northern part of the State, where there were mines and sawmills, and where we had a number of important clients. Judge Moore, on the settlement of some large cases, returned to the South.

"The panic of 1893 didn't reach the Pacific Coast until 1896 and then it hit us all at once. Money ceased to circulate. Lumber men had difficulty in selling anything and even then each sale was a losing proposition. I was living at a hotel and was on a cash basis, but couldn't get any cash. Money was due me, but it wasn't collectable. Mt. Vernon was entirely too dead for a person of my temperament. So I gave my law library to the presiding judge of the district, my office furniture to a young lawyer who had just moved to town, and my account books and promissory notes to the flames and went to Seattle.

"That was in 1897. The big rush to Alaska started the next year. I bought a lot of junk and left Seattle in the steerage, but I had a good supply of food, guns, ammunition, blankets, and mining tools. There would be something doing in the way of gold as an incident, but law was to be my regular business. I met two young men in the vessel going up. We agreed to remain together until further notice.

"It was thirty miles from Skagway to Lake Bennet. We packed our supplies, weighing three tons and a half, the entire distance. It was terribly hard work. We would put up a tent and a second tent half a mile farther on. Then we would bring up our supplies, each man carrying 100 pounds at a time. October was upon us and a fierce storm was likely to blow up any moment. That is the reason we always pitched two tents on the trail.

HAD ONLY 10 CENTS LEFT.

"At Lake Bennet we made a boat. There was a water route thence onward to Dawson. None of us had ever done any research work with a ripsaw. Lumber had to be cut for the boat. One of my companions sawed away for a day or two and then opened negotiations for the sale of his outfit. Jim Lashua and I bought it. The purchase reduced my money in hand to 10 cents; Jim, however, had several dollars. The boat was twenty-three feet long. Good headway was made through the lakes by using a tent fly for a sail.

"One night we stopped just at the canyon leading to White Horse Rapids. We meant to keep on for a while, but a sudden impulse caused us to tie up to the bank. If we had kept on I shouldn't now be telling you this story. The next morning we saw the danger we had escaped. Other boats were made fast to the banks and men were unloading them so as to carry boats and supplies over the mountains to the river beyond White Horse Rapids.

"Jim and I walked to the canyon. The river narrowed to 100 feet and shot between two high walls of rock like an express train. I thought we could go through if we were to hit the channel fairly in the center. Then we looked at the rapids and falls two or three miles farther on. Neither of us had said a word. On the way back to the boat Jim asked? 'What do you think of the proposition?'

"'I shall pack no more goods,' I answered.

"'That's my feeling,' Jim responded.

"We climbed into the boat and cast off. The canyon was negotiated safely, though we went with the speed of a bullet. So far so good, but the worst was yet to come. Jim sat well forward, facing the bow, and steadying the boat with a pair of oars twelve feet long. I, braced between bags of flour, steered the boat with another heavy oar. So we approached the rapids, going swiftly with the boiling current. Then men began running along the bank, waving their hats wildly and yelling.

LOOKED DEATH IN THE FACE.

"'Pull in, you blankety blank fools! You are near White Horse Rapids!' they shouted. "'W--h-o-s-e h-o-r-s-e?' Jim bellowed, making a megaphone of his hands.

"'It ain't a horse but a rapids. Pull in, you blankety-blank idiots, or you will be dashed to pieces!' shrieked the men in angry warning.

"'W-h-a-t k-i-n-d of a h-o-r-s-e?' Jim roared through his improvised speaking trumpet.

"The men continued to shout, but we sailed on seemingly determined to commit suicide. The foam began to fly and was so thick that I could not see the bow of the boat. Jim would cry back: 'A little to the left; a little to the right; hard to the left; hard to the right,' and I, blinded by the spray, would throw my oar back and forth accordingly. We fairly flew over the water, dipping every moment like a kingfisher after his dinner.

"The boat swept to the rim of the rapids. For an instant it paused, shook itself as though it were a dog coming out of the water, and then took the seven-foot plunge as gracefully as a professional diver. My oar broke in the middle. But the trick had been done and we rowed ashore and made fast to a tree.

"The men who had called us fools and idiots extended their congratulations. We brought three more boats down that day, getting $50 for each performance. I now had $75.10 in money, and spent all of it but the original dime for furs at the mouth of the Stewart River, where there was a big encampment of Indians. Moose, the Indians said, could be found on the watershed of the Arctic Circle. The mines, we argued, would wait, but the moose wouldn't. We crossed the river, and built a cabin, notching the logs and putting moss between them. Then we started after moose.

"In the meantime the river had been closed by ice for the winter. The cabin was comfortable, but I wanted to be on about my business. We cached our supplies, and, with a sled load of provisions, set out for Dawson, which was 100 miles distant. The journey was made in two days over the frozen river. I had 10 cents, but couldn't spend it. Candles were $1 apiece; flour was $100 a sack.

GETS $30 A CORD FOR WOOD.

"Two men in Dawson owned claims near the mouth of the Stewart River. They gave us pound for pound and item for item according to the inventory of our supplies at the cabin. Freightage was thus saved to them and to us. Jim and I had plenty to eat and enough to wear, but no currency. I thought I would look around and find a mine. Jim said he would turn butcher and shoot moose for $1 a pound. So we parted.

"I next formed a conjunction with Charley Greene of Pittsburgh. He was a fine young fellow, but didn't have any ready money, either. Frenchy the Devil, said he would give us $30 a cord for wood. Miners used a great deal of wood for thawing the ground. Charley and I rented an old cabin. A bench near the top of the mountain was covered with trees killed by a fire. The trail to the bench was crooked in one spot but otherwise good.

"We had a strong sled and two sharp axes. After chopping down a dozen long poles we tied the butts to the sled, which we hauled to the edge of the trail. Charley took hold of the tongue of the sled. 'You had better stay behind,' he said, 'and help hold back the load.'

"'That won't be necessary,' I replied. 'I'll stay on the bench and cut another cord of wood.'

"I helped drag the sled to the trail and teeter it over. And away it went. Charley dug his heels into the ice, leaned backward as far as he could, turned his legs in and turned them out, but the sled kept going faster and faster. The trail was narrow and he couldn't jump aside, but had to stay where he was or be run over. Half way down the mountain the trail turned sharply to the left. Charley and the sled hit the curve at forty miles an hour. The whole outfit went into a huge snowbank.

CHARLEY NEVER SAID A WORD.

"Then I stopped laughing. I feared Charley had been killed. Anyway he was out of sight and I was sure something terrible had happened. Presently, however, I saw a slight movement in the snow. The sled, I thought, was backing up. But it was Charley. He crawled out on his hands and knees, blowing like a whale. After he got on his feet he looked up the mountain and saw me. I had resumed laughing. He shook the snow out of his sleeves and silently walked down the trail. I waited awhile and then followed him.

"When I arrived at the cabin he was frying beans and looking mad as thunder. He didn't speak to me, and so I sat on my bunk, filled my pipe and began to smoke. After the beans were fried, Charley slammed them on the table and sat down to eat. I sat down, too, but didn't say a word. Dinner over, Charley went to his bunk and lighted his pipe. I went to my bunk and lighted my pipe. He didn't want to talk and I felt reluctant about starting a conversation. Thus we sat in silence. Finishing his smoke in the course of half an hour, Charley stood up, stretched himself and said: 'Well, it's time to go back to the bench. It's your turn to bring down the next load.'

"We soon learned how to get the wood down without accident, and each of us made $30 a day at the business. I found some mines and sold one of them for $15,000. At the end of two years I started for Nome, 2200 miles distant, for a dredge with which to do mining at Dawson on a large scale. Once in Nome, I opened a law office and stayed there. Congress had passed a law respecting Alaska and a swarm of professional receivers, bondsmen and plunderers came to Nome, accompanied by lawyers.

A CELEBRATED MINING CASE.

"A beach at Nome for twenty miles up and down was being worked by individual miners. They would dig the gold out of their little claims and then go down the line and take up others. The gang that came in tried to run them out of the country. Three companies of United States soldiers were compelled, under the law, to assist the plunderers. Property rights, you understand, had to be protected, and the plunderers said they owned everything.

"The miners consulted me. I told them to keep at work and to obey without objection the orders of the soldiers. They followed my instructions, and 500 of them were arrested and confined at the barracks. Then I combed the saloons and asked 250 more of them to surrender. The imprisoned miners had to be fed, you see, and the soldiers were compelled to share their blankets with them at night.

"My purpose was to have the army post eaten out of its limited supply of rations. An opportunity was given the miners to escape, but they stuck to the barracks. Ultimately my scheme having worked satisfactorily, they returned to the beach and operated their claims unmolested.

"I helped to establish civil government in Nome, and became prosecuting attorney of the new city. In the autumn of 1901, I left Alaska, as I thought, temporarily. I meant to spend the winter in California. There was a gold rush to Nevada. I went along, being curious to see the country.

"Tonopah looked all right to me. I am now one of its oldest inhabitants."

Date City

THE CLEAR CALL OF Opportunity

Date City is located in the North end of the great Imperial Valley in the center of extensive tract just sold by the S. P. Ry. to the big land syndicate and which will be subdivided into small tracts and come under irrigation immediately.

The enormous developments in this district—the proven astonishing productivity of the lands—the biggest irrigation system in the world—the strategic location of Date City—and the low opening prices of Date City lots—all contribute to create an opportunity extraordinary and absolutely unique in California.

The developments in Imperial Valley have been the marvel of the world. Thirteen years ago, nothing—today, $60,000,000 property valuation. Town lots which a few years ago sold for two and three hundred dollars, have since sold as high as $15,000. Date City is the opportunity of the hour. Get in on the ground floor QUICK—while you may.

Date City is starting with a $47,000 hotel and business block—also, an $8000 business building starts immediately. Other substantial buildings begin at once.

Town modern from the ground up—100 ft. streets.

Get a Souvenir of Torrance

The Modern Industrial City

We are giving away beautiful Pearl Shell Souvenirs at our office. From these shells have been cut Pearl Buttons at the works of the Torrance Pearl Button Company. Every woman wears pearl buttons, but few know where and how they are made, so this little souvenir is both unique and interesting—nice to keep, nice to send to your Eastern friends. Just come in and say, "Please may I have a souvenir?"

When you send the shell, write about your trip to Torrance. Torrance is quite the most interesting trip about Los Angeles—from almost any point of view. A marvel of city building. A study in architecture. A lesson in practical social science. A demonstration of the present and coming great importance of Industrial Development in Los Angeles. Remarkable landscape gardening. Hundreds of thousands of palms, roses, and shade trees. More than 20 miles of paved and surfaced streets.

Torrance is also a very good place to make an intelligent investment for present and for future returns.

Note—Get Souvenirs at Home office or at Tract office, Torrance. Excursions to Torrance every day. Special Party, Sunday, Dec. 7, leave P. E. Station, 6th and Main, at 10 a.m. Ask for the Torrance man. He has tickets.

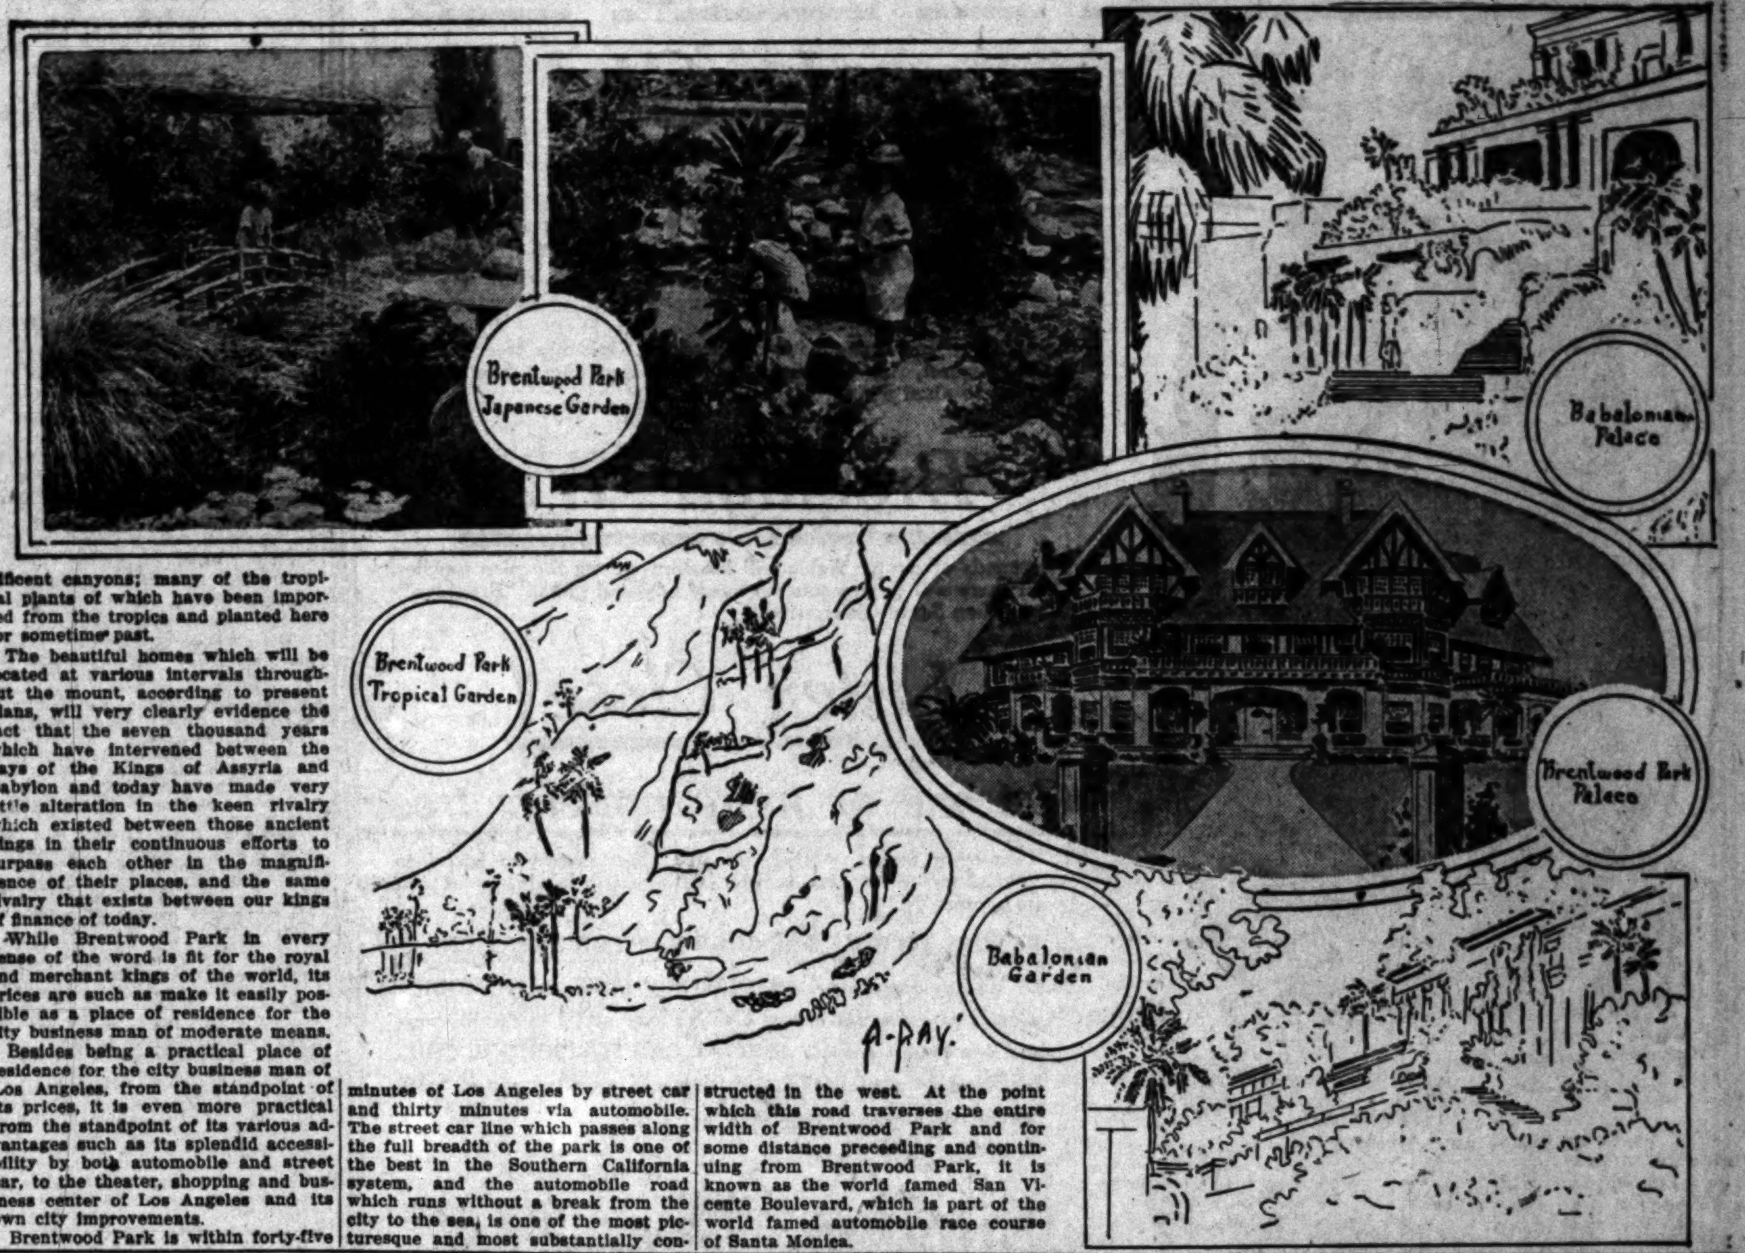
THE COUNTRY ESTATE GENTLEMAN BECOMING AS FREQUENT IN THE UNITED STATES AS IN ENGLAND

Beautiful Brentwood Park, Santa Monica, Is Increasing Daily in Fame as the Ideal Seaside Homesite for the Country Estate—Brentwood Park, in Many Details, Suggests Babylon of 7,000 Years Ago.



It was not so very long ago that the stupendous demand for seaside home property known today was a thing unheard of. At that time the country estate of England or the typical country place of America was the demand of the hour.

Today while the country estate home assumes all of the dignity the romance and the charms of former days, the seaside resort and homesites have come into so great importance as compared to the country place, that it has decidedly outdistanced the country estate home in popularity.

The home however, that combines both the seaside and the country estate advantages is regarded as the most ideal of all homes, and hence is the one that is more sought after by the elite of the land, than any other.

Beautiful Brentwood Park is one of the most famed and beautiful of seaside homesite tracts in the United States, and is rapidly becoming one of the most favored places sought by the prominent city business men for their country estate homes.

Brentwood Park with its beautiful gardens, its palatial homes and its tropical growth, reminds the spectator very forcefully of the superb city of Babylon of seven thousand years ago; only of course it is on a much smaller scale; as Babylon, it is said, was greater than our great New York City.

As Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, in his palace of marvels, had constructed one of the wonders of the world, in his hanging gardens which he termed "The admiration of mankind", so in Brentwood Park is one of the most notable show places of America being established, by a prominent Southern California King of finance.

Perhaps the thing that caused the Hanging Gardens of Babylon to receive so much comment and praise, was the fact that they were built on the flat plain of Babylon, at the same time being in perfect harmony in every detail of their construction with the gardens of the hilly country of the former home of the wife of Nebuchadnezzer, for whose special benefit they had been made. This was due to the fact that they were built in terraces on immense stone pillars.

The famed show place that one of the Brentwood Park purchasers is establishing, which in many details might have well been envied by the Great Nebuchadnezzer himself, who boasted so much of the Great Babylon that he had built, is indeed a fair rival to the tropical charms of the famous Babylonish gardens.

This is especially due to the one advantage that Brentwood Park of today has over Babylon of old; which is its magnificent, mountain backed, canyon gilded, seakissed landscape surrounding it, that Nature has provided.

When complete, this magnificent Brentwood Park garden will not be unlike the old hanging gardens of Babylon; only there will perhaps not be so lavish a display of stone columns and arches intermingled with the tropical growth.

This garden is being built in the identical terraced effect of the Babylonish gardens, though the stone pillars which support each respective terrace will be the magnificent, natural rock formations, of the mount itself, for this garden is being erected on a mountain foothill, over these rock formations will trail a bewildering mass of vines and hanging mosses of various kinds brought from all over the world, many of which are already planted.

At the base of the terraces, and in fact occupying the greater part of the lowest terrace is to be a beautiful lake equally luxuriant with tropical and semi-tropical growth surrounding it.

To add to the terraced gardens, upon the mount, there will also be charming sunken gardens in the magnificent canyons; many of the tropical plants of which have been imported from the tropics and planted here for sometime past.

The beautiful homes which will be located at various intervals throughout the mount, according to present plans, will very clearly evidence the fact that the seven thousand years which have intervened between the days of the Kings of Assyria and Babylon and today have made very little alteration in the keen rivalry which existed between those ancient kings in their continuous efforts to surpass each other in the magnificence of their places, and the same rivalry that exists between our kings of finance of today.

While Brentwood Park in every sense of the word is fit for the royal and merchant kings of the world, its prices are such as make it easily possible as a place of residence for the city business man of moderate means.

Besides being a practical place of residence for the city business man of Los Angeles, from the standpoint of its prices, it is even more practical from the standpoint of its various advantages such as its splendid accessibility by both automobile and street car, to the theater, shopping and business center of Los Angeles and its own city improvements.

Brentwood Park is within forty-five minutes of Los Angeles by street car and thirty minutes via automobile. The street car line which passes along the full breadth of the park is one of the best in the Southern California system, and the automobile road which runs without a break from the city to the sea, is one of the most picturesque and most substantially constructed in the west. At the point which this road traverses the entire width of Brentwood Park and for some distance preceeding and continuing from Brentwood Park, it is known as the world famed San Vicente Boulevard, which is part of the world famed automobile race course of Santa Monica.

Santa Paula.

YIELD DOUBLES IN TWO YEARS.

Value of Ventura Oil Does Even Better.

Increase in High Gravity Boosts Price.

Montebello Producing Half Total Output.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

SANTA PAULA, Dec. 5.—In two years the output of the Ventura district has nearly doubled, while the value of the oil produced has increased about 60 per cent. The average value of the oil now produced is about 80 cents per barrel, as compared with 65 cents two years ago. This is not due primarily to any increase in the price of oil, but to the rapidly-growing high-gravity output. Most of the later wells yield the lightest and most refinable oil in the field. Some companies now receive as high as $1.10 for their product, while in the case of Simi Valley as high as $1.50 a barrel has been paid. Production of the Ventura district this year will show quite a decided increase over last year. The total output for the first eleven months is already about 850,000 barrels, and by the end of the year the total should be about 925,000, representing an increase of more than 180,000 barrels, compared with 1912. In 1911 the production of the field was only a little over 600,000 barrels.

At the present average price the output of the district this year will be valued at about $825,000, compared with $650,000 in 1912, and [illegible] in 1911. These figures indicate quite plainly how important an increase has taken place.

The increase, both in production and value, is due largely to the rapid development of the Montebello Oil Company's property since the first of the year. The output of this concern is now estimated at about 45,000 barrels a month—over half the yield of the entire district. The profits of the company are very large, as the wells are practically all shallow, and the oil brings $1.10 a barrel. One deep well is being drilled and has just encountered the oil sand at about 1750 feet, and it is believed that it will prove a new source of production. Of the twenty-five to thirty new wells brought in this year in the Ventura field by far the majority are on the Montebello holdings.

The development of the Simi Valley field affords prospects for a new and important source for increasing the output of the Ventura district, especially since the bringing in of the Santa Susana Syndicate well on the Pasadena company's tract. This well is still doing 150 barrels of high-gravity oil daily, despite the fact that the hole is filling up with a large amount of sand.

The Dabney & Roberts well, which is down about 2300 feet, and which has had over 300 feet of oil sand, will, it is believed, prove up an important new section. Promising developments are also expected from wells drilling on the [illegible] Oil Company's property, the [illegible] well, and the Calabasas test on the south side of the valley. The bringing in of the Santa Susana Syndicate high-gravity producer has lent considerable zest to the exploration of the valley's possibilities.

Many oil men are of the opinion that Ventura county will in the future prove an even greater center of production than in the past. It is a well-recognized fact that light oil is the thing for the present, and although deep drilling in this section presents a great many difficulties, the wells in shallow country have generally proved highly successful from a financial standpoint.

UNION'S FULLERTON WELLS.

Latest Producer Does Over Five Hundred Barrels—Others Furnish Good Yield.

FULLERTON, Nov. 27.—The Union Oil Company's well, brought in early last week on the Graham & Loftus lease at a depth of 3300 feet, is still flowing 550 barrels of good gravity oil per day. This is a very good record for that territory. One of the first wells on the same lease for many months flowed at the rate of 900 barrels a day. The same well is now pumping about 400 barrels daily. Another well on the lease, which was recently cleaned out, is producing over 400 barrels a day.

Results of the South Fullerton Oil Company's test at El Toro will probably soon be made known. The hole is down about 4000 feet and the casing is being perforated now. Considerable oil sand is said to have been found. A number of gas pockets were encountered while the hole was being drilled.

E. W. Pennington, who was employed in the Fullerton oil fields for some time, but who is now superintending the drilling of a well at San Ysidro, about twelve miles southeast of San Diego, was here this week. He reports that the hole is down 2900 feet and that some oil sand and gas pockets have been found. The well is being drilled by the Lotengo Oil Company.

Pennington also reports that the Otay Oil Company, which is drilling a well about a mile and a half from Otay, south of San Diego, has the hole down 2060 feet, but that no oil sand has been found up to this time.

The Balboa Oil Company is drilling for oil in Mission Valley and has its first well down 3085 feet, but no good indications of oil have been found.

SHOWS HIGH-GRADE OIL.

Belridge Well Gives Promise of Extending Producing Territory—McKittrick Field Notes.

A great deal of interest has been attracted by the recent strike of the Belridge company in the center of the southwest quarter of section 34, 28-21. At a depth of 3000 feet there was encountered so strong a gas pressure that the water was blown out of the hole and the well began to flow. Oil of 36 gravity is said to have come with the gas.

The well indicates still greater possibilities for the field in which the company in operating, as it is some distance east of the shallow wells. Drilling has been resumed.

The I. X. L. Oil Company is dismantling its station near Olig, and a large portion of the equipment of the lease has been removed to North Midway district.

The Union Oil Company for the present has stopped operations on the Hopkins lease, section 9, 28-21, thirteen miles northwest of McKittrick; at the Coyote Hole, section 18, 29-22, eight miles north of the city, and at the Adobe Hole, nineteen miles north of here.

The Kern River Oil Company is redrilling well No. 5 on its lease in the north end of the McKittrick field.

The Juanita Oil Company, in which Bakersfield men are largely interested, has suspended work temporarily on its property, located several miles from here on the North McKittrick front.

SEWERS INSTALLED.

The sewer work in Pellissier square has just been completed. The city water company is putting in six-inch mains all over the tract, with inch connections for every lot. The work of connecting these up will be completed in a short time. The contract has been let for the cement work in the tract.

Bakersfield.

GETS ONE ON THE PRODUCING LIST.

EDMONDS-MIDWAY CLEANS OUT OLD WELLS.

St. Helens Will Soon Be Ready to Spud Well Number Two, Number One Having Been Abandoned. Developments in Kern County Fields.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 5.—The three wells on the Edmonds-Midway property, section 32, 32-24, have been cleaned out and No. 3 is again on the producing list with a record of 150 barrels a day. The oil from this well is being shipped in tank cars and is finding a ready market.

The sand formation in the well is very fine and great difficulty is encountered in keeping the pipe clear for oil.

Even with a McEvoy screen pipe it has not been possible to keep the sand out so far, though it is hoped to get the better of this trouble in time.

When No. 3 is in good shape No. 1 will be cleaned out and put on the producing list and No. 2 will be backed up from 2900 feet to 2700 feet where a better oil sand—the one that supplied No. 3—is to be found.

The new hole for well No. 1 of the St. Helen's Petroleum on section 16, 32-24 will soon be ready to spud in. The company is rigging up to begin work as soon as possible. The new hole is about 100 feet from the first well, which had such a variety of mishaps and difficulties that it was considered expedient to begin over again with a new hole.

Well No. 2 is a good gasser, supplying the lease with light and fuel, and also producing with the gas about 100 barrels of oil per day. Well No. 3 is down 1800 feet and is being underreamed preparatory to setting a string o ftwelve-and-one-half-inch casing. Drilling on well No. 4 will begin soon.

Well No. 1 on section 32, 31-24, adjoining the Boston Pacific and General Petroleum, is down 3330 feet and will be changed from the rotary to cable tools to finish up.

In spite of rumors to the effect that the Panama Oil Company was to abandon well No. 4 it is learned that work will be continued and that the four-and-one-half-inch and the six-and-one-four-inch casings will be pulled so that the well may be continued on down with the eight-inch casing to the big sand which is supplying the other wells on this lease. The eight-inch casing will be carried to a depth of 2417 feet, where the water will be cemented off and the well continued to the oil sand with the six-and-a-quarter-inch casing.

The Hale-McLeod test hole on section 5, 32-23, is down 3410 feet and is progressing very slowly through a brown shale. Slight oil indications have been encountered at various times, but nothing very promising as yet. Well No. 12 is down 1810 feet with a twelve-and-one-half-inch casing.

Well No. 5 of the Maricopa National Petroleum Company on section 32, 12-23, will soon be started. The water in well No. 4 has been shut off and drilling will recommence with the four-and-one-half-inch casing. When this well is finished into the sand active work on No. 5 will begin.

The property of the Maricopa National is one of the most valuable in the Maricopa Flat, consisting of fifty acres in the gusher territory. The company intends to gradually develop the entire holding which should make it one of the best paying properties in the Sunset field.

The National Pacific Oil Company has increased its already excellent power equipment by installing a new seventy-horse-power boiler on section 20 on the Maricopa Flat. Two other boilers are already on the property and new cement floors have been laid under all three.

The No. 1 well of the Wilkes-Head Oil Company on section 4, 32-23, is breaking all records for the rotary drill. The well is down 2066 feet.

A McLaughlin gas trap is being installed on the McLeod lease on section 34, 31-23, and will be used to conserve the gas now being wasted. Many other companies in the Midway field are doing the same thing, finding it a great economy to harness the escaping gas and make use of it.

The General Petroleum Company has placed an order for a rig for another well to be drilled into the profitable Wilhelm sand in the Sunset district. The well will be located on section 32, 12-23. The derrick for the well will be 114 feet high and a combination rotary and cable outfit will be used.

The General Petroleum is preparing to drill well No. 5 on the Continental division, section 14, 32-23, just outside the city limits of Taft.

Well No. 4 of the Pacific Crude Oil Company on section 32, 21-23, in the Fellows district, is making fine progress with a rotary drill. It is down 1509 feet. The California Well Drilling Company is doing the work.

The California Well Drilling Company is drilling well No. 3 of the General Petroleum Company on the Buena Vista division with a rotary and is now down 2412 feet. The company is preparing to land a string of ten-inch casing at a depth of 2800 feet. The well adjoins the big one of the Boston Pacific on section 32, 31-24.

The Section Five Oil Company is preparing to pull the five-and-five-eighths-inch casing from well No. 28 and redrill. The shot was put at a depth of 2200 feet. The well is on section 25, 32-22.

Electric light poles are being put on the lease of the Empire Gas and Fuel Company. The entire lease will be lighted in future by electricity. This will lessen the danger of fire on the property. H. H. Fenneman of the United Electric and Mercantile Company has the contract for putting up the pole line.

TO DEVELOP TACT.

One of the largest sales recently closed in the Pomona district has just come out of escrow, C. D. Wright having sold to the Stern Realty Company, 1327 acres on the Pomona boulevard. The price is given at $150,000. Jacob Stern, president of the Stern Realty Company, states that he will immediately develop water for irrigation, subdivide the entire tract into five and ten-acre home places, and place it on the market.

Tonopah.

INVESTIGATION IS FRUITFUL.

Jim Butler Effects Saving Through New Shaft.

West End Makes Important Improvements.

Tonopah Company to Enter New Enterprises.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) Dec. 4.—The Belmont company is getting results from its investigation of western territory, tributary to the Desert Queen shaft, which has been leased from the Tonopah Mining Company. This shaft is used chiefly by the Jim Butler, which is owned by almost the identical coterie of capitalists who control the Belmont.

The shaft is employed for sending out ore from the Butler in connection with the old Wandering Boy shaft, whence shipments have had to be made by wagon to the railroad yards. Every ton of ore hoisted through the Desert Queen means a saving of 33 cents a ton hauling charges, and when it is considered that the production is at the rate of 1000 tons weekly, the saving suffices to roll up quite a line of profit.

The Jim Butler started the year with a reserve of $2400 and at the date of the annual meeting last week this had swelled to $142,000. From this it may be inferred that the profits will aggregate enough to place the company close to the ranks of dividend payers at the end of next year. At least this is what Clyde Heller, president of the Butler, thinks.

Heller spent three days of last week here looking after the properties of the Butler and the Belmont and went away satisfied that there was no prospect of any abatement of the ore reserves of the Belmont for some time. The Jim is also more promising, as the working zone is now at a depth below the usual faulting area, and it is expected that future work will not be embarrassed by any of the troubles that have hampered the company up to this point. When it is remembered that it is less than a year since the "Jim" became a profitable producer the outlook is not discreditable.

On the Belmont the Desert Queen shaft will be used solely for the delivery of timbers, the hoisting of waste and similar duties, but the statement that the ore output of the Belmont would be increased by this shaft is not warranted, as no ore from the Belmont will be sent to the old mill at Millers, for that will continue to be used for custom work, and not for company shipments. In the western extremity the Belmont has opened four feet of god milling ore on the 700-foot level and on the thousand-foot level a new ledge varying from four to ten feet wide has been developed. This is a milling ore, every pound of which can be shipped at a profit.

By reason of these finds the Belmont now can boast of eight distinct ledges, all of good grade and some of them interlarded with high grade that serves to sweeten the milling charges.

At the West End are being conducted some of the most radical improvements in the history of the camp. The change from a single to a double-compartment shaft is being done without risking the loss of a ton of ore. From the 800-foot level they are upraising at the side of the shaft for the purpose of adding another compartment that will be ready when the new hoisting machinery is installed.

The immense drum has been placed in position and its weight renders it easily the biggest piece of machinery in place in Tonopah. The weight of the drum alone is 57,000 pounds, and with the completion of the shaft and starting of the hoist the West End will be able to do as much work in six hours as it takes twenty-four hours to do under the present system. This will conduce to greater economy of operation and will give a greater tonnage with a smaller working force than is now possible with three shifts a day.

One of the experiments that has not equaled expectations is the novel centrifugal mill secured in Los Angeles which was said to have certain qualifications that would lead to a revolution in milling methods. This mill was said to have a capacity equal to a hundred stamps at a fraction of the cost of the stamp mill, but the wear and tear proved more expensive than anticipated, and it was decided not to go any further with the experiments and to revert back to the old stamp mill system. This action led to the resolution to introduce another battery of ten stamps that will add 50 per cent. to the present capacity of the mill. The introduction of these crushers will not cause any great delay, and it is certain that when the hoisting machinery is in place that the mill will be able to absorb all the ore that is delivered from the mine.

Another new feature of importance is the decision to begin back filling of old stopes. For this purpose a third compartment to the new shaft will be started from the 1000-foot level and this can be kept going constantly to the 500 and 600 levels dumping waste rock into the old workings where the ore has been extracted.

On the Halifax, owned by Senator Kearns of Salt Lake and Borax Smith, the indications for huge ore bodies are looking better on both the 1100 and 1400-foot levels. In the upper level they have been getting good ore for a week or more, but the ledge for which they have been driving has not been entered to an extent that meets the desires of the company. Assay values have been running from $4 to $10 and the same experience has been had on the 1400 level, where the ledge is expected to be cut in a few days, when it will be demonstrated that the Halifax has the second largest body of ore in the camp all blocked out.

The Tonopah Nevada is doing nicely with the new West End ledge which enters their end lines at a point that promises to give them nearly half a mile of splendid stoping ground, and reviving the fortunes of that section of their property which was supposed to be nearing the end of the productive stage. This ore will be sent out through the Red Plume shaft and will furnish a tonnage almost equal to what has been secured at the other shaft of this company.

The weekly bullion statement discloses the fact that the Tonopah is earning at the rate of $250,000 gross each month, or a good real more than sufficient to meet the regular dividend of $250,000 a quarter, which has been disbursed for a period of nearly ten years.

With a view to perpetuating this company, properties in Oregon and Bolivia are under investigation, and it is said that a placer in Oregon has been acquired with the idea of developing early next year. The Bolivia mine was recommended by the President of that republic, and while the officials say nothing about the details, it is inferred that the mine is a tin producer of a magnitude that will astonish the world, if the prospectus pans out all right.

W. W. Charles, comptroller of the Tonopah Mining Company, has been in Bolivia since July investigating the representations of the owners of the property, and it is said that his report indorsing the proposition has been forwarded to headquarters in Philadelphia.

A Walnut Grove and Independence

There is money in raising walnuts. Every man in California knows that.

But walnut growing has always been considered possible only for the capitalist.

Good walnut lands have been scarce and the grower must wait 6 or 7 years before getting returns.

But now conditions are such that you can own a walnut grove at Patterson—and by planting alfalfa between the rows, make enough money to more than cover the cost of caring for the trees.

In a few years you will have an income of from $400 to $500 per acre and your land will be worth two to three times what you paid for it.

At

Patterson Irrigated Farms

the soil is perfectly adapted to the growing of walnuts.

The climatic conditions are just right—no late frosts or rain to cause blight.

Walnuts have been growing successfully on neighboring farms for years.

AGE OF SPECIALIZATION.

Designing of Buildings Belongs Properly to Qualified Architects. Contractors Have Their Own Work.

[Southwest Contractor:] This is an age of specialization, and specialization applies with equal force to building as to any other branch of human enterprise.

Designing a structure is a profession which properly belongs to the architect and the engineer, who each spend years of special study and training in accumulating the knowledge necessary to successfully handle this branch of the work.

Erecting the building, from the plans and specifications prepared by the architect and the engineer, is a business, specialized as absolutely. The contractor must have had years of practical training and must have spent thought and study in preparing himself to successfully handle the many problems his branch of the work presents. Uncommonly capable must one indeed be in these days if he can successfully handle both branches, and uncommonly resourceful, able and conscientious if he carries the project to completion both economically for the owner and profitably for himself. As a matter of fact, he can not do it, nor can any big organization hope to continue long at the attempt, as the experience of a large number of individuals and corporations during the last few years has definitely proved.

It pays to patronize an architect provided, of course, he is worthy of the title. His fee is a small percentage of the total cost and a little enough remuneration for the value of his services securing an original, artistic, well-planned building, in securing a well-made set of plans from which an intelligent bid can be made by the contractor, in securing a sufficiently rigid set of specifications to protect the owner against the substitution of cheaper and poorer materials, and by the architect's supervision in securing what the owner is paying for. The architectural profession long ago broke away from the old idea that an architect should also be a practicing constructor, although he of course should have a practical knowledge of the methods of construction.

It likewise pays to let the contract in competition between responsible, practically trained and efficient contractors, who, through their specialization have gained the knowledge necessary to enable them to efficiently, expeditiously, economically and intelligently handle their portion of the work.

GAIN FOOTHOLD IN YUBA FIELD.

Guggenheim Engineers Testing Placer Ground.

Plan to Build Large Dams Across River.

Angeleno Gets Option on Volcano Holdings.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

MARYSVILLE, Dec. 4.—Engineers who are understood to represent the Guggenheim syndicate, have bonded several placer mines near the property of the Yuba Consolidated Gold Fields Company, and are drilling the channels to determine the dredging possibilities of the ground. [illegible] crews have been at work during the summer months, and the company has actively prospected the bed of the Yuba River near Smartsville, beside drilling the lowlands along the stream. The recent rains have forced suspension of drilling in the bed of the stream, but the work thus far completed is reported highly encouraging.

It is planned to build dams across the Yuba River at low water stage to divert the stream into another channel, facilitating the dredging of the gravel at the bottom of the river. It is believed that the water can be handled without especial difficulty in the dry season.

The activities of the Yuba Consolidated on adjoining lands have been highly successful, the company ranking as the largest gold producer in California. Last year the net profits exceeded $1,400,000, or about [illegible] per cent. on the capital stock.

Representing Southern California and Eastern capital, A. E. Schr[illegible] of Los Angeles has taken under option several properties in the Volcano district east of Jackson. Included in the group is the [illegible] Hill, from which some high-grade quartz has been extracted. Some of the mines under option have good productive records, while others are of the prospect class. It is planned to start work within a few weeks.

The apex suit of J. J. Riley, owner of the Del Monte mine, against the White Lily Mining Company, owning the White Lily mine at [illegible], Plumas county, will shortly be heard in the Federal Court. Considerable Los Angeles capital is interested in the White Lily, which is considered one of the best quartz properties in the county.

The company developed a good tonnage of ore averaging $10 [illegible] ton and erected a sixteen-stamp mill when a restraining order in favor of Riley stopped all work. The outcome of the suit is being awaited with keen interest by local and Southern California people.

FIRST DIVIDEND.

The Brunswick Consolidated mine at Grass Valley has declared its first dividend from actual mine earnings after years of patient and costly development work. The mine is located in the heart of the famous Grass Valley gold belt, and for years was a good producer, but the high cost attending mining and transportation of ore prevented the earning of satisfactory profits. About [illegible] years ago work was started on a new shaft and certain improvements were made. The mine is in excellent physical condition and the outlook is favorable for a prosperous year.

A deep mining enterprise that is claiming much interest in El Dorado county is the development of the Pacific group near Placerville by the Placerville Gold Mining Company. This district forms a part of the famous Mother Lode, but has not been developed to marked depth largely because most of the companies operating in the field have lacked the funds necessary to finance a deep mining campaign.

The Pacific owners have sunk a shaft to 800 feet and are enlarging the winze, which has penetrated [illegible] feet deeper. From the [illegible] level sinking will continue until a depth of 2000 feet has been gained. Drifting will follow and on the results will largely depend the immediate future of this district.

The Pacific has been a large producer and is expected to duplicate its past performances when the deeper levels have been opened.

That the Mountain Copper Company, limited, is contemplating the erection of a concentrating or [illegible] plant near its mines is the report emanating from Keswick. The company is shipping 12,000 tons of ore per month to its Martinez smelter, but under this plan can [illegible] only its richest ore. By installing a concentrating plant the lower-grade material could be handled to advantage, and the concentrates sent to the smelter, thus avoiding costly transportation costs, such as attend the shipping of large consignments of ore.

WEATHER INTERFERES.

Warm days followed by [illegible] cold nights have put the roads leading to Alleghany, Forest and other Sierra county towns in bad shape, and transportation of machinery and supplies is attended with much delay and trouble. Several of the mines are handicapped by the non-arrival of supplies, despite the fact that the parcel post is being extensively utilized for the shipment of small quantities of foodstuffs and similar products. The heavy rains have proved highly beneficial to the quartz miners, and most of the mining companies are operating full-handed.

The famous Cerro Gordo mine near Keeler continues to yield rich lead-silver-zinc ore, and the Salt Lake operators are understood to be making excellent profits. On the 700-foot level a new vein, over four feet wide, was recently intersected, and is yielding about fifteen tons of high-grade ore per day.

The product assays [illegible] silver and 10 per cent. lead, with considerable copper also. [illegible] About ten tons of zinc ore are being sent out daily.

Mining is more active in the [illegible] district, Kern county, than for [illegible] decades, and the coming year promises to record the earning of [illegible] profits from the Gold [illegible], Yellow Aster?, Knight, Cowboy, [illegible] and other proved properties. [illegible] interests have become heavily interested during the past summer, and at present the work is being conducted along greatly broadened lines. The [illegible] is running steadily on [illegible] Barbara-Ross group [illegible] quired by San Francisco [illegible]

Considerable Los Angeles capital is interested in the White Lily, which is considered one of the best quartz propositions in the county.

The company developed a good tonnage of ore averaging $40 per ton and erected a sixteen-stamp mill, when a restraining order in favor of Riley stopped all work. The outcome of the suit is being awaited with keen interest by local and Southern California people.

The Pacific has been a large producer and is expected to duplicate its past performances when the deep levels have been opened.

That the Mountain Copper Company, limited, is contemplating the erection of a concentrating or leaching plant near its mines is the report emanating from Keswick. The company is shipping 12,000 tons of ore per month to its Martinez smelter, but under this plan can mine only its richest ore. By installing a concentrating plant the lower-grade material could be handled to advantage, and the concentrates sent to the smelter, thus avoiding costly transportation costs, such as attend shipping of large consignments of ore.

DOMINION MAY CHANGE PLANS.

May Use Oil Flotation at New Concentrator.

Is Making Experiments with Process.

Leading Developments in Mining Districts.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Dec. 5.—The oil flotation process is being tested in a 50-ton experimental mill by the Old Dominion Mining Company. Like the Inspiration Company, the Old Dominion may make material changes in the plans for its new concentrator if the process proves successful.

"The idea in connection with the Old Dominion proposition is to try to save the tailings and fine slimes," said Acting Superintendant L. O. Howard. "It is far too early to venture a prediction as to what will happen, but the experiments are extremely interesting.

"Whether the presence of large quantities of clay in our ores will prevent a working out of any of the problems, I do not know. The things which confront us are widely different from the things which confronted the management of the Inspiration and other mines where the flotation process has been tried out."

In the Superior & Boston mine a diamond drill has picked up the lost vein on the 600-foot level and has passed through about forty feet of ore averaging 7 per cent. copper. A cross-cut is to be started at once, to cover the 200 feet of barren ground intervening between the present workings and the faulted vein.

As a result of this discovery, a drift on the 1000-foot level, still in faulted ground, is to be extended with the expectation of finding the same ore-body developed by the drill on the 600-foot level. The company is shipping three or four carloads of ore a day to El Paso.

J. Parke Channing has been prevailed upon to give the history of the development of the Miami property, which is as follows: Channing came to Arizona in 1906 to investigate an option on the Ray property. Finding the ore extremely low in grade, he threw up the option and drove over to Globe, from which point he was shown the Miami cropping by F. C. Aldsdorf, a Colorado mining engineer. At that time the ground had no development deeper than ten feet.

The altered and leached appearance attracted Channing, however, and he took an option on the property at [illegible]000. There were many obstacles, financial and otherwise, to overcome, but as a result the Miami Copper Company now has a property with a market value of at least $18,000,000, after a cash expenditure of $4,500,000, including $300,000 paid to the original owners and $100,000 disbursed in preliminary development.

The Shannon Copper Company for its last quarter made a net profit of $57,[illegible], to which is to be added $8882, profit of the Shannon Railroad. The company now has a surplus of $1,[illegible]001. There seems no thought of dividends, however, although the last quarter's would pay 20 cents a share and the company's surplus could be transformed into a dividend of $6 a share.

An up-raise from the 800 to the 650 level of the Iron Cap has been broken through and connection is practically completed on the 650 with the old Eureka shaft of the Arizona Commercial, giving an new outlet, available for safety and ventilation. The company is shipping regularly to the El Paso smelter fifteen carloads of copper ore a month.

Bad roads have hindered shipments from the Black Warrior mine, which is under lease to Snell & Fiske. The daily output is nearly fifty tons, mainly shipped to El Paso.

At the Old Dominion smelter are being treated about 200 tons of ore from the Gibson mine, which is now being operated by a number of leasers. The ore runs 15 to 28 per cent. copper. It is sent to Miami by wagons at a cost of $3.50 per ton.

A property considered similar to the Gibson and lying nearby is the [illegible] mine, on which a cross-cut is driven to tap several promising ledges at considerable depth. There has been some trouble with water in the past and a pump has had to be brought in over mountain trails. Some ore has been packed that returned around 15 per cent.

The old Irene mine, one mile north of the Old Dominion, is being worked by James A. Fleming. The working shaft is 245 feet deep. The vein has been drifted or for an average length of 500 feet. At present [illegible]-lead ore is being takn out, but there seems every geological prospect that copper ore of value will be encountered at greater depth.

In the Dripping Springs district, the Columbia Mining and Development Company is working a property on which galena ore averaging 20 ounces in silver and 30 per cent. lead was recently struck.

TO REVIVE MINE. TEXANS GET VEKOL.

TUCSON (Ariz.) Dec. 5.—The old Vekol mine, thirty-eight miles southwest of Casa Grande, is to be worked once more. A Texas corporation, represented by Hatcher & Carpenter, mining engineers, has taken it over. An air compressor and gas engine will be shipped at once and work started on a thorough exploration of the old workings, which, in many places have caved in and are in bad shape.

The mine is reputed to have produced at least $2,000,000, mainly in silver. It was worked in the crude days, generally with Indian operators, yet it made rich men of its owners, John D. and Lucien Walker. The deposit is a replacement in limestone with a dip of 45 deg. The upper ores are oxidized, but at the [illegible] feet have been encountered sulphides of lead and zinc, from which a minimum return of $30 to [illegible] is expected, though many assays run above that.

The property includes seven mining claims, now owned by W. J. Forback, who is to receive on a five-year lease a rental of $125 a month and a royalty of 15 per cent. on the net proceeds.

A company headed by Col. Epes Randolph of Tucson is reported to have purchased from the Banco de Sonora the well-known Lampasas mine in Sonora, a property located forty-eight miles south of Moctezuma and on the line of the long-projected Yaqui River extension of the Southern Pacific northwest to Nacozari or Douglas. In the same general district lies the Promontorio mine, one of the most noted in Mexico. This property is said to have been acquired lately by Phelps-Dodge interests, and there is a prediction that the Nacozari road will be extended southwest eighty-five miles to the propert.

Work has been commenced upon the new concentrating mill of the Nacozari Consolidated Copper Company. Despite revolutionary tribulation, there has been no trouble in securing and retaining skilled mechanics and miners.

TO BUILD CONCENTRATOR. WILL TREAT "LOW-GRADE."

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Dec. 5.—From Salt Lake City has come word that the Magma Company of Superior is going to commence construction on a 500-ton concentrating plant. This news seems generally unexpected, for the Magma undoubtedly has the largest ledge of high-grade sulphide copper ore known in the Southwest, eminently suitable for smelting. From the news at hand it is evident that the Magma proposes to work up its lower-grade ores as it goes.

There is no doubt that a railroad will soon be built to connect the mine with the Arizona-Eastern system. Then the more valuable ores can readily be shipped to a smelter on the Gila River, thirty miles distant.

The Superior district has an abundant supply of water, possibly an over-supplyy, the main trouble with the Superior mine having been the very great cost of pumping. The district also will soon be benefited by electric power, brought both from Roosevelt and Hayden.

A three-compartment shaft has been completed to the depth of 700 feet on property bonded by the Calumet and Arizona Company in the Superior district and the work of cutting a station has been started. From this cross-cuts will be run in two directions. A cross-cut also has been started on the 450 level.

No official report has been made upon the character of ore found while development work has been in progress, but it is known that several extremely rich kidneys of silver and copper ore have been cut. The shaft has been sunk in the center of a highly-mineralized section and success of this exploration undoubtedly will mean development on a score of nearby properties.

Seven miles above Price station on the Gila River, A. W. Scott of New York has purchased the Arizona King mine from C. G. Werner. The new owner will sink two shafts, one of them to the depth of 500 feet, and will rush work with three shifts.

With minimum of publicity, the old Vulture mine is being worked steadily and profitably. During the first nine months of this year nearly 25,000 tons of ore were milled of average value of $20.54 a ton and with a net yield of $17.40. The gold bullion produced amounted to $276,772 and the concentrates to $152,643—a total of $429,416 for the nine months. During this period 4238 feet of development work was done.

That there are no immediate prospects of the New Lapaz Gold Mining Company operating is shown by the sale of its transportation train, comprising a caterpillar engine and four eight-ton wagons. These are to be put into service, hauling freight between Glamis on the Southern Pacific and Blythe.

PORPHYRY SURPRISES. QUEEN IS EXPLORING.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

BISBEE (Ariz.) Dec. 5.—It is understood that the churn drill exploration of the Copper Queen's porphyry ground has developed a number of gratifying surprises. Not only has the looked-for concentrating ore been found, but also large quantities of hitherto unknown smelting ore of good grade. The working grounds of this greatest of southwestern mines have therefore been still further extended.

Plans are now about finished for the first unit of the concentrator that is to be erected near the Sacramento shaft. Experiments with new ores are said to have progressed with results pleasing to the management.

Another note of progress is contained in the statement that the Copper Queen hereafter will not waste the water that has been used in the precipitation plant, but will pipe it back into the mine. There it will be used to leach out low-grade ores in old and abandoned workings. The water will be returned again and again to the precipitating plant, each time with its load of copper in solution.

Cold weather in the north is driving to Bisbee hundreds of miners. Nearly all the skilled workmen are securing employment, but there is a decided surplus of the unskilled variety.

Construction work on the new Calumet and Arizona smelter at Douglas is practically complete and week by week the works are taking more ore from Bisbee. Men familiar with smelters express delight in looking over the plant, as it has been equipped with an eye to the greatest possible degree of convenience in operation and the highest degree of efficiency.

GOLD PLACERS IN ADASKA.

Since mining began in Alaska in 1880 the gold placers of the Territory have yielded 7,488,491 fine ounces of gold, valued at $154,800,875. These mines also have produced 1,652,016 fine ounces of silver, with a commercial value of $960,473, according to A. H. Brooks of the United States Geological Survey. The gold placer mines of Alaska are estimated to have produced in 1912 gold to the value of $11,990,000. Railroad development is the thing that is most needed, and it is not to be expected that under present industrial conditions there will be any stability of placer gold output in the Territory. So long as the high cost of transportation prevails, the production of placer gold must depend on the exploitation of bonanza deposits, for these alone can be expected to yield profitable returns.

Quite a Mixture.

DOYLE, Nov. 12.—Q.: Am sending you under separate cover four samples of mineral found in this vicinity and which I would greatly appreciate to have you classify for me. Local and visiting men designate No. 1 as cobalt and nickel; No. 2 as copper carbonate and black oxide of copper, and including chloride or leaf silver; No. 3 as cassiterite or antimony, and No. 4 they refer to as molybdenite and platinum. Verily, if I have all of these substances in commercial quantities it will not be long before "yours truly" will be on Easy street. Please relieve my anxieties by telling me through your valuable paper just what the samples contain. Thanking you for past favors.

T. F. M.

A.: All of your samples were very carefully tested for cobalt, nickel, tin and platinum with negative results. Sample No. 1 is quartz mixed with magnetic iron ore, and carrying traces of lead, copper, arsenicum and antimony. No. 2 is a most interesting specimen, and in the mass we detected traces of copper disulphide (copper glance of the mining boys;) trace of graphite; trace of micaceous iron ore (hematite;) molybdenite trace; traces of azurite and malachite (copper carbonates;) smalt-blue dumortierite (aluminum silicate;) silicates of aluminum and calcium in the mass, and one crystal (microscopic) of epidote. No. 3 reacts (practically) on the order of No. 2. No. 4 is in composition limonitic iron oxide with hematite and trace of magnetite in a silicious mass of matter showing traces of copper disulphide; dumortierite; trace of lead, and traces of antimony.

The second consignment of specimens was received after the original lot sent to The Times were found. We have compared both lots and tested each of them, and while there is a slight difference in the percentage compositions of the two sample lots, they represent, in fact, as shown in the above qualitative tests. No sample was tested for gold or silver.

Albite and Garnet.

ENCINITIS, Nov. 13.—Q.: I am mailing to The Times two mineral samples for tests, etc. Both samples are from a San Diego county locality. No. 1 has been classed as baryte, kaolin, and heavy spar by different authorities, but I suspect something else. No. 2 is garnet; what variety?

D. B. A.

A.: Mighty glad to hear from you again. No. 1 is a greenish-colored variety of albite (commonly known as soda feldspar,) and is of the flat twin crystal variety of mineralogy. It is of vitreous luster; pearly on cleavage planes. Streak white; of uneven fracture; brittle; hardness 6, and sp. gr. 2.61. Over 11 per cent. of soda is in the mass; potash a trace; alumina, approximately, 19 per cent., and silica 68 per cent. The sample is not affected by hot acids. No. 2 is manganese-alumina garnet of brownish-red color, and of dodecahedral crystal variety; it is translucent at the edges; of vitreous luster; hardness 7.5. Sp. gr. 4.3. In composition the sample is that of mineralogical chemistry, and is of percentage substances as follows: "Silica 36.30; alumina, 17.48; manganese protoxide, 30.60; iron protoxide, 14.32, with lime, 0.51."

Potash Trace.

AZUSA, Nov. 14.—Q.: This sample was taken from a locality between Azusa and Sierra Madre range, Glendora. Please test it and publish results.

C. G. W.

Certain Inquiries.

ENCINITAS, Nov. 15.—Q.: I saw in a recent issue of The Times a letter from "O. H.," Whittier, Cal., asking about pure kaolin. I might put an ad. in your paper and "O. H.," being a busy man might not have the time to look the paper over daily, and therefore not see it. So I take the liberty of writing you for his address. Some years ago I found a large deposit of pure white stuff that I did not know what it was, and I sent it to the State Mining Bureau, at San Francisco, and the bureau notified me that it was kaolin. How pure was not stated, but I am under the impression it was a very good article. The sun hardened the crust and when I dug through into the virgin ground it cut like cheese, and was pure bluish-white in color; furthermore, it tasted sweet. There was a quantity of it. I have not any samples here, but if I could learn what it would be worth I might arrange to go and get a sample. Hoping I am not infringing too much on your kindness.

A. G. T.

A.: The above set forth communication is one of many that come to the editor in words of like tenor.

While it is our wish and endeavor to serve all correspondents to the best of our ability, we cannot enlarge the scope of this department by way of acting as an intermediary between buyer and seller.

One thing is sure and certain. This department of The Times does not have to call upon advertisers to make use of the advertising columns of this paper for such information as you desire.

If your letter was personally answered one would come from parties on the other side of the fence, and in short order a sort of chain system of letters would be too much, and a plenty.

The naked facts are that you have nothing in shape to be offered for sale; kaolin or what not.

From your description of the deposit while a sample of kaolin might be obtainable here and there at the locality, it very much shows the earmarks of ordinary saponite.

Buyers and sellers of ores, minerals, earths, and metals, are once more politely requested not to write this department on matters in which we have absolutely no interest. Such letters will not be replied to from this date.

Abrasives and Copper.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—Q.: Will you kindly inform me in your "In the Earth" column as to what kind of rock the accompanying samples represent, and whether or not of any commercial value?

MRS. W. C.

A.: Samples 1 and 2 are varieties of almandine garnet; massive, and No. 2 carries, withal, traces of zinc, lead and copper. This garnet is in some demand for abrasive uses, but freight rates with other costs leaves a very narrow margin for mining, etc. No. 3 is iron and copper sulphides (chalcopyrite in part,) and iron disulphide (pyrite) occurs sparingly in the mass. No. 4 is iron and copper oxides (the last named in very low percentage,) and traces of lead appear on analysis.

If you have sufficient quantities of the two last named samples you might successfully mine the product at a profit. If the samples were given you as a possible source of investment, it will be well to make haste slowly, and be careful.

Not Cement Rock.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—Q.: Please tell me if this is cement rock? It is from Placer county, and there is a mountain of it on my land.

A. L. C.

Uranium Absent.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—Q.: I am enclosing you two samples numbered 1 and 2. Do they contain uranium? I know that the samples carry gold and silver with some lead and some molybdenite. I have a property in Nevada carrying this ore, and kindly test the samples for me. From a miner.

JAMES.

A.: Glad to hear from you. No. 1 is quartz and molybdenite, graphite, arsenic, traces of pyrite (iron disulphide,) with trace of copper and lead in the mass. No. 2 is quartz and molybdenite with graphite trace, and yellowish ferric and ferrous oxides present.

Titanium Present.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18.—Q.: Please give the sample a test.

J. M. G.

A.: That variety of hematite known as micaceous iron ore with manganese is present in the sample. The other substances are: Copper a trace, quartz, fractured tourmaline, and hornblende.

Earth and Salts.

LAVIC, Nov. 18.—Q.: I am sending you two samples of mineral. Will you please tell me what they contain? Have burnt some of this with acids and alcohol; it makes lots of colors. Do not know what to make of it.

J. T.

A.: Glad to hear from you. Acids and heat affect many substances, and all sorts of colors are obtainable with a great number of chemical reactions from a great number of minerals by the aid of fire and acid. No. 1 is in part fuller's earth, chemically, iron oxides, soda, and magnesia in the mass. Potash 3.80 per cent. No. 2 is very much like No. 1. Potash, 4.10 per cent.

Sodium Salts.

WILMINGTON, Nov. 19.—Q.: Enclosed find sample of potash from desert this side of Searchlight. Please analyze this.

G. M.

A.: The soluble matter in the sample is chiefly sodium chloride with sodium sulphate. To test this variety of mineral properly it will require a sample of at least two pounds.

Fire Clay.

PASADENA, Nov. 19.—Q.: A friend of mine located near Bozeman, Mont., sent me the samples enclosed with the request that I send them to The Times. Please name the rock.

W. L. T.

Burnt Clay.

PASADENA, Nov. 19.—Q.: Sample (but no letter) submitted by E. W.

A.: Soft brick, that!

Magnesium Limestone.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 19.—Q.: By this mail I am sending a sample of mineral which I am unable to name. It has a saline taste and is hygroscopic to a very marked degree. I am unable to obtain any reaction for strontium. As I am a reader of your department of The Times I would be pleased to have you advise me as to the composition of the mineral. You might advise "O. H.," who makes inquiry regarding kaolin that there are several deposits of kaolin in Arizona, but transportation costs prevent the shipment of it to California.

O.

A.: Very glad to hear from you. The sample is chiefly altered Dolomite. In the mass there is a trace of halotrichite (iron alum,) with traces of Epsomite. Iron peroxide (hematite) present with trace of microscopical pyrite (iron disulphide.) Strontium absent. Zinc a trace.

Lime and Sand.

ROBERTS, Nov. 20.—Q.: I would like these specimens named and tested in your Sunday edition. They are the common stones found on my ranch. The soil seems to be made chiefly from the decomposition of No. 2. What kind of fruit trees ought to do well in it?

L. H.

A.: No. 1 is limestone in a puddingstone mixture of sand (quartz.) No. 2 is iron-jasper shale in part, with a good percentage aluminum silicate in the mass. We cannot advise you as to the varieties of fruit trees that would grow well in the decomposed shale alone without a close analysis of the soil in question. It is very improbable that the soil is of the same material as the shale. No. 3 is calcareous marl carrying low percentage phosphoric acid.

Chiefly Iron.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—Q.: Enclosed please find samples of ore found thirty miles from Palm Springs. Please state in your column what this ore contains?

M. M.

A.: Ore contains iron oxides; trace of copper carbonate; chalcopyrite (yellow copper of the mining boys;) titanic iron, and hornblende.

Not Fire Clay.

OASIS (Utah) Nov. 20.—Q.: I am sending you under separate cover a sample of rock. Please state what it contains. Can it be used for fire clay? Is it of any commercial value?

W. R. (Subscriber.)

A.: Glad to hear from you. Very doubtful fire clay. The sample is probably an altered Meerschaum, in part. It is now intermediary between saponite and fuller's earth, and it is of doubtful commercial value other than as a filler for certain wall plaster.

Cement Material.

MOJAVE, Nov. 20.—Q.: Having been for a long time an interested reader of your valuable column, I take the liberty to send a sample of clay that came from the desert about twelve miles north of Mojave (Cal.) It appears to be a concentrate of leachings from adjoining hills. If you will state what, if any, minerals it contains you will greatly oblige.

N. K.

A.: Glad to hear from you. You have well described the sample as "leachings." It is a silicious, calcareous mass of matter with aluminum silicate present and low percentage of iron oxides.

Low Grade Fire Clay.

CLIFTON (Ariz.) Nov. 21.—Q.: Enclosed find sample of rock. Please let me know through your "In the Earth" if the sample is fireclay or kaolin?

A.: Glad to hear from you. Sample is named at the subheading.

Not Old Dutch Cleaner.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—Q.: Please let me know the cleansing powers of the sample, and is it the same as "Old Dutch Cleaner?" Has it any value for anything?

W. H. G.

A.: Sample is a mixture of impure talc and fuller's earth. It is of very doubtful value, however.

BITTER - - SWEETS

Do you know the joy of building a home? Do you know the even greater joy of planning it?

Have you had the greatest joy of all—a perfect home, built to your order, without extras and without mistakes?

Let us show you how to avoid the bitter-sweets of building a home, the extras and the mistakes.

Rule-of-thumb building is about over, not even excepting the most modest homes.

Yet architects plan houses with too little space for beds and tables, doors in the wrong place or opening the wrong way, and closets that are a nuisance.

And, houses on paper are never proven successes until built and lived in. Almost always there is some change the owner would make if building it over again.

The safest way is to take "Bungalow Plans," pick out a home you like and let us show you the original.

You may have a hundred to choose from and each one a beauty. All are proven and lived-in successes.

The address of each house is given in "Bungalow Plans," together with the name of the owner. Ask them about us, as well as the houses.

No one can build them at a lower cost without cheating themselves. We know the exact figures. There is no guess work.

We buy the best of material, employ only skilled labor, discount all our bills, get the lowest prices, and you get the benefit.

Finally: We stand back of our contracts and you will run no risks.

Van Nuys

The Center of the San Fernando Valley

You Should Invest at Van Nuys

Because you will buy more than a piece of land.

Your lot or acreage will have behind it the splendid growth and energy of "The New Town That Was Started Right"—the three-year-old marvel.

It will also have behind it the wonderful growth and prosperity of the whole San Fernando Valley, of which Van Nuys is the center and metropolis.

Now is the time to raise poultry. Van Nuys is the coming Petaluma of Southern California. California imports millions of dozens of eggs annually and a vast quantity of poultry. Prices are high and a market is close at hand for the Van Nuys poultry raiser, who will have free of charge, the expert advice of Mr. O. H. Hubbell, formerly of Petaluma.

Investigate this. See North Van Nuys Acres. Buy from 2½ to ten acres, WITH WATER FOR IRRIGATION. Raise poultry and make money from the start. Set out fruit trees. You will have an income while waiting for your trees to mature.

Consider also Van Nuys residence and business lots. There are things happening all the time which make these a first-class investment. Come out and see for yourself.

FREE Automobile Excursions Leaving Headquarters, 319 South Hill Street, at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily except Sunday. Call or phone for reservations in advance. San Fernando car from Hill Street Depot direct to Poultry Ranches. Get off at Whitsett Station.

Go via Van Nuys to San Fernando Mission, Aqueduct Reservoir and Cascades. Good roads all the way. See Van Nuys by night; over 15 miles of illuminated, rose-bordered boulevard.

Brawley Imperial Valley Lands

Our business is selling and subdividing Imperial Valley City and Ranch land. We own and control over $500,000 worth of Imperial Valley lands and are Los Angeles headquarters for Imperial Valley.

Forty acres of land here will keep 40 cows and pay not less than $2500 a year. This is a conservative figure.

A FEW BARGAINS

160 acres, 2½ miles from Brawley, medium soil, fully water stocked, good state of cultivation, fenced. Beautifully located on main thoroughfare and ¼ mile from shipping point. Part of this place is first-class cantaloupe soil. An exceptionally good bargain. $110 an acre. Terms $8000 cash, balance to suit purchaser.

800 acres, 500 in alfalfa, for finest subdivision property in the whole valley. $25,000 cash, balance long time. One of the greatest bargains in the valley.

40 acres in the townsite of Westmoreland, all in alfalfa, the cream of the valley. $150 an acre. Terms, half cash. A big bargain at the price.

80 acres, 2 miles from Westmoreland, sandy soil, 30 acres in alfalfa, balance rough leveled and ready to border. Fully water stocked and paid up. $85 an acre. Terms, $2000 cash, balance easy terms.

40 acres, 3½ miles from El Centro, 1 mile to church, all in alfalfa. House 12x24. Fine soft land, at $200 per acre. $3500 cash, balance terms.

PRICE vs. VALUE

This company keeps in mind the difference between PRICE and VALUE and enables buyers to obtain really productive land at low figures. Our experience in Victor Valley will benefit buyers in Imperial. GIBRALTAR ACRES

THE TRACT OF

ORCHARD HOMES

AN ORCHARD HOME AND PROSPERITY ARE THE INDUCEMENTS WE OFFER AT GIBRALTAR ACRES TO THE PROSPECTIVE PURCHASER OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA HORTICULTURAL LAND. WE WILL PLANT OLIVE, CITRUS OR DECIDUOUS FRUIT TREES, TO YOUR ORDER, AND GIVE YOU POSSESSION OF THE ORCHARD FOR 10 PER CENT. OF ALL PURCHASE PRICE DOWN AND $5.00 PER ACRE PER MONTH. IF YOU ARE NOT PREPARED TO LIVE UPON THE LAND AT TIME OF PURCHASE, WE WILL CARE FOR IT UNTIL YOU ARE, FOR A SMALL ADDITIONAL SUM. WE KNOW THAT THE SOIL ON THIS LEVEL, MOUNTAIN PROTECTED TRACT IS THE EQUAL OF ANY IN THE STATE AND THAT IT WILL GROW WEALTH FOR THOSE WHO TILL IT INTELLIGENTLY. WE CAN PROVE THIS TO YOU BY THE THRIFTY CONDITION OF THE GROVES SURROUNDING IT AND BY THE PROSPERITY OF THEIR OWNERS.

BE A PRODUCER OF WEALTH

Any man, fired with the spark of ambition, is desirous of becoming a producer of wealth instead of a mere consumer. The first step toward that goal is to own the land you live on. IT IS THE MOST COMFORTABLE FEELING IN THE WORLD TO STAND UPON YOUR OWN LAND. We offer you the opportunity to join the ranks of wealth producers by buying a planted orchard in Gibraltar Acres at Bloomington, 52 miles east of Los Angeles, on the main line of the Southern Pacific. You have all the conveniences of modern country life and are in touch with the markets of the world.

$285.00
Per Acre; With Water

We have several hundred acres of beautiful, level land, decomposed granite soil, with actual water ownership, and water piped to each tract under pressure, ready for use situate on the South Bench Tract in the Famous Yucaipa Apple Valley, that will be sold in the next few months.

Planting of Apple Trees in this tract will begin January 1st, 1914. Several hundred acres recently sold, are now being prepared for planting. We have here some of the finest tracts in five, ten, twenty and forty acres that a Farmer or Orchardist may wish for. The soil has a depth of from 25 to 35 feet, and as to what it will do for fruit trees is best demonstrated by the 3500 acres of Apple Orchards now in the Valley.

At the price of $285.00 per acre, we will sell you, your choice of these tracts, first come gets first selection, all one price, there are no ups. Land is all ready for planting and it is up to you to go out at an early date and make your selection. Shortly after the first of the new year we will advance the price on the land remaining unsold.

If you are in business in the city, and at present unable to make your home in the valley, we have an organization that will plant your trees for you at $20.00 per acre, care for them for a period of from one to four years, at actual cost of labor performed, or about $15.00 an acre a year for the best kind of expert care. One of the tracts cared for by this organization took the first prize at the recent Yucaipa Apple Show, as being the healthiest and best cared for trees in the Valley.

Do not delay in making a visit to the valley. We have excursions going out every Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday, coming and going same day. Fare refunded to buyers. Send for our booklet No. 4, containing maps and all data regarding the proposition, or call at our office and arrange to go out and make your selection. The proposition is absolutely A NO. 1.

"WHERE CREDIT IS DUE."

Boston Paper Thinks Architects, Like Painters and Sculptors, Should Have Names Attached to Work.

[Boston Herald:] In describing a building recently, a Boston newspaper failed to mention the architect. Report of this omission was made at a New York meeting of the right committee of the American Institute of Architects. At the committee's request the secretary has just taken steps to call the describer from the error of his way. The little incident flashes a light not only on the social linking of the architects, but also on that wide indifference of which this one describer's carelessness was but another clear case. The architects have ground for concerted action. The public does accept the buildings and leave the designers out.

For an oversight so general there are many causes. The painter's canvas or the sculptor's bronze, at least in all that makes for merit, is as a rule the work of one man. But the noteworthy building, as a rule, is the work of associates. In design and supervision it is considered as an almost impersonal output of an office. Again, like engineers and contractors, the architects and the builders are often so identified that the public never stops to ask who contributed what. Even in Boston, until the later days, there were no architects apart from builders. Moreover, unlike the painter, sculptor, musician, the architect lifts but little of his work to the level of pure art. Of course he can square his simplest draft with the laws of beauty, but plan garage, roundhouse, factory as fairly as he may, he cannot get the crowd to look at molded wall, cinder pit and mill room as works of art. For most of his structures he asks no public recognition, he can hardly wonder if men are careless in coupling his name with a finer edifice here or there. Then, too, while musician, painter, sculptor, habitually sign the manuscript, the canvas, the casting, architects, for one reason and another, have been slow to sign their buildings. Such are, perhaps, the main causes of the oversights deplored not only by architects themselves, but by all that like to see honor paid where earned.

But what can the architects do?

They can urge with full propriety their direct requests for recognition. Following Richardson's example by the entrance to the Harvard Law School, they can devise for their better buildings picturesque or sober signatures. In any case, they will not fail to see that their most telling agitation must be indirect—through maintaining unarbitrary attitudes towards clients and more or less exasperating critics, through encouraging untechnical appreciations in newspaper, magazine and lecture, through tactful but insistent sharing in all broader plans for extending and adorning our cities and towns.

QUANTITY SURVEYING.

As one of the arguments in favor of the quantity survey system, under which contractors would be furnished with a complete list of bill of quantities of materials entering into the job which they are figuring, The Quantity Surveyor says: "The building business has its hazards, it is true, and its percentage of bankruptcies per capita are higher probably than in any other business. But it cannot be denied, at least with consistency, that by far the greatest number of failures are caused by losses on contracts through inaccurate figuring. And there are new applicants for such relief graduating continually. Can it be wondered at, when, as is the case now, there are always those willing to sign up and furnish, not a 'fixed' quantity of materials, but 'any' quantity, without limit? Then again, the chances are always against the competent bidder who gets in all his items. The best way to handle the incompetents, if they cannot be got rid of any other way, is to furnish them with accurate quantities, so that they cannot possibly forget anything. Competent bidders will then get a chance to do business and keep their heads above water once more."

RURAL HIGHWAYS.

County Good Roads Work an Incentive to Isolated Communities to Install Own Connecting Links.

[Southwest Contractor:] The improvement of rural highways is by no means limited to the good roads systems built under bond issues. In fact, the developments of the past few months show that the completion of road improvement made possible by bond issues is only the beginning of an extensive scheme of improvement undertaken by specialized communities, some of them merely ranching sections and others the smaller organized villages, under a plan of district assessment made possible by the State law known as the Road District Improvement Act of 1907.

In Los Angeles county, where the $3,500,000 bond issue voted some years ago has now been expended, and the last of the small links of county highways are being completed, there has of late been a great deal of activity in district improvement. Some twenty districts have been organized and have gotten work under way, and others have started. The latest district on the list is No. 32. In the districts that have let contracts to date the value of the improvements runs well over $500,000. In some districts the work consists of merely road grading and surfacing, chiefly oiled macadam conforming with the original specifications under which the larger portion of the county system was built; in other instances the work includes curgs, gutters an dsidewalks. The same tendency to district organization for road improvement is beginning to put in an appearance in Orange county, where work under the $1,700,000 bond issue is under way.

The earlier district improvement was undertaken by the community affected under an engineer selected by itself. In Los Angeles county this work is now put by the Supervisors into the hands of the county highway engineering organization, under Frank H. Joyner, who holds the dual position of chief engineer of the County Highway Commission and of engineer of maintenance. It is expected that at the end of this calendar year, when the County Highway Commission will pass out of existence, an entirely new engineering organization will be effected, retaining probably the present personnel of the county highway engineering forces, whose province will be both the repair and maintenance of the present highway system and also the handling of future district improvement work along the same lines as at present.

When to this district development is added the construction of connecting links through incorporated villages and towns, some of which have heretofore known nothing of street improvement, it is seen that the scheme of the county and State highway commissions to build merely main highways, leaving it to the individual sections to build the laterals, is not only the soundest policy, resulting in a still further scheme of improvement than would ever be possible under any proposed issue of bonds, but it acts as an incentive for the isolated communities to put themselves on the good roads map by doing something for themselves of their own initiative.

SUNSET OF ALFRED R. WALLACE.

Last of the Brilliant Scientific Lights of the Nineteenth Century—Outlived His Days of Biological Achievement—Lost His Scientific Moorings and Dipped into Astronomy—Let His Imagination Rove Among Demi-Gods in Spiritual Realms.

BY WILLIAM H. KNIGHT.

The late Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace, O.M., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S.

IN A retrospect of the scientific annals of the nineteenth century there stand out in bold relief four men whose names will endure—Charles Lyell, who constructed a new geology and gave man a habitation on this earth 100,000 years ago; Charles Darwin and Alfred Russell Wallace, co-discoverers of the law of evolution in biology, and Herbert Spencer, who applied the principle of evolution throughout the entire realm of nature.

There are other brilliant names in that wonderful century of scientific achievement, but Dr. Wallace, who died the other day in his 91st year, outlived them all, and his mental activities were remarkable up to the beginning of the present year, and he continued to excite the interest of the reading public up to the very last.

Born in 1823 at Usk, Central England, of remote Scotch and Huguenot ancestry, he inherited a sturdy frame which was seasoned by performing the duties of land surveyor when 17 years of age. Though he had no collegiate training his mental incisiveness early marked him for a distinguished career. At the outset he began collecting an herbarium. At 21 he was master in a collegiate school, where he made the acquaintance of a beetle collector named Bates. When Bates organized his scientific expedition to the Amazon he was shrewd enough to take Wallace along, and his notes, published in 1853, made the expedition famous.

Wallace went to the Malay Archipelago in 1854, then 31, and remained eight years, visiting Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Celebes and other islands. It was a marvelous field for biological research. The rich tropical jungles swarming with startling forms of animated life, dwelling in an environment of luxuriant vegetation, had never before been subjected to an eye so keen and critical, and a mind with such penetrating insight as that of the young and ardent investigator. New problems vexed his brain every day. One that puzzled him sorely was how two species so nearly alike came to be different.

THE FLASH.

One day, while lying muffled in blankets in an attack of intermittent fever, there suddenly flashed upon his mind the idea of "the survival of the fittest." He wrote it out in full and mailed it to Darwin in February, 1858. He was not acquainted with Darwin, who was fourteen years his senior, but knew that he was working on biological lines and was a contributor to the scientific journals of the day.

Darwin recognized its perfect accordance with a manuscript written by himself some years previous. He showed the two essays to Sir Charles Lyell, who marveled at the striking coincidence. Lyell advised him to send both papers to the Linnean Society, which he did, and both were received and read by that body July 1, 1858. The papers were epoch-making; they inaugurated a new era in scientific investigation along all lines of inquiry and research.

Wallace published two essays in 1871, pervaded by what Darwin characterized as "his lucid style," and they confirmed the evolution theory, even in minds previously undecided. But his mental activities radiated in many directions as we have seen in his later volumes. In 1882 he published "Land Nationalization," in which he argued the necessity of State ownership, a principle he originated before Henry George's work appeared.

In 1887 Dr. Wallace visited the United States on a lecture tour and I met him in a very pleasant way. As chairman of the Programme Committee of the Cincinnati Society of Natural History, I arranged for a lecture to be given by him in that city. Excavations were going on at the time at the Indian Mounds near Madisonville for the benefit of Harvard University. Dr. Wallace desired to visit the mounds and next day President Skinner invited the scientist and myself to drive over to them—eight miles distant. On arrival it became necessary to walk across a strip of ploughed ground and while thus working our passage the keen eyes of the savant spied a gleaming object in the freshly upturned soil. He stooped and drew from the ground a veritable treasure. It was a prehistoric carnelian lance, six inches in length, perfect in shape, and a beautiful specimen. We had several broken ones in our museum, but this was the first complete one we had seen. The doctor was immensely pleased with his find, though scarcely more so than we who accompanied him. It made the occasion memorable. I later received an autograph letter referring to "our pleasant excursion to Madisonville."

Ten years ago the attention of the thinking world was attracted to a remarkable article in the Fortnightly Review by Alfred Russell Wallace, entitled "Man's Place in the Universe." The eminent writer, after examining the latest astronomical and scientific data bearing on the subject, deduced therefrom this strange theory:

First, that the solar system is the physical center of the siderial universe, and the earth the only habitable planet of the system.

Second, that the supreme end and purpose of this vast universe is the production and development of the living soul in the perishable body of man.

The author expected to be sharply criticised, and he was not disappointed. Independent thinkers pointed out the irrationality of supposing that the Creator of all this unimaginable vastness of suns and systems, and siderial aggregations, should have a special interest in the imperfectly-developed creature, man, dwelling on one of the smaller planets attached to a third-rate sun, isolated by quadrillions of miles from all other suns and worlds in that vast universe glowing with myriad suns and worlds.

Astronomers were invited to express their views regarding the soundness of the doctrines thus enunciated by Dr. Wallace. A symposium of professional opinions was published, including those of Director Campbell of the Lick Observatory, Prof. Davidson of the University of California, Director Pickering of the Harvard Observatory, Prof. Leuschnuer of the Students' Observatory at Berkeley, and myself, then president of the Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Campbell said: "We do not for a moment believe that the earth is the only body on which intelligent life may exist." Prof. Davidson said: "Dr. Wallace is a great authority on birds. As to this astronomical matter he don't know what he is talking about." Director Pickering said: "In his statement that the supreme end and purpose of this vast universe is the production of the living soul in the perishable body of man, that is a question for philosophy to solve, not for astronomy." Prof. Leuschnuer said, "So far as it is shown by the article telegraphed from London, there is nothing in his theory." The closing paragraph of my own reply was: "If we were to make a tour through the starry realms we might hope to find at least one world fit to support life in each of 100 of those stellar families," meaning that if 100 suns are surrounded by planetary worlds of which our solar system is a type, then there would be 800 planets in various stages of development, and it would not be unreasonable to suppose that at least one out of that number might be in a habitable condition.

A SHOCK.

Needless to say that not only astronomers but men in other departments of science and philosophy thought that Dr. Wallace had wandered away from his scientific moorings in these astronomical speculations. Many of his assumptions being erroneous, his conclusions were necessarily faulty. But there is no doubt that persons brought up in the old faith were soothed by the doctrine which placed man on a pedestal not existing in any other place in this vast universe. Others took a different view, maintaining that it would imply a prodigious waste of creative energy to suppose that organized and intelligent life existed only on this insignificant globe among all the infinite host of heaven.

Dr. Wallace's "World of Life," published only two years ago, aroused international discussion. To claim the Infinite and Eternal Being as the one and only direct agent in every detail of the universe, seemed to the author absurd. He then intimates that subordinate beings—demigods and archangels—were deputed to organize certain realms and star clusters, and possibly our solar system was given over to the ingenious work of one of the most skillful of these agents of the Supreme Deity. I am not employing his language, but conveying the drift of his thought.

These, it may be said, are unscientific ideas, purely in the realm of conjecture, and unworthy of an investigator who bases his opinions on ascertained, concrete facts.

HIS DUAL MIND.

But Dr. Wallace, like many men of of genius, had a dual mind. When pursuing his biological investigations he observed closely, and formed rigid and reliable deductions from the facts observed, hence the high value of his biological treatises. In other directions he gave his imagination play. He indulged in the relaxation of reading romances, and spent an hour or two with his favorite authors, even while engaged in the most exacting biological investigations. He twice read Blackmore's "Lorna Doone," was fond of Hardy's bright novels, sometimes took down a Dickens. He had seen the effect of too rigid concentration on the mind of Darwin, and decided to free himself from the habit.

Let us not forget the fate of John Milton, whose logical and vigorous essays led to important parliamentary reforms, and whose cogent state papers are still a model of English prose. When overtaken by the disabilities of age and the loss of his sight, he turned to one of the most wildly-imaginative recreations to be found in the English language. His heaven was peopled with angels and archangels clothed with god-like power, and when, in robust speeches, some of them rebelled at Divine authority, they were tumbled over the battlements of heaven into everlasting flames.

So, let us excuse our great author and scientific investigator, whose irresistible deductions transformed the incongruous materials of Nature into the orderly and harmonious doctrine of evolution, let us excuse him if, as he noted his waning intellectual powers, he turned to lighter themes and played with the imaginative creatures of a spiritual realm, where, like the fabled genii of old, there was no limit to the exercise of their powers.

JAMES W. VAN CLEAVE'S LIFE WORK.

BY CHARLES M. HARVEY.

During the Mulhall Congressional inquiry a few months ago, the name of the late James W. Van Cleave of St. Louis, formerly president of the National Association of Manufacturers, was mentioned so often in the dispatches from Washington, and in such strange connections, that many persons throughout the country somehow received the notion that he must have been active in lobbying in the last few years of his life. This opinion does his memory serious injustice. As I had the honor of a rather intimate acquaintance with him through the period referred to, I am asked to say something which will remove this false impression. With this request I am happy to comply.

For a quarter of a century, Mr. Van Cleave was a prominent business man in St. Louis, and for a large part of that time he was conspicuous in his effort to establish and maintain peaceful relations between all branches of workers. He not only endeavored to settle strikes, but to avert them. This was particularly true after the quelling of the outbreak of the street car employees in 1900. He gave powerful aid to the municipal authorities through the disturbances attendant on and immediately following that strike, and helped to collect evidence which sent many law-breakers to the penitentiary. Thus, for several ensuing years, the relations between employers and workers became notably amicable. As one of the pioneers of the Citizens' Industrial Association of St. Louis, founded in 1903, he was enabled to work effectively in this part of the business field. For years he was president of that non-partisan, nonsectarian and non-sectional order, which soon grew into an organization of 8000 or 9000 of the leading spirits of the community, whose influence extended far beyond the boundaries of St. Louis. In 1903 also, he assisted in establishing the National Association of Manufacturers, the most influential combination of employers in the world, and three years later became its president.

Immediately after his election to that post in May, 1906, my acquaintance with Mr. Van Cleave began; it continued till his retirement from office, in 1909, and was not interrupted during the remaining year of his life. As the head of a large corporation he naturally never found the leisure to get the training in writing for the press which, as he assumed, his new post demanded, and as he determined to become the spokesman of the organization in a real and direct degree, he found thrust upon him a volume and a variety of work to which he was unaccustomed, and with which he was unable to cope. Good fortune gave him as a secretary, Mr. Ferdinand C. Schwedtman, a tactful and versatile man, of excellent judgment, who succeeded him as president of the Citizens' Industrial Association, who was then and later on a member of the board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers, and who, for the past year or two, has been general manager of the Racine-Sattley Company of Springfield, Ill., manufacturers of agricultural implements. He, too, like his chief, was necessarily hampered by the pressure of his new duties.

Relying on my experience as a journalist, I was asked to write, or to aid in writing, newspaper interviews, speeches, magazine articles, formal addresses, reports of committees, and other matter for Mr. Van Cleave, much of which was spread by the Associated Press throughout the country. This was done in his name, and carried all the weight of his authority, for he was a large figure in the social and industrial life of the nation during the three years beginning with the spring of 1906. As an orator he was in demand on all sorts of occasions, talked on all kinds of topics, and appeared in all parts of the country. In dimensions my task was far from being small, but, as he dictated it on its general lines, and as my views agreed with his on all important questions, my work was made easy and pleasant.

A gold Democrat and a friend of Cleveland previous to 1896, Mr. Van Cleave opposed Bryan in that campaign, and was identified with the Republican party throughout the remainder of his life. In the canvass of 1908 he spoke often and effectively, but he kept the National Association of Manufacturers out of partisan politics. Realizing that in that great organization were men of all shades of opinion, he refused to allow it to become the football of any political sect. Even on the main lines of the tariff, upon which, for business reasons, nearly all manufacturers are supposed to agree, he saw that there was a diversity of view which would have to be taken into account if the organization were to maintain the semblance of the unity which its dignity and influence demanded.

Thus, I knew him so long and so well that I am enabled to correct some of the misrepresentations which pursued him, and which were renewed during the recent Congressional investigations in Washington. [illegible] the utmost confidence in saying [illegible] if anything irregular was done by [illegible] agent, or so-called agent, of his organization it was done without [illegible] sanction. During many years of [illegible] life, he was active in politics, but he never used improper means to promote the interests of a candidate [illegible] a cause. While head of the National Association of Manufacturers, he often appeared before Congressional committees, as well as before the people in the public forum. Nobody [illegible] talked more freely when talking [illegible] in order, yet he did this in a [illegible] which showed that he had nothing to conceal. Everybody who knew [illegible] admired his candor and courage. Nobody ever had the slightest difficulty in discovering on which side he stood on all great questions of public concern. A braver or more honorable man never lived.

Right at the outset in Mr. Van Cleave's career as president of the National Association of Manufacturers, the inner circle of chiefs of the American Federation of Labor declared war upon him. They did this because he was the head of a great organization which they hated and feared. Although in his mills he paid the full market rates for wages, and in some instances more than the full market rates, they invented pretexts on which they put up a case against him. In the endeavor to crush him by their boycott and to destroy his business, they used all the resources of misrepresentation and intimidation at their command. He struck back at them in the courts, and he did this with such effect that they were beaten at every essential point. Again and again were they held up to the derision of the country. Law and justice stood with him throughout the whole contest, and he knew it, and his enemies knew it, yet they persisted in their fight, and in the end won, or [illegible]

The heroic battle in the interest of industrial freedom which James W. Van Cleave waged won the country's plaudits, and will make his way easier for those who fight for the cause hereafter. But his health was shattered, and he no longer was physically able to continue the struggle. He died before his time, the victim of as cowardly a conspiracy as if he had been slain by the bomb of a McNamara in St. Louis or Los Angeles.

"PORTLAND CEMENT."

History of Popular Modern Building Material Goes Back to Days of Roman Aqueducts.

[Southwest Contractor:] Some confusion exists as to the meaning of the term "Portland cement." To correct the many erroneous impressions as to how this kind of cement came to be named "Portland" the Riverside Portland Cement Company has prepared the following historical sketch so that a better understanding of the term may be more general.

Since the dawn of civilization "lime" has been used as a binder in building construction; in fact, as long as man contented himself with simple structures that had to resist only the effects of the atmosphere, he found lime to serve his every need as a binder. With the rise of the Roman empire, the want for a binder or cement that would harden under water and resist its action soon made itself felt. The necessity for such material soon produced it.

The Romans found that by mixing about three parts of slaked lime with one part of the volcanic ash from Mt. Vesuvius a cement resulted which would "set up" to a hard mass under water. This cement was called "puzzolane," and with it the famous Roman aqueducts and public buildings were constructed.

Up to the end of the eighteenth century it served all the needs of man as a cement. In 1756 John Sheaton, an Englishman, was entrusted with the building of the Eddystone lighthouse. He cast about to find a local material to displace the expensive puzzolane. He found that by burning a certain chalk and grinding it to a powder he obtained a cement that set up very rapidly and was much stronger than the puzzolane. This he called Roman cement, and with it he built the Eddystone light. This Roman cement was of a red-brown color.

In 1824 John Aspdin, a Leeds mason, set about to make Roman cement by artificially mixing powdered limestone and clay, and burning the mixture to a clinker, which was then ground to a fine powder. After much experimenting he produced a product by this procedure which, when mixed with water "set up" very rapidly under water to a hard, stonelike mass of gray color, resembling the famous Portland building stone. From this resemblance he called it Portland cement, to distinguish it from Roman cement and puzzolane. It soon displaced all other cements.

Portland cement, then, is an artificially-prepared product made by mixing powdered limestone and clay substance together in definite proportions and burning them to a clinker which is then pulverized.

Since Aspdin's day great improvement in the quality of Portland cement has been made, due to our better understanding of the chemistry of it, and to the modern machinery for making it.

The increased use of Portland cement in the last fifteen years is marvelous. Up to this time we imported most of our Portland cement from England and Germany. In [illegible] 2,500,000 barrels were imported, [illegible] 600,000 barrels were made in this country. In 1909 only [illegible] were imported, while home production increased to 61,200,000 barrels.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

Draft of the Glynn Bill Is Completed.

Only Hazardous Occupations Covered by It.

Nullifies Fellow-Servant Plea of the Employers.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ALBANY (N. Y.) Dec. 6.—The draft of the Glynn workmen's compensation bill, which goes to the Legislature with an emergency message on Monday night, was completed yesterday.

The bill, upon which Gov. Glynn and the labor interests, the employers' associations, and the casualty companies were practically agreed, provides four forms of workmen's compensation—self-insurance, mutual insurance, insurance through casualty companies, and insurance administered through a State fund.

An important provision of the measure creates a State industrial commission committee of five members to be appointed by the Governor.

A State insurance fund is created to insure employers against liability and assure the men entitled to compensation all the benefits accruing to them under the bill.

The bill covers only what are known as "hazardous" occupations.

In an action for damages authorized by the law the defendant may not plead as a defense that the injury was caused by the negligence of a fellow-servant or that the employee assumed the risk of his employment.

This provision, the labor interests assert, wipes out the obstacles placed in the path of collecting damages for injuries.

Generally the percentage of damages to be paid an employee is 66 2-3 per cent. of the average weekly wage and in case of permanent disability 66 per cent. of his wage shall be paid during his life.

SIXTY DAYS TO AGITATOR.

United Mine Worker Official of West Virginia Sentenced by United States Judge.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILIPPI (W. Va.) Dec. 6.—Van [illegible], president of district No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, was sentenced Tuesday to serve sixty days in jail by United States Judge Day[illegible] for violating the court's orders in connection with a coal strike at Col[illegible], W. Va. Eight other mine leaders, contingent on their behavior, were given suspended sentences.

[illegible] IN STRIKES.

Open Shop Foreman Shot in New Jersey, and a Colorado Striker Kills a Detective.

[New York Times:] A few days ago, at the noon hour, while the men and girls employed in the necktie factory of Aaron Sossis in Harrison, N. J., were preparing to go to luncheon, a taxicab carrying three men stopped in front of the Harrison avenue door of the building. The three men entered the factory and going to the main working-room, inquired for [illegible] Aegan, the foreman.

Somebody pointed Aegan out, and a moment later one of the men advanced to within a few feet of the foreman and opened fire on him with an automatic pistol. Three shots were fired and Aegan fell to the floor with a bullet in his right thigh and another in his right side.

So quickly did the gunmen act that Aegan was shot before Mr. Sossis or any of his employees could interfere. At the first shot two of the gunmen ran back into the street and jumped into the taxicab. They waited only a moment for the man who did the shooting, and before he appeared the taxicab sped away in the direction of [illegible].

The man who did the shooting fled from the factory followed by a score of more men and boys and several [illegible]. He was fleet of foot, however, and soon distanced his pursuers. Reaching the Lackawanna station just as a train for Hoboken was getting under way, he jumped on the moving train, and by the time his pursuers reached the station the train was 200 yards away. None of the train crew saw the frantic signals of the crowd on the platform to stop the train.

The Sossis factory had been [illegible] because it was a non-union shop. Mr. Sossis informed the Harrison police that the men who shot his foreman were hired gunmen from New York, and that he was certain he knew at least one of them. This man's name, he said, was Fuchs. He believes he can identify the other two if he ever sees them again.

Aegan had incurred the enmity of the union, Mr. Sossis said, because of his insistence on following the open-shop plan of employing factory workers. According to the people who were in the room when the gunmen entered, Fuchs was the one who shot Aegan.

[Chicago Record-Herald:] Robert [illegible], district organizer and president of the Mine Workers Union, and [illegible] L. Doyle, secretary-treasurer, were put in jail at Trinidad, Col., last week by the military authorities, after [illegible] Zancanelli, a striker, confessed that he was hired for $1000 to kill George Belcher, a detective, last [illegible].

Doyle was arrested for refusing to answer questions concerning the whereabouts of Organizer McGarry, who, Zancanelli says, paid him $25 and gave him the revolver, which he used to kill Belcher.

[New York Tribune:] Peter P. [illegible], the union labor leader who, it is alleged, engaged three New York gunmen to "do up" a rival, was sentenced last week in the County Court in Jersey City to prison for not less than six years and not more than [illegible] years.

Two of the gangsters implicated, [illegible] De Lappe, alias "Kid Dynamite," and Ernest Wildhaber, known as "Dutch," were committed to the State Penitentiary for eighteen months each. They were used as witnesses for the State.

[illegible] was a walking delegate for [illegible], and John W. Burke, a [illegible], had lodged charges against him. [illegible] employed the gangsters to "do up" Burke, so he could not appear to prosecute.

Farm Wages in the United Kingdom.

Wages, according to the government report, are $2.50 a week for farm labor in many parts of the United Kingdom, and that does not include board. With prices advancing all of the time, it may well be asked how can people live on such remuneration? The report of a royal British commission shows that many of these unfortunate workers are assisted by the poor-law authorities, and even then they hardly live—exist would be a better word. No other country in Europe suffers in a like manner. Germany, France, Italy and other countries have increased the number of acres under cultivation, and agriculture is as prosperous in those countries as manufacturing or any other employment.

Pretty Raw.

WOULD UNIONIZE GOVERNMENT.

MAKE IT EMPLOYMENT AGENCY FOR UNIONITES.

Have Every National Employer Gather Daily Information for Immediate Publication Regarding Labor Conditions and Where Men Are Needed.

[New York Journal of Commerce:] Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor conceives it to be the business of the United States government to act as an agent of labor unionism throughout the country. In addressing the American Federation of Labor as "fellow-unionists" at its convention at Seattle, he took occasion to refer to the labor troubles in the copper mines of Michigan and show how profitable the mines have been to the companies which have developed them. He did not show that the miners were not well paid and well treated, but they did not share in the large profits of the mine owners, whose sole offense appeared to be that they did not recognize the unions and make "collective bargains" with them.

The owners were warned that their title to valuable properties depended upon laws and laws might be so changed as to deprive them of it. These laws were not intended for the benefit of individuals, but for the "welfare of society;" and, if the holders of title lost sight of that fact, "society" might "change these titles to property, as it has a perfect right to do, whenever in its judgment it deems it for the welfare of society to do it." It seems to be the idea of the honorable secretary that if owners of mines do not recognize labor unions and make bargains with them for the proper division of profits, the government may deprive them of the property and perhaps vest the title in the federation of labor for the "welfare of society."

But a more immediate function of the government, according to his conception, is to help the unions to get employment for their members, and to force their recognition by preventing the breaking of strikes by non-union workmen. He said that he wished to see created in his department a bureau of information, which, "with the aid of the immense number of government employees which we have scattered over the country," would "gather information of where men can find employment, the wages they will receive, the hours of employment, the conditions under which they toil, whether or not a trade union is recognized, and, last, but not least, whether or not any trade dispute exists where the employment may be had." He would have this information condensed "into a sheet that can be posted in every postoffice in the United States and in every other place where men congregate."

This would make an employment agency of the government with its "immense number" of employees "scattered over the country," but only for union men, for a significant purpose of this posting of condensed information is to give warning to all strike breakers. In the language of this Cabinet officer, it would give all comers "information relative to where employment can be had and the kind of employment, and in doing so give them information in such a way that when a man comes into a community, where a strike exists, for the purpose of taking the place of those strikers, he does so with his eyes open and cannot make the plea of ignorance." If this does not contemplate the use of the power of the government to sustain a labor union monopoly of employment, the secretary has failed to make his meaning clear. To his mind that appears to be what the Department of Labor was established for.

Syndicalism.

AGITATING FOR A STRIKE IN BRITISH POSTOFFICE.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Labor agitators are now busy among the postal, telegraph and telephone employees, trying to get them to strike. The Postal Trade Union heretofore has held aloof from the syndicalists, but the latter are trying to force them to strike. As a precautionary measure the Postmaster-General is said to have called in an American to thwart the agitators. The labor leaders claim that the postal employees are dissatisfied with their pay and hours of labor, but the rank and file of the government employees appear to be well satisfied with conditions. There are radicals among their number, however, and these are trying in every way possible to disrupt the service. The agitators want the employees to inaugurate the strike just before Christmas, when business in every department is at its heaviest. It is believed in government circles, however, that the agitators will fail to get the employees to leave their positions.

Efforts are already being made to cripple the government telegraph service. Acts of sabotage are already being committed in the general postoffice, where instruments are being disarranged, the keys mislaid and the typewriters smashed.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

American manufacturing industries are the greatest work and wage producers in the world. Bulletins now being used by the Bureau of the Census show this clearly and are being quoted in this column Sunday after Sunday. The latest are:

Silk Industry.

Establishments	852
Workers	105,828
Yearly wages	$ 38,570,063
Materials used yearly	107,766,916
Value of yearly products	196,911,667
Capital invested	152,158,002

Almost ten times as many establishments and almost fifteen times as many wage-earners are engaged in the industry as there were forty years ago, while the yearly value of the product is sixteen times as great. Even in the past ten years the number of establisments has increased 75.4 per cent., the number of wage-earners 51.4 per cent., and the yearly value of products 83.6 per cent., with increased pay rolls fully in proportion.

In all silk-manufacturing States the female wage earners exceed the male wage earners in number, Pennsylvania having the largest number, 35,940, or 40.5 per cent. of the total for the industry in the whole country. New Jersey comes next with 17,316 female workers. Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut combined employ 56,636 female workers in this industry, or almost nine-tenths (88.4 per cent.) of the total number for the United States. Fifteen States have silk workers under 16 years of age, Pennsylvania leading with 5140, or 13.8 per cent., of the total number of wage earners in the industry in the country.

Nearly all, 95.2 per cent. of the country's silk wage earners are employed in mills where the prevailing hours of work exceed 54 per week, the great majority, 82.2 per cent., working from 54 to 60 hours per week. Nearly two-thirds, 64.6 per cent., of the silk spinners are women. Children spinners comprise one-eighth on the average, Pennsylvania leading with one-fifth. In this, as in several other industries, Pennsylvania has far too many child (under 16 years) wage earners. Maryland shows up as badly in this respect in this industry. New York has only 2.5 per cent. California has three establishments engaged in silk manufacturing.

Clay Products Industries.

Establishments	5,037
Workers	146,786
Yearly pay roll	$ 78,144,116
Capital invested	816,022,470

Iowa leads in wage earners and value of products. In brick and tile making alone the wage earners number 76,528, all of whom are males, except one-sixteenth of 1 per cent. females. Child workers number 1270, or 1.7 per cent. of the total number of wage earners. From census to census it is gratifying to note there has been a constant decrease in the number of child workers, both in number and proportion. At each census the number of women employed was insignificant. Over two-thirds of the men work 60 or more hours per week; 18.2 per cent. work 54 and less than 60, and 12.4 per cent. less than 54 hours weekly.

In pottery, terra cotta and fire clay the yearly product is 47 times greater than it was forty years ago. In this branch of the clay-working industries 61,022 people are employed, using $141,349,655 capital and producing $76,118,861 worth of products yearly.

Smokers in Factories Fined.

The other day thirteen men pleaded guilty to smoking in New York factories, and were fined $20 or one day in jail each. One of them, an employer had the alternative of going to jail for four days or paying $20. The object of this law is obvious, as well as its advantages, particularly in New York City, where many factories are so flimsy and crowded.

Child Labor.

One hundred thousand children, to our disgrace be it said, are working ten hours a day in certain American factories. New Jersey is said to be the worst offender of any State of the Union, as no less than 8000 children in that State work ten or more hours daily.

Food Prices Increase.

A government report shows that the prices of twelve out of fifteen articles of food have increased 66 per cent, average in fourteen years. Comparing August, 1912 with August, 1913, the following increases are shown:

Article—	Increase Per cent.
Potatoes	20
Bacon	18.8
Smoked ham	17.6
Eggs (far more now)	12.6
Round steak	11.5
Sirloin steak	10.2
Pork chops	9.3
Hens	8.7
Lard	8.1
Rib roast	7.0
Butter	5.7
Milk	2.7
	Decrease Per Cent.
Sugar	7.9
Wheat flour	5.5
Corn meal	2.7

Comparing retail prices on August 15, 1913, with average prices for the ten-year period, 1890 to 1899, all prices (except sugar) advanced as follows:

Article—	Advance Per Cent.
Bacon	89
Milk	88
Pork chops	84
Round steak	83
Smoked ham	82
Sirloin steak	75
Hens	73
Lard	69
Eggs	65
Corn	60
Butter	41

Sugar decreased 2.3 per cent. in the four teen years.

EMPLOYERS' DEFENSE FUND.

British Operators Are Preparing to Maintain Their Rights with Respect to Labor Movements.

According to the Times, an association has been formed in London with the object of consolidating the resources of employers with respect to labor in that country and maintaining their rights and freedom to bargain individually with free workers or collectively with trade unions. It bears the title of "The United Kingdom Employers' Defense Union," and will be registered as a trade union.

The strength of the movement may be gathered from the fact that at a meeting recently two large manufacturers promised $250,000 each toward a guarantee fund. There are other guarantors of $50,000 and smaller sums. Each member of the union will, it is understood, be invited to guarantee a sum commensurate with his position in the commercial world, the intention being to create a fund of $250,000,000. One of the stipulations is that individual guarantees will become operative only when this sum is secured.

Great importance is attached to the operation of the guarantee fund in dealing with large and small strikes in the interest alike of employers and employees, and of commerce in the United Kingdom. It has now been arranged that all calls on the fund, which will be pro rata on the whole membership, shall not exceed 7½ per cent. in any one year. Much less than that proportion will, it is believed, be sufficient to secure adequate protection for men willing to work and to employers willing to employ.

In the event of a struggle arising out of any tyranny by trade unions, the members would be backed by the fund, and the expenditure of a small percentage in most cases would, so the leaders of the defense union hold, be adequate to insure victory.

The leaders of the movement emphasize the fact that the defense union is not espousing any anti-trade union policy. They argue, however, that the vital interests of employers must, in view of what has happened in the last few years, be defended against the new trade unionism. The guarantee fund will defend members against interference of outside organizations, uphold the inviolability of contracts, and, when strikes are forced on them, prevent workmen from being intimidated by members of trade unions or other kindred organizations.

The defense union will also deal with what it regards as two great evils arising out of the trade disputes act—boycotting and peaceful picketing.

THE "RIGHT TO STRIKE."

[EDITORIAL.]

MEN WHO undertake to serve the people in any kind of a public utility, where their duties concern the daily life of citizens, take upon themselves a responsibility which they should not be allowed to shirk. For instance, work people, having become accustomed to regular transportation from their homes in the suburbs to the factories, stores and offices, acquire a vested right to a continuance of that transportation, and they should not be kept from work and subjected to a loss of wages and great inconvenience by any organization which sought to tie up the transportation companies in order to force out some extra money, says C. W. Post. So employees in the police or fire departments, or ice, gas, electric light, water or coal companies and all other industries where a discontinuance of the service would result in inconvenience, loss, distress and perchance death, should be compelled by law to continue the service until such time as the individuals who desire to quit could be relieved without creating disturbance.

Suppose that the crew of a ship should strike during the height of a dangerous storm, quit all work and allow the vessel to founder; or suppose that firemen should strike during a great fire and not only abandon the fire apparatus, but attack and slaughter (I.W.W. style) anyone who attempted to fill their places; or as an extreme illustration, suppose that a surgeon in the midst of a difficult and dangerous operation should suddenly lay down his instruments and announce that he had "struck." These are suppositions, but how far are they from some of the strikes that have occured in this country during this year?—the ice delivery strike in Cincinnati, for instance, where babies died for the want of ice; or the Indianapolis street car strike; or, looking abroad, the determined effort of the dockers of London to reduce the world's greatest metropolis to a state of starvation.

It is a common remark that "every man has a right to quit," and every objection to the indiscriminate use of that right is met with very severe criticism, but morally if not technically legally the right to quit depends upon how much responsibility the person has assumed and how much he owes to individuals or a community in the way of continuous service in order to prevent distress and loss.

The "right to strike" does not carry with it the right by striking to inflict suffering upon others. The right of humanity is superior to the technical right in such cases. That is why no strike can ever succeed which has not public approval and sympathy behind it.

Strikers Injure Employers.

[Bishop Thomas F. Lillis:] "Strikes are irregularities in our business life. They are drastic measures, and as a remedy they rarely bring about desired results. They have produced lasting enmities and untold miseries. They seldom serve a good purpose. Their history is against them, for they have done more damage to labor than to capital. They are attempting to solve some local misunderstanding, and they are usually started by discontented, irresponsible persons. They solve nothing, but they bring misery and restlessness in their train.

"Spite should not incite anyone to ruin the business of his fellow-man. Honesty should deter us from injuring or damaging the property of others, and human blood is too precious, too sacred, to be spilt for purposes of intimidation."

Broke the Record.

THREE MONTHS STRIKES' COST.

FIFTY THOUSAND EMPLOYEES LOST EIGHTEEN DAYS EACH.

The Number of Strikes and Lockouts Were Largely Increased Over Preceding Year, and the Total Idle Days Figured Up to Nine Hundred and Twenty-seven Thousand.

[New Orleans Times Democrat:] New York's Department of Labor, in its report on "industrial relations" for the months of April, May and June, last, notes that 151 strikes and lockouts took place in New York State during the quarter, breaking the record of corresponding quarters in preceding years. Where, during the same three months of 1912, there were eighty disputes with 26,678 workmen participating, the strikes and lockouts of the quarter under review directly involved 45,578. Nineteen other conflicts were continued from the preceding quarter. In all, 50,145 employees were affected, and they lost during the wrangles a total of 927,407 workings days. There were ninety-four strikes for wage advances, twenty to secure shorter working hours, thirteen to force the recognition of unions and fifteen caused by "questions of discharge or employment of particular persons."

Of the whole number of disputes sixty-eight were won by the employers and thirty-five by the workmen, while forty-four, involving about three-fourths of all the workers, were settled by compromise. Of these last, eighteen were settled through the efforts of the Labor Department's bureau of mediation. The detailed accounts of these mediations show that it was ordinarily easy to find a middle ground, and that public opinion in most cases exerted a powerful influence in forcing a settlement. Repeatedly, when one side or the other flatly refused at first to accept mediation or any compromise, ways were found to overcome its obstinacy. In stubborn cases the bureau's decision to order a public investigation of the dispute usually got results. And in several instances the trouble was traced to misunderstandings easily smoothed away. In the strikes which were fought to a finish one or other of the disputants ordinarily stood out against mediation because it held the whip hand, and because there was no well-defined and militant public sentiment back of the demand for mediation.

The statement of working days lost to the strikers gives a tolerably clear idea of the cost of these conflicts to the employees. It averaged for the 50,000 working folk involved about eighteen days apiece. In one strike, however, the average loss per employee was seventy-two days. These figures do not, of course, measure the total cost of the strikes, for the loss to employers and to the public is not taken into account, nor is there any reckoning of bloodshed and life loss in the rioting that marred some of the conflicts. But even when we leave these things out of consideration the showing of 927,407 working days lost by 50,000 employees in three months by reason of strikes impressively illustrates the economic wisdom of avoiding such conflicts wherever the thing is possible by inviting mediation and a peaceful settlement approved by public opinion.

RIGHT TO LEARN TRADES.

Privilege Belongs to Every Boy in the Country But Many Find It Impossible of Regulations.

[James L. Carr, in New York Times:] Large sums of money are raised every year by taxation to educate and prepare the coming citizens to earn an honest living and become prosperous, but upon coming out of the schools many of them who want to learn trades, perhaps the trades followed by their fathers, discover that organized bodies of tradesmen harass and prevent them from learning by maintaining rules, adopted by their unions, that limit the number who can be instructed, and compel the few that are permitted to learn to serve an unnecessarily long time as apprentices.

In some trades labor associations permit the instruction of one apprentice to each ten journeymen employed, and require an apprenticeship of three years; in others, one apprentice to each five journeymen and service of four years, and in some other trades the unions, at times, prohibit the instruction of any apprentices.

An acquaintance, an officer of a corporation, wanted to teach his own son the trade the father followed, and at which he had been successful, but was prevented because the organized journeymen employed in his own factory threatened a strike if the father attempted to teach the trade to his own son. Many not informed regarding the practices of labor unions as to apprenticeships may think this instance an unusual one, but investigation will show that it is not an uncommon occurrence.

We read a great deal in the papers about the strenuous efforts being made by legislators to curb trusts. Why do not legislators prohibit and stop this practice of labor organizations, which is injurious to our people, State and country?

Every boy in the country should have freedom of opportunity to obtain an apprenticeship to learn the trade he wants to follow. Many not engaged in manufacturing or trades are ignorant of the obstacles placed in the way of our coming citizens, for labor unions are careful to keep the general public as ignorant as possible regarding their rules pertaining to apprenticing.

Labor's Unrest.

STRIKES AND STRIKERS OF THIS BUSY WORLD.

THE Schenectady General Electric strike, or "walk-out" of 17,000 men and women, is still on and the American Federation of Labor is letting the strikers fight it out alone. That has always been Gompers's plan of avoiding responsibility when a testing fighting issue is up. All he and his lieutenants want is the regular payment of monthly dues and special assessments (the McNamaras wasted $236,000, for instance.) The strike, or "walk-out" as the men call it, began while labor officials and the company's managers were in session trying to amicably adjust the differences. Socialist Mayor Lunn is prolonging the trouble by publicly offering to specially protect the strikers' pickets. Ten representatives of the strikers are going around New York State begging for contributions to the sparse strike fund. The State mediators are on the ground, trying to settle the trouble, which only amounts to the discharge for inefficiency of one man and one woman—both union members. The threatened sympathetic strike of street railway employees has not materialized. The Sun of New York comments as follows:

"Two employees, eager unionists, of the General Electric Company were 'laid off.' To retrench, the company says; because they were active unionists, say the employees. Here is a question of motive, to be determined only inferentially if at all unless the employees are mind readers. It is a matter of general observation or belief, however, that business is 'slacking up.'

"The employees, many thousands, acting on their theory, strike. They have no reason that appeals to the public. They do not complain that their hours are too long or wages are too short. They strike 'to show that the General Electric Company cannot crush unionism.' It is their right to strike for whatever cause seems good to them; but is it wise to strike at this time? The feeling of the strikers is generous, but the success of strikes is due to sound economic, not to sentimental grounds.

"A bleak way of celebrating Thanksgiving and preparing for Christmas."

The strike is not sanctioned by the international officers of the various unions affected. As well as Socialist Mayor Lunn, the Socialist ex-member of Assembly, Merrill, is making himself very officious, telling the strikers to "fight on." The General Electric Company had strikes in 1901, 1903, 1904 and 1906. It was in 1906 that the I.W.W. was put out of the Schenectady labor situation. About half the 17,000 "walk-outs" do not belong to the unions, but union organizers are there gathering in as many new members and fees (particularly the latter) as they can. The fool Socialist Mayor Lunn, playing to the gallery as usual, boasts that "not a striker shall go hungry while I am Mayor." He goes out of office January 1, 1914, and all but one of his gang go out, with him. Lunn has opened the church of which he is pastor, to strike meetings and harangues the misguided crowd there daily. Two years of Lunn and Socialism and strikes have changed Schenectady from a peaceful prosperous city of regular weekly pay envelopes (well filled ones at that) to a bear garden of fighting antagonisms. The question now is, shall the General Electric Company be allowed to conduct its own business in its own fair way or not? From years of personal experience the writer knows how fairly the company has always dealt with its employees. Its large welfare work for them was fully described in this column a few Sundays ago.

After losing $10,000,000 by the strike of silk workers last spring and summer, Paterson, N. J., now faces another great labor war. The I.W.W. demands a nine-hour day and the silk mills refuse to grant it. Some of the weavers have already gone on strike again. One hundred and forty-seven silk firms have unanimously resolved "to support the ribbon manufacturers in their refusal to grant their operatives a nine-hour day, knowing, as we do, that this renewed agitation is due to the pernicious activities of the I.W.W." Paterson shopkeepers fear a general paralysis of all business if the present strike goes on.

Fifty women employees of a Paterson flax spinning mill have struck because a wage increase was refused because of reduction in the selling price of the mill's product.

Strikes cost 58,107 New Jersey workers the great sum of $4,566,650 in lost wages in the twelve months ended September 30, last, says the annual report of the State Bureau of Statistics, now in the hands of the printer. Of the 58,107 strikers, 20,278 took part in the great silk strike which prostrated Paterson for twenty-two weeks. In the year there were 120 strikes, not counting those in the silk mills. Twenty-four were successful, twenty-eight partly successful, and sixty-eight were dead failures. Thirty-four causes were assigned for these strikes. In the smaller strikes, averaging sixteen days each, wage-earners lost 601,061 days' work, at a wages cost of $959,650, nearly $1,000,000. Of the total wages loss by strikes the silk mill weavers and dyers lost $3,507,000. Eighty per cent. of the strikers were foreigners, who never earned anything like such good wages in the countries they came from. Six hundred unskilled laborers permanently lost their jobs by reason of the strikes.

The Schenectady electric workers do not get any strike pay or benefits as the strike was not ordered by the union officials. Still, union organizers are trying to make it a long strike. The women and girl workers are the most strongly organized. There was such a poor market for Thanksgiving turkeys that the price was only 18 cents a pound. The "walkout" or strike, was brought about by the excitable element among the workers.

England is beginning to see the end of the Hindu miners' strike at Natal, British South Africa, though several killings have occurred. Grossly exaggerated stories of cruel treatment of the Hindus are causing agitation and unrest in British India.

An unusual number of labor disputes arose in Great Britain in the first nine months of this year, as compared with the corresponding period of 1912. In September alone 124 disputes arose, against forty-seven in September, 1912. The number of workers involved in September, 1913, was 131,196, as compared with 27,918 in September, 1912. The aggregate duration in September, 1913, of all disputes, new and old, was 1,449,800 working days, as compared with 284,400 working days in September, 1912.

Praise is due the striking firemen of the textile mills in Lawrence, Mass., for their notice to the I.W.W. to keep hands off their strike. The anarchistic organization thought it saw an opportunity to create another general war by butting into the firemen's dispute with their employers, and offered to call a sympathetic strike among the other employees. The firemen have rejected the offer. They will make their contest on the merit of their demands. That is the manly, fair way. This strike affects fifty mills, employing 35,000 people.

Though given the eight-hour day the striking copper miners refuse to given in unless the union known as the Western Federation of Miners is recognised. The mine owners are more positive than ever in refusing this. So the costly strike goes on.

Twelve thousand New York harbor boatmen will strike unless the Tidewater boat owners agree to grant their captains a salary of $60 per month.

The cloth spongers of New York win their demands and the expected big (135,000) strike of garment workers is averted. They get the closed shop, a 23⅓ per cent. increase in wages, and payment without work for all legal holidays. This settlement is outrageous and will not last any longer than does anything obtained by force and duress. The spongers number only 400, but they are the key of the whole garment trade in New York. The settlement is one of might, not right.

The general strike at Wellington, New Zealand, has failed. At Auckland the cooks and waiters have resumed work. Several strike leaders have been arrested.

British postoffice workers now threaten to strike in the busy Christmas week. This applies also to telegraph and telephone workers.

The I.W.W. leaders are trying hard to bring about another strike of the textile workers at Lawrence, Mass., for a 20 per cent. wage increase. The I.W.W. claims 1000 members there.

Lynn, Mass., shoe factory owners want a graded wage scale, but the workers defiantly refuse to agree to it. The manufacturers want graded wages so as to be able to make some cheaper shoes for competitive selling purposes. The workers will find themselves without work, some of them at least, by reason of this refusal.

The new Mayor of Indianapolis, Harry R. Wallace, can be depended upon not to let the teamsters or any other body of union strikers or near strikers, control that city as they did under "reform" Mayor Shank. In case of strike violence he will tell the police to do their duty, make sheriffs' deputies of the business men, and adopt a military system of control. That is just the kind of Mayor every union-labor tyrannically-ridden city needs. Unions as unions for self-protection are right, but not unions as tyrants.

The National Association of United Building Labor is formed in the hope of reducing strikes. It is bound by its constitution to oppose strikes and uphold arbitration, and graded instead of uniform wages, and starts off at Kansas City, Mo. This is decidedly a right move for all.

THE SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

Affects the Whole Body of Consumers and the Families of the Strikers Suffer the Most.

[London Economist:] The dangers of the sympathetic strike are obvious; the large hopes based on it generally illusory. Its general adoption would mean a practical permanent suspension of the transport services, as was lately pointed out by J. H. Thomas, M.P., Unless complete it cannot be effective. If complete, it is the whole body of consumers who suffer, and the consumers with the smallest reserves—i. e., the working classes, the families of the strikers themselves—who suffer most. The new unionism is still under the dominion of the old wages fund fallacy; it has to learn that wages are not paid out of employers' pockets, but out of the day-by-day renewed flow of goods created by the combined operation of capital and labor.

The practical truth of this is patent to anyone who has seen a strike going on or followed its after-effects. The public may forget, but it suffers; whoever may gain the public suffers, and the proportion of cases in which anyone gains is very small. Even last year, when the conditions were exceptionally favorable, trade good, unemployment the lowest on record and profits generally high, the results of the two most successful strikes—those of the railwaymen and miners—were small in proportion to the demands and sacrifices of the strikers, and both railwaymen and miners must in the long run have been brought to their knees, but for the intervention of Parliament. Yet the railwaymen and the miners are still dissatisfied, while the public is paying higher freight and passenger rates as well as higher prices for its coal.

In 1900 there were 648 disputes, involving 188,500 work people, with a loss of 3,150,000 working days. In 1911 and 1912 there were 1724 strikes and lockouts, involving 2,400,000 workpeople, with a loss of 50,000,000 working days. Yet wages rose more in 1900 than in 1911 and 1912 together. In the opinion of Philip Snowden, M.P., "the strike is not a means by whcih any substantial and permanent improvement in the lot of labor can be secured."

INCH, WANTS AN ELL.

British Unions Threaten to Call a General Strike in Connection With the Dublin Dispute.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Nov. 15.—The release of James Larkin from prison in Dublin apparently has not served to modify the bitter feeling in the labor world of the British Isles and a general strike of trades unionists throughout the United Kingdom is again threatened. The union men are determined to fight the labor dispute in Dublin to a finish.

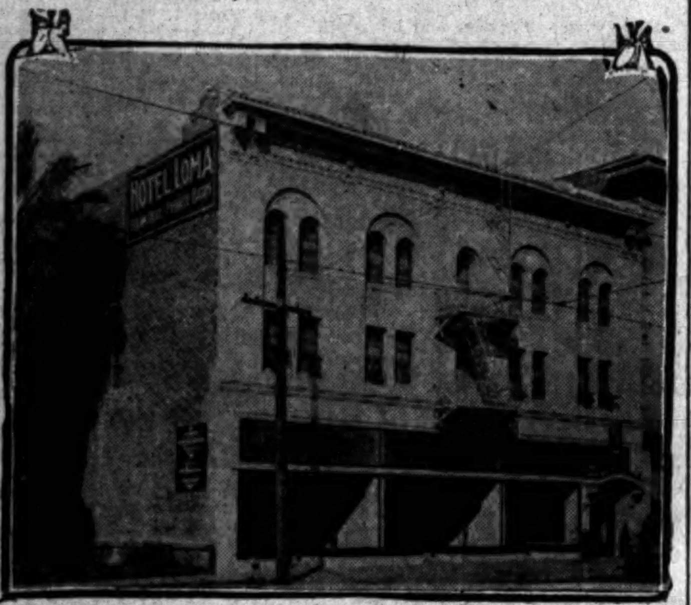
An emergency meeting of the Trades Union Parliamentary Committee has been summoned for November 18 to consider proposals for a general stoppage of work in the British Isles. Robert Williams, general secretary of the Transport Workers' Union, said this afternoon:

"It must not be assumed that the release of James Larkin is the sum total of our demands. We are going for a still greater triumph in Dublin. The government must cease to act in collusion with the employers by giving facilities for importing non-union labor. I have no doubt that unless the employers give way before Tuesday, next, the Trades Union Parliamentary Committee will decide to call on the workers of the United Kingdom to take such steps as are necessary to break down the anti-labor and anti-trades union methods of the despots of Dublin.

Attractive Place That Has Changed Hands.

House at No. 426 South Oxford, sold through Arthur W. Kinney Company.

Rented for Ten-Year Term.



Hotel Loma, No. 1007 South Figueroa.
New improvement that has just been leased through E. H. Foster, with the Wright-Callender-Andrews Company.

HOTEL COMPLETED.

Figueroa-Street Hostelry Turned Over to Tenant During Past Week. Leased for Ten Years.

The Hotel Loma at No. 1007 South Figueroa street has been completed and was opened during the past week. The building was erected and is owned by the United Investment Company, and was recently leased to Mrs. Flora B. Snyder of Chicago for a term of ten years at a given total rental consideration of $48,000. The Wright-Callender-Andrews Company, represented by Edward H. Foster, handled the deal.

The Loma is steam heated, has private telephones in each room and has 80 per cent. private baths and showers. The place has been attractively furnished by the lessee. Morgan, Walls and Morgan were the architects of the building.

SOUTH OXFORD SALE.

The sale for Nichols & Stanbery to W. A. Moses of an attractive eleven-room residence at No. 426 South Oxford boulevard has just been concluded by A. S. Barker, with the Arthur W. Kinney Company. The house is of brick construction, with a plastered exterior, and has a clay tile roof. It is finished in oak and mahogany. There are three baths. The lot is 65x150 feet in size. The consideration is given by the agents at $17,500 cash.

SUBSTANTIAL GAIN.

Twenty-three Permits Issued in South Pasadena in November as Against Fifteen Last Year.

SOUTH PASADENA, Dec. 6.—Building permits for the month of November amounted to $17,890 in South Pasadena, and this is a considerable increase over the valuation for November of last year. There were also more permits issued, as this year there were twenty-three as compared with fifteen last year. The increase is a source of great satisfaction to all those interested in the welfare of the city, as it indicates progress in the face of the alleged tightness of the money market. Most of the November permits were for homes, only two permits for mercantile improvements being issued. These were for garages to cost $1000 each, and which are being put up by the Raab branch of the Los Angeles Creamery at No. 1107 Foothill street, and by the Model Grocery Company at No. 2024 Mission street, respectively.

Paul F. Mahoney took out the largest permit of the month for a $3800, nine-room home which he is now erecting at No. 715 Mission street. Lindsey Murdock was given a permit for a two-story, eight-room house, which is being built at No. 214 Indiana court. R. A. Moore took out a permit for a six-room bungalow to cost $2500, and to be built at No. 727 Garfield avenue. Another permit was for a $1600 bungalow which Harold Lacy is building at No. 1907 Mission street. Garfield A. Taylor is erecting a $2500 house at No. 2028 A street, and Mary E. Morrill is building a $1900 bungalow at No. 602 Meridian avenue, both on November permits.

CHESTERFIELD SQUARE.

Chesterfield Square sales are reported as follows: Southwest corner of Gramercy place and Fifty-second street, to Pearl C. Avery, who will build a $4500 home; J. H. Sturgis and W. B. Sherratt, northwest corner Fifty-fourth and Cimarron streets, for a business block. S. H. Pearson has commenced a six-room bungalow on the west side of Wilton place south of Fifty-fourth street. The Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church has commenced the erection of a bungalow church building on the southeast corner of Fifty-fourth and Cimarron streets.

APARTMENTS SOLD.

James H. Ballagh reports the sale of the Bon Air apartments at the corner of Sunset boulevard and Bonnie Brae street, for J. W. Tuttle to Dr. Edmundson, who gave as part payment twenty acres of land in the Whittier section. Edmundson was represented in the deal by the Real Estate Exchange. The total consideration in the deal is given at $75,000, the value of the acreage being stated at $40,000.

TO SOUTH HILL.

E. Avery McCarthy, secretary of the McCarthy Company, reports closing of a lease on the rooms at Nos. 201-203 North Broadway, formerly occupied by the McCarthy Company, to Allen C. Ady, for ten years at a given total rental consideration of $21,000. Ady is making extensive repairs and will open a cafe in connection with the New Hotel Broadway. The McCarthy Company is removing its main office to new quarters at No. 609 South Hill street.

HOMES FOR WORKMEN.

Six Bungalows to Be Started at Torrance at Once by Pasadena Man. Other Improvements.

TORRANCE, Dec. 6.—Torrance Welch of Pasadena next week will begin the erection of six bungalows at Torrance for workmen in the factories here. The houses will contain unique features and will stand on wide terraced lawns, with ample rear yards for vegetable gardens. Following the coming of the Llewellyn Iron Works to Torrance in January, a second group of not less than twenty-five houses will be erected, it is announced.

Prior to the erection of the Torrance Public Library, a temporary library will be opened this week in one of the concrete houses designed by Architect Irving J. Gill. It will be in charge of Mrs. Isabel Henderson, a trained librarian, of Niagara Falls, N. Y. The Torrance Public Library, plans for which have just been finished by Architect Robert Farquhar, is a gift to the city by its founder, J. S. Torrance. The building will cost approximately $30,000, and will be the first of a group of fine public buildings to be erected in the civic center of Torrance.

PIER COMPLETED.

Splendid Municipal Structure at Hermosa Beach to Be Turned Over to Public Next Week.

HERMOSA BEACH, Dec. 6.—The finishing touches are being made to the handsome $60,000 municipal pleasure pier constructed here by the Mercereau Bridge and Construction Company. By the first of the week the pier will be completed and turned over to the city. The structure is 1000 feet in length, with an approach 100 feet in width, and with a 100-foot "T" head at the ocean extremity.

The plans have been adopted by the city and the contract will be awarded on December 16 for a handsome archway with two pavilions to be built at the entrance of the pier. The plans for this have been drawn by the firm of Montgomery & Montgomery. The buildings will cost about $8000 and will be of the mission style of architecture. A bandstand, men's smoking-room, women's restroom, library-room, sun parlor, restaurant-room and several smaller rooms for concessions are included in the pavilion plans.

Transferred During Week.

Apartments at Sunset and Bonnie Brae.
Northwest property exchanged for acreage and cash through agency of Joseph H. Ballagh.

MACHINERY PURCHASED.

Announcement Made That Preparations Are Complete for Carrying Out of Factory Project.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Dec. 6.—T. B. Talbert, president of the Oil Cloth and Linoleum Company of Huntington Beach, has returned from New York City, where he has been buying the machinery for the factory to be established adjoining the city limits at this place. With him came S. J. White, who is to be the manager of the new concern. Work on the buildings of the factory will, it is stated, begin at once.

The Pacific Light and Power Company has placed more than twenty miles of poles during the past week between Artesia and Huntington Beach. This is to be the power line to bring electricity to Huntington Beach and, later, to Newport. The power will come all the way from Big Creek, east of Fresno, in the San Joaquin Valley, a distance of nearly 300 miles. Electricity will be available in a few weeks in abundance for all purposes.

The corner-stone of the new Carnegie library is to be laid with proper ceremonies next Wednesday. The residents of the city expect to make a holiday affair of the occasion.

TRADES VALLEY LAND.

Los Angeles Capitalist Exchanges Acreage and City Property for Arkansas Holdings of Railroad Man.

EXETER, Dec. 6.—A transaction has just been closed here, whereby Col. A. J. Kerfoot, a retired railroad man, formerly of Jonesboro, Ark., but more recently of Los Angeles, has conveyed Arkansas property valued at $48,500 to Maj. H. W. Higley of Los Angeles. Higley has transfered to Kerfoot, a brick business building in Exeter, a sixty-acre peach orchard, ninety-three acres of St. John's River bottom land north of this city, and a residence in Eagle Rock, a suburb of Los Angeles, all of which is valued at $75,000. The difference was adjusted by cash payment.

Maj. Higley expects to locate in Jonesboro, until peace is declared in Mexico, as he is the owner of gold and silver mining property in the State of Sonora. Col. Kerfoot, has become a heavy investor in San Joaquin Valley property, having recently purchased several thousand acres of farming lands in Kern county. J. B. Sherwood, a Los Angeles realty dealer, represented both parties to the transaction.

FINISHING STREET.

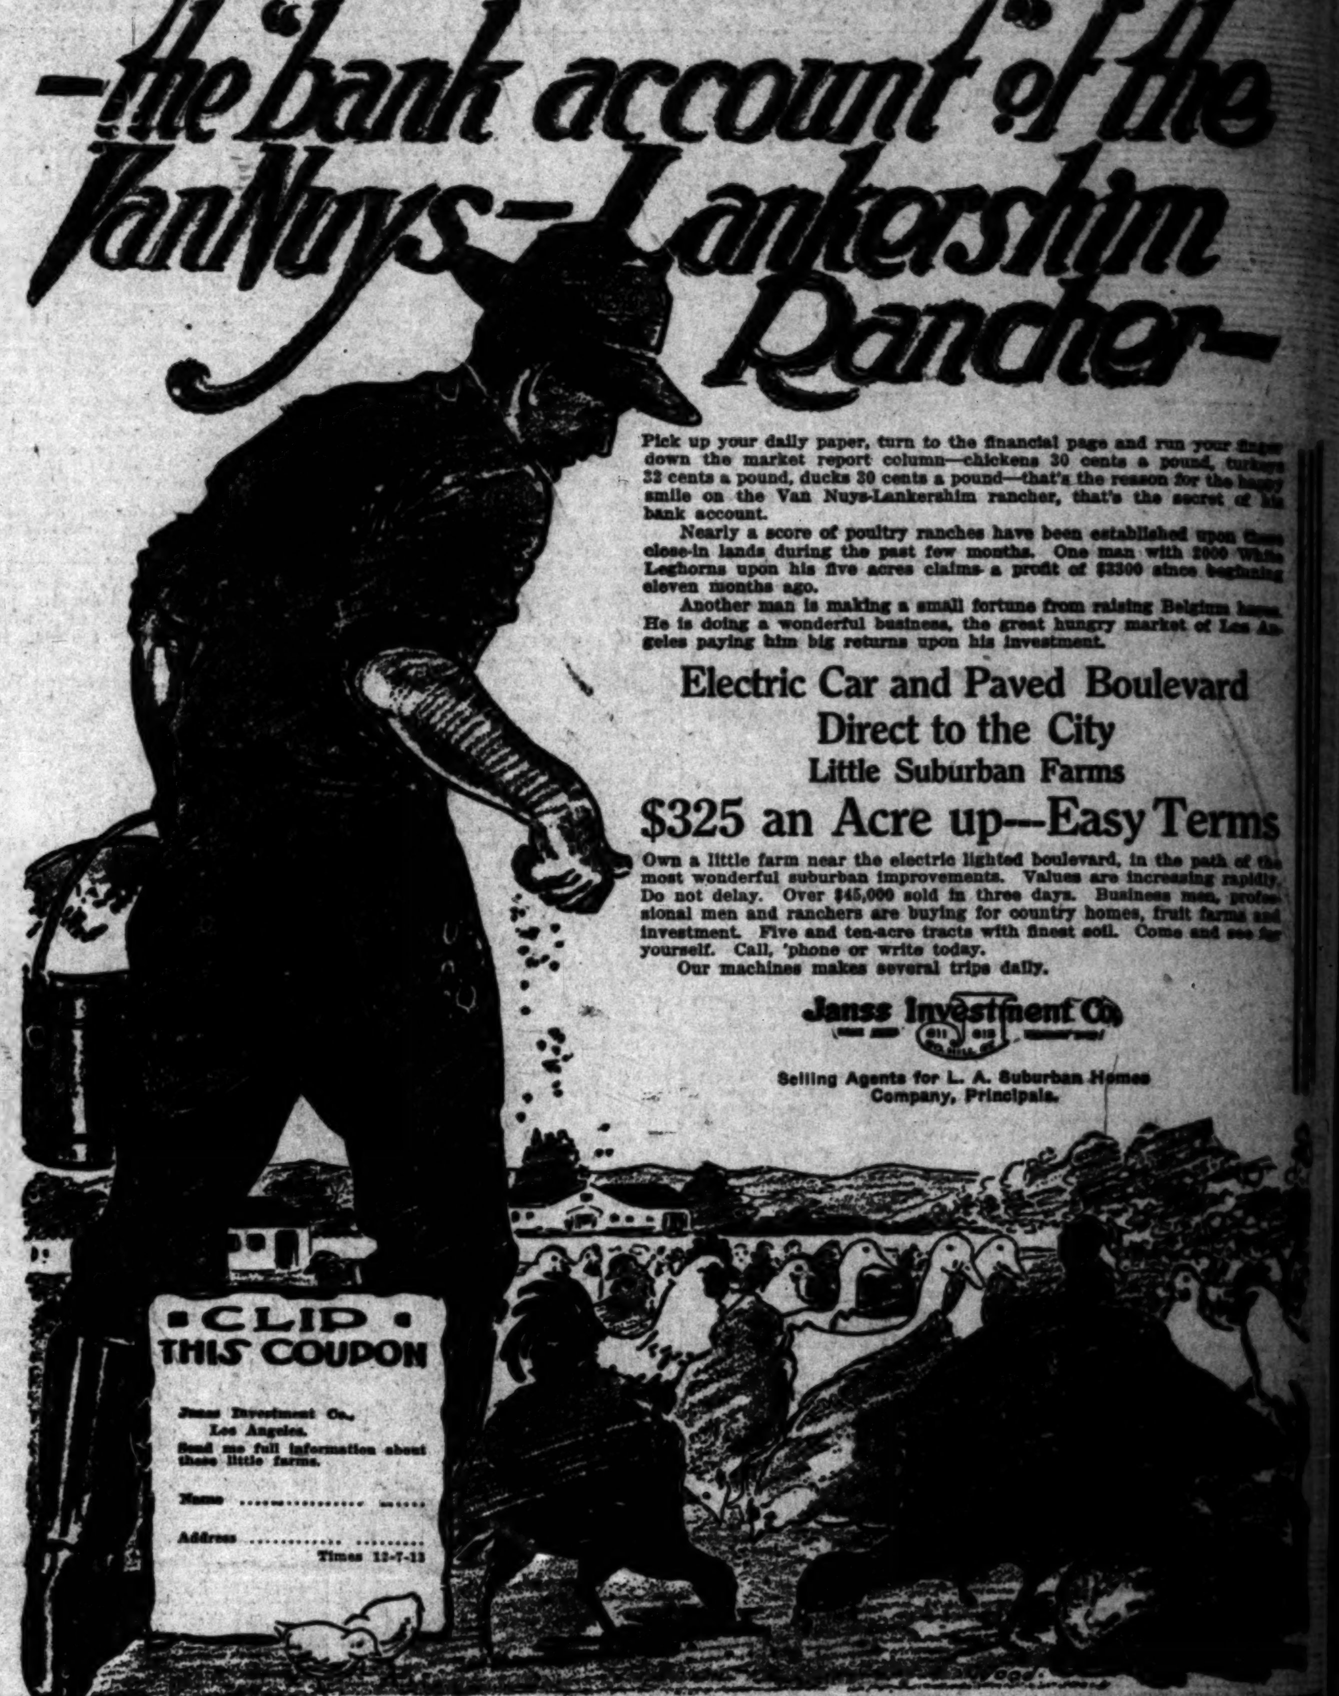
The Los Angeles Railway Company has a large force of men constructing cement curbs and safety passenger platform landings on each side of its car tracks on Santa Barbara avenue from Western avenue to Van Ness avenue. The sidewalks and curbs along the north side of the street are also being laid at this time to correspond with the improvements on the south side at the northern edge of New Vermont Square.

YUCAIPA VALLEY SALES.

Claussen Bros., agents of the Redlands and Yucaipa Land Company, report sales of Yucaipa Valley irrigated apple lands as follows: To a syndicate of Los Angeles county and Orange county growers, 130 acres, $37,050; J. Schooley, ten acres, $2850; and to J. O. Elias, five acres, $1425. It is estimated by the company that about 800 acres will be planted to apple trees in the Yucaipa Valley this winter, making a total of 3800 acres planted since 1910.

PLAN SUMMER HOMES.

BALBOA, Dec. 6.—Recent sales at this place, as reported by W. L. Roberts, are the transfer of a corner lot on Island avenue and the bay front to Charles Otto Rust of Anaheim; the sale of a bay front lot to James R. Martin; the purchase of a bay front lot by Howard J. Schoder, and the sale of a lot to A. C. Denman. All of these buyers have signified their intention of building summer homes on their purchases.



—the "bank account" of the Van Nuys—Lankershim Rancher—

Pick up your daily paper, turn to the financial page and run your finger down the market report column—chickens 30 cents a pound, turkeys 32 cents a pound, ducks 30 cents a pound—that's the reason for the happy smile on the Van Nuys-Lankershim rancher, that's the secret of his bank account.

Nearly a score of poultry ranches have been established upon these close-in lands during the past few months. One man with 2000 White Leghorns upon his five acres claims a profit of $3300 since beginning eleven months ago.

Another man is making a small fortune from raising Belgium hares. He is doing a wonderful business, the great hungry market of Los Angeles paying him big returns upon his investment.

PANAMA CANAL OPPORTUNITIES.

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

AN AMERICAN steamship company is awarding contracts for two steamships of about 10,000 tons capacity each, to be operated on the route from New York to Los Angeles and San Francisco by way of the American Panama Canal. It is estimated that the vessels will cost about $1,000,000 each, and they will be constructed for the purpose of carrying passengers and freight, with fine accommodations for both. In short, the ships will represent the very highest achievement in marine construction for the purposes in view and undoubtedly will be an attractive means of travel by the canal course. This is one of the early fruits of the great undertaking. Beyond question, other craft of like character will be built in the near future and as the opportunities that will be presented by the finished canal come to be more generally understood, says the Times of Troy, N. Y.

These vessels, it is well to bear in mind, are to be used in the coastwise service of the United States. Already there has developed a magnificent marine of this kind. No handsomer nor better vessels of their class can be found than those which pass from one American port to another American port or ply the inland waters of this country. To be sure, they enjoy a special advantage in that foreign craft are excluded from this traffic, as is only proper. The ships that will run between New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco by way of the American Panama Canal will embody the best ideas of modern marine construction. They will traverse wide expanses of open sea. Yet technically they will be coasting vessels only. And in the canal they will pass and repass ships bearing the flags of all commercial nations, on the way to and from "the uttermost parts of the earth." Our vessels will have nothing to fear by comparison. But one cause of regret to all properly constituted Americans will be that ships carrying the Stars and Stripes will not be among those bound for foreign ports. Sometime soon, it is to be hoped, public sentiment will be aroused to the point where it will demand a remedy for that humiliating condition of affairs. An American mercantile marine must come eventually. In the meantime, foreign ships are carrying over 90 per cent. of American commerce in and out with foreign countries and $300,000,000 a year of American money goes into foreign pockets for freights, to say nothing of the millions more for passenger fares.

An Awful Battle.

POMONA BEATS MANUAL FOR SOUTHERN TITLE.

With the Score 11 to 0 Against Them, the Fighting Redmen Come Back in the Second Half and Win by Sheer Nerve—Game One of Greatest in the Football History of Southern California.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With grim defeat staring them in the face and the southern title apparently hopelessly lost, the Pomona High School football team came back in the second half of a heart-breaking battle and, with the desperate energy of men fighting for the things that are dearest, ripped through the Manual Arts line for a total of 13 points, winning by a scant margin of two points over Manual.

Probably there never was a game in the history of Southern California interscholastic football the equal of the one played here today. Everything that goes for a thrill was crowded into the forty minutes of each bitterly-fought half. Brightly, the purple of Manual Arts waved throughout the first half and all looked rosy; the sun shone brightly on the snow-capped mountains. Then, night slowly settled down on the valley, turning the mountains to purple as a last token of the departing Manual glory.

The teams were late in getting on the field. Manual had waited for Gilman, who had missed the train, and finally the team went into the game without the star first five, but his absence was not noticed.

Manual won the toss and chose the west goal with the sun at their backs and Pomona took the kick-off. The referee called time and the game was on. After the first boot Pomona showed some remarkable bursts of speed and had the mechanics gasping for breath on their own goal line in a short time. Three times the savage red line battered at the bracing purple defense and was thrown back. Then little George Maurer, playing full-back in the place of Parkinson, scooped up the ball and booted far down the field out of danger, saving what looked to be a sure score.

Here the tide of battle ebbed for the Red, and like avenging angels the heavy Manual forwards rammed their way down the field. The Manual seven-man scrum in the three, two, two formation with a wing forward was showing up the Pomona scrum.

BLAIR STARS.

PIPAL PICKS SEVEN TIGERS.

Following is the All-Southern Intercollegiate football team picked by Joseph A. Pipal, coach of the champion Occidental College team:

Kirkpatrick (Occidental,) L.E.
Heath (Pomona,) L.G.
Deems (Occidental,) L.G.
Wieman (Occidental,) C.
Stearns (Occidental,) R.G.
Shipkey (Occidental,) R.T.
Reeves (Pomona,) R.E.
Mason (Whittier,) Q.
Foster (Occidental,) L.H.
McClung (Occidental,) R.H.
Finch (Whittier,) F.

Time and again Blair, the gritty little Manual half, dashed away on the blind side for long gains. Once he carried the ball to the very threshold of the Pomona goal only to be downed. His forwards dribbled over the line, but a wave of red men fell on the rolling ball and the score was saved. Fuller gave Pomona a free kick as the Manual forwards were using the Pomona man rather roughly. We could not see but that there were offenders on both sides.

However, after this free kick, scrum was called on Pomona's 20-yard line and it was here that Blair sprang into the lime-light again when he took the ball and went to the goal line. He was downed and another scrum was called.

Just as the men were lining up Gilman arrived on the field and was given a cheer, but had to stand on the side line and see his pals open up a hole and let Blair dive over the line for the first try of the day.

Gilman then entered the game and

The "Babe" Borton case is now a fit subject for those who dote on the Greek rebus and who dearly love to try and figure out how old Ann would have been had she lived out her natural life.

With two clubs trying to buy him and "Babe" himself not knowing to whom he belongs, the plot thickens.

Venice bought Borton from Jersey City, while the Los Angeles club was trying to do the same thing from New York.

Or rather, Venice accepted Jersey City's terms for that player, which in baseball is tantamount to closing the deal.

HOCKEY HONORS GO TO DUARTE AND MANUAL.

DUARTE, 5 goals, U.S.C., 0; Manual Arts High, 2 goals, Y.W.C.A., 0.

These were the scores in the double-header at Bovard Field yesterday afternoon, when the four women's hockey teams met in the cup matches for the Neil Nettleship trophy and the ladies' hockey championship of Southern California.

Duarte were never in doubt from the "bully off." Following the ball as if their very lives depended upon the issue, they gave the varsity an exceedingly strenuous afternoon's work. The combination work of the Scott sisters and Marjorie Morgan was a revelation to the spectators and a stumbling block to the plucky U.S.C. forwards.

Half time found both these teams fresh and eager, with the score two goals to nothing in favor of Duarte. After the interval, however, the pennant winners went in hot chase after their opponents and three goals were hit in rapid succession.

With a little more practice and harder hitting the U.S.C. hockey team ought to prove dangerous opponents.

The second match between Manual Arts and the Y.W.C.A. eleven was one of the most spectacular and pleasing games of the season. So keen were the "Christians," under the able captaincy of Miss Frances Brook, that at half time neither side could claim any advantage.

It was during the second period that the Manual Arts players got their backs up and went after the ball. Through the work of Miss Nora Biller, who scored the only points of the match, and the wonderful goal-keeping of Ethel Barnes, two goals were notched and victory assured.

Arista Staley played her usual careful game, faultless and always on the spot at critical plays. She demonstrated her ability to hit the ball from almost any angle. Manual Arts High showed marked improvement in yesterday's game from that of last week and have a good chance of scoring against Duarte.

Following is the line-up of the four teams: Duarte: Miss Alice Scott, captain; Miss Dolly Scott, Miss M. Scott, Miss Marjorie Maddock, Mrs. Gordon Maddock, Mrs. H. Miller, Mrs. J. Allan Munroe, Miss Marjorie Morgan, Miss Helen Beck, Miss Doris Beck, Miss Pauline Munroe. U.S.C.: Miss Ruth Wininger, captain; Miss J. Mauzy, Miss L. Ely, Miss L. Rowe, Miss G. Ashmore, Miss E. Palmer, Miss H. Barnett, Miss M. Furber, Miss I. Robinson, Miss G. Rodgers, Miss M. Sykes, Miss L. Kincaid, Miss B. Hoagland, Miss B. Murphy, Miss L. Murphy.

Manual Arts High: Miss Lyla Johnson, captain; Miss Ethel Barnes, Miss Violet Dunn, Miss Nora Biller, Miss Helen Snodgrass, Miss Arista Staley, Miss Beatrice Wein, Miss Vera Stuart, Miss Grace Snelling, Miss Irene Wein, Miss Mazie Crosby, Miss Adele Spinner. Y.W.C.A.: Miss Frances Brook, captain; Miss B. Gray, Miss Marguerite Millier, Miss Enid Handyside, Miss Lorraine Handyside, Miss Vera Oldham, Miss B. L. Aldrich, Miss E. Payne, Miss J. McCall, Miss L. Harper, Miss H. Stokley.

I.A.A.C. TO SEND SQUAD TO ATHENS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The Irish-American Athletic Club has decided to send at least ten men, headed by Melvin W. Sheppard, the hero of several Olympic series, to represent it in the Athenian Olympic games to be held in Athens during May of next year. This team is expected to form the nucleus of a squad which will wear the shield in competition against the picked men of other nations.

GLENDALE BEATS ALHAMBRA TWICE.

Glendale High School made a double-header victory yesterday afternoon when, in both the light and heavyweight divisions of the basketball league, Glendale triumphed over Alhambra. The featherweights won by a score of 25 to 16, while the first team finished on the long end of a 31-to-24 score. Both games were very hard fought, but superior playing on the part of Glendale won.

WILL CONTEST THE AUTO TAX.

Automobile Club Takes a Hand.

Its Attorneys Instructed to Resist.

New Law Is Held to Be Unjust.

The new Motor Vehicle Act, imposing a tax on automobiles for the benefit of the new State boulevards will be resisted in the courts by the legal department of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The board of directors of the club have taken formal action, instructing the club's attorneys to proceed against the new law.

This action was taken as a result of the responses to inquiries sent out about ten days ago by the automobile club to its 8000 members asking for their opinion as to whether the special tax imposed by the new law should be acquiesed in or resisted.

The members favoring resistance outnumbered the others about fifteen to one. Among those who favored acquiesence were a small number of well-known and representative men who urged that it was better that a fund should be provided by this unjust means to keep up the State highways than that no upkeep fund should be provided at all.

The directors of the club decided, however, that the weight of the argument lay on the other side.

KUSTER'S STATEMENT.

E. G. Kuster, counsel for the automobile club, said yesterday: "It may seem odd to find the club, for once in its history, vigorously opposing in the courts a measure which has the advancement of the good roads movement for its apparent object, but a little reflection should convince those who have urged at least temporary acquiescence in this new tax, that the new State highways now being constructed under the $18,000,000 bond issue ought not require any substantial repairs, if properly built, until the next session of the Legislature. At that time we hope to secure more rational legislation, providing for an adequate fund for highway maintenance, laying the burden of taxation, not on the motorists alone, but upon all who share with them in the benefits of what should eventually be the most nearly perfect highway system in the country.

At the last session of the Legislature, the representatives of the Automobile Club of Southern California

CONSISTENCY TOUR FOR OUR MOTOR CAR DEALERS.

Secret Checking Points Established by Joe McDuffee on Route-Blazing Tour in Stearns Silent-Knight. Novel Outing Calls Many Dealers Into the Fray With Every Driver Ready to Win Laurels.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

OVER 210 miles of mountain and valley roads the tour of the Automobile Dealers' Association will be held Thursday and Friday of this week. The cars are to be sent to Riverside on Thursday with a stop at the Glenwood Mission Inn that night.

Thirty or more machines will take part in this run which is to be held over a route much like the one selected for The Times to Lakeside tour. At this season of the year the roads are in splendid shape, and if it does not rain before Thursday, the cars can be sent through without difficulty on the schedule which Chairman J. H. McDuffee has arranged.

Unlike anything of the kind ever held in the West the consistency tour will mean that each car and each driver can be watched critically from the moment the machine is sent away until the tour is ended in San Diego.

The rules are different from any ever used to govern a tour. The dealers themselves will not know under what rule they have been judged until the awards are made.

Secret checking places were made on the pathfinding stunt. The Stearns-Knight was driven, with the speedometer clocking off the miles and when a suitable place was found the mileage was recorded and the place was marked. Now these places are known only to the men who made the run in the Stearns Silent-Knight and Chairman McDuffee is not the man to tell a secret.

This is the plan which will govern the tour. Each car and driver will be sent away from Ninth and Broadway on the morning of December 11, at 7:30 o'clock. The cars will leave at thirty-second intervals. A schedule will be handed each driver who must be either a dealer or a manager of a local branch house. This schedule must be contained between the two points of the day's run. If it is twenty miles an hour the driver who comes closest to this mark for the entire run will be declared the winner.

Now here is the "nigger in the woodpile." The two points between which the cars are to be judged is known only to Chairman McDuffee and his chief lieutenant, George Adair. They will place men at the secret checking points the day of the run to report the time of each car in passing.

SECRET CHECKERS.

Now even the officials in the checking stations will not know the winners until they compare the starting time of each car. These checking cards will be read at the Glenwood Mission Inn the first night out, and the winners for the first day will be announced on Thursday. It is to be no joke. It will not be the speedster who will win or the man who trails like a snail.

On the second day the run will be even more difficult. A schedule of twelve miles an hour will be established through the Pala hills. There are steep grades to cross. The roads are poor in places, but good in others. It will keep a driver guessing who is anxious to maintain his schedule over all kinds of highways. It will mean real driver, sticking to the road carefully and good judgment.

At Riverside, Frank Miller has agreed to take charge of the reception for the motorists. The cars should reach there at about 5 o'clock and should arrive in a bunch. Charles Dundas is to be one of the official checkers and he will appoint others who will help in the markings to be made that first night out.

The noon stop of the first day is at San Bernardino. After the cars have been driven through Pomona, where a stop will be made, the machines will be sent on to Ontario, where another visit will be paid to the townsmen. At Pomona Frank Balfour is the "Major Domo" and at Ontario W. A. Freemire is the man who will extend the glad hand. Both of these men are veterans in the art of entertaining anyone who is boosting for good roads.

The noon stop for the second day will be at Escondido, where lunch is to be served at the Escondido Hotel. Earl Schnack will help check the cars in there. The run is through the hills and the cars should reach Escondido between 12:30 and 1 o'clock. This is the most strenuous part of the entire outing.

The afternoon's run to San Diego is by way of the Poway grade and through Murphy's Canyon to San Diego. Chairman McDuffee has tabulated the mileage carefully and the cars will all be sent over the same route.

WADHAM A WINNER.

James E. Wadham, ex-Mayor of San Diego, is the man in charge at the finish of this tour. He will be associated with several other San Diego men prominent in the affairs of the southern city. There is no one who is more capable of filling this important position than ex-Mayor Wadham, who will be in Los Angeles Wednesday evening to meet and confer with the officials of the tour concerning the run.

The cars and drivers will all remain in San Diego on Saturday, where gymkhana stunts will be pulled off. The meet is to be held on a race track there and Barney Oldfield, who has been chosen pilot of the tour, will drive an exhibition mile against time. The proceeds of the meet will be given to charity. The men of San Diego, under the leadership of Chairman Wadham, will perfect the details this week.

The contesting cars will be driven back to Los Angeles by way of the Coast route on Sunday. Arrangements have been made by Chairman McDuffee for a chicken dinner at Las Rosas Hotel, San Juan Capistrano. Here Mrs. Gertrude A. Coffy, has arranged to serve a chicken dinner, which will be ready from 11:30 o'clock Sunday morning until 5:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. This new hostelry is to be the official stop for the tourers on their way home from the gymkhana tourney.

BILLY WEEKS, THE NEW CHAMP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Dec. 6.—Billy Weeks, former amateur middleweight champion, won the professional middleweight championship of Canada when he virtually knocked out Gil Martin in the third round of a scheduled fifteen-round contest today. A heavy right cross to the jaw in the first round floored Martin and a similar blow in the third round dropped him again. He came up at the count of nine groggy and the referee stopped the bout.

MOTOR SALON FOR NEW YEAR.

January Fifth Opening Day for Splendid Exhibit.

Don Lee to Show Complete Line of Late Cadillacs.

Brown With Stutz Racer and Ruess With Pope.

BY BERT C. SMITH.

Twenty-five thousand feet of floor space will be used to stage what promises to be the best automobile show ever held in the West. Automobile dealers are interested and many of them have selected space for the salon to be staged the week of January 5 to 10. Walter Hempel will manage the show, which is to be held in the Grand Avenue Rink Pavilion.

Don Lee has selected the largest space thus far. The Cadillac cars are to be exhibited in a booth near the center of the wide floor. The two-speed axle, the touring car, a stripped chassis and a limousine will be shown by the Cadillac dealer who is planning to make a complete display of his entire 1914 line.

Walter M. Brown will show the Stutz No. 8 with which Earl Cooper won so many victories. This is the car that Cooper drove into a succession of winnings that has placed him at the top of the ladder of fame when road drivers are mentioned. Cooper, the 1913-14 speed champion, will be with the car which is to be made the centerpiece of the Stutz exhibit.

Among others who will show is W. J. Burt, who will exhibit the entire Auburn line, a particularly interesting showing for 1914. He has already arranged to secure a number of cars from the factory, which should arrive here in time to occupy places on the show-room floor, where they are to be displayed to advantage in a large space.

POPE AND KING.

William R. Ruess is one of the exhibitors who is planning to make a classy display. Ruess will show the Pope-Hartford and the King. It is expected that the new Pope four-cylinder, one of the sensations of the 1914 season, will be here in time to occupy the center of the space allotted to the Pope dealer. Ruess is trying in every way possible to get that particular model here, as it will prove of keen interest, not only to the Pope owners, but to others of the motor world.

Special features that will make this show novel have already been arranged. The admission will be placed low enough to insure a large number of visitors during the week of January. There is nothing that will conflict and the exhibit is to be staged in such a manner that the 1914 models will be offered attractively.

DEALERS ENTHUSE.

The dealers who are back of the movement expect to make this show the event of the opening month of the new year. Manager Hempel has the backing of every dealer in Los Angeles and the show space, which already is being sold rapidly, is almost certain to be entirely disposed of this week.

High and low priced cars are to be offered to the public. Another opportunity will be given to judge the trend of the motor industry. The factory ideals, the latest in body designs and the latest accessories will also be exhibited at this salon where the motor men are to assemble for one week.

It is expected that this show will be a great stimulus to the motor industry. With the opening of 1914 trade conditions are certain to be improved and days will be set aside when the visitors from the Southland cities can study the cars stripped and finished with demonstrators to show them the latest the motor world has to offer.

AUTO TRUCKS SAVE HORSES.

DAKIN RANCH OPERATES MANY MOTOR TRUCKS.

Squadron of Morelands Run on Schedule Between Big Produce Ranch, Near Redlands, and the Los Angeles Harbor at Low Cost of Operation.

An instructive illustration of the advantages of motor trucks to suburban districts is shown in the operation of a squadron of Moreland trucks between Dakin's ranch, near Redlands, and Los Angeles harbor.

The Dakin ranch, situated as it is many miles from the railroad, had until the advent of the motor truck been given over entirely to production of barley and hay, it being impossible to market perishables of any nature.

Nearly two years ago Dakin purchased his first Moreland truck. This, his initial truck purchase, was no doubt prompted by the fact that a large deciduous orchard on his home ranch had reached its bearing age. A large section of the ranch was also set aside for the cultivation of garden products of every nature. These perishable goods were delivered daily to the neighboring towns.

On the first of last January Dakin was the successful bidder for the fruit and produce contract to be delivered daily to the boats at the local harbor. An order was immediately placed for two more of the distillate-burning trucks, and a systematic schedule already figured out, the daily trips were commenced.

"The low cost of operation was not only pleasing but surprising to the owner. The distance from the ranch to the harbor is ninety miles," said Dakin, "and with our light trucks we are able to make the trip nicely in seven hours. It is also a regular occurrence to make the round trip with a combined distillate and oil expense of less than $2."

The prettiest girl in the "movies"

Is Mary Pickford and Mary has bought a Borland coupe whose manufacturers say it is the prettiest car to be found anywhere.

MOVIE ACTRESS BUYS ELECTRIC.

MARY PICKFORD PURCHASES BORLAND.

Dainty Little Moving Picture Star Is Latest Convert to the Graceful Lines of the Borland Coupe—Is the First of Famous Players Company to Drive Her Own Car.

The latest celebrity to become an electric car convert is Miss Mary Pickford, the well-known moving picture star, who is here with the Famous Players Company, under a six months' contract to appear in "Madam Butterfly" and several other well-known plays. Her latest car is a 1914 five-passenger Borland coupe, beautifully upholstered to suit this dainty little lady, and with the graceful lines that have made this car so popular.

Miss Pickford, who, by the way, has been on the stage since she was 5 years old, has recently finished a three years' contract with Belasco on Broadway, and her recent success, "A Good Little Devil," insured her the place in the hearts of the followers of the legitimate stage that she has held for so long with the followers of the "movies." With all her fame this clever little lady is as simple and unassuming as the ordinary sweet school miss of sixteen summers, and she has become as popular on Automobile Row during the selection of her new car as she is on the stage.

The car she has selected, the Borland, while not well known on the Coast, has for several years been one of the foremost sellers on the eastern market, and it was partially through this well-known eastern reputation that Miss Pickford selected this car.

The Borland agency in Southern California has only been opened for about a month, with J. B. Mitchell installed as manager. Mr. Mitchell comes from San Francisco, where for several years he has been very successful in the gas car end of the business, and since arriving here has secured the services of several of the most popular of the local automobile salesmen to introduce the new line, chief among whom are Chester J. Parker and DeWitt S. Childress, both of whom are well known in local club and society circles.

Miss Pickford is probably the first of the Famous Players Company to drive her own electric, and Automobile Row is holding its breath in anticipation of the resultant sales should she succeed in infecting the rest of the company with the same habit.

BRAMLETTE NOW OWNS MITCHELL SIX.

Bill Bramlette, favorite with racing crowds because of his ability and nerve at the wheel of a flying racer, has joined the touring class. During the past week Bramlette went over the pleasure car field with gimlet eye, and at the end of his quest selected a 1914 Mitchell "Little-Six" as the vehicle in which he will enjoy himself on tours of the Southland.

Bramlette proved one of the most difficult "prospects" who ever entered the doors of a local gasoline emporium. Every feature of construction passed under his expert eye before he was satisfied, and every test to which a machine can be submitted was necessary before he felt ready to accept delivery.

Just to give his customer a regular idea of what power could be expected from the Mitchell, P. H. Greer of the Greer-Robbins Company, where Bramlette purchased his car, took the racing driver over all the difficult hills around Los Angeles. The Quintero grade was negotiated on the second speed, and then Greer sent the big Mitchell over the west side of Second street and then up the Grand avenue hill on the "high."

Boston yachtsmen are interested in a new one-design class of sloops, which will cost about $1800 and may replace the sonderboats in that territory. They are twenty-footers and the design was prepared by W. Starling Burgess, who was very successful with the sonderboat Ellen in the recent international match with German yachtsmen sailed last summer at Marblehead.

New $3500 Packard Touring Car Finds Brisk Demand

The call for the new six-passenger touring car, with body of Packard design, but not of Packard manufacture, mounted upon the regular Packard "2-38" maximum service touring chassis, has been far greater than anticipated.

Delivery of this most excellent car at the special price of $3500 can, however, still be made with promptness. This is a happy opportunity to secure the unusual features offered by the renowned Packard "2-38" chassis at five hundred dollars less than regular price.

Cadillac
STANDARD OF THE WORLD

The 1914 Model Is the Greatest Car the Cadillac Company Ever Built

From a standpoint of luxury, economy and efficiency the new two-speed rear axle, offered in the 1914 Cadillac, is the only noteworthy improvement of the year.

The success of this axle is a repetition of the success of the electric starter, introduced two years ago by the Cadillac.

The Cadillac has always been a leader and will continue to set the standard for motor cars.

The world-wide popularity of the Cadillac is a tribute to success.

The Cadillac since its earliest day has been a success, made by a company that has never known a failure.

In any other business or industry it is considered a wise idea to stand with a company and an article that has always been a success.

Why isn't that a good principle to follow in the purchase of a motor car?

FOUR CARS A DAY

There are but two logical methods of building motor cars.

One method is to produce cars in enormous quantities so as to bring the price down as low as possible.

The other method is to produce cars in limited quantities so that each car will be of the highest quality.

Each system has but one real exponent. In a middle western city, "mass production" enables a good small car to be made and sold at a low figure. In a New England city, "The Best Built Car in America" is produced practically car by car, by the finest mechanics in the world.

One car carries out one ideal, the other a totally different ideal. Both are right. Both are built, not assembled. One company makes 1000 cars a day, the other company Four Cars a day. The idea back of one car is to give the most for the money; the idea back of the other is to give the best regardless of price.

The smaller car is turned out like the well-known and worth-while "dollar watch." The greater car is built like a chronometer. Any other car—is a compromise.

The Locomobile now occupies a peculiar position. It is the only high-grade car whose sales have increased during the past two years. This success of the Locomobile is due to the policy of building not more than four cars a day. All of the power and the experience has been concentrated on a limited production. Years ago we concluded that just so surely as the best cheap car could only be produced in very large number, just so surely could the car of highest quality be produced only in limited quantities.

Our policy from the very start was to build cars in small lots so that each car could have the most intimate attention. When others were increasing their plants and building more cars, we were increasing our quality, striving to make the Locomobile "The Best Built Car in America."

Every Locomobile has been built like every other Locomobile. Every Locomobile has been built with the utmost care. Every Locomobile has been built to carry out the ideal of quality, not a commonplace commercial idea. The Locomobile will be made as it always has been made, in limited quantity—and with unlimited care. (Despite the present demand for the Locomobile and despite any rumor to the contrary, we will not increase our production and make more cars.)

There will always be a demand for the limited number of cars we make. Because we have been building for the future, our plant will always run at capacity, without reducing the quality of our product or price.

"We have prepared a form of protest which we would recommend to applicants for registration under the new law. It should accompany the payment of the fees required under the horse-power schedule of the act. Printed copies of the form may be obtained free of cost at the office of the Automobile Club by members and non-members alike."

C. E. Fleming of the legal department of the club said: "Payments under the new act should be made under protest, pending the final determination of the question of the validity of the new tax. We have forms of protest for public distribution. The following form is recommended:

"I make the above payment under protest, and under fear of prosecution for non-compliance with the provisions of the Motor Vehicle Act of California, to become effective at midnight of December 31, 1913, my grounds of protest being that the requirement of said payment by said act is unconstitutional and void, said purported registration fee being in reality a special and unreasonably discriminatory tax, and also by reason of the fact that I have already paid a personal property tax on said motor vehicle to the State of California for the fiscal year 1913-1914, an unlawful additional or double tax. I also claim that said requirement is an attempt to impose a license fee on property instead of on an occupation or profession, and that it attempts to license a right common to all, and not a special privilege."

Persons who have already paid their tax under a less complete statement of protest may obtain copies of the above form at the office of the Automobile Club and send it to Sacramento to be attached to their application.

ALL ABOUT AUTO LAWS FOR NEW YEAR.

Full publication of the laws against which local motorists are taking such a decided stand, and which will go into effect in the State of California the first of the year, is contained in the booklet now being issued by the Greer-Robbins Company, local distributors of the Hupmobile and Mitchell lines. The pamphlets are particularly in demand by autoists of the Southland, for every feature of the statute enacted by the last Legislature is embodied.

The Greer-Robbins publication is not simply a summary of the points involved, for no synopsis or digest is attempted. Instead the laws are given in full just as they are written, and there is no chance for the motorist seeking information to go astray on the meaning of the legislators when they voted for the measure.

Demand for the booklets is heavy, and the Hup and Mitchell headquarters have been overrun with motorists asking for them. The supply is limited as well as free, and it behooves those seeking the information they desire to call early at the Twelfth and Flower-street automobile emporium.

KREBS MADE IN SMALLER SIZES.

Krebs commercial trucks of half-ton and one-ton capacity are announced by R. E. Jones, who has been in the city for a week past.

One-and-a-half and two-ton trucks of the older type are now supplied with double universal joints, which thoroughly eliminate shaft troubles.

HUPS ON ROAD THAT ONCE WAS DEVIL'S HIGHWAY.

"BARBARA WORTH," the novel which attained such wide popularity a few seasons ago, is being read with close attention to detail by passengers who use the automobile stage line between San Diego and Imperial Valley points these days. The famed Devil's Canyon, which was mentioned in the story, is no longer part of the trail, as it has been replaced by a better highway, but it can be seen from the stage and travelers are always apprised of its advent on the scene.

The San Diego-Imperial stage is one of the best examples of what the automobile can accomplish when worked by man as a business proposition and not a plaything. The line has been in operation for fifteen months, and in that time its traffic department has kept adding to the equipment until at present seven machines are in constant use.

H. B. Webb, traffic manager of the line, has been in Los Angeles lately making further additions to the equipment. A month ago he added two six-passengers to his fleet of cars, and the machines stood up under their gruelling work so well that Webb has asked the Greer-Robbins company, local distributors for the little motors, to let him know how soon he can have a carload of similar vehicles.

The Hups at present travel on daily trips over the 120 miles of mountain and desert that intervene between San Diego and the Imperial points. The stage cars travel on a seven-hour schedule, and the number of passengers carried by the company average twenty-five a day. The line is maintained the year round, and many of the trips are made through fierce desert storms, which tax both drivers and vehicles to the utmost.

CHALK HILL GRADE SOON TO BE LEVEL HIGHWAY.

CHALK HILL, which for years has been the bane of motorists traversing the Ventura county highway in winter, is rapidly being conquered. During the past week Contractor John D. Marsh, who is building the State highway in the neighborhood of Owensmouth, set a crew of graders to work on the old pile of adobe, and in a few days the grade began to show signs of their labors.

The hill will be pulled down until it will show but a 6 per cent. grade, where before it raised as high as 15 per cent. Its slippery 'dobe surface, which formerly prevented any but the most powerful of automobiles from climbing to the crest, will be replaced with a fine concrete roadway. Marsh is rushing the work as rapidly as possible, and promises that the State highway as far as the Elliott-Brant ranch will be open to traffic from the Cahuenga end by the 10th of January.

Marsh has a novel way of trying the grades on the roads he is building. As soon as the engineers determine the pitch of the highway he takes his Mitchell roadster and goes over the hardest part of it. Where the powerful machine shows that there is quite a pull, Marsh marks off and then puts his men to work, so that the most difficult stretch is finished first and the easier part at the end.

FROM THE FACTORIES.

KNIGHT cars, as the Moline output are sometimes described on account of the Knight sleeve-valve motors, include in their fittings Truffault-Hartford shock absorbers, Warner sixty-mile speedometers, "one-man top," cover, side curtains, automatic wind-shield, electric horse-power tire pump, gasoline oil gauge on dash, dash light, eight-day clock, footrail, tire irons, complete set of tools, jack and tire repair kit—all in the lowest priced car ever produced with the Knight motor.

Moline-Knight trade mark imposed upon a picture of Sir Galahad, done in blue and gold, replaces the old "Dreadnought" emblem.

"Stellite" tools are now used in the Haynes machines at Kokomo with such success that the profit on one day's labor man and machine has been increased six-fold. The new non-corroding and non-heating alloy is patented.

Maxwell makers are not retrenching, but expanding to meet the increasing demand for low-priced cars is reported by President Flanders.

Stewart trucks, to be handled hereafter by the Chalmers Los Angeles Company, use Continental thirty-horse-power cylinders, cast en bloc, encased valves, Bosch ignition, Renault radiators, unit clutch case and transmission, Timken roller bearings and axles.

The Electric Renovator Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh has absorbed the Harroun kerosene carburetor for automobiles, and is to develop the principle for all internal combustion motors.

I. G. Eckley has just completed a tour with his wife and brother through the Middle West and Southern States in a Regal underslung car, which successfully covered eleven States with its passengers and large camp equipage. For a part of the distance a buggy was towed.

Juneau has been made Studebaker headquarters for the Alaska trade, with A. H. Brown of Portland in charge of 500,000 miles of territory. J. B. Crockett represents the Studebaker company in the Far East, with headquarters at Singapore.

Twenty body styles are offered with the new Packard "2-38" motor truck. One Packard has been run by a Denver firm fifty miles per day for eighteen months, carrying from ten to twelve tons. When finally inspected the repair costs were less than $100. The manufacturers earned net $3,-000,000 for the last fiscal year.

Left-hand drive, with center control, is a feature of the 1914 Apperson. Motor, clutch and transmission are combined in one unit.

PAUL REVERE IN JACKSON TOURER.

Motor row is wondering what significance there can be taching itself to the fact that fifty Jackson cars have been ordered shipped to Mexico City and immediate delivery demanded.

At the present moment, political affairs have never been in a more chaotic, tumultuous and uncertain condition than they are now in Mexico. With two parties resorting to every imaginable means, going to any extremes in order to accomplish their ends, the thought naturally suggests itself: Are these fifty Jacksons to play a role in Mexican politics and warfare?

Will the future generations of Mexican schoolboys read in their history books of the midnight ride of a swarthy Paul Revere, who tore over the country-side in a Jackson car?

MARATHON CARS TO BE BOOSTED.

Marathon cars have been bought to the extent of the entire outfit of the next year by the Herff-Brooks Corporation of Indianapolis. The car is to be issued in six body forms, on three chassis, of 108, 118 and 123-inch wheel bases, respectively. Power of thirty-five horse motors is used, a floating rear axle being a feature.

H. H. Brooks, secretary and sales manager of the purchasing company, has placed the advertising department in the hands of Williams & Cunningham, of Chicago.

NEW CARBURETER IS SUCCESSFUL.

GARBUTT HAS SECURED BIG DISTRICT.

Has All Marine Engine Rights Between Santa Barbara and San Diego for the Master Carbureter. Martin Used This Carbureter on His Altitude Trip.

Los Angeles manufacture scores another success in eastern markets and Middle Western States, where large districts for Master carbureter sales were disposed of last week.

Frank A. Garbutt was so favorably impressed with the Master carbureter that he has been using on his Fiat and Simplex cars that he has closed a deal for all marine engine rights between Santa Barbara and San Diego for this carbureter. F. E. Garbutt, a son of F. A., is now establishing agencies for the Master, and is arranging to have it installed on practically all the power boats in southern waters.

Both Garbutt and Joe Fellows have given this Los Angeles-made carbureter a thorough try-out on marine engines and have found that it produces more power and less vibration than any other make.

Garbutt also is having a special Master constructed for his new aeronautical motor. It has been found highly successful in aeroplane work, as Glenn Martin has had greater success with this make than any he has used. It was a Master that made the 9000-foot altitude flight with a passenger possible. Garbutt was with Martin on this trip that is considered a world's altitude record for an aeroplane with a passenger.

No California manufacturer is receiving a louder call for his goods than the makers of the Master. Edward F. Holmes of No. 55 Wall street, New York has closed with the local concern for exclusive representation for the Atlantic States.

A new company has been formed in Omaha, to be known as the Master Carbureter Sales Company, to handle the instrument for Nebraska and Iowa.

Letters of praise are arriving weekly from the East on the performance of these carbureters in the cold weather. The low temperature is a condition California motorists do not have to contend with, but in the East this is an important factor and there is a big difference in carbureters.

HALLIWELL TAKES UP NEW PRODUCTS.

Martin shock absorbers are to be handled by the Halliwell Company on the Pacific Coast.

Gabriel absorbers and Marvel sparkplug pump have also been included in the list of accessories handled by this company, which is entering upon a year of expansion.

ROYAL BLUE WINTON.

The local Winton agent, W. D. Howard, reports the sale and delivery of a 1914 royal blue toy tonneau to the Standard Oil Company for use in the oil field district at Bakersfield. The Standard Oil Company has operated several Wintons in its fields during the past years with great success. This last purchase is the direct result of the good work and reputation given and earned by the cars previously purchased.

FINE FINISH FOR CADILLAC CARS.

Since the establishment of a paint department by Don Lee in his local branch there has been such a rush of business that it has been necessary to increase the force until all available room is now in use.

Don Lee decided a year ago to open a paint department, as there was such general dissatisfaction over repainted automobiles.

Lee felt that it was possible to finish a motor car as well in California as in the eastern factories and undertook to demonstrate this fact. The success of his plans shows that his judgment was correct. His instructions to the heads of the departments are, that no job be turned out unless it is the very best possible that can be done. In order to do this the finest material is used.

NO HARD TIMES AT MILLER PLANT.

W. D. Newerf of the Newerf Rubber Company, California distributors for the Miller tires, has just received word from the factory reporting the annual meeting.

The Miller Rubber Company has its factory in Akron, O. At the recent meeting the retiring directors were re-lected, as were the retiring officers.

W. F. Pfeffer, the general manager, in his annual report submitted to the stockholders, stated that the sales for the year ending September 30, 1913, were more than 61 per cent. larger than those of the preceding the general trade outlook booked, with the general trade outlook for the coming year, promised an even greater gain for the coming year, 1914.

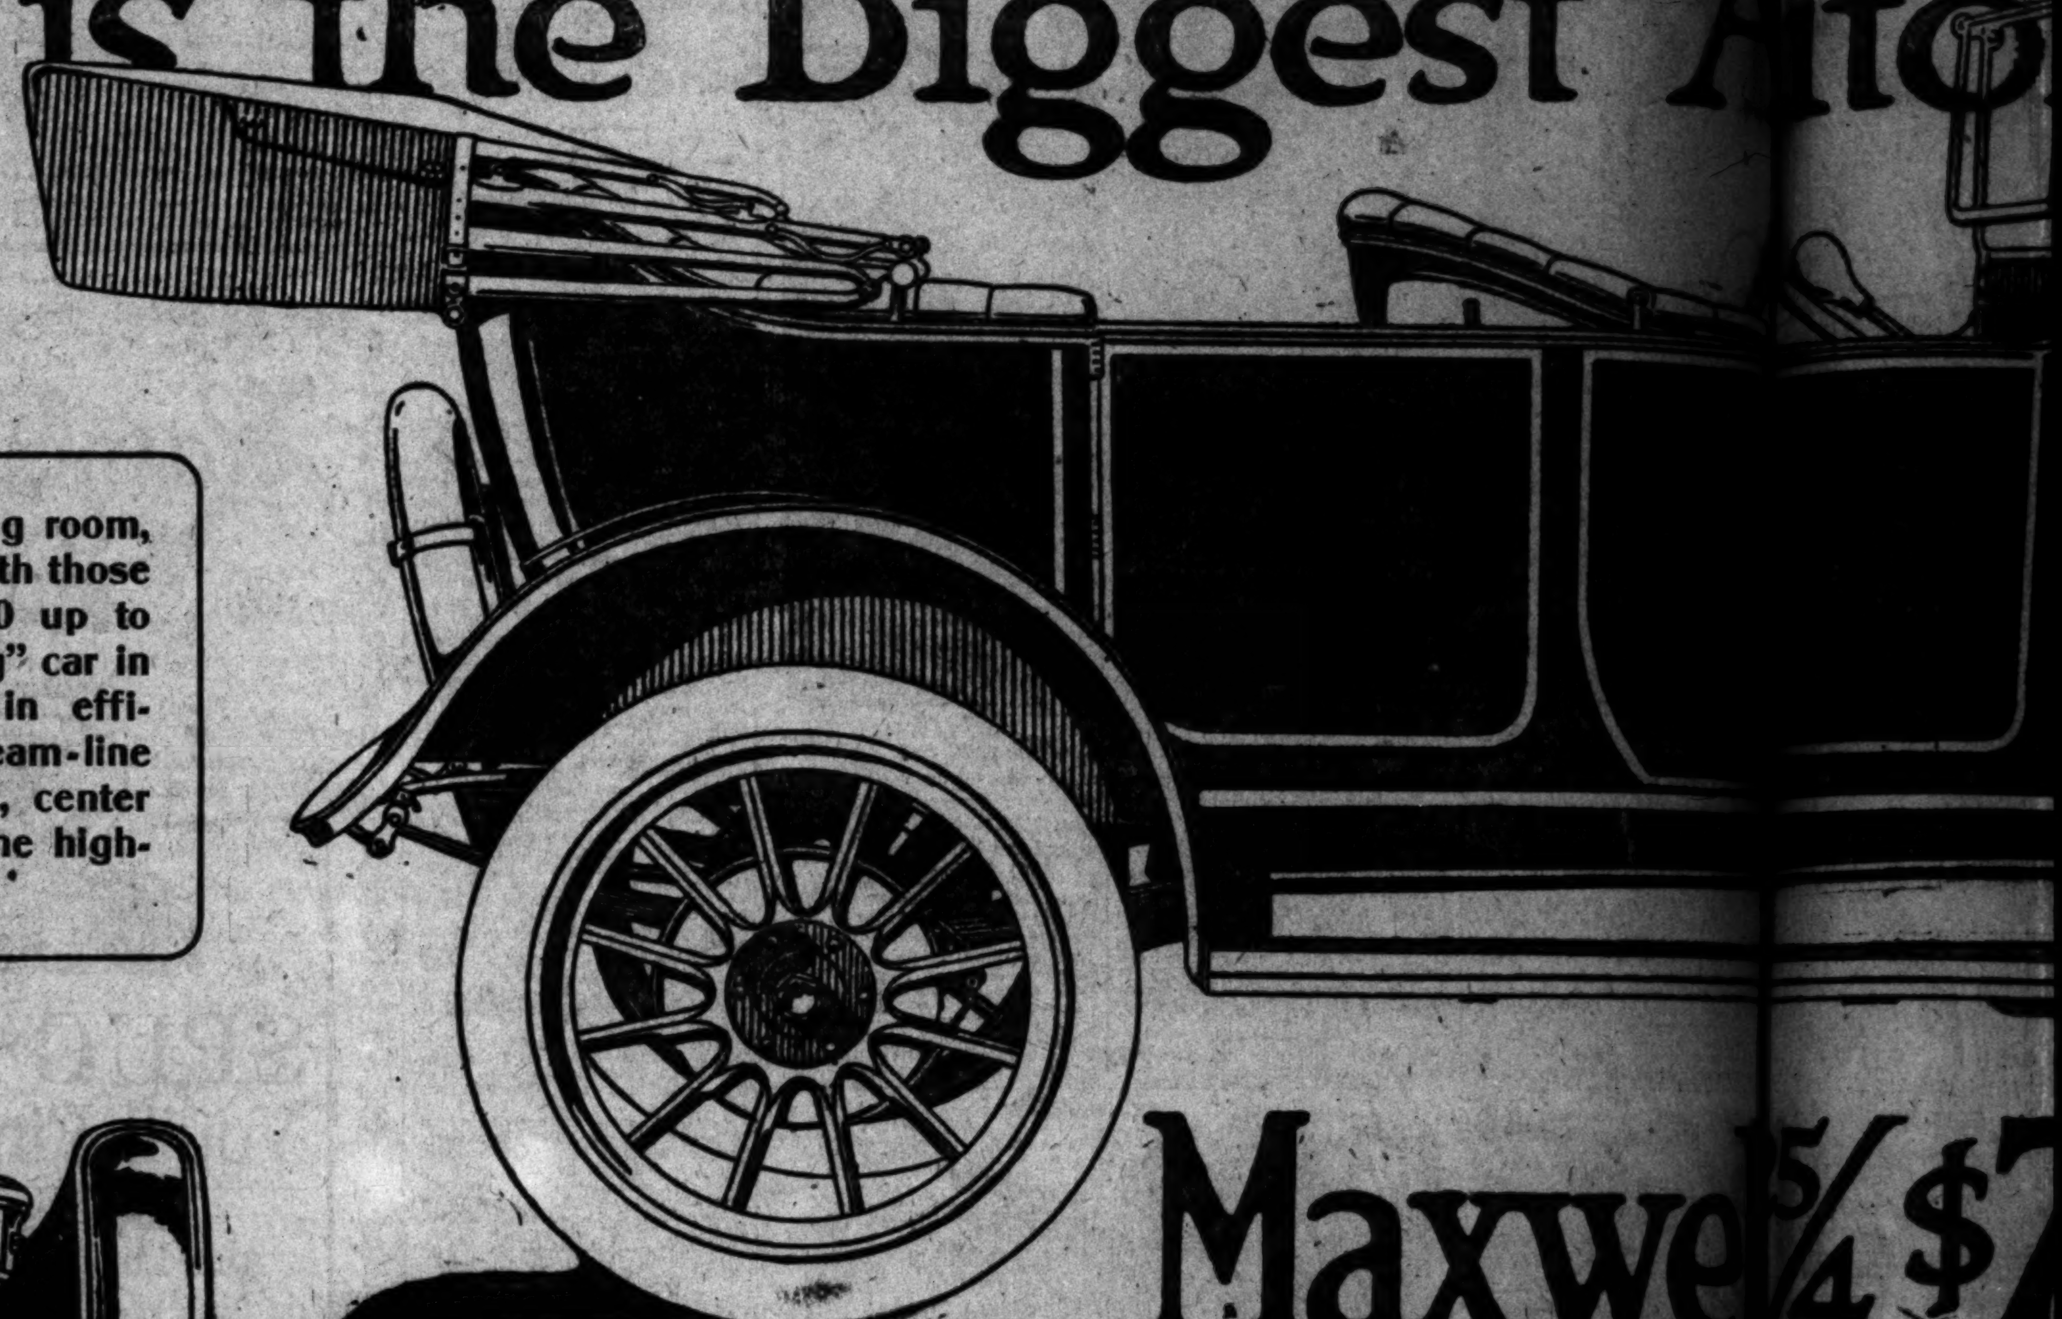
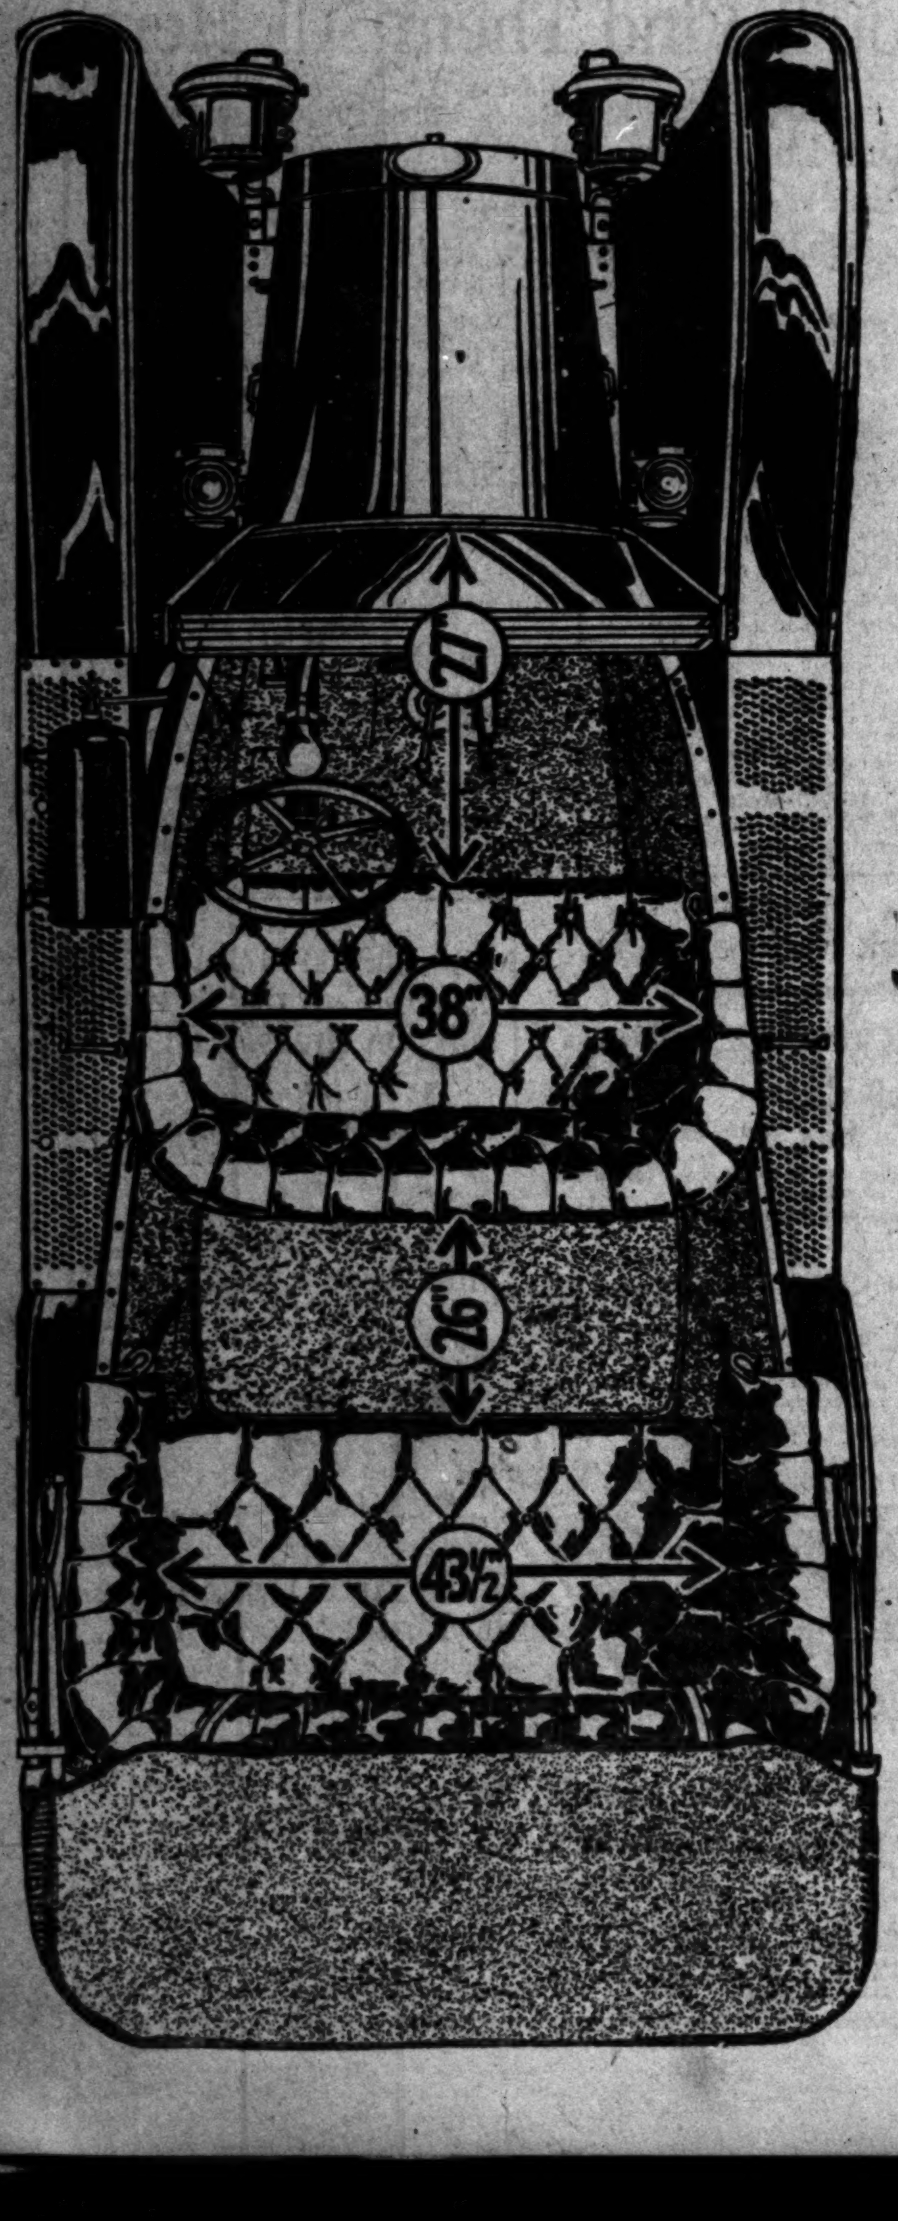
Here is the "Biggest" Auto



CHECK the measurements—leg room, depth and width of seats—with those of any car selling from $1000 up to $1400—you'll find this is a "big" car in inches as well as "immense" in efficiency. Note up-to-date stream-line body design, left hand steer, center control and other features of the highest priced cars.



Maxwel 5/4 $7

Extravagant Assert ?—L

WHO WAS the "biggest" general in the world? Napoleon, he conquered Europe—and he was five-feet-three!

WHO WAS the "biggest" statesman in the world? Bismarck, he built the German Empire—and he was six-feet-four!

SO YOU SEE MERE SIZE DOESN'T determine who nor what is biggest. It is achievement that confers that title "biggest."

WE MAINTAIN that the biggest automobile in the world is the one that does the biggest things—and does bigger things than a bigger car can do at the same cost.

AND THAT CONFERS THE TITLE on the Maxwell "25," which sells for $750, and which, though of ample capacity for carrying five full grown adults anywhere any car will go, yet weighs only 1650 pounds.

THIS CAR CANNOT BE CALLED either small or large—in inches. It is neither a Napoleon nor a Bismark in physical proportions—but is a combination of both in efficiency and—in competition.

IT IS THE MOST FORMIDABLE rival other cars have ever encountered.

ITS CONQUESTS have embraced the territory formerly held by both the very cheap, and the overly-large, underly-efficient cars, selling for $1000 and more.

IT CONQUERS because it meets the needs and the ideas of the majority of informed buyers. It appeals at the same time to the logic of common sense and the sense of the beautiful.

ITS BEAUTY is shown in looks and in performance—handsome is as handsome does—and handsome as is.

THE BUYER WHO must take a peep into the purse before buying, here finds a car within his reach and made to his heart's desire.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the buyer who is easily able to pay the first cost, but whose experience has taught him to look still more closely into maintenance cost afterward, finds in this 1650-pound, five-passenger car the one he has been looking for—because it will do all any 2600-pound car will do—and more—and at half the upkeep cost—or less.

NOW, READ THIS—it's what you are most vitally interested in—deliveries.

WE ARE MAKING 50 CARS PER DAY of this model. That isn't a circumstance, of course. Demand is for five times as many even at this season. Spring demand—we don't dare contemplate.

OUR PLANTS ARE BIG ENOUGH to make 300 per day—and that is what we are preparing for. But special machinery can't be made over night nor produced by necromancy. So we can't hope to reach a production of more than 200 per day before February at earliest.

SO YOUR MOVE IS—to see the car at once—your nearest dealer. Have a thorough demonstration. Talk to your acquaintance who has been fortunate enough to get one. He'll say more than our modesty permits—more than you'd credit from an over-enthusiastic maker.

THEN DON'T DELAY—get your order in. Pay a deposit to guarantee delivery and to assure it at a time when others will be offering premiums. Then you'll be able to rest easy in the knowledge that you've secured the greatest automobile value ever known.

What Users Say About the

Cartercar

Gentlemen:

In reply to your request as to how I like my Cartercar, with which I have just arrived from Twin Falls, Idaho, a distance of some 900 miles, will say that I am much pleased with the car from a number of standpoints.

To begin with, I will say that I have owned the car (a five-passenger Model "A") about six weeks, and had never driven a car in my life until seated behind the wheel of this Cartercar, until my wife and myself left Twin Falls, Idaho, with 1000 pounds freight on our car, making a total weight of 4200 pounds (entirely too much load for the roads.) I am of the opinion that the car is a much better and more reliable car now than it was when I purchased it.

We have pulled up some heavy mountain grades, up an 8000-foot incline, and over many miles of washed sand, where there was practically no track, out through the sagebrush where the roads were entirely obliterated around Tonopah and Goldfield, Nev., as well as many other places where the sagebrush soil had been carried away and left high middles, so our route was out through the sagebrush in chuck holes axle-tree deep, and with the tremendous load of freight that I had to haul, I consider nothing short of the very best car would be able to make this trip.

I came through entirely on the car's own power and never had my engine to miss a stroke, never cleaned a spark plug, nor had the engine refuse me one single time. My electric lighting and starting system was 100 per cent. efficient. It is true that up some of the heavy mountain grades and through the sand, we had to use the extreme low gear, and did some frightful pulling, but the car always walked out—sometimes after several trials.

I am pleased to say, after my gruelling experience with the "Cartercar" and friction drive, that were I buying another car it would unquestionably be of the same kind. I believe that you have a good car and it is certainly very classy in its looks, and has created considerable interest in my town in Idaho, as it is the only one, at present, owned there. I feel much pleased with the success of my trip from the fact that many of my friends who own gear cars informed me that the friction drive would never pull the grades and the sand that separate Twin Falls, Idaho, and Los Angeles, Cal., but I am here getting some oil and minor adjustments in the garage as a verification of the fact that the car has done what the knowing ones said it would not.

Yours very truly,
W. M. LAMBERG,

ALL-STAR PREP ELEVEN A CLASSY AGGREGATION.

Berths Scattered Among All High Schools Playing American Game—Manker Great Halfback, Joe Waddell Also Fine Quarter—Team Would Probably Give College Squads Trouble Should a Game Be Played.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

Never before has the selection of the All-Southern Interscholastic eleven been such a difficult matter as is the case this season. The schedule has been full of surprises from one end to the other. The teams that were rated at the opening of the season as sure winners have fallen before some dark-horse aggregation, while many of last year's star men were not fast enough this fall to keep the new blood down.

There were a number of good ends playing prep football this year, according to the coaches and the referees, but the work of Robbins of Whittier and Wark of Long Beach stands out as the best of the year. Robbins is the best of the lot and while Wark played quarter-back through a certain part of the season he is not enough of a field general for an All-Southern team, while his tackling and blocking at end marks him as the man next in class to Robbins. Other ends which might be mentioned are Pike of San Diego, Spencer of South Pasadena, Burkett of Santa Ana and McAdam of Pasadena.

Much the same state of affairs holds true in regard to the tackles as in the case of the ends. There were a number of strong players at these positions, but Siemon of Chaffey Union and Gregg of Whittier did the best work. Their work savors of head work and that should count a long way in selecting a prep school all-star team. Woodward of Whittier, Holzgraf of Santa Ana and McAlpine of Pasadena also starred at tackle positions, but their play was not quite so cunning as that of the two mentioned for the berths.

Selph of Santa Ana played the best prep school game in the south this fall at guard and stands out as one of the best men at this place ever developed from the ranks. Second to Selph is Davidson of San Diego, who is not only a fighting guard, but a mighty kicker. Several times he saved his team from a score by his plunging and booting. He punted on an average of fifty yards for the season and, while he did not charge and carry his charge through, as did the Chaffey men and the Cadets, he was ever watchful and resourceful, both on offense and defense. In the Santa Ana game he was like a great octopus on defense and, with his great reach, would stretch over the line and smear plays before they were started, without charging.

If this man were put at guard and drilled to charge and charge right, he would undoubtedly make the greatest interscholastic lineman seen in the south since the days when Walter Rhienschild played at Los Angeles High School.

Probably the most sensational guard of the season was little Luther Brown of Army and Navy. This lad is but 15 years of age and weighs but 128 pounds, yet he played all season in the light line of his team and made a great showing against the heavier linemen by beating them with the charge. Sprigg and Sprott of San Diego High are both natural guards who showed up well, but they were not aggresive enough.

THE REAL GOODS.

Simpson of Army and Navy justified his selection for the center position. He is far ahead of any other center in the local prep school ranks and was a bulwark of defense to his team.

On defense he made so many tackles behind the line and covered so much ground that he was often taken for a secondary defense man and some other player got the credit for his work.

Simpson was an end until Coach Waddell took hold of him this year and brought out all the football in his 165 pounds of fighting meat. Although too slow for a star end, Simpson made the ideal center on account of his strength and accuracy in passing. His experience at end made him more valuable as a defensive man back of the line.

Warren of Santa Ana, did not come up to expectations this year and while he played a good game and was a great man in his position, he was not in a class with Simpson. Wark of Venice was another hard-playing, hard-fighting and resourceful center who did excellent defensive work.

Good quarter-backs were common this season. Joe Waddell of Army and Navy, was the greatest general of the year and his defensive work in the last three games of the season, puts him on a par with the best prep quarters ever developed in the south, and makes him a logical successor to Pete Lenz, the Long Beach High boy who won the place in 1912.

GOOD END LOST.

Waddell started the season at end and was making a go of the place when he was switched to quarter. Although handicapped throughout the season with a pair of injured ribs and playing through the San Diego High game Thanksgiving Day with water on the knee, and an injured hand, he finished the schedule with a glorious record. He punted for his team part of the time and when Simpson was called back, took the center berth and so often did he beat the ends down the field under punts, that he was often taken for one of the wings.

As a handler of the forward pass, a runner-in of punts, and a safety man, Waddell is fully up to the standard of Lenz and other former stars. He carried himself well in the running department, was always cool and collected even under trying conditions and showed rare judgment in the selection of his plays against heavier opponents.

Wark of Long Beach was the other big-league quarter, but his work makes it apparent that he would do better at end.

Great things were expected of Davis of Venice this year, but the husky little quarter failed to come through and never really got into condition.

Hyde of San Diego played a good game at quarter all season, but his team had a light schedule and he was not given a chance to show what he could do.

THE STAR HALF.

Little Manker of Chaffey Union High proved himself the real backfield star of the season, although it would be an easy matter to put Simpson and Waddell, at center and quarter and Robbins of Whittier at end and call "Dutch" Shutt's eleven the All-California prep team.

Manker showed speed and great defensive qualities as well as that trick, taught only by Shutt, of keeping on his feet and making ground after being tackled. The diminutive Chaffey back made ground consistently against the strongest lines in the south, and behind the Shutt interference was able to push his way down the field against the best ends in the State.

Second comes Marshall of Long Beach. This man possesses great individual prowess. He runs strong in straight-line attack, and is a hard man to down when running plays off tackle. In some of his games Marshall did not show well on defense, but he hit his stride in the last games of the schedule and was one of the best second defense men seen during the football year. As a kicker, the Long Beach boy was at his best, and was really the "Brickley" of the prep ranks. Two of the most important games were won by this man for his team with timely boots.

HARD LUCK HERE.

Dana of San Diego was the star of the back field candidates in 1912, but this season he did not get a good start and was not able to show on account of injuries. He did, however, come back strong at the end of the season and was easily the star of both the Santa Ana and Army and Navy

STANTON'S ALL-STAR SELECTION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, Dec. 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Coach Stanton has picked the following men for the mythical All-Southern California eleven:

Center—Wolcott of Pomona.
Right guard—Eakin of Pomona.
Left guard—Jones of Occidental.
Right tackle—Shipkey of Occidental.
Left tackle—Heath of Pomona.
Right end—Reeves of Pomona.
Quarter-back—Mason of Whittier.

Full-back—McClung of Occidental.

The Famous.

ALL-SOUTHERN VARSITY CHOSEN FOR 1913 SEASON.

Occidental Has Heaviest Representation on [illegible] Team—Kirkpatrick Is the Class of the Year—[illegible] Freshmen Jump Into Limelight—One Shift Made [illegible] Backfield.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

Now that the 1913 gridiron season is done, there are a few sacred rites to be observed before we officially bury old King Football. Chief of these rites is the selection of the all-southern intercollegiate team, the stunt that is supposed to place eleven young men firmly within the hall of fame. This season the matter of selection is not difficult because there are so many stars, but because there are so few. In fact, it might be safely said that the type and brand of football played this season by our southern teams was not up to the standard of the 1912 or the 1911 teams.

This may have been due to the fact that many of the coaches were forced to use a great many freshmen, and for this reason had to whip their teams into early playing form, leaving the more fundamental features of the game to take care of themselves. These in most cases turned out well enough, but did not tend to raise the standard of local football to the plane it might have reached under other conditions.

But to the task in hand: In the first place there are four freshmen on the team, which alone tends to show that the class of this year's team is not up to the usual high grade of an all-southern squad. Of course, these freshmen earned their positions fairly and were the strongest men in the south at their respective berths, but nevertheless it is quite sad to be forced to enter the pea-green class for five of our all-stars. It shows a sagging somewhere.

MR. HARRY KIRKPATRICK.

I start the selection at left end, simply because this nook belongs to one of the greatest football players who ever laced a shoe in the south—Harry Kirkpatrick of Occidental. He is easily the class of the team, and if there were a few more of his caliber in our midst there would be no chance for this stuff about going back.

In the first place, Kirk is fast, has a good, cool head and, best of all, follows the ball like a wolfhound from one end of the game to the other. Many speak of his luck in recovering fumbles and turning them into touchdowns, but he does it far too often to be counted only a lucky player. Last season Kirk was not as strong a defensive end as he might have been, but his work this fall left nothing to be desired along this line. He tackled hard, low and sure, and was down waiting on every punt. In handling the forward pass he was without a peer in the State. I might go on indefinitely, but space will not permit. Kirk is surely one grand little [illegible] and ended his college course [illegible] field in one splendid blaze of [illegible]

Mr. Reeves of Pomona [illegible] selected for right end because [illegible] ries the reputation of being one [illegible] strongest defensive ends in the [illegible] today. Both Wilson and Pipal, [illegible] ticularly the former, are loud in [illegible] praise of Reeves and his [illegible] smearing plays. He is not too [illegible] in taking the forward pass, but [illegible] up by being a hard, snappy and [illegible] ing tackler. Rice and Wilson, [illegible] Pomona, might be mentioned [illegible] but they were not in the game [illegible] enough to show the possibilities [illegible] son will be remembered as the [illegible] who made the place two years [illegible] but this year he was shifted to [illegible] ter-back and then was unfortunate enough to smash his shoulder. [illegible] rest of the ends in the south are [illegible] there in the big-league stuff.

FOR TACKLE, "BEEF" HEATH.

"Beef" Heath of Pomona has [illegible] chosen for left tackle, simply [illegible] he has shown more consistent [illegible] ball at this position than any [illegible] man in the south. "Tad" [illegible] Occidental would have [illegible] out of his job had he been in the [illegible] as often as the Pomona man [illegible] "Tad" had trouble with his [illegible] and it would be doing Heath an [illegible] tice to give the position to [illegible] else under the existing circumstances.

Enter this terrible young [illegible] "Battle" Shipkey, Occidental's [illegible] tackle and also All-Southern [illegible] tackle. When I first saw this [illegible] he was an awful thing, but [illegible] rough edges real football [illegible] seen cropping out here and [illegible] Pipal sized him up as a [illegible] he justified his faith. Shipkey [illegible] lot as yet to learn about the fine points of the game before he can hope to be an Ink or a Drury Wieman, but [illegible] is a diamond in the rough valued at many carats. He tips the beam at [illegible] tackles low and carries the ball [illegible] a young rotary snowplow. His [illegible] fame was rapid, starting with the Whittier-Oxy game and ending [illegible] the Pomona death grip, when he [illegible] in with his leg in a splint due to a bad case of blood infection. In [illegible] ways his work is still crude, but [illegible] in the next few years he should [illegible] head and shoulders above the [illegible] they only make one Shipkey per generation.

HUN AND TIGER GUARDS.

The guard positions are split between Pomona and Oxy, Eakin of Pomona being at right and Deems of the Tigers at left. Eakin is a [illegible]

All-Star Preps.

[illegible] He was even better on defense than last year and ran interference in the same baffling manner, but he did not seem to have the ability to advance the ball in the spectacular way that characterized his work of last year. Aside from being crippled with bad ankles and water on the knee, [illegible] was robbed of a chance to shine on account of the light schedule his team played.

PLAYED POOR BALL.

Early in the season Kohler of Army and Navy was the star back of the south. He had averaged eight yards every chance with the ball, up to the [illegible] game, but he injured an ankle and his work in that contest was absolutely putrid. He never really got right again and his work in the San Diego game was not what it should have been, although he did play a strong defensive game.

[illegible], the Army and Navy captain, comes in for a word of praise, but he can hardly be classed with the big [illegible] of the year.

The full-back berth goes to Wolloomes of Whittier High, with Moss of Long Beach and Carson of San Diego following close behind. Wolloomes played an excellent game throughout the season and while a bit stale at the close of the schedule, he made the greatest full-back of the year. Not only was he a fine line plunger, but a fast end runner and a great defensive back [illegible]

[illegible] was even a stronger plunger than Wolloomes, but he was not as fast and could not do the work on defense. The Long Beach man did [illegible] with better form than the Whittier star, but twenty pounds extra weight made Wolloomes more valuable.

Carson of San Diego made such a showing in his game with Army and Navy that Jack de Aule raved over him and wanted him signed on the [illegible] all-California prep full. Carson is the best defensive full seen in the south during the year and he hit the line as well as any of them, but he ran high and was easy to stop by [illegible] who knew how to tackle.

The All-California interscholastic [illegible] as described would make the [illegible] combination when lined up: [illegible] and Gregg on one side, and [illegible] and [illegible] on the other. [illegible] supported by Davidson, [illegible] would play next to Gregg and [illegible] playing on the right side. This would make a line that would compare favorably with the varsity lines of Southern California, and stand up better than any of the former All-[illegible] prep lines.

With a back field composed of [illegible] at left-half, where he would run [illegible]; Marshall at right, with the powerful and speedy Wolloomes at full, and Waddell calling the signals and handling the team, we would have an eleven that would be a close match for any of the college teams turned out in Southern California this

His conception of a racing boat for Marblehead [illegible] is given a craft about twenty [illegible] line, seven-foot beam, five-[illegible], with 550 square feet of [illegible] members of the Eastern Yacht Club have agreed to build [illegible] the class, which looks certain, [illegible] number as many as a dozen [illegible] perhaps rival the famous Marblehead one-design class of seventeen-[illegible] that ranged into the twenties [illegible] ago.

All-Southern Varsity.

much the same caliber as Heath, and has won his place through consistent work this season. He blocks well and helps make possible the famous Pomona charge.

Deems is a freshman, and during the first part of the year played like one, but after his first real intercollegiate battle developed wonderfully. Wilson, the Whittier coach, said that he considered Deems one of the hardest men to handle in the Tiger line. He carried himself well in the Whittier game, showing up Stone, and against Utah came through in several critical instances. In the Pomona game he was forced to play tackle most of the time, but even here he showed speed and charge.

We now come to a Wieman. We have had Henry, Ernest and Drury, all mighty men, born football players and keen thinkers when in action. Wallace, now a freshman at Oxy and the Tiger center, seems to have all the usual Wieman characteristics. He follows the ball well, passes accurately, is there on recovering fumbles—and can break up line bucks with great eclat.

He is not a showy player, but he is there in every minute of play. Wolcott of Pomona was considered by many as Wieman's equal, but I do not think that his play was as steady or as consistent, therefore Wieman has the berth.

THE QUARTER-BACK.

We now come to the question of a quarter-back, and let it be remarked right here that none of the local skippers were of high caliber this season. Mason, a Whittier freshman, appeared to have it on the field in general football sense and technical ability. Besides showing snappy form in calling signals, he had marked ability when it came to carrying the ball for gains. Lenz and Brennen of Oxy and Pomona, respectively, are not quite up to the standard, although both were good technical players. Wilson of Pomona might have made the berth had he not been unfortunately injured earlier in the season.

The remainder of the back field offers quite a problem. Here we have chosen three men who appeared to produce the goods this season. It is contrary to the usual order of things to shift a player from his regular position in selecting an all-star team, but this fall I think the move is justified.

M'CLUNG A STAR.

Sammy McClung, at full-back, is out of his position as he played this season, but, then, in the new game all four backs are practically on a par, and especially is this so of the two halves and the full. All receive the direct pass and break in every play, from bucks to end runs, so in putting McClung at full we would have a man who has proven his worth as a sterling football player. McClung may not be as brilliant as Foster in some respects, but his play is steady, and he is one of the most reliable ground-gainers seen in action this season. Sam runs great interference, and for this reason alone would be a full-back worth his weight in gold. Sam also has some nifty little kicking toe, as was shown in the Pomona game when he staved off several Pomona rushes that looked dangerous by booting the ball far out of the trouble zone.

ANOTHER QUAKER.

At right half, Brownell of Whittier was picked, after carefully weighing the work of the remainder of the southern backs for the season. I think that Brownell is a valuable football player; first, because he seems to know the game; second, because he is a good line plunger and, third, because he is a long-distance punter when he has a good line to hold for him. He is also fast and gets away quickly. Finch and Chambers, both of Whittier, were not right during the big games, and fell below their last season's form to a marked degree. Brownell did show so much in the game with Occidental, but one week later against Pomona was the star of the field.

So, taking the back field as a whole, with Mason, McClung, Foster and Brownell, we have the greatest attacking strength in the south combined, and if these men were put in a game they would undoubtedly produce many yards.

COLE

That third and new type of Motor Car which you said somebody would some day build, has actually been built—it's really here—the name of it is Cole, the Standardized Car. This means a changed order of things in Automobile building—it means that you get in the Cole a much better car for less money.

You and I and everybody else have heretofore known of only two types of motor car—the manufactured and the assembled.

Any car built by a single group of men, under a single roof, was called "a manufactured car."

Any car put together under a single roof, after the parts had been collected from various outside sources, was called an "assembled car." But things move fast in the automobile industry.

When these two original types became modified, the good points of each were preserved. Newer and better systems of manufacture were added.

A big fundamental thought has been introduced. This thought is "build from nothing but the recognized bests—and it makes no difference where these bests come from so long as you get them."

This new principle of construction was worked out by the Cole Motor Car Company of Indianapolis, originators and builders of

THE STANDARDIZED CAR

A Standardized Car is any car built entirely of perfectly inter-related standardized parts—a standardized part being any part which has been built so well that it has been accepted as the standard whereby all other similar parts are measured.

Red vs. White.

PASADENA WINS FROM MIDWICK.

Splendid Playing by Polo Teams.

Ponies and Men Show Fine Form.

Saturday Practice Games Are Popular.

BY BONNIE GLESSNER.

The practice polo match at Tournament Park, Pasadena, yesterday afternoon, resolved itself into a keen, well-fought game before the completion of the first chuckhur, which resulted in neither side scoring. The remaining four chuckhurs played were equally fast, the afternoon's match being won by the Pasadena team, or the Whites, with a score of 5 to 3.

Capt. G. Cookson and Reggie Weiss scored for the Whites, while Carleton Burke and John B. Miller made the three goals for the Reds.

The second chuckhur started with spirit, Reggie Weiss making the [illegible] goal for the Whites, a series of spectacular drives bringing the ball [illegible] within a hundred yards of the [illegible] goal and scoring in spite of the [illegible] play of his opponents. The second score was made by Carleton Burke for the Reds, with almost a duplicate play, Burke recovering the ball by a brilliant back stroke, playing down the middle of the field and scoring.

Three scores were made in the third chuckhur, two by Capt. G. Cookson and one by R. Weiss, both of whom were in splendid form.

Cookson and Miller each scored in the fourth chuckhur, during which period some of the prettiest playing of the afternoon was witnessed. Cookson made a splendid long drive, which Burke started after. Miller rode off McVitty, covering his man well, and Burke secured the ball with one of his remarkable back drives. Cookson again secured the ball and scored a goal. Burke missed the next [illegible] but Miller evened the score by a [illegible] drive.

The fifth chuckhur went to the Reds with a score by Burke.

Both teams were in fine form and the horses showed the result of the practice they have had the past few weeks. The matches will be held every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon until the tournament during Christmas week, in which Santa Barbara, Riverside, San Diego and Pasadena will compete. Yesterday's practice was witnessed by a number of auto parties, who enthusiastically cheered their favorites.

The line-up for yesterday was as follows: Midwick—Carleton Burke, John B. Miller, Bobbie Neustadt and Dr. Z. T. Mallaby. Pasadena—[illegible] Weiss, Reggie Weiss, Capt. G. Cookson and John Mott. Mott was relieved during the third and fourth chuckhurs by McVitty.

Class Here.

GOOD OFFICIALS MAKE AMERICAN PREP GAMES

SOUTHERN CALIFOANIA has just finished the most successful interscholastic football season in the history of the game in these parts. With few exceptions the teams were evenly matched and the race for the prep school title was closer than even last year, when Pasadena, Long Beach and Santa Ana tied for the championship; but one thing which has made this the big year for the preps, is the class of men who have been lined up as officials.

Last season the game was marred by poor officiating and several games were protested on account of the questionable tactics employed by the officials. At the close of the season, their work was severely criticized by the coaches and Al. Waddell, who was slated to coach the San Diego Army and Navy eleven this year, proposed to have a group of competent men selected and examined by the coaches and then appointed to officiate at the various games by W. S. Kienholz, the president of the interscholastic conference.

PLAN APPROVED.

This plan met with the approval of the conference officials and at the beginning of the season, the conference met and the names of a corps of officials was submitted and agreed upon. These men then were examined and assigned to officiate at some game each season, throughout the season.

President Kienholz so arranged the schedule that no man officiates two Saturdays in succession for the same team. This gives a new man every game and the teams have no opportunity to form a like or dislike for a man.

Among the most competent men are Rhienschild and De Aule. Rhienschild is fresh from Georgetown University where he made All-Southern tackle last season. He is a keen student of the game and is regarded as one of the best officials seen in the south for many seasons. [illegible] De Aule is in demand by the colleges and it is hard for him to get time to serve the preps, but he is a much saught after official, and has done some great work this year.

Jerry Abbott, Pierce Thomas, [illegible] Volk, "Cookie" Holten and Raymond Hunt are also popular officials who have been putting in time with the preps. Abbott learned the game in Chicago and is a great referee. [illegible] Volk is a former Denver University man and last year coached the [illegible] High School. Holten was All-California center last year and while playing on the Whittier College eleven was regarded as one of the best players in the center position ever developed in Southern California. Hunt and Thomas are both former Occidental men who are much in demand as officials and who have demonstrated their ability.

Clary, of Pomona, is another old-timer who has been persuaded to come into the fold as a referee of High School contests. He of the million dollar toe that was, is another one of those excellent officials and even the particular coaches have nothing to say against his work.

Thurston, of Pasadena; Culp, of Anaheim, and Rhienart, of Long Beach, are three of the best to be found in the matter of umpires. These men see all that goes on and are not afraid to hand out the penalties when they arrive. Green, of South Pasadena is a new man at the game, but he demonstrated his ability as an umpire early in the season and now is regarded as one of the best in the south. The lack of competent officials has been a great handicap to the Rugby game this year and President Kienholz is to be congratulated for what he has done for the American game in the matter of referees and umpires.

GASOLINE ROW GOSSIP

THE Automobile Dealers' Consistency Tour will be a complete success. You should have been on that run with Joe McDuffee to have fully appreciated what the outing is to mean to the motor industry. Everybody is interested. The Southland cities are to receive scores of autoists and a number of 1914 machines on this tour to be staged this week.

Frank Miller is the right kind of a man to entertain motorists. When the tour was explained to the Glenwood Inn proprietor he enthused at once, and was as willing to help, no matter how the cars were routed, so long as it meant a boost for good roads.

As a result of the enthusiasm spilled by Frank Miller and D. V. Hutchings we were prepared to arouse the entire countryside to the importance of this tour which will reach Riverside in season for a good boost meeting to help that bond issue. Every motorist is pledged to work for better roads in Riverside county, and we know that county needs better highways.

Those cars will reach Riverside on Thursday night. We will remain there until Friday morning. There is a plan to hold a meeting that night to rally to the support of the movement to carry that bond issue. Riverside will be taken by storm and the best the motor world has to offer will be handed to those who may be doubtful concerning the proposed bond issue which means so much to Riverside county.

L. T. Shettler was supposed to help route that tour. He offered us his support, which of course was something when you consider who Leon is. He was with us in spirit. So was Capt. Ryus.

Earl Cooper, whose Stutz racer dashed through a fence at Fresno two weeks ago, is out of the hospital and is recovering rapidly. He is in shape for driving, but is not quite ready for any fast work. He is hopeful, however, of taking another crack at that 100-mile record on the Fresno track, and when he does he will have a throng of spectators that will be hard to entertain.

Little Earl did well. He only misspelled one word and that was the "good-by." He is an ardent admirer of the speed king and he has a good chance to see Earl Cooper race, as the Stutz champion will send the little fellow a ticket the next time he appears here.

One of the interesting events of the last two days was a letter from a 7-year-old boy, who tells Earl how glad he is that the Stutz driver was not killed. This little lad writes in a quaint way. He explains that he is an admirer of the world champion [illegible] driver and tells Earl he owns a [illegible] coaster. His name is Earl Clemens and here is his letter:

Dear Mr. Cooper—I read in the paper (of course, in The Times) that you got hurt. I am so sorry, for I think you are the best driver in the whole world.

I have a coaster and it is a [illegible] No. 8.

Some day I hope I can see you [illegible]

I hope you will soon be well.

I'm 7 years old and my name is Earl, too. Good-bye. Your friend,

EARL CLEMENS, [illegible]

No. 134 West Eulalia street, Tropico.

Where did Cap Ryus get his [illegible]? Why he is captain of a rowboat, [illegible] I mean a launch at San Pedro. [illegible] says, however, he got the title when he was with Teddy at San Juan [illegible]. This has never been settled so the dealers have decided to make [illegible] one of the officials of this tour [illegible] if he succeeds in managing [illegible] Ruess and Clarence Yuma [illegible] will be made a colonel.

"Don't say we got lost," pleaded George Adair. "I'm on this trip as road pilot and that fellow [illegible] the Auto Club will have the laugh on me if you say I had to follow [illegible] signs in order to get you fellows back to civilization. I'm supposed to be a real record-breaking road guide, and even if you should say we were lost they'd think I was a [illegible]. [illegible] treat me right as it means much to me on this tour."

Well we must agree to treat George right, but I refuse to think what might have happened if, with the [illegible] of Official Photographer [illegible] had continued to wander in the mountains of Palomar, near Warner's Hot Springs, which are mighty cold when you reach them. We were lost and Chairman McDuffee was also lost, or at least hidden in the blankets [illegible] that wide and comfortable [illegible] Knight tonneau to keep out the chilly breeze that was [illegible] ing our ardor.

Harmon David Ryus has [illegible] to prevent all automobile accidents. Now Cap has a job on his hands. [illegible] can do most anything when it comes to selling Oldsmobiles, but about [illegible] accidents I kind of [illegible] bitten off a pretty big chunk. [illegible] ever, I'm with him and will give my support, which, while it will not be quite like L. T.'s, it will be something. In the meantime, [illegible] watching what the Automobile [illegible] of Southern California will do in the matter. I'm strong for the club and its methods, which are making [illegible] a million.

Some Country.

CALIFORNIA A PRODUCER OF PUGILISTIC WONDERS.

This State Has Produced More High-Class Boxers, Both Amateur and Professional, Than Any Other State in the Union — Lightweight Stars from California. None of Them Used the Crouch.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

CALIFORNIA boxers are known the world over, and this State has turned out more great boxers [illegible] other in the Union, also [illegible] champions by two to one.

[illegible] years ago John C. Heenan, a [illegible] boy, won the championship of the world from Tom Sayers, under [illegible] prize ring rules. Heenan [illegible] as the Benicia boy and [illegible] as a blacksmith in the little [illegible] Benicia.

[illegible] every year since, some [illegible] boxer has been developed in [illegible]. When glove fighting became popular, boxers were developed [illegible] than under the old bare-[illegible] style, and California was one [illegible] States that held contests [illegible] those rules.

[illegible] fights were the rule in those [illegible] many contests were pulled [illegible] the quiet. Later clubs were [illegible] under protection of the laws [illegible] sprung up all over the [illegible].

[illegible] back to the early days of [illegible] fighting Young Mitchell, whose [illegible] name is Johnny Hurgert, was [illegible] of the first boxers of class developed in San Francisco, where most [illegible] contests were held. He fought [illegible] rounds with Kack Keenan [illegible] lightweight championship of [illegible] and won. Hurgert later [illegible] into a welterweight and [illegible] a trip to Australia, where he [illegible] contests, winning a few [illegible] a couple of draws with [illegible] the Australian champion. He [illegible] back to this country and [illegible] into a middleweight and [illegible] George La Blanche, the [illegible] who defeated Jack Dempsey, [illegible] and is one of the few [illegible] who did so undefeated. [illegible] was born in San Francisco, [illegible] most of the boxers I will [illegible].

MORE STARS.

[illegible] Tom Cleary, Joe Bowers, [illegible], Al Neil, Charlie Turner and Dave Barry were well-known [illegible]. For years Turner was [illegible] of the Coast and lost [illegible] Denny Kelleher of Boston. [illegible] and Tom Cleary were defeated by Jack Dempsey when that champion was in his prime.

[illegible] Green fought some of the [illegible] middleweights of this country [illegible] and Al Niel was the [illegible] San Francisco for several [illegible]. None of these men won the [illegible] of their class, but were [illegible] the top.

[illegible] champion in the featherweight class from California was Solly [illegible] of Los Angeles; he won the title [illegible] George Dixon, the greatest little [illegible] the world in his time.

[illegible] Hawkins started as a featherweight and had a left-hand swing [illegible] never been equaled by any [illegible]. Dal later worked into the [illegible] class and met a lot of the [illegible].

[illegible] Hogan was boxing in Hawaii and met many men on the [illegible]. Jimmy Webster later won the [illegible] title from Frankie Conley, but lost it later to Joe Rivers, [illegible] in that class at that [illegible].

ABE ATTELL.

[illegible] Attell, another San Francisco [illegible] the featherweight title for [illegible] years until he lost it to [illegible] Kilbane. Abe was one of the [illegible] feathers that ever entered a [illegible].

[illegible] Neil, another 'Frisco boy, [illegible] bantamweight title, but lost [illegible] to the English champion.

[illegible] California lightweights number [illegible] Hanlon, Jimmie Britt, Dal [illegible], Spider Kelly, Rufe Turner, [illegible] Barron, Lew Powell, Frank [illegible], Charlie Rochett, Dick Hyland, [illegible] and Willie Ritchie. Britt [illegible] each won the championship, [illegible] the rest met some of the [illegible] from all over the [illegible].

[illegible] McConnell was a good welterweight but did not stay long in [illegible]. Billy Shannon, who now [illegible] famous training quarters up [illegible], was also a good welterweight in his day.

[illegible] Mahon was one of the best [illegible] of those days and had [illegible] contests. He met [illegible] as Shadow Maber, the Australian lightweight; Billy [illegible], who won the welterweight [illegible] as amateur and later defeated [illegible] in five rounds. Later [illegible] met George Dawson. This [illegible] second professional fight [illegible] over thirty rounds with [illegible] Dawson from Australia.

[illegible] is a boy we must not [illegible]. He also was a San Francisco [illegible] met the famous Stanley [illegible] twice and lost both times. [illegible] at that time held the welter[illegible] championship of the welter[illegible].

[illegible] heavyweight list is a long one [illegible] Jim Corbett, Joe Choynski, [illegible], Con Reardon, Joe [illegible], Frank Griffin, Alex Greggains, [illegible] Jack Brady. These were [illegible] boys and Jim Jeffries [illegible] as such as he came [illegible] when he was 4 years [illegible].

[illegible] is another product [illegible] San Francisco bunch and met [illegible] success as a heavyweight.

[illegible] the first-class amateurs [illegible] California were Jack Kitchen, [illegible], Al Kaufmann, Billy [illegible], Harry Monahan, Andy Gallagher, [illegible] Furgstorff. Kitchen, [illegible] Kaufmann, Gallagher and [illegible] each won Coast amateur [illegible] and Berger won the [illegible] at the St. Louis Exposition.

[illegible] AMATEURS.

[illegible] and Cliff Reuman, two [illegible] middleweights on the [illegible] several times. Frank [illegible] Carter, Henry Finke, [illegible] and Al Young won Coast [illegible] Finke the American championship. These boxers were very [illegible]. Clark is the [illegible] of the bunch and by far [illegible]. Out of over a dozen contests [illegible] went over one round. [illegible] the world's title in his [illegible] Louis in 1904.

[illegible] George Green, Jimmie [illegible] Lew Powell were the best [illegible] lightweights. Green [illegible] Coast titles and Powell [illegible] championship.

[illegible] had Frank [illegible] Fox and Billy Leonard [illegible] three of the cleverest [illegible]. Leonard won the American title at the age of 32 years and is at the present time boxing instructor of the Olympic Club where he was developed. As an amateur he had few equals.

Harry Baker won the American title as an amateur in the 115-pound class and later turned professional.

Jimmie Carroll and George Finnigan were the king pins of the bantams. Each won Coast titles several times and later Finnigan won the world's title and Carroll the American.

Where is there a State in this country that can show such a bunch of champions? This list does not include many boxers who were developed in California, but not born here.

Most of the above-mentioned boxers were from the old school and out of the whole bunch there was only one who adopted the crouch and he was Eddie Hanlon and little Eddie was considered a veteran of the game when he was 22 years old.

SOX BEAT GIANTS OVER IN JAPAN.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

TOKIO, Dec. 6.—The Chicago team of the American League and the New York team of the National League arrived four days late at Yokohama today, the Empress of Japan having encountered bad weather.

Later in the day President Eikichi Kamada pitched the first ball in the first match in Japan, which was played at Keio University. This resulted as follows:

	R	H	E
Chicago	9	9	0
New York	4	8	2

O'LEARY WALKS TO SAN PEDRO TODAY.

Dan O'Leary, the grand old man of the walking game, starts out bright and early this morning for a little jaunt down to San Pedro. Accompanying him will be three men who desire to see how far they can walk. The names of the unfortunates are William Arnold, John Barry and James Reagon. They start from Ninth and Main streets at 7:30 this morning and hope to make the trip down there in five and one-half hours.

BENJAMIN ALLEN IS STILL CHAMP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 5.—Benjamin Allen of Kansas City retained his title as national pocket billiard champion tonight when he won the last block of a 600-point match from Charles Weston of Pittsburgh.

Allen won each block, the final count being: Allen, 600; Weston, 411.

Borton Case.

with New York while in the East for Borton's services in the belief that "Babe" is the property of the Yankees. And undismayed by the announcement that Maier and Hogan have accepted Jersey City's terms for Borton, he is still negotiating.

CHANCE IGNORANT.

Frank Chance, manager of the New York club, is as much at sea as either of the local magnates regarding the ownership of Borton. "Babe" himself is not the least bit excited. He doesn't seem to care whether anyone loves him or not.

Borton went from Chicago to New York along with Zeider in exchange for Hal Chase. Failing to make good in his new environment, he was swapped to Jersey City for Jack Knight. This gave Borton an acute case of the peeves, and he started a cigar store in St. Joseph rather than take his chances with the mosquitoes which infest the swamps of Jersey City.

Whether this failure to report left Borton the property of the New York club or the Jersey City people is a question which thus far has stumped the brightest minds in baseball.

As the Jersey City club is practically owned by the New York Americans, Berry believes that he has the inside track for the player's services, but is not confident of it to the extent of chortling.

ANSWER SOON.

Frank Chance has written to Frank Farrell in an effort to ascertain the status of the Borton case, and expects to receive a reply next week.

Borton, it is said, would welcome the opportunity to play on the Coast.

"It seems strange to me that Jersey City would endeavor to sell us a player that it didn't own," said Hogan last night. "We are all up in the air just now, and are likely to stay there until we hear something definite from the East."

This mad scramble after Borton is not tinctured with bitterness.

Neither Los Angeles nor Venice knew that the other club was after him. Both of them were in dire need of a first sacker, and both opined that Borton would just about fill the bill.

STARS SCARCE.

That both local clubs should go after the same player without knowing of the other's intentions because he seemed to be the only available man for the place, but illustrates the scarcity of high-class players.

Walter McCredie, greatly disliked here because of his porcine tendencies when it comes to pennants, came south from San Francisco on the same submarine with Berry and Hogan.

McCredie is making a still hunt for a spring training camp. Santa Maria, until last season the regular March rendezvous of the Beavers, still looks good to Mac, and Portland may train there unless better inducements are forthcoming from some other quarter.

While here, McCredie will "gum shoe" a little around the sand lots in the fond hope of locating another Bobby Davis.

It developed yesterday that Roy Brashear joined Hogan in San Francisco during the California League meeting. While Hogan declined to state the nature of Brashear's mission, Roy is believed to have gone north in an effort to land the management of the Stockton club. "Doc" Moskiman has first call on that job, but as "Doc" belongs to Louisville and Maier has no intention of paying that club a fancy price for his release, the place may go to some other man.

All-Weather Treads

Run Like Smooth Treads
Last Like Plain Treads
Hold With a Bulldog Grip

This is the tread which is outselling plain treads with users of Goodyear tires. And now—as winter approaches—every wheel on every car should have it.

Here seems to be the final solution of all our anti-skid problems. It is a double-thick tread made of extra-tough rubber, toughened by a secret process.

The grips are deep and enduring. They last for thousands of miles. They never entirely wear off.

The edges are sharp, and they stay sharp. They face the skidding direction, which is 45 degrees. As a result, they offer all road surfaces an almost irresistible grip.

The blocks are broad and flat. They are all in alignment, following the tire's direction. There is no vibration as with scattered projections. The tread runs as smoothly as a plain tread.

The blocks widen out so they meet at the base. Thus the strains are distributed over the fabric just as with smooth-tread tires. That means long life. Separate projections center the strains at one little point in the fabric, causing short-lived tires.

So here is safety combined with economy. Here is plain-tread smoothness, plain-tread durability, combined with tenacious grip.

You will find nothing of the kind that compares with it. Inspect this tread and you are bound to select it, especially for winter driving. And yet most old-type anti-skids cost more than All-Weather treads.

No-Rim-Cut Tires
With All-Weather Treads

Exclusive Goodyear Features

Here are three other vital features found in No-Rim-Cut tires alone.

First, a type of tire which we control, and which ends rim-cutting completely. No other feasible way has ever been found to do this. And rim-cutting ruins almost one-third of all the old-type tires.

Second, a tire which saves countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric. The tires are final-cured on air bags shaped like inner tubes—under actual road conditions. This extra process, used by us alone, adds to our tire cost $1,500 daily—just to lessen blow-outs.

Third, in making this tire, hundreds of large rubber rivets are formed to prevent tread separation. We paid $50,000 for control of this patent.

Thus we combat the three main items in the cost of tire upkeep. We have saved motorists in these ways many millions of dollars.

As a result, the largest-selling tires in the world today are Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires. And more are adopting them every day—as fast as men find them out. Until you come to them, a large part of your tire cost is wasted in needless ruin.

This Is Vital to Every Owner OF A Maxwell-Briscoe Motor Car

Made at Tarrytown, N. Y. and New Castle, Ind., 1905 to 1913

Also to All Owners of Stoddard-Dayton, 1905 to 1914; Columbia Gasoline and Electrics, 1906 to 1914; Everitt Cars of Any Model; Brush, Sampson and Courier Cars

THERE ARE THREE GOOD REASONS why you should have your car overhauled now and worn parts replaced:

FIRST: The garage man can give you better service—and you can spare the car better now than later. No matter whether you are going to keep the car, or sell or trade it in on a new one—it will pay you well to have it thoroughly overhauled, worn parts replaced by new ones and body repainted.

SECOND: We are able to furnish replacement parts for all models of above makes of cars within 48 hours from receipt of order. Have concentrated this branch of the business at Newcastle, Ind. (center of population of the U. S.) Here we have a $1,750,000 investment in plant and stock. 45,000 separate bins of parts.

THIRD: And perhaps the best reason why you should secure your requirements now—we must increase prices 10% January 1st, when the new parts price lists will be off the pressed.

NOW NOTE THIS—Never before in the history of this industry has a new concern, having bought the plants and assets of a bankrupt one, taken upon itself the obligation of furnishing replacement parts for the cars it never made.

THE MAXWELL MOTOR COMPANY DID. We considered it good business, even if not a moral or legal obligation.

WE FOUND 123,000 owners out in the cold, as it were—pleading for parts. Their cars laid up and useless in most cases.

WE'VE INVESTED about one and three-quarters millions ($1,750,000) dollars in a plant and stock of parts, for over 150 different models, made by the concerns that comprised the United States Motor Company, whose assets we purchased from the Receiver thru the U. S. Courts.

WE TOOK THE NAME MAXWELL solely for the protection of 60,000 persons who had bought cars under that name.

HAD WE CHOSEN ANOTHER NAME those 60,000 cars would have had almost no value in the second-hand market. As it is, they have a definite value. And by the replacement of the worn parts your car will be good for a long time to come.

ANY RECOGNIZED DEALER or repair man—whether he handles the present Maxwell line or not—can procure these parts for you. Or you can order direct. Shipment will be made within 24 to 48 hours after receipt of the order at Newcastle.

Write for our booklet, "How to Make Your Car Live Twice As Long," in which we set forth the Maxwell policy toward owners of the above mentioned cars.

Pomona Wins Title.

kicked a rather difficult goal. Score, Manual, 5; Pomona, 0. After the next kick off Pomona seemed to go wild, but when three rather snappy passing rushes failed to produce a score the burst of enthusiasm seemed to die down, although W. Baker, going like a black flash of lightning, ran to the Manual one-yard line once, but Maurer and Gilman saved the day by long kicks to touch.

Once more the purple men seemed to take a new lease on life and fought all down the field to the red goal line. After a line out on Pomona's 10-yard line the Manual backs finally got to going and the ball was handed out to Thayer. He kicked over his first tackler's head and then recovered and scored in the extreme left-hand corner of the field. Gilman missed the goal. Score, Manual, 8; Pomona, 0.

Deep gloom settled over the vast assembly of up-country folks who had come out to see the "boys" win. They did not seem to have the class and yet another score was to be made before the first half was ended, plunging the loyal Pomona men still more in the valley of the shadow.

BLAIR AGAIN.

After the next kick-off Manual brought the ball into dangerous territory without any trouble and little Blair was the man to score again. From a scrum on the 30-yard line he ripped his way around the seething mass of fighting scrummers and slipped past three tacklers to Parker, the Pomona full, who downed him on the 1-yard line. Before he hit the grit he passed to Stewart, the Manual wing forward, who smashed his way over for the last Manual tally of the day. Gilman missed a difficult goal, boosting the score to 11 to 0, and time was called.

I don't know what Coach Evans said to his lads between halves, but it must have been direct from the land of blue sulphur, for the team came trotting on the field, apparently fresh as daisies, but tears were smarting the eyes of many. Manual kicked off and in the flash of an eye the complexion of the game changed.

Like loosened demons the red boys tore into the confident Manual squad. The writhing red stream poured into Manual territory; down to the 15-yard line the play came in a flash. A passing rush was started from a scrum and the Pomona backs sifted through to the goal line, Buck, on the wing, finally worming over and dashing almost behind the goal posts. Parker kicked the goal, making the score 11 to 5.

BACK AGAIN.

Once more the Pomona team rushed to the Manual danger line, but this time the purple line held and Gilman kicked out of danger. But it was only for a short time, as once more the red was knocking at the scoring door.

Finally Pomona was awarded a free kick on Manual's 25-yard line, and Parker dropped back to the 35-yard line for a try at the goal. Taking careful aim, he sent the ball skimming over the crossbar for three points, making the score 11 to 8, still in favor of Manual.

During the next ten minutes the now badly-tiring Manual squad held and fought back, but the Pomona charge was not to be denied. Slowly the ball was forced down the field. It was a battle against time—would Pomona score, or would Manual hold? From the center of the field the play raged bitterly to Manual's 15-yard line, then a short, savage passing rush brought the ball to Manual's 1-yard line.

THE LAST STAND.

Three times the red scrum dashed against the purple, only to be thrown back. Then Manual got a free kick and sent the ball out to their 30-yard line, only to have the maddened Pomona boys bring it back to the 1-yard line again. Three scrums failed to net the try that would tie the score. The Manual team was sagging badly, and on the fourth attempt, there was a short, sharp clash. For a moment there was a seething mass of humanity raised high around one of the goal posts, then the purple line gave way and a mass of fighting Pomona forwards squirmed over the line, literally smothering the ball in a cloud of red.

It was a try, the score was tied, and victory rested with the cunning of Full-back Parker's toe. Carefully he placed the ball and set it whirling straight between the posts for the two extra points that carried victory and the championship of Southern California with it. The game was won.

Athletic Club Team Reinforced by New Recruits Scores Twenty-two Points Against L. A. High. Game Is Very Open and Fast. Only One-half Played.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club football team, aided and abetted by Pat Higgins, half of the U.S.C., varsity and several other new recruits, tramped all over the Los Angeles High School team yesterday afternoon, or rather, evening, the final score being somewhere in the vicinity of 22 to 0.

After watching the struggles of four teams of young lady hockey players for about two hours, the Rugbyites came on the field and decided to play until darkness fell.

Pat Higgins started the festivities by kicking off and after much booting hither and thither, the fighting Irishman from Australia found himself in possession of the ball on his own 25-yard line. Having passed the ball out to the other backs several times previously, only to see them foozle it, Pat decided to go it alone and tore through the entire L. A. team seventy-five yards for a try.

The other scores followed with slight intermissions between times while the clubmen were recovering from the effects of their strenuous play. Higgins scored again and tries were also contributed by Mead, Skinner, Brant, and Briggs, two of them being converted. The two teams will meet again next Saturday.

We Want You to See the Hudson Light Six-40—Came Yesterday

Here is the car that you motorists have waited for. Here is the car that brings true the dreams of men who have anticipated the coming of a low-priced, economical car.
The HUDSON Six-40 IS lighter, more flexible and costs LESS than a four, gives greater mileage per gallon of gasoline, requires less lubricating oil, is easier on tires, is much more comfortable and vibrationless.

The New HUDSON Six-40 is unquestionably one of the handsomest cars ever built. All models have body and chassis of Hudson coach blue, black mouldings cut with hair line gold stripe. Hood, radiator, fenders, splash guards and all exposed metal parts finished in three coats baked-on black enamel (special Hudson process). This graceful, powerful HUDSON Six-40 with its REAL streamline body is raised instantly out of the class of every other light-weight car on the market today. This car is absolutely individual in the motor car field. It is impossible to find such a powerful, stable and economical car as the HUDSON Six-40—weight 2940 lbs.—47 Horse Power.
REAL streamline body, left-hand drive, right-hand (center) control, seats two, four or six passengers, hand-buffed leather upholstering throughout. One-man top of genuine Pantasote with jiffy curtains, extra tire carried AHEAD.

Entrance from EITHER side. Every operation and control within reach of driver's hand — no stooping or bending. Rain vision windshield integral with car; Gasoline tank in dash. Newest type Delco starter operated by foot pedal especially designed for women drivers; 34x4 tires on Q. D. demountable rims. Brakes perfectly equalized. Powerful electric headlights with dimming attachment for city driving. Jeweled magnetic speedometer in dash with enclosed gears, Electric Horn, Trunk Rack, Tire Holders, License carriers—EVERYTHING.

BEAUTY, ECONOMY, LUXURIOUS RIDING, EASIEST OPERATION, UP-TO-THE-SECOND IN EVERY PARTICULAR. ALL YOU HAVE WANTED BUT NEVER FOUND ARE NOW EMBODIED IN THE HUDSON SIX-40. PRICE $1900 LOS ANGELES. ORDER YOUR CAR TODAY TO SECURE EARLY DELIVERY.

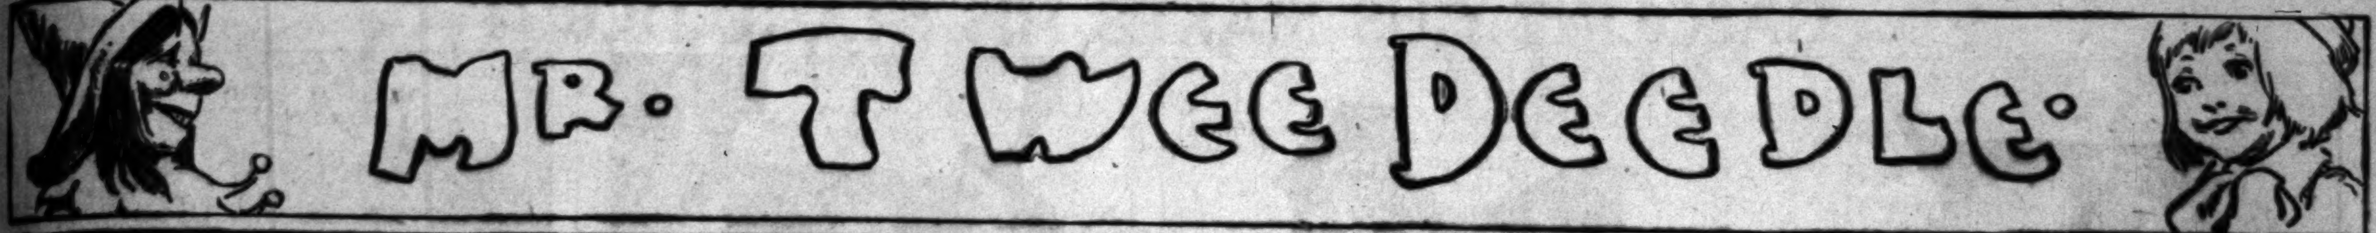
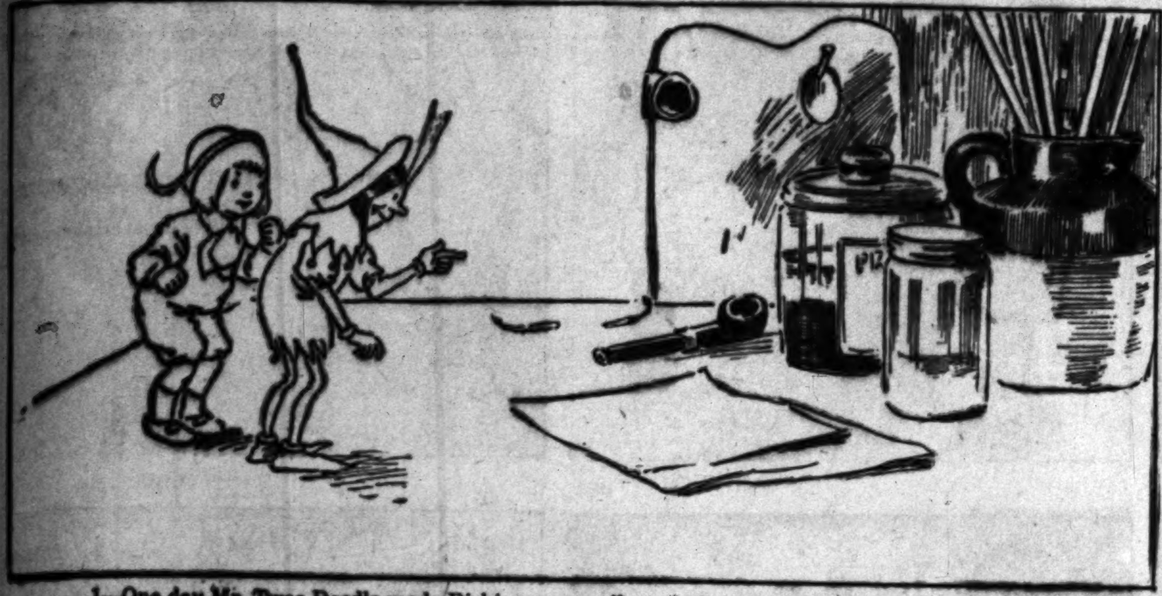
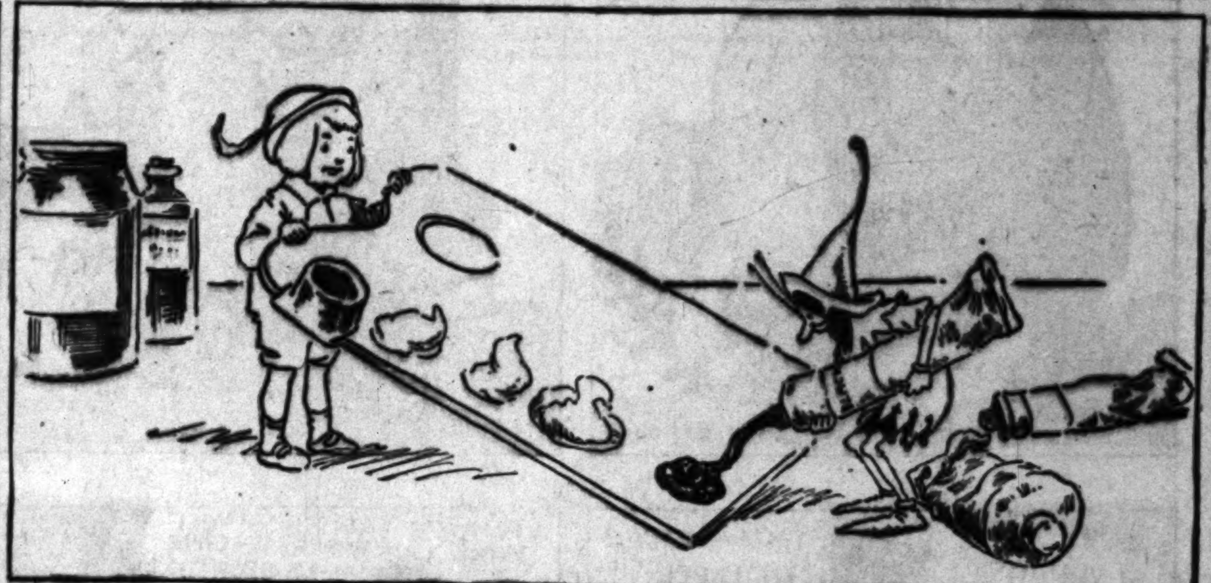
MR. TWEE DEEDLE

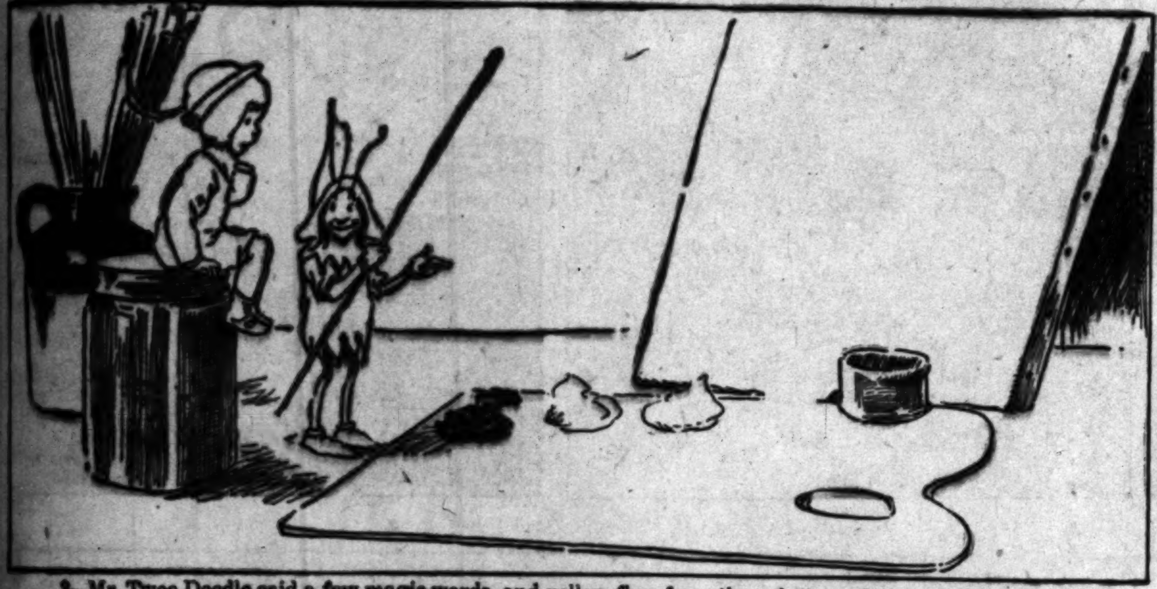




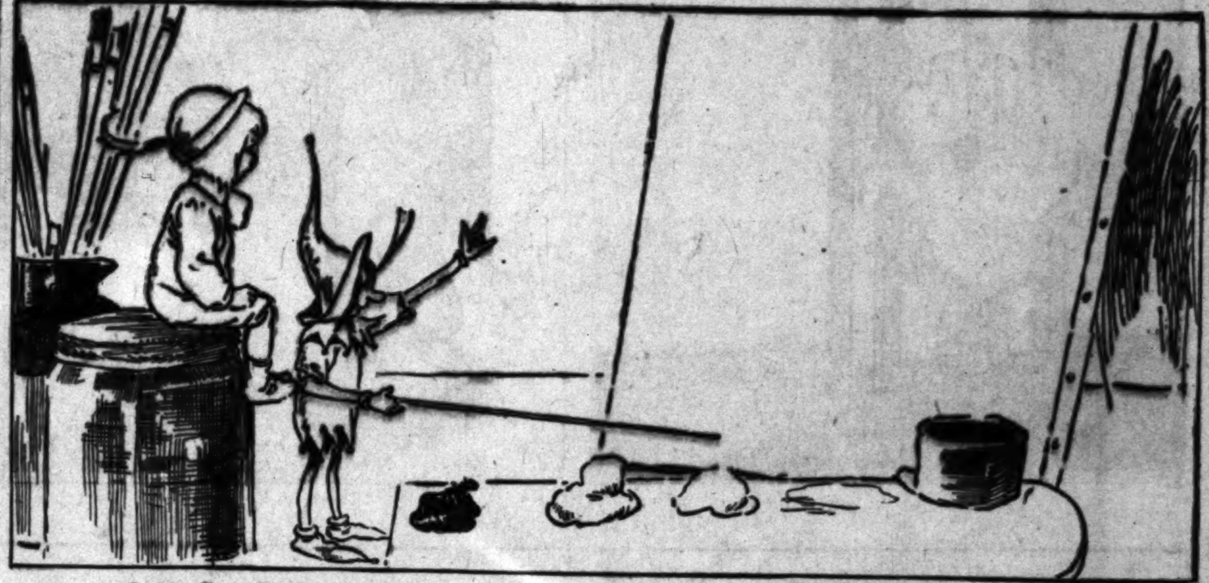
1—One day Mr. Twee Deedle made Dickie very small, and the two entered an artist's window. "This artist is very poor," said Mr. Twee Deedle, "but he deserves to be wealthy."



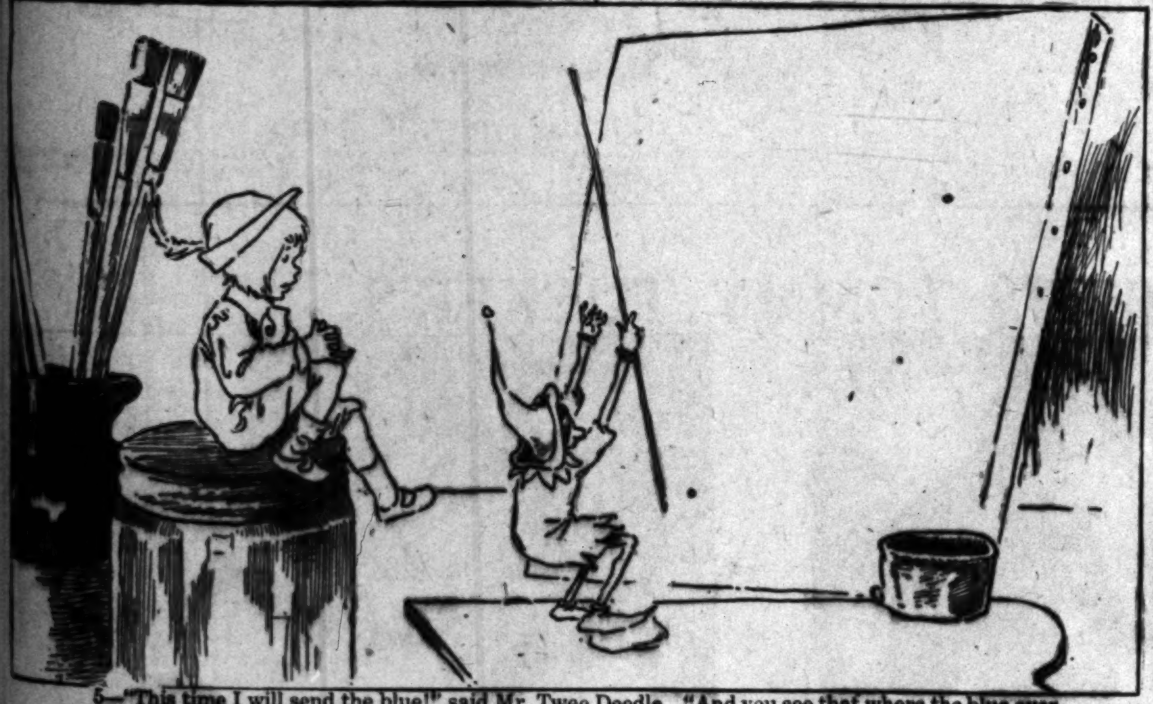
2—"I tell you what!" exclaimed Mr. Twee Deedle. "We will paint a picture while he is away!" So, while Dickie held the palette, Mr. Twee Deedle squeezed colors from the tubes.



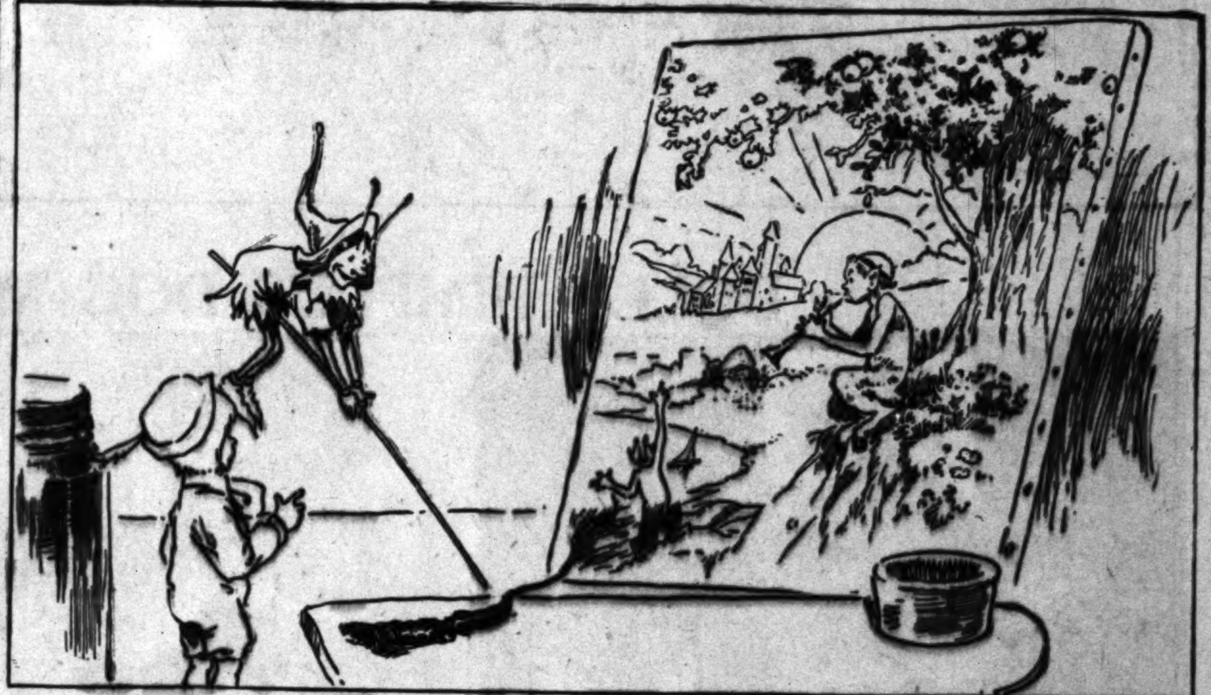
3—Mr. Twee Deedle said a few magic words, and yellow flew from the palette to the canvas. "Why don't you use some of the other colors?" Dickie asked. "I'll use red next," Mr. Twee Deedle replied



4—So Mr. Twee Deedle waved his stick, and red flew to the canvas. "You see where the red color laps over the yellow it makes orange color," said Mr. Twee Deedle.



5—"This time I will send the blue!" said Mr. Twee Deedle. "And you see that where the blue overlaps the yellow it makes green, and where it overlaps the red it makes purple. By combining red, yellow and blue we have brown!



6—Now I'll use the black to strengthen and outline the other colors," said Mr. Twee Deedle. "It makes a pretty picture," Dickie replied.

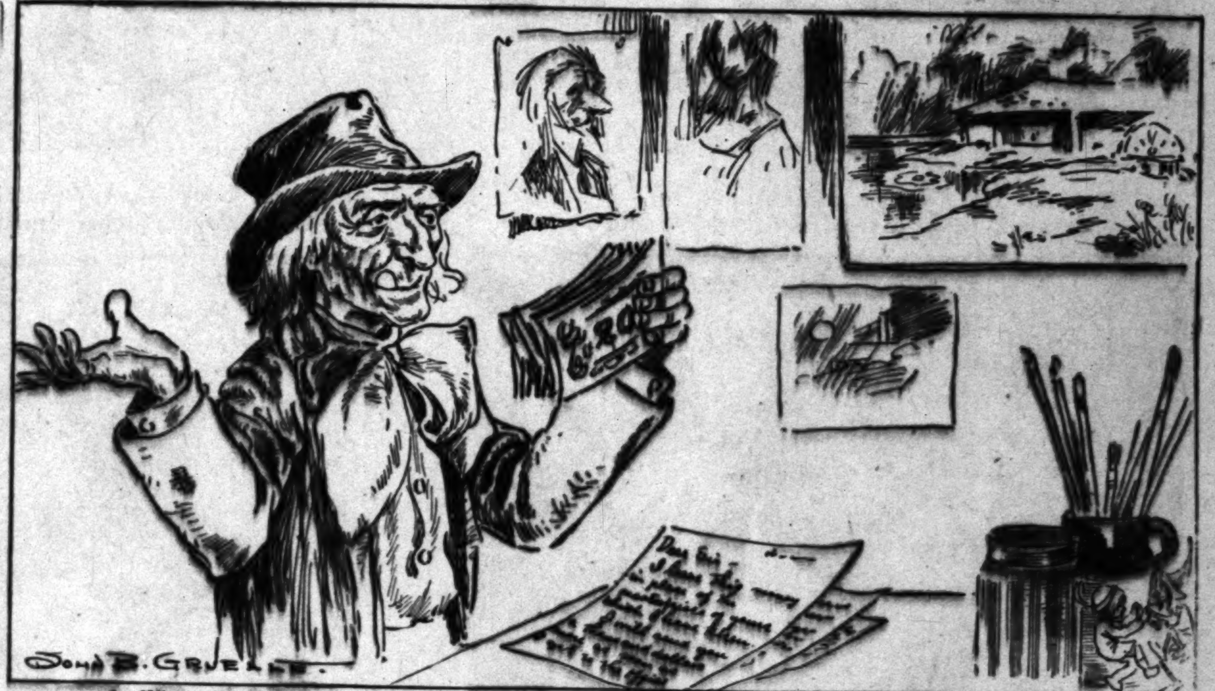
7—As Dickie and Mr. Twee Deedle were admiring the picture, an aged man walked into the studio and picked up the painting. Mr. Twee Deedle and Dickie hid behind one of the jars and watched him as he put a roll of money on the table.



8—When the artist returned and found the money he was much pleased, thinking one of the pictures upon the wall had been selected. Mr. Twee Deedle and Dickie thought the secret was too good to tell, so the artist doesn't know even now.

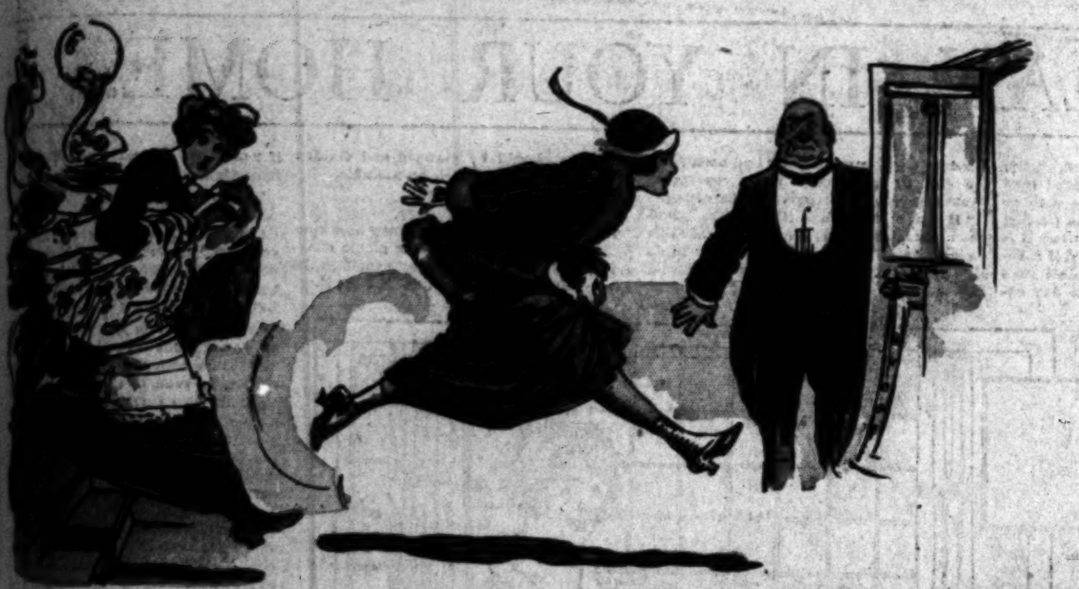
MAZIE THE MOTOR MAID

Verses by Paul West ✠ Illustrations by J. Norman Lynd

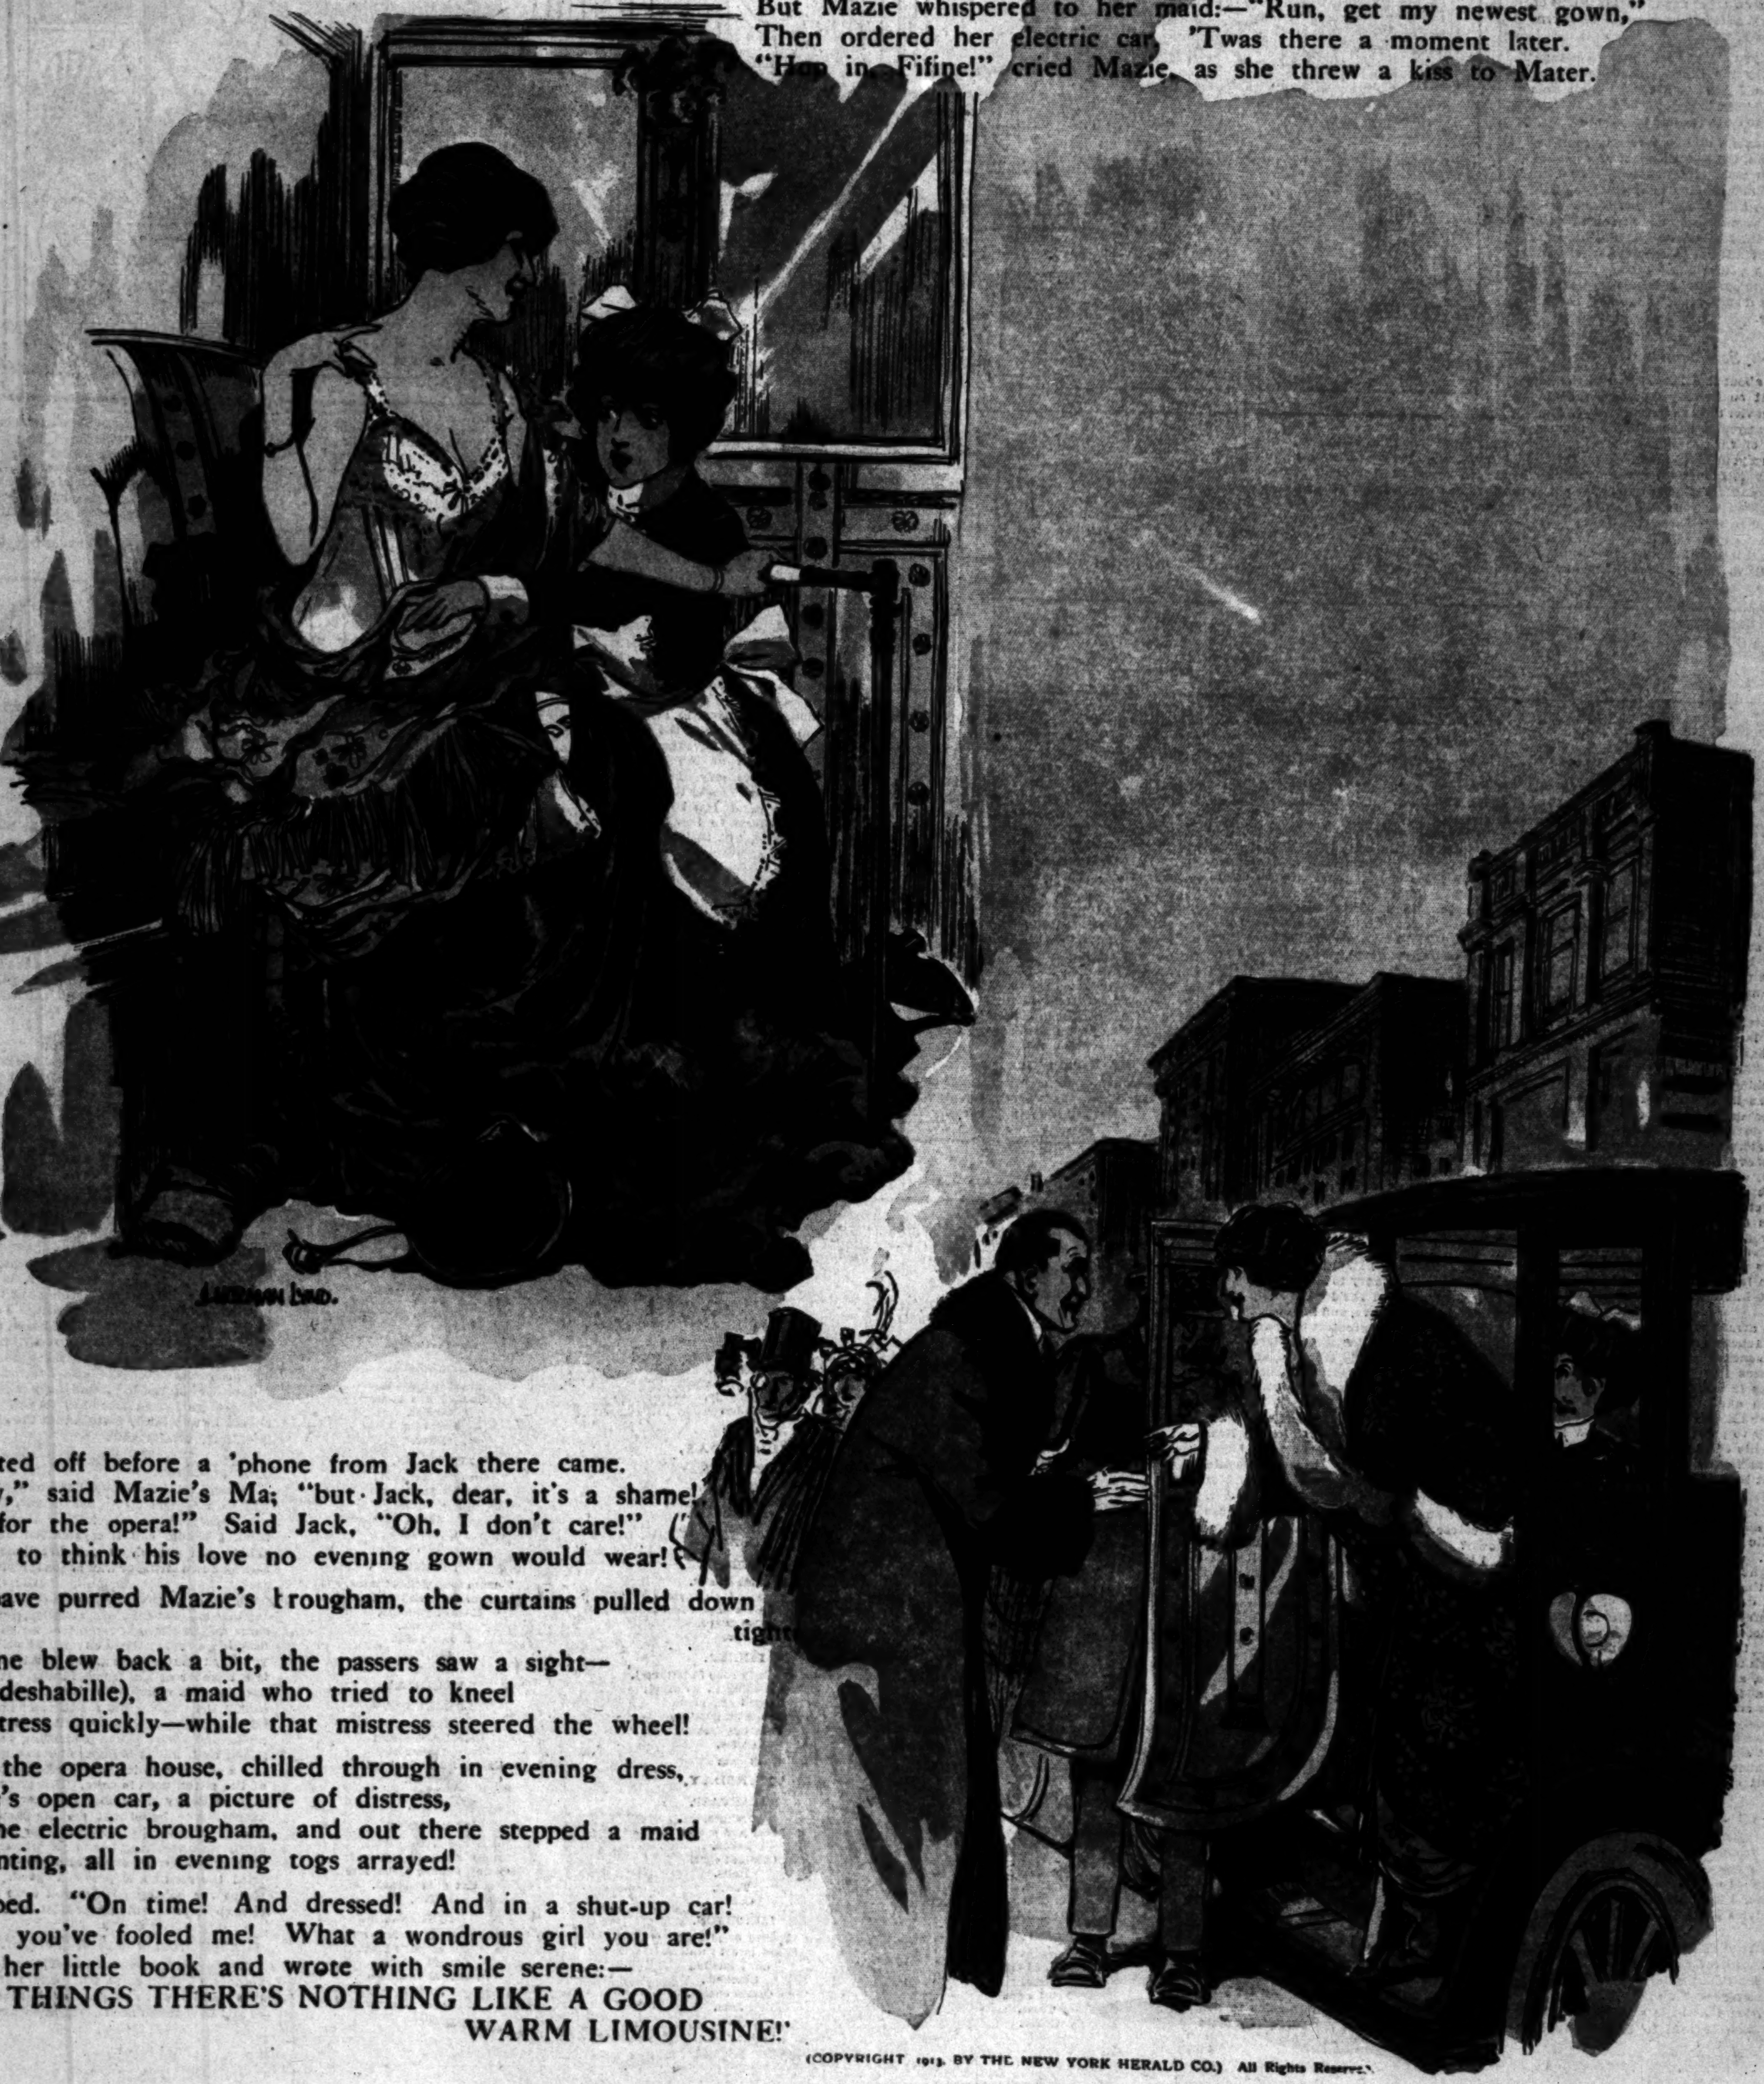


1—Of all the cars of Mazie's, you'll recall you've never seen
Her seated in a covered one—she loathed a limousine
"I want," she'd say, "to feel the wind upon my cheeks and hair!
Yes, even on the coldest days for closed cars I don't care!"

2—She owned a fine electric brougham, but this she seldom used,
Although its warmth and luxury few girls would have refused.
It gathered dust in the garage, its batt'ries oozing power,
While Mazie bold in open cars rode out at any hour.

3—One cold, clear day she went to ride—the mercury five below.
They swore she'd freeze, but off she went with cheeks and heart aglow,
Returning late—'twas nearly eight—to find, to her delight,
A 'phone from Jack Van Zandt to hear the opera that night.

4—"You can't!" said Ma. "Why, you're not dressed—Jack's waiting now down town!"
But Mazie whispered to her maid:—"Run, get my newest gown,"
Then ordered her electric car. 'Twas there a moment later.
"Hop in, Fifine!" cried Mazie, as she threw a kiss to Mater.



J. NORMAN LYND.

—They'd hardly started off before a 'phone from Jack there came.
"She's on her way," said Mazie's Ma; "but Jack, dear, it's a shame!
She's not dressed for the opera!" Said Jack, "Oh, I don't care!"
But quite annoyed to think his love no evening gown would wear!

—O'er the smooth pave purred Mazie's brougham, the curtains pulled down tight.
But once, when one blew back a bit, the passers saw a sight—
A radiant girl (en deshabille), a maid who tried to kneel
And dress her mistress quickly—while that mistress steered the wheel!

—Jack stood outside the opera house, chilled through in evening dress,
Waiting for Mazie's open car, a picture of distress,
When up rolled the electric brougham, and out there stepped a maid
As lovely as a painting, all in evening togs arrayed!

—"Mazie!" Jack gasped. "On time! And dressed! And in a shut-up car!
In all three things you've fooled me! What a wondrous girl you are!"
Then Mazie took her little book and wrote with smile serene:—
"FOR CERTAIN THINGS THERE'S NOTHING LIKE A GOOD WARM LIMOUSINE!"

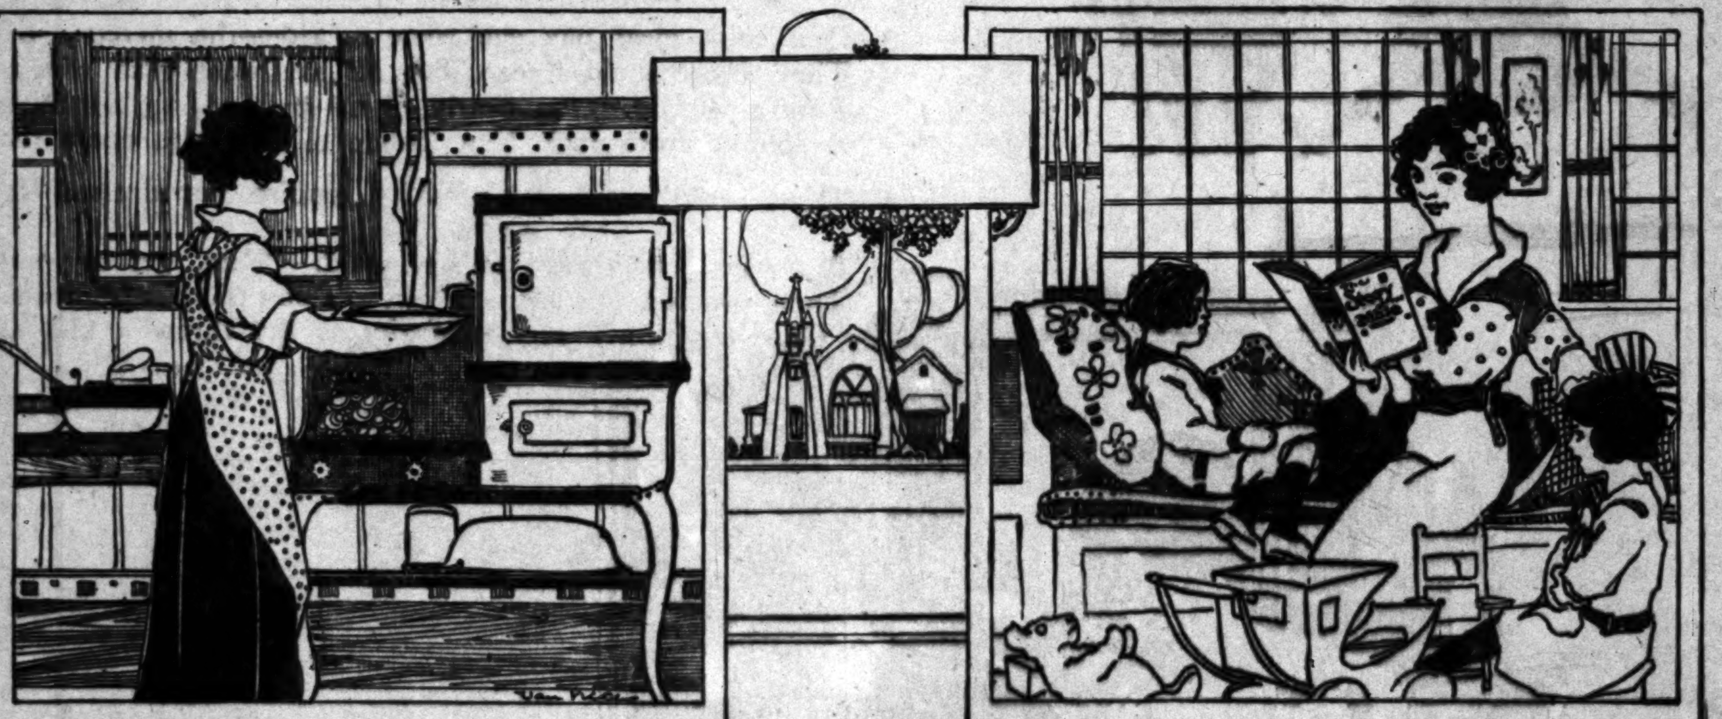
COMMON SENSE in the HOME

EDITED by MARION HARLAND

WHAT DOES SUNDAY MEAN IN YOUR HOME.



WHAT do you make Sunday mean for your household? If I put the question in this form, it is because I firmly believe that the way in which Sunday is regarded in any family is due to the woman at the head of it. I don't mean that the husband and father does not have a great influence in determining the character of the day; but, after all, it is "up to you," in the slang of the times, to decide how Sunday shall be kept. Is it a "day of rest and gladness," or is it one of dullness and depression; or is it just like the other days of the week, except that the men of the house are at home instead of at work, and that every one eats too much?

Something is wrong with the management of your household if the work on Sunday is as heavy as it is the remainder of the week. I say this knowing the while that in many homes the labor is greater then than on other days. If this is true of your establishment, set yourself to reform conditions at once.

"But," you say, "I can't make a change. On Sunday the family counts on a good meal, and I have to get it. I don't even have time to go to church, because there is so much to do in the line of cooking."

Other plaints of that sort have come my way before, but they do not alter my stand. Plan your work so that it will not burden you on Sunday. You have surely as good a right to a little repose as the man servant, or the maid servant, or the cattle of the seventh commandment. Putting aside all considerations of a religious nature, you owe it to yourself and to those to whom you are important to take your share of cessation from strenuous effort on the Sabbath day.

Plan on Saturday.

Think about it a little. You have a late breakfast on Sunday morning, probably, and a heavier than on the week days. Make your arrangements so that the additions to the bill of fare may not bring an added burden on your hands. Plan items for this and for your dinner which can be prepared on Saturday. Set your raised biscuit, or your muffins, or your Sally Lunn, or other hot bread to rise the night before, so that all you have to do with it the next morning is to pop it into the oven; or if you can bake your rolls or buns the preceding day and have only to warm them up for breakfast, so much the better.

The other parts of the breakfast—the cereal, the hot dish of meat or eggs—should be simple in character, so that they will be no more toil to make ready than the usual morning meal.

If you have several grown persons in the family make a frolic of the clearing away and washing up. If you have begun in this way no one will feel it an imposition. Try, too, to have your breakfast at a reasonable hour, so that there may not be too much hurry and scurry to get to church, and if there are tired lie-abeds, don't wait for them. Keep their breakfast warm over hot water and let them wait on themselves. If they prefer this to a fresh meal with the family, give them their choice, but don't assume the weight of this yourself.

May Cost More.

You see, I am planning for you to go to church. That is a practice in favor of which I have a distinct bias. I know I need it for myself, and I am inclined to believe that the majority of us are the better for it. If you will take the trouble to think in advance a little, there is no reason why the Sunday dinner should not be as savory as if you had renounced attendance at the house of the Lord in order to slave in the kitchen.

Your dessert you almost always make on Saturday. Pudding, pie, custard, jelly, whatever it may be, can be prepared then and be ready to go on the table with no further work than perhaps that of putting it into the oven for a few minutes, if it be hot, or turning it out of a mold if it belong to the gelatine family. Select such vegetables as can be cooked the day before—spinach, beans, cauliflower, or any of the number of others that are improved rather than injured by a second cooking. Or take others and have them made ready for the fire on Saturday and put into the fireless cooker with your meat on Sunday morning.

With the fireless cooker you can avoid cold meat and yet have much the same freedom as if your cooking had been done the day in advance. Your vegetables should have been prepared on Saturday.

"It costs more than it comes to," said one brisk housekeeper to whom I made this suggestion. "I'd rather not bother to do all that for the sake of going to church. It's easier to stay at home and attend to my business." Of course it is all in your point of view. To some of us no business is of more importance than using Sunday for the purpose for which it was intended—a day in which we might not only rest and refresh body and mind but give repose and nourishment to our souls. This we cannot do if we devote the day to cooking and washing dishes. These must be done, but the labor should be planned and divided so as to ease it as much as possible.

Day of Special Privilege.

The third meal of the day may be a simple affair of a more or less picnic character, and if you have young people in the family turn it over to them and let them have their way with it. If they invite in a few of their friends who have no place of their own, you give an added value to Sunday. They can take for granted the clearing away and washing of dishes as they have done a share in similar work and in the care of their own rooms early in the day.

So much for the physical side of Sunday, if you choose to call it so. How about the immaterial part of the day?

Try to make Sunday stand out as a day of special privilege, different from the other days of the week. Begin with your little children. Make the day different from the others and let the possessions they handle then have some connection with the religious life, directly or indirectly.

Give yourself to the children on Sunday as you do not on other days. Let them have time with you in which you tell them stories, or read to them, or sing to them, or walk with them. Make them look on it as a day of festivity. As they grow up encourage them to bring their friends to the house and to feel that it is a home day and their day peculiarly. All this need not interfere with church and Sunday school, and it need not detract in the least from the sacred character of Sunday. Only avoid making this last a nuisance to the children or to your husband. Never let any one under your influence feel the day is one to be disliked and dreaded, as I have known it to be in some homes.

To get a good idea of what Sunday ought not to be we have only to observe the streets on pleasant Sunday afternoons. Crowded with promenaders, out not only for the air and the exercise but to see and be seen. "No harm in that," you may say, and in a way you are right. These walkers are taking their outing on the only day in the week when they can get it, and when I see husbands and wives, parents and children in the procession it does my heart good. But too often the clusters of unguarded and unguided children, of restless boys and girls, make up the bulk of the walkers. What sort of a Sunday are they having? Where are the parents who should be giving them some other notion of the day except a chance for frolic and flirtation? Are any of your young people joining in their day in such a throng and such pursuits? If so, don't you think it is about time you gave some pretty serious thought to what Sunday means in your household?

I would like to hear from other mothers on this matter, to be told what they make of Sunday, how they spend it, if they and their children love it, or if it is a dreary period to be struggled through as best they may. Can you not give the rest of us some suggestions you yourself have found useful in making Sunday what it should be in your home?

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"I WOULD like to ask your advice about my youngest boy, who is sensitive. He is in his fifteenth year, good looking and bright, and has passed for his high school grade. He says the boys tease him and the girls slight and laugh at him until he is very unhappy. He has always been studious and I had set my heart on giving him an education. My other three boys were hard to manage and would not go to school much or study, but they are all working well and are good to me.

"My boy's teachers tell me he is entirely too sensitive, and sensitive children usually become selfish men and women, and it's my place to correct him, and the small amount of hazing done in the public schools doesn't amount to anything. He was amiable and obedient as a small child, but of late I notice selfishness. Do you think hazing would ruin a child's disposition?

One thing that struck me as queer about him was he never took to the baby who came to us two years ago. He was employed during the summer vacations at a candy store and got good wages for a boy, but he never brought the baby or me a box of candy or anything. My other boys adored the baby, and when she died this summer they were as heartbroken as I was, while he was quite indifferent and even chided me for grieving for one who, if she had lived—for she was a cripple—would be an expense to us always. My doctor says to let him leave school and go to work, but I don't know what to do.

"MOTHER OF FOUR."

I am afraid you have a selfish boy there. His teachers are right when they say sensitiveness in children usually means selfishness in men and women, for sensitiveness is a form of vanity or self-love. I would advise you to talk to him seriously and kindly when you have him alone and try to point out to him how he is injuring his character. If you can awaken his conscience in the matter it would be a great help.

While I do not approve of hazing, either in school or college, I do not think the slight amount of this he is likely to get in a public school ought to affect him permanently. All boys go through with it, and he ought to have enough of what is called "sporting blood" to take it as part of his school experience.

I confess his callousness as to the baby is not encouraging, and yet it may be he is going through the transition period through which so many boys pass at about his age, and that when he is older he will take a fresh start and improve. Keep him in school if you can, and try to make him comprehend he is only undergoing the same experiences which all boys have, and that it shows weakness and incapacity if he cannot stand what others have borne without complaint.

Has an Adopted Daughter.

I am glad to print in this connection a letter from another correspondent, who sends some excellent counsel in reply to the appeal of a mother who has difficulty with her little adopted daughter. Some of the advice given may help you with your boy:

"In reading Mrs. G. H.'s letter I felt I must write of my own experience in the hope she might gain a little help thereby. My heart goes out to her in greatest sympathy, yet that little girl needs sympathy also. She is said to be self-willed and strong headed. For twelve years I have been combating the same thing. For twelve years I have prayed as she has prayed, and sometimes I have felt it was all in vain. But let me say now it has been well worth while. You say you have another child of your own.

"Are you sure you treat the adopted child just as you would your own? Hard? Oh, yes, certainly! But, remember, that is part of your Christian duty. It may be she is self-willed because she doesn't understand the reason and thinks it is because she isn't your very own. Children are wonderfully deep thinkers, and once you gain her confidence enough to get her to explain why she refuses to obey you you will find things much easier. Let her do as she wishes once when the consequences will fall upon her own head, first telling her you think she should not do so. Experience is a good teacher, you know.

"Then, again, I find a girl from 10 to 13 is irritable, jealous, prone sometimes to lie even. It just means patience, patience, patience, and, above all, never forget the thought, 'If she were my own child what would I do under the same circumstances?' Let her understand that while you may make mistakes, as we all do, you are doing the best you can for her own good. Above all, her associations mean a great deal.

"My girl is nearly 14 now and was only a babe of 3 weeks when she came to us (though, thank God, she doesn't know!) and I don't know how we would live without her. I always try to say to myself, 'If she were my own she'd have some other faults, because I have, and then what would I do?' She is the greatest company! We do housework together, get her lessons together, practice music together, and she's a fine traveling companion. Once she refused to go to Sunday school or church because there wasn't anything to it. Now she's a good little church member. Once she hated school and couldn't learn. Now she loves school. Once music was a bugaboo. Now she loves it. It requires—again let me say it—patience and real love. Not because of duty, but because you love her. Not for an instant would I consider a house of correction. Would you if she were your own?

"MRS. M."

I have printed this letter, long as it is, because I believe it may be of help not only to the correspondent for whose sake it was written, but to others who may have trouble with their children, like the "mother of four," whose letter precedes it. The same rules hold good with boys as with girls, and they can be managed on the same principles. It seems ungracious to make a criticism of the course of the wise, loving woman who signs herself "Mrs. M.," but I cannot help feeling that she will make a mistake if she always conceals from her daughter the fact that the latter is not an own child. There is always the possibility of discovery and the shock then would be far worse and work a more serious influence than if the adopted mother told the truth in her own words and at the best time.

Offers Cigar Bands.

"I have a number of cigar bands which I will gladly send to any one wanting them.

"MRS. O. M."

Thank you for the offer, which will, no doubt, be promptly accepted by some correspondent. I regret that I cannot couple with it your request for clothing for your daughter. It is against our rules to ask for clothing, as I have repeatedly said before and must repeat again in reply to a dozen or more applications for clothing, flannels, wraps, and the like, with which this department is always flooded at the change of seasons. I am sorry to have to negative these requests, but I have no choice in the matter. Let me say a word relative to your husband's attitude towards his little stepdaughter. I feel you are guilty of a wrong towards him as well as towards her when you are afraid to ask him for anything for your child. He certainly did not marry you in ignorance of the child's existence, and when he took her with you he assumed the responsibility of caring for her and of clothing her properly. Can you not take some time when he is in the right mood and talk to him about this gently and quietly? He surely ought to be brought to look at it in a more reasonable way than he does at present.

Planning to Study Law.

"In obedience to a burning desire to study law, I have made arrangements with one of the leading schools of the city for my instruction, but, owing to my small salary as a stenographer and the dependence upon me of my aged parents, I cannot possibly purchase all of the expensive books which are necessary. I wonder if some of your kind readers or their friends have any second hand law books which they would be willing to loan an eager and earnest student, who will accord them the best of care and return to the donors when they have served my purpose in classes. Anything offered will be acceptable, and I shall gladly call at any address for them. If you desire to confirm my circumstances as outlined above I shall be glad to place you in touch with my present employers upon receipt of advice from you."

"J. E. B."

To my mind there is little doubt that this letter will meet a prompt and satisfactory response. While law books are expensive, there must be kind hearted lawyers who are willing to help a young struggler along, and will be glad to loan their books to one who can give as good references as this young man offers. I hold his address, and shall be glad to supply it to any one who can be of service to him.

Takes Away Rubber Taste.

"A correspondent wrote that she had put up fruit, and that, while it was nice when first canned and had kept perfectly, it tasted a little of the rubber rings. I have taken new can rubbers and dropped them for just a minute or two before using into a weak solution of baking soda and boiling water. I think this will overcome that rubbery taste of which she complains.

"MRS. G. H."

Thank you for the information. It will be of service to other housekeepers than the one you try to help. We have all noticed that taste of rubber occasionally in canned or preserved fruit, and it is worth while to know some good method to prevent it.

Needs a Wheeled Chair.

"I am 53 years old, and for the last three years have suffered from rheumatism to an extent which has crippled me so badly I cannot walk. Do you suppose you could induce some kind friend to let me have a wheeled chair? One day my husband tried to hire one, so he could take me out, and found he could not get one for less than $5, so, of course, I had to stay at home. I have always been a hard working woman, but since my sickness I have had to give up many things. I have tried to make little articles to sell in the hope of raising money for a chair, but thus far in vain. I am willing to do anything I can in return for the chair or to help pay for it.

"MRS. D. T. S."

I am sure there are many charitable souls who would hail the chance to brighten the days of this sufferer by the gift or the loan of a wheeled chair. I hope this paragraph may come to the notice of some one near enough to make it possibe to get a chair to this applicant without too heavy expense.

Making Baby Go to Sleep.

"Will A. L. M., who speaks of the difficulty she has in getting her baby to go to sleep quietly, let a great-grandmother, who made mistakes when a loving mother, ask if your baby is put to rest in a band or any clothing which binds him more than the garments you wear yourself? Your baby was not born with a band, and need not be tortured by wearing one just because he has blossomed for you. Neither is any baby born naughty. Many a trained nurse binds the baby—why, I cannot tell. When you take the baby up and change his position it may ease him and he sleeps because he is so tired. But be sure he is not bound too tightly by his clothing and that he does not want a drink of water. I can hear his cries, and it breaks my heart, too.

"A GREAT GRANDMOTHER."

I hope this wise advice may meet the eye of the young mother whose baby cries. I gave her counsel to let him "cry it out," but always before it comes to this she should be absolutely certain that the child is entirely comfortable.

* *

Use of Citron.

"I have lots of citrons, but know of no way to put them up for use in cake. Will you kindly publish recipe for them? I think I should call it crystallized citron. Would you publish as well directions for salting down string or wax beans for winter use?

"MRS. G."

You make the common mistake of thinking that the citron melons, so called, are the same as the citron of commerce which you describe as crystallized citron. The citron you buy to put in cake grows on a tree and is a member of the lemon family. It has nothing in common with the citron melon, except the name. The melon can be made into a good preserve, treating it by the same recipe you would use in preserving watermelon rind, but it is impossible to make it into a conserve which would take the place of the citron used in cake. This error has been made by a number of other housekeepers who have sent me the same request. I hope the directions for salting down wax or string beans for winter use may be supplied by some Cornerite who has tried the recipe and proved it good. The recipe for baking powder you were good enough to send will appear later.

Request from a School Teacher.

"I am writing to find out if I can get a number of magazines and papers or picture books or pictures. I am a school teacher and have much need of magazines which have pictures in them for my little pupils' children to cut out and paste into scrap books. If you know of any one who has a number of such things, will you please send me the address? I would pay express charges if not far away.

"R. E."

We hear frequent complaints of the difficulty of putting the supply and the demand in touch. Those of us who are overwhelmed with the illustrated magazines which litter our tables and crowd our book shelves long for some use to which we could put them. We don't like to throw them into the furnace or send them away by the [illegible]. Here is one place where they will do real good, and I shall hope to receive many requests for the address of this teacher and that she may get all the material she desires for her pupils' scrap books.

Games for Boys.

"Are there any of your Cornerites who will extend a helping hand to a girl who is trying to get enough material together to work successfully with a lot of poor boys? We have been given a large room for our clubroom, but we haven't anything to use. We want a few good games, such as checker board, a crokinole board, and games of that sort. Most of all we would like a billiard table, for which we would be glad to pay as much as possible if some one would give it to us cheap or take easy payments. The donor would be doing a great work in helping to keep these boys in good company and together of an evening and would earn a great deal of gratitude.

"C. H. E."

Another application for help that will appeal to persons longing to be of service in the line of social betterment.

Pieces for Rugs.

"Away here in the country we who are no longer young find ourselves very lonely during several months of the year. Many of us never leave our own homes for weeks at a time, and the days hang heavy on our hands. If any of your Helping Hand readers have pieces of wool, calico, silk, or any worn garments that would do to be made into rugs they would give many of us pleasure in work. I have one in mind who needs help in her loneliness, and if the pieces are sent we will see that she gets them.

"C. H. A."

I know of few more [illegible] experiences than that of having [illegible] over empty hands, and I am [illegible] who have ever led full, [illegible] following them now, [illegible]. Are there not some of you [illegible] to send to this applicant? For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

QUICKLY MADE GIFTS

Designed by Elizabeth Miller

One-Half of Glove Case

IF YOU haven't thought of making presents for the coming holiday season, here are four bright ideas that will help you to solve the [illegible], and being of the quickly made [illegible], they ought to appeal to your [illegible] of the practical and beautiful—[illegible] that will answer the gift [illegible] in a delightful way. These [illegible] any woman who is feminine [illegible] to wish her own personal little [illegible] to have the touch of hand embroidery. The designs are so simple that they can be worked in an hour. Think of it! In the afternoon you can make presents for your inner circle of friends and be remembered for putting your thought into beautiful tangible form.

There is shown one-half of a folding glove case that is so arranged that it will hold either long or short gloves. The rest of the design is a continuation of the scallops and the corner is not decorated. After tracing the design shown, continue the sides so that an oblong fifteen inches long will be ready for working. This case folds in three sections across the short ends for the short gloves. If you wish it to hold long gloves, fold it lengthwise in two parts. A medium-weight material is all that is necessary. White linen is the accepted fabric, because it can be washed and kept in a state of snowy whiteness, which is one of the attractions of the embroidered accessories of the dressing room.

When working the design, pad the petals of the flowers and the leaves with soft darning cotton, then work in a soft mercerized thread in solid stitch. The bluets are very easily done, and are the most effective flowers for the time spent on them that you could wish. The stitches are worked across the forms. Outline the stems in outline stitch and work the dots in eyelets to give a relief. The scallops should be padded and worked in buttonhole stitch, and the case should then have ribbon tied so that it can be folded in the way suggested.

In a smaller gift there is just as much thought, as a glance at the round design for the powder puff will prove. This should also be on white linen; but the little forget-me-nots can be worked without padding in blue thread. The rosebuds can be done in pink, and the whole design will be a lovely gift in dainty colors that will delight the heart of any girl that carries a powder puff. The ring of eyelets is done in buttonhole stitch, and through the holes is run a fine ribbon that is tied in a bow; after that the puff, which can be bought at the toilette counter of any large store, is inclosed, with your best wishes for a happy Christmas. Pad the scallops and buttonhole as in any article; and let me suggest that this will look very much better if it is laundered before giving.

The cardcase is a small gift; but it is appreciated by any one that carries visiting cards. This case can be worked in colors and need not be on white linen. Any rep, monk's cloth, heavy linen or rough silk will form a lovely background for the berries, that can be either mistletoe or holly. The berries can be in eyelet stitch if a lining of contrasting linen or silk is added. In this case there will not be need of cutting a second piece. That should be allowed for when planning the inside of the case. To this should be added pockets at each end to hold the cards. The stem of the design should be done in stem stitch and the leaves in solid stitch. Buttonholing after the padding will finish the embroidery.

The long design with the scalloped end is a case for a pair of scissors. The lower part of the case folds up and the curved end comes down as a flap and is fastened by a loop and a crocheted button. The seaming of this is by turning in the edges and basting them together and either stitching on the outside or whipping them together. In working the flap use solid work in the entire design. This gift can be completed by adding a pair of embroidery scissors, and will be a joy to the heart and the workbag of any needlewoman.

If you will let this page help you in your gift making, you will be glad that the handmade gift is numbered among your presents.

Stitchery for Christmas

THERE are busy days for the woman who makes all of her Christmas gifts, and although [illegible] may have an almost inexhaustible [illegible] of ideas, a few more may prove [illegible].

Do you know that the daintiest of [illegible] cap can be fashioned from a handkerchief? This gift would prove [illegible] acceptable to any mother, as [illegible] cannot have an overabundance of caps.

To make a cap of this variety, fold the handkerchief crosswise, a little [illegible] the center, and turn back the [illegible] of the wider section to form [illegible] about the face. Now fold [illegible] the ends to form pointed revers [illegible] the ears and finely pleat or [illegible] the neck portion of the cap to [illegible] small head. Ornament the top [illegible] a bow or rosette of ribbon and [illegible] tie-strings of ribbon or lawn [illegible] front. Select a dainty, em[illegible] handkerchief of sheer linen [illegible] whipstitch a fine edging of lace [illegible] the hem. Since this cap must [illegible] baby's head from the cold, [illegible] it an old cap made of a sin[illegible] of light-weight flannel [illegible] flannel covered with white [illegible]. These are purchasable at [illegible] department of any large [illegible] or you can make one at home [illegible] very short time.

[illegible] nightgown case is something [illegible] woman would enjoy having. [illegible] placed at the foot of the [illegible] contributes a touch of daintiness [illegible] well-appointed bedroom. [illegible] the case, cut a strip of linen [illegible] inches wide and thirty-[illegible] long. When the linen is [illegible] it with china silk in a delicate [illegible] or with white, which is always [illegible] laundered. Embroider the top [illegible] dainty design done with mercer[illegible], combining the eyelet, seed [illegible] stitches. Tie the sides together with ribbon to correspond with [illegible]. When lawn is used, make [illegible] and by covering a single [illegible] sheet cotton with the silk. [illegible] removed when the cover is [illegible]. Scent the case with sachet [illegible] ornament one corner with a [illegible] of ribbon.

[illegible] flounces are also appropriate [illegible] since they are so very nar[illegible] are not the endless task they [illegible].

[illegible] to embroider the flounce, [illegible] of a sheer quality [illegible] a trailing daisy, clover, [illegible] or vine design to form [illegible] scallop and button[illegible] the lower edge. Finish the [illegible] with a bias strip of the material [illegible] buttonholes at intervals [illegible] serve to attach it to the [illegible]. If you do not relish the idea [illegible] buttonholes, the recipient can [illegible] the flounce to the foundation.

Equally lovely flounces may be made of bands of lace insertion combined alternately with bands of hand tucking. Join these neatly, whipstitching edges together, for much of the beauty of the flounce depends upon the hand sewing. Gather this scantily and stitch to a band of beading through which the ribbon is threaded. The flounce is now ready to adorn any petticoat to be worn under sheer frocks.

One of the loveliest flounces recently displayed at a smart shop was developed of white chiffon cloth, and can be duplicated for one-half the price asked. Purchase a sufficient quantity of chiffon cloth to make a strip fourteen or sixteen inches wide and one and three-quarters yards long. Turn back the narrowest possible hem and stitch it by hand. To this whipstitch an inch-wide silk fringe and gather the top of the flounce, finishing it with a ruching formed by folding a strip of chiffon so that no raw edges appear, and running a shirring string through the center.

At the trimming department of the large shops tiny roses fashioned of chiffon or satin are sold by the yard. From these roses can be made bowknots, garlands or festoons to trim the flounce. Detachable chiffon flounces are usually favored to adorn the petticoat of white crepe de chine or messaline. If preferred, chiffon cloth of a pastel tint may be substituted for white.

You will enjoy making these charming articles for your friends, so purchase the necessary materials and begin to stitch.

Children's Guest Towels

A PLEASANT surprise for a little overnight guest would be to find in the bathroom of your house a child's guest towel. These can be made in ever so many different ways, but one of the prettiest fashions is to have across one end a band of crocheted insertion in which there is a row of little ducks, cats or rabbits. Any art needlework store should be able to supply a crochet pattern for such borders.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top.

With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

Keep your designs and, with specially prepared impression paper, that can be used many times, trace when needed.

Doily Cases

THEY'RE just the nicest things imaginable, those doily cases, and they are very easy to make. The cases can be made of any soft, firm, pretty material, but cretonne seems best suited to the purpose.

Procure a piece of soft, rather heavy cretonne in a light color. A white background with a design in light color is best, for one can then readily see when it is soiled and launder it before the soil has an opportunity to come off on the doilies. The cretonne is cut a yard long by twenty-four inches wide. It is faced or lined with a piece of heavy white sateen the same size. The whole is then bound with a half-inch ribbon the color of the design. The ribbon binding does not need turning in because of the two selvage edges, and it is just as well, and perhaps better, to stitch the binding by machine. On one end of the case thus made sew three pieces of the ribbon for fasteners. These fasteners should each be about fifteen inches in length and should be placed about eight inches apart, one piece being in the exact center of the end of the case and the others being eight inches either side of it. The ribbons should be tacked firmly to the case exactly by the center of their lengths, so that there will be the two ends to tie about the case when it is rolled.

Now in the other end is fastened a pasteboard mailing tube. This is not fastened in permanently, because the tube must be taken out each time the case is washed. The tube, which is twenty-four inches long and about an inch and a half wide, must have its edges trimmed neatly. Two circles are then cut from a piece of the cretonne and are pasted or tied with heavy thread over the tube ends. The cretonne circles must be large enough to come an inch or more over the edges of the tube. The tube is then rested upon the end of the case that has not the ribbon fasteners, and this end is brought over the tube far enough to cover it, and is tacked in several places to the sateen lining to keep the tube from slipping out.

The case is now ready for the doilies. When the case is spread out so that it lies perfectly flat, place the doily or doilies in it, so that they lie upon the flat surface without a wrinkle, and begin at the tube end to roll the case carefully up over the doilies. Great care must be taken when rolling the case or the doilies will wrinkle. When the case and doilies have been wrapped about the tube, tie the case fast to the tube by the little ribbon fasteners, to keep it from opening.

Grandmother's Work

BEHOLD, an occupation for grandmother during the days preceding the holidays, for tatting has again come into vogue for infant and grown-up alike. Even tatting borders for handkerchiefs are in demand, and many an old lady will rejoice in doing this fancy work, in which she has had so much more experience than her granddaughters. If you are preparing your trousseau, you need tatting. If you are preparing a layette, you need tatting. If you are replenishing your supply of lingerie, you need tatting. If you are wondering what to give Molly for Christmas, there's tatting. Yes, grandmother will be kept busy.

Embroidered Lace

A FRENCH shop recently displayed a lovely lingerie waist on which there was much hand embroidery, chiefly solid satin stitch. Rows of wide valenciennes insertion went down either side of the front of the waist, and the center was a panel of solid embroidery. The embroidered leaves of the flowers projected about half an inch over the fine lace insertion, and the effect was charming. Great care has to be exercised when embroidering over lace that the threads of the embroidery do not pull and strain at the mesh of the lace.

Coronation Daisies

THE name is rather mystifying. However, it has no royal significance, as it would at first suggest. The daisies, artificial flowers, are simply fashioned from coronation braid. First cover flat, round buttons with yellow satin of the shade found in daisy centers. The buttons are the size of the centers of the natural flowers. Then about these centers loop petals of white silk coronation braid and fasten them to the back of the button center. Leaf-green silk soutache braid is used for the stems, and loops of the same can be made into leaves. These dainty little flowers can be used to trim a hat, ornament a gown, used for neckwear, or any one of a number of purposes.

An Unusual Girdle

A MOST effective girdle can be made by embroidering black velvet with that very narrow fillet ribbon that is used to work those fascinating covers and pillow tops of filet lace. If one hesitates to embroider the girdle without first marking out the design upon the velvet, this can easily be done by outlining in white thread the simple daisylike flowers generally used. The fillet ribbon can then be marked over the thread. The flowers may be marked in any color desired, and the foliage should be a subdued green.

An Advance Gift

IT IS called an "advance gift" because it will very likely have to wait in a dark linen drawer until warm weather steals upon us again. However, at Christmas time we expect gifts for all seasons of the year, so there is no reason why a daisy cover for the summer wicker table should not be welcomed. Buy or stamp four square linen doilies with a spray of daisies in their upper left-hand and lower right-hand corners. These doilies should be about fifteen inches square. Embroider these in green, white and yellow, exactly according to the colors of the natural flower. See that they are well padded before beginning to embroider, as the real handsomeness of the cover depends largely upon the way the daisies stand out from the background. Cluny insertion two inches wide should now be sewed across each doily, going diagonally across them from plain corner to plain corner—meaning the corners in which there is no embroidery. The linen is cut from under the insertion to effectively bring out the pattern of the lace and to give the cover a light, summery appearance. The squares are then placed so that all of the cluny strips point toward the center, much in the fashion of the stripes in the English flag. These squares, after they are in the position just described, are joined by strips of the cluny insertion. These latter strips are placed in a position resembling a cross of even dimensions. To do this one strip of the cluny must run the full length of two squares down the center, but the cross strip must be cut in two pieces and joined to each side of this center vertical piece, so that there will not be a double layer of the lace in the center. When the four squares are thus joined the edge of the large square thus formed is edged with another strip of the cluny insertion. On this, as a finish, is sewed cluny edging of the same design, about two inches in width. The cover is now complete.

If cluny lace is considered too expensive, torchon answers the purpose very nicely. Try to get the torchon lace in a cluny pattern. Coronation crocheted lace is most effective when used in this fashion; as handsome, in fact, as the cluny. Coronation crochet is that lace which is crocheted about a design of coronation braid.

Beautiful and Durable

DON'T you love beautiful things, and isn't it an added joy to have them really durable? Of course. Well, what about a bedspread made of heavy filet crocheted lace and heavy linen? It will be the nicest kind of an occupation for winter evenings about the lamp. The spread is composed of alternate strips of linen and lace, until the spread has reached the width desired. One may work on one strip at a time, which, when folded, is not too large to be conveniently carried about in a workbag. The long linen strips, reaching from the top to the bottom of the spread, are about fifteen inches wide, and are entirely surrounded by hemstitching at the top of an inch-and-a-half hem. The linen used is of rather a coarse weave, owing to its heaviness, and so the threads for hemstitching are easily pulled. One of the children would be glad to make some Christmas money by pulling the threads at so much a yard. The crocheted lace is made in one of the numerous pretty filet patterns, and is only ten inches wide. When finished, there is a linen strip on either end of the spread. The strips are whipped together by hand with a strong thread. The thread used in crocheting the lace is quite heavy. This makes the lace more durable and it takes much less time to crochet the strip with coarse thread than it would with fine thread. When the strips are whipped together the whole large square thus formed is edged with a pointed filet crochet lace to match the insertion and about ten inches wide. If preferred, one can, of course, make both the linen and lace strips narrower. Naturally, it would then take more strips than if done in the wider widths.

The spread thus made is a very handsome piece of bedlinen, but it can be made still more elaborate by the addition of embroidery down the center of each linen pattern. A trailing vine of flowers or conventional designs a measured distance apart would be most effective for the purpose.

IN the GLASS of FASHION

For the Afternoon Call

THE salient features of costumes at the present moment are draperies and tunics. Novel variations of these themes are here presented for your approval.

A handsome gown is of dull-green charmeuse. The bodice has a deep U-shaped yoke filled in with a chemisette of white mousseline de soie. Long sleeves are set in at dropped shoulder seams, and the fullness is confined about the waist with bands of black ribbon velvet. A bow of the same material adorns the corsage, and the long ends pass beneath the girdle and hang over the front of the skirt. The girdle is low across the front and gradually widens toward the back. To produce the pegtop silhouette the skirt is draped over the hips and gathered at the waist line.

The chic little collarette and muff are a combination of seal and leopard. A small black velvet hat trimmed with yellow ostrich plumes completes this stunning toilette.

Extremely smart is the taupe-colored gown of mirror velvet. The bodice is developed in simulated jacket effect, trimmed with triangular medallions of Chinese embroidery. Subsleeves of gray lace are joined to tops of the velvet.

The artistically draped skirt is slashed over the left foot.

Dyed fox has revolutionized the fur fashions, for, despite adverse criticisms, it has won the approval of smart women. A golden-yellow fox muff and collarette are an attractive addition to this gown.

The small hat of black velvet is trimmed with white-and-red velvet.

The smaller drawings illustrate the use of fur on afternoon costumes. Old-rose duvetine, with a lampshade tunic of chiffon, forms the first costume. Skunk fur edges the tunic, collar and cuffs.

Next to this is a frock of gray peau de cygne adorned with embroidered medallions and marten.

The collection would be incomplete without an amber-colored costume, and the model shown here is of satin and chiffon.

The latter material is draped over the bodice and forms the tunic. Bands of skunk border the bretelles and tunic.

Corded silk of a dull-green color is the material chosen to fashion the last design.

The skirt is unusual in that it has two folded flounces gathered about the top. Skunk fur trims the girdle, collar and cuffs.
